O'FLYNN vs. WALLBRIDGE.

PURSUANT to the Decree and final order for sale made in this cause, bearing date the 28th day of November, A.D. 1878, and the 20th day of June, A.D. 1879, there will be sold by Public Auction, with the approbation of Samuel Shaw Lazier, Esquire, Master of this Court at Belleville, at his Chambers, Shire Hall, in the City of Belleville, on

SATURDAY, the 13th day of DECEMBER next,

at the hour of eleven o'clock in the forenoon, the following valuable City property, being in the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, and being composed of Lots number 8 on the south side of Moira Street, Park Lot number 84, and Lot number 15, on the south side of Wallbridge Road, and north of Farely Street, which said parcels of land are composed of part of Lot number 2, in the 1st concession of the Township of Thurlow, and are laid down on a plan which was recorded on the 24th day of January, A.D. 1872, in the Registry office of the County of Hastings as Park Lot lies north of the Railroad, and south of College Street.

The Lots shall be sold separately.

The purchaser shall at the time of sale pay down a deposit of $10 for every $100 of the purchase money, and the balance thereof within one month thereafter.

In all other respects, the conditions of sale shall be the standing conditions of sale of the Court of Chancery.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypesphosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label; and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I have tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery. I would bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the nature of the fit is not terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.
D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR,—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Sold by all Druggists.

Females suffering from pain and weakness will derive great comfort and strength from the use of Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster. Where children are affected with whooping cough, ordinary coughs or colds or weak lungs, it is the one and only treatment they should receive. This article contains new medicinal elements such as is found in no other remedy in the same form. It is far superior to common porous plasters, liniments, electrical appliances and other external remedies. It relieves pain at once, strengthens and cures where other plasters will not even relieve. For LAME AND WEAK BACK, Rheumatism, Kidney disease and all local aches and pains it is also the best known remedy. Ask for Benson's Capcine Plaster and take no other. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 cents.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT,
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of RINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from the Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are being put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞ This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

THE OTTAWA BANQUET.

A Most Brilliant Success.

Distinguished Visitors from every Canadian Province.

BRILLIANT SPEECH BY SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD.

The banquet to Sir John A Macdonald at Ottawa on last Thursday night was surrounded with circumstances rarely witnessed in Canada. Every Province in the Dominion was represented, and the utmost enthusiasm was shown. It was in all respects an honest tribute to a veteran and long tried servant to cause of Canada and the Empire. For many hours before that fixed for the commencement of the banquet the city was full of visitors from the east and west. Manitoba, British Columbia, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick had alike contributed their quota to the mass of people.

The banquet hall, when illuminated with 500 gas gets, presented a scene of dazzling brilliancy. The decorations were designed and carried out with exquisite taste, and the hall was transformed into a place of beauty. There were five tables, each eighty feet in length, and at the southern end was a table on a raised dais, where the distinguished guests of the evening were seated. These tables were beautifully decorated with rich plate, and a thousand different kinds of flowers. The decorations consisted principally of coats of arms of the different Provinces and cities of the Dominion, mottoes, evergreens, crowns, gas ornaments, flags and bunting.

The banquet hall was filled with those who had gathered in the city to pay honor to the leader of the Government. At eight o'clock the guests assembled. Among those who occupied seats at the table were Hon. James Skead (chairman) Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir L. Tilley, Sir Charles Tupper, Hon. Mr. Aikens, Hon. James Macdonald, Hon. Mr. Loranger, Hon. J. O'Connor, Hon. M. Bowell, Hon. Mr. Baby, Sir A. T. Galt, Hon. T. N. Gibbs, Hon. Mr. Macdougall, Hon. Mr. Morris, Hon. Mr. Sullivan (Premier of Prince Edward Island), His Lordship the Bishop of Ontario, Hon. Mr. Landry (New Brunswick), Hon. Mr. Fraser (New Brunswick), ex-Governor Trutch, Hon. Neil McLeod (Prince Edward Island), Mr. Des Brisay (Prince Edward Island), Hon. Mr. Wedderburn (New Brunswick). The vice-chairs were occupied by Messrs. Rochester, M. P.; Currier, M. P.; Tasse, M. P.; Alonzo Wright, M. P.; and P. Baskerville, M. P. P.

After the usual loyal toasts had been duly honored, the Chairman proposed the toast of "Our Guests." He said—This is the toast of the evening. (Cheers) The gentleman who forms the principal subject of the toast this evening, I have known for the past quarter of a century, as a statesman, with the best interests and the advancement of the country at heart, and who, during the many years he has been at the helm of affairs, has always been the leader of the Conservative party. It seems fated that the Tory principle should be triumphant, both in Canada and England. Look at the Earl of Beaconsfied. (Cheers.) Why, we shall soon have an Earl of Ottawa, and he Sir John Macdonald. (Cheers.)

The toast was received with great enthusiasm, the vast assembly rising and cheering again and again. The band played "Hail to the Chief," and Captain McNabb gave a song.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD, on rising to respond, was received with renewed expressions of enthusiasm. After the cheers had subsided he said:—Mr. Chairman and gentlemen,—I can scarcely hope that my feeble voice will reach the ears of all this vast audience that has assembled here to do honor to my colleagues and myself; but just as my voice is too feeble to be heard, so my language would be altogether, if I were heard, inadequate to express the deep feelings of gratitude and gratification and of satisfaction and pride with which my colleagues and myself receive this grand ovation. (Cheers.) I have, Mr. Chairman, a peculiar pleasure—an individual pleasure—a pleasure personal to myself, and almost apart from that of others in this magnificent demonstration. (Cheers.) I cannot forget that in the same month of November six years ago, the Government of which I was the head, was forced from its position, but we wrapped ourselves in our mantle and fell, I hope with dignity, certainly without a murmur. We accepted the verdict of the then feeling of the country; and those who were politically opposed to us, and who, I am sorry to say, carry political opposition into personal enmity, then declared that when I fell, I fell like Lucifer, never to rise again. Aye, but when my colleagues fell with me, we did not fall alone. (Cheers.) Thank God we had friends in this country, and we had friends in this city, and these are around me now. (Cheers.) You are no fair-weather friends. (Cheers.) You said:—

"Let others hail the rising sun,
We bow to him whose course is run."

(Renewed cheers.) When we retired, the friends who stood by me, who sacrificed with me, knowing that I had been made the scape-goat and had been the target for all their shafts, consented to follow me, and I said to them, (laughter)—take another and a newer leader, take a man who has not been made the target of so many shafts, who has not been made the object of so much obloquy. When I told them this, they laughed me to scorn, and when I summoned them to the next day in solemn convocation to choose a new leader, not one man came; they said they would not come and would not listen to the suggestion. (Cheers.) This demonstration from within was followed by a more magnificent one from Canada, for when we were run out of the political category, when our hopes for position seemed to be desperate, then the Conservatives of this city rallied round me and at a gathering almost as large as this, for it was not confined to Ottawa men, told us to be of good cheer; they said the temporary feeling which had been raised against us by the diabolical treachery that had been exercised against us had passed away and that the time of retribution had come. (Cheers.) That compliment was offered me in the fall of 1878, so that I have a peculiar pleasure in coming here and with my colleagues receiving the compliment at your hands, because, in addition, you, the men of Ottawa, could be supposed to be actuated by any desire to court favor by any desire to worship the rising sun, by any desire to run with the hare and hunt with the hounds, (Cheers.) You stood by us in our adversity, and you have a right to triumph in the victory which we have attained, but Ottawa not only offered me a demonstration in the same month in which I was defeated and in which I resigned, but on the very first occasion, and in the face of the triumphant Ministry which had just been formed, and which had carried the country by the night march which they stole upon us in January, 1874, you sent Mr. Currier to join me in the House, to sit beside me and my friends in the cold shades of Opposition. (Cheers.) Therefore I can say that I feel a triple pride in being greeted as you are greeting me to-night, and in joining in the triumphs of those who did not desert us in the day of our bitter misfortune and unmerited defeat. (Cheers.) Sir, I will say but a few words. I shall speak long, because I see there is a most formidable list of toasts, and to me a still more formidable list of speakers to follow me. In the few words I do say, I will endeavor to call the attention of my friends who are present to some of the reasons why the Conservative party with which I have been so long connected, governed the destinies of the country, and to the reason why it has taken a new lease of power—a lease which, if I will be held, my assignee will. (Cries of "Oh, yes you will.") A lease, I say, I believe will be as long as that which terminated in our defeat in 1873. (Cheers.) In 1854, gentlemen, when that great junction took place, upon which the future prosperity of Canada at that time depended—when the junction took place between the Conservative party and the Baldwin Reformers of Ontario—when that junction took place between those from Ontario and the Conservatives from Lower Canada—then the future prosperity of Canada was secured. (Applause.) Then commenced an era of unbroken prosperity and of constantly almost unbroken political prosperity,—(applause)—and although we had our ups and downs, although our commercial men had their trials and difficulties, although we occasionally had a bad crop and a grumbling farmer, yet, from 1854 to 1867, when the Dominion was formed, Canada advanced from being little more than a Crown Colony to being the beginning of a great nation—(loud cheers.)

At this point Mr. Tasse, on behalf of the audience at the lower end of the room, requested that the speaker should come down to the centre of the hall so that all could have an opportunity of hearing him. Sir John at once complied and having mounted a table near the middle of the room continued:

I was recalling to the attention of this audience some reasons why the Conservative party under those who acted with me in 1854 reigned so long. With the intervention of twenty months only when John Sandfield's Government was formed, and the three days under Hon. George Brown, I was a member of the various Conservative and Coalition Governments that existed; and Canada, the old Province of Canada, rose rapidly and steadily from the position of being little more than a Crown Colony to being a great nation. This was mainly due to the Conservative party, and to their Governments in which I was, if not the leader, at least a somewhat prominent member. (Cheers.) We often hear ourselves disparaged. We read of our shortcomings; we read and hear from our opponents that we were unworthy of our position; but I ask those who know anything about the history of this country to look at the statute books since 1854. Everything in the way of legislation, everything in the way of administration of any consequence, was passed under the Governments of which I was a member. (Applause.) We commenced our career by wiping out the grand source of danger and contention which caused the rebellion of 1837, by settling the clergy reserves. We restored peace and concord to Lower Canada by wiping out the feudal rights of the seigniors. We enlarged the bounds of our educational system, and satisfied the irritated and just religious feelings of our Catholic brethren by giving them fair play at the hands of a decidedly Protestant majority. No matter what subject you may touch, whether in relation to the institutions or in developing our national resources, in all matters relating to trade and commerce, legislation and administration, measures of the utmost importance were passed by the Governments of which I was a member. (Applause.) They had to do it under great difficulties. We carried on our measures in the face of factious Opposition. I, sir, am a party man. All Governments have to require to be watched—(Hear, hear, and laughter)—require to be criticised; and I, on behalf of the present Government ask for the most thorough investigation and criticism into our conduct, so that it be only candid and honest investigation. (Great applause.) We fear no criticism of or examination into our acts; but there are some who insinuate what they dare not assert, who by a rumor, a shrug of the shoulders, start a story which they dare not put forward directly. They know the punishment given to all liars. (Hear, hear.) But, sir, at last a great crisis arose in the affairs of Canada. Thanks to the bigoted views of Hon. George Brown—(Hear, hear, and laughter)—thanks to the intense bigotry that led him to consider Frenchmen and Catholics as not British subjects, as not his equals before the law; thanks to the insults and obliquy heaped upon the people of Lower Canada upon their institutions, their religion, and upon their race and language, the two Provinces were drawn up in battle array almost face to face against the other. This had to be allayed, otherwise we should have had anarchy and bloodshed. Peace was restored by assured by enlarging the boundaries of Canada, in inviting our sister Provinces to join us in one grand Confederation. It was a Confederation in which all local questions and questions of race and creed would have no place, and by which we should ask the actual nobility brought to bear between the Upper and Lower Provinces, which the sister Provinces joined unwillingly, but cause, laughter at the journals of that day, you will see that Mr. Brown never was sincere in the interests of Confederation. He knowing that I had been made the target for the larger ideas; and, gentlemen, I succeeded. (Long continued applause.) We have now come to Confederation, one grand Kingdom a strength to the Mother Country instead of a weakness, a support to the Mother Country instead of a source of danger, and a help to its life. We, however, were not alone in consolidating this Confederation; we had the assistance of many patriotic men who are to-night, from the Lower Provinces; and now we have in 1879 five millions of people in one great Union, with institutions based upon English institutions, with representative institutions, with Responsible Government, with perfect political freedom, with individual freedom, and with great swelling hope's for the future. (Great Applause.) When, in 1873, myself and colleagues retired by compulsion—(laughter)—we left for our successors every department of the Government working harmoniously. The whole machinery had been fitted into its place, every department working for the country's good. The strongest proof we have of this is that looking at the statute book since 1873 until 1878, you will find that the whole line of legislation of our successors was founded upon what we left behind. (Applause.) They made some immaterial alterations, certainly not amendments. The same laws which were in existence in 1873 when we resigned we found in force when we resumed. The country simply lost five years of national life. Mr. Mackenzie and his colleagues had enjoyed five years of our sufferage. (Laughter.) That, gentlemen, is a short epitome of the legislation of the Administration of the last five years. (Renewed laughter.) But although Mr. Brown joined with me in attempting to carry this great work to completion, he soon got weary of well-doing and resigned his position in the Administration. He had assisted to raise up the image of Confederation and became an iconoclast, and commenced to destroy what he had helped to form. (Laughter.) But the image was not like that mentioned in Holy Writ with feet of clay; it was founded on the rock of true principles, and notwithstanding Mr. Brown and all the influences he could bring to bear, we are here to-day. (Cheers). Sir I was honored with the formation of the first Government for the Dominion, and I collected what the best men I could find in the different Provinces; and the proof that they are the best is this—that they are still the honored representatives of their several Provinces. After six years of trial they have been weighed in the balance and not found wanting. We had a great and responsible task to undertake. We had not only Acts of Parliament to pass, but we had to make the spirit of change to deal with Provinces having different laws and different circumstances, and to mould this discordant material into one harmonious whole. From 1873 we had always made the revenue and the expenditure balance, and always had a surplus, but our successors adopted a new system, and found a deficit was infinitely better than a surplus, because we might, perhaps, grow too proud if we were rich; and so, in order to reduce us to a state of Christian humility, we were treated to chronic deficits. We had a controverted election law passed by the late Government. Well, it so happened that our Government had passed a controverted election law, and a very good law it was, but our Reform friends felt they must make some alteration, they must do something to show signs of vitality besides the signing of receipts for their quarter's pay (laughter) and so they amended my bill. And what was the consequence? The consequence was that the Court of New Brunswick has declared their law to be illegal and unconstitutional, and accordingly the dozen men are sitting in the House because according to that decision there is no Court in New Brunswick to try election petitions. The Supreme Court, however, has decided that their Courts had jurisdiction, but that is disputed at this moment and there is now a petition going to England to have the constitutionality of that Act tried before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and their decision, if given, will reverse the decision of our Supreme Court. If my Act had been allowed to stand, every one of those election petitions would have been tried, and there was no doubt about the constitutionality of the Act; but it was simply because it was introduced by me that the late Government thought some alteration must be made. Mr. Fournier, Minister of Justice at that time, had the manliness to say in the House that his bill was founded on the bill I had laid before Parliament the previous session, and if it had not been for my bill he would not have had courage to undertake so great a task. No doubt he got a thoroughly good wigging for making that statement. (Cheers.)

The Daily Intelligencer.

TRAIN SERVICE.

On MONDAY, the 17th of November, our Daily subscribers on the line of the Grand Junction and Belleville and North Hastings Railways, commenced receiving their papers the same evening on which they are published. This will be of great advantage to the inhabitants of Madoc, Stirling, Campbellford and Hastings, who will thus receive cable, and other telegraphic despatches from all parts of the Continent, as well as Markets by telegraph, local and general news, a day in advance of the Toronto papers, and we have no doubt it will add largely to the circulation of the INTELLIGENCER.

Subscribers in the villages along the line of Railway will hereafter receive their Daily papers at the following places, instead of at the Post Office:

STIRLING.—At the drug store of Dr. G. H. Boulter, M. P. P.

CAMPBELLFORD.—At the office of Mr. Thomas Oliver.

HASTINGS.—Of Mr. David Morrison, at the Post Office.

MADOC.—At the store of Mr. C. G. Wilson.

Extra copies of each day's issue can be obtained at the above places.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 1.

TO ADVERTISERS.

A special edition of the WEEKLY INTELLIGENCER, aggregating with the regular issue 5,000 copies, will be published on Thursday next. This will afford to advertisers an unequalled opportunity to lay their announcements before the people of all that part of the country which is commercially tributary to Belleville.

Favors of this class must be handed in before noon on Wednesday. Contracts can be made at the business office.

Petroleum in Ironmaking.

The successful employment of petroleum as a fuel in the manufacture of iron, has, according to the Engineering and Mining Journal, been accomplished by a process invented by Dr. C. J. Eames, and is now in practical operations at Titusville, Pennsylvania. The petroleum is vaporized by means of highly heated steam, thrown into a chamber in which the oil is caused to trickle over a series of horizontal shelves; and the mixture is then driven onward to the combustion-chamber, where it is ignited and forced into the furnace by the air-blasts which it encounters at this point. "The evident advantage," says the Engineering and Mining Journal, "of petroleum-fuel, are the perfect control under which the heat is held; the extremely high calorific intensity of the 'water-gas'; and the freedom of the fuel from any elements injurious to the iron. It is claimed that the work can be performed much quicker, and the quantity of the product can be made much more uniform and of higher grade, than can be secured with coal-fuel."

There are two points in which petroleum excels any other fuel, namely in cheapness and low cost of transportation. Many times has the announcement been made that the great problem of smelting iron with petroleum—by many declared to be impossible—had been solved, but always prematurely. We trust that this most recent statement may prove to be correct, as it has a vital interest for the people of this city and the region about.

—Windsor has voted a bonus of $30,000 to the Windsor and Essex Centre Railway.

Railway Meeting.

At the request of a large and influentially signed petition, the Reeve of the Township of Hungerford called a public meeting in the Town Hall, Tweed, on Thursday, the 27th ult., to take into consideration the advisability of granting aid to a branch line of Railway from some point on the line of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway to the Village of Tweed.

The meeting was well attended, those in attendance seeming fully alive to the importance of railway facilities for the Township.

On motion, the Reeve, Robt. Gordon, Esq., was called to the chair and Mr. Wray was appointed Secretary.

The CHAIRMAN fully explained the object of the meeting and the benefits to be derived from the contemplated branch road. He further said he would rather pay his proportion of $20,000 than be without it, although he lived only five miles from Crookston station, and said if the Township wanted railway communication with the front they should grant the small sum asked.

Mr. JOHN GRAHAM, ex-Reeve, being called upon, said, if a railway would be a benefit to the Township as a whole he would support it. He said he was one of the largest tax-payers in the Township and from his position to the Belleville and North Hastings Railway, he being but eight miles from Madoc and four from Crookston station, he was now in a good position to use that road, yet he believed the proposed branch if built would be a benefit to the Township and he would give the scheme his hearty support.

Mr. J. F. BURR expressed himself in favor of the scheme.

Mr. JOHN NEWTON expressed himself in favor of the scheme, which would receive his support, and he believed the project would be brought to a successful termination.

Mr. GEO. EASTERBROOK said he believed the proposed line would be a benefit to the Township and the sum required for its construction would be saved to the Township in the repairs to the roads.

Mr PHILEMON HOYT addressed the meeting in French, forcibly setting forth the advantages to be derived from railroad communication to the front.

Mr. JAMES CLARK said he had only by accident heard of the meeting and was pleased to be present, as he was not aware of the terms upon which the proposed line was to be built and would like information on the subject. As he had supported the last railway scheme that was before the Township, he would like to support the present one.

Mr. F. MURPHY expressed his willingness to support the proposed branch, but considered that a part of the Township of Huntingdon should be grouped with a part of the Township of Hungerford in aid of the scheme.

Mr. J. C. JAMIESON being called upon gave a short history of the different railway schemes that had come before the Township, and expressed his regret that the former projects had fallen through, as he considered the valley of the Moira scheme the best scheme ever before the people, either in the interest of the Township of Hungerford or the County of Hastings. The present scheme he considered was a feasible one, and at some length explained the offer made by the Grand Trunk Railway Company, which was that, in the event of their becoming the owners of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway, they will ballast, iron and run the road, upon the Township placing the road in a position to ballast. He further stated that in the event of the Grand Trunk Railway not purchasing the road, the owners of the North Hastings Railway would without doubt carry out the same arrangement; and further to secure the Township against any danger on that score, the By-law provided that not one cent would be paid to any Company until the road was completed. A clause in the By-law he said provided that a siding and platform would be constructed at the junction with the travelled road running north from the village of Thomasburg, which would place the people in the vicinity of that village within four miles of a railway where they could ship their grain, cheese and other produce. He said further that an elevator would be erected at the village of Tweed which would give the farmers a chance to store their grain and take advantage of the best markets.

Mr. JAS. REID said the people of Hungerford had always been free and open-hearted in the matter of Railways, and at length explained the cost to each taxpayer, which would be but a trifle over a dollar on every thousand dollars of assessment, and hoped that it would receive the hearty support of the ratepayers.

Mr. LUTTRELL upon being called said he attended the meeting to see how the ratepayers felt towards the offer made by the Grand Trunk Railway Co., and assured them that should that Company become the owners of the North Hastings Railway they would certainly carry out their proposition, and that in the event of their not becoming owners of the road, he had no doubt but that the owners of the North Hastings Railway would enter into a similar arrangement. The line as an independent line he said could never be a success, but would pay the owners of the North Hastings Railway to construct as a feeder to their line.

The following motion was then moved by Mr. J. F. Burr, seconded by Mr. John Newton, and unanimously carried: "That this meeting is in favor of submitting a By-law in aid of a branch line of railway from some point on the line of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway to the Village of Tweed, and that they hereby request the Township Council to submit a By-law in aid of said branch for the sum of $10,000, and that the Township Council at its first session fix the date for voting on said By-law for Tuesday, Dec. 23rd, 1879."

An expression of the feeling of the meeting was then called for by the Chairman, when no opposition to the scheme was shown.

A vote of thanks was then tendered Mr. Luttrell for his attendance at the meeting, when the meeting broke up.

The Murray Canal.

We are glad to see that the County Council of Prince Edward are lending their influence towards securing the construction of the Murray Canal. At the last meeting of that body the following resolution was passed:—

Mr. Stinson moved, seconded by Mr. Knox, "That this Council memorialize the Dominion Government to take the necessary steps to construct the Murray Canal; and that the Warden and Clerk be authorized to sign the same."

—A correspondent at Constantinople says the Greek members of the Frontier Commission have threatened to leave Constantinople unless some energetic steps are taken to forward the business of the Commission.

Madoc Notes.

MINING.—The mining interests in this section are still "booming," the country being filled with would be purchasers of mineral lands of all kinds. Mr. C. J. Pusey, of the Seymour mine, has his steam drills now in successful operation. Mr. Phillips was brought from New York for the purpose, and soon placed them in good working order. They were started on Monday afternoon, Nov. 23rd. The first hole, to the depth of 50 inches, with a diameter of 2¼ inches, was drilled in 45 minutes. The time which it would have taken to have done the same amount of work by the hand labor of three men would have been five hours. The fastest time the drill has made in boring or drilling in pure ore was 4 ft. 10 inches in thirty minutes. The drill used is the Ingersoll rock drill, which was in use in the construction of the Lachine Canal. The drill was formerly imported from New York, but the wise imposition of duties by the present Government has caused the firm to establish a manufactory at Montreal. Its simplicity of construction and durability makes the drill in great demand for mining purposes. Under a boiler pressure of 80 lbs steam the drill strikes from five hundred to six hundred blows a minute.

OF INTEREST.—The only topic of interest in the village is missing, so much so that every resident can talk intelligently of shafts, drifts, leads and such mining terms. Look at the title of the book a man is reading, and ten chances to one it's "a story of a mine," and the boys whistle "down in a coal mine" until your ears tingle. Even the tone of society is effected by the mining rage, and you hear the gold nugget spoken of in the miner as a minor man (the pun is not patented) whilst the miner of red hematite elevates his nose at an angle of forty-five degrees upon the approach of the miner of magnetic ore, who takes satisfaction by raising his proboscis at a slight angle over the lesser lights in the mining world.

THE SIDEWALK.—The Village Council in their wisdom have built a sidewalk to the yard of the Railway Company but decline building it any further, as they claim that the railway company should extend the walk to the station platform. Whilst they are settling the dispute could not some one who has the interest of the public at heart, lay down at least one plank to cover the gap, as the ladies say they would prefer "going it alone" for that distance rather than have the gap in company.

"ROCK ME TO SLEEP, MOTHER."—The dearth of young men of sufficient tone has caused some of our young ladies to swing on their "pa's" gate alone this fall, (weather permitting.) One young lady has been known in her loneliness to rock herself to sleep. "Founded on fact," as the Sunday school books say.

THE BONUS BY-LAW.—The voting on the Bonus By-law created considerable excitement. The result, as your readers already know, was a majority for the By-law. "To the victors belong the spoils." We would say only there is nothing to spoil, except it may end by spoiling the North Hastings road.

MORE CARS WANTED.—Another hitch in the supply of ore cars, said to be created by a delay in delivery in the west, has caused an accumulation of ore at the mines. It is said the delay will only be temporary, but whilst it lasts the iron men look glum.

PERSONAL.—Over exertion in cleaning his mine from water has resulted in a fit of sickness to Captain Mitchell. Good care is doing wonders for the genial Captain, who it is hoped will soon be "himself again."

Stirling and Vicinity.

(From the News-Argus.)

FALL WHEAT.—Mr. J. T. Belshaw, of the 4th concession of Rawdon, brought to the News-Argus office a spear of fall wheat measuring twenty-three inches above the roots.

THE RESEVEASH OF RAWDON.—Mr. Jas. Cook announces that he will not be a candidate for the reeveship of Rawdon for 1880. There is as yet very little talk of who are to be aspirants to the office.

IN PROSPECT.—We are informed that an office of the Canadian Express company will soon be established in Stirling, when arrangements shall have been completed to run an express car over the Grand Junction.

FIRE IN RAWDON.—About 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening last the stone dwelling of Mr. E. Tanner, seventh concession of Rawdon, was discovered by the inmates to be on fire. By the exertions of themselves and neighbors, the goods in the lower part of the house were removed, but the contents of the chamber were destroyed, and the building itself gutted by the flames. The fire is supposed to have originated from the stovepipes. There was no insurance on the property, and the exact amount of the loss was not ascertained. Mr. Tanner has already commenced operations to rebuild.

Grand Junction Railway Accommodation at Stirling.

For the Intelligencer.

About three weeks since a freight shed was erected in Stirling in the short space of five days, a little west of the ground where the old station stood. The east end of this building, to the extent of twelve feet, was partitioned off with unplaned lumber for station accommodation for passengers, and up to this date the room has not been swept out or the least accommodation made in seating it. A stove has been put in, but no fuel is provided, and the building is only unlocked by the omnibus man when he arrives. Passengers who have to wait for the train may step into this small, unswept, filthy room, if there are not too many of them to fill it, and be protected from the chilly blasts of wind and rain, but they must stand up and breathe the cold, dusty atmosphere that fills the room, until the train arrives upon the main line and never on the switch nearest to the platform, so that passengers might step from it to the passenger car.

Travellers have been heard to remark that the accommodation here reminded them of the accommodation found upon steamboat wharves in summer time. Then the freight traffic is not satisfactory. Heavy freight is allowed to accumulate in Belleville for about a week before being forwarded to Stirling, when a clerk is sent up to collect freight, and he depends upon the following morning, and nothing in the shape of a station master or freight agent is again seen here for about a week. How long will this practice continue?

OBSERVER.

Stirling, Nov. 29th, 1879.

AGRARIAN OUTRAGE IN IRELAND.—A despatch from Dublin says a bailiff who was executing some decrees on a farmer near Sneen, County Kerry has been murdered.

NORTHERN RAILWAY STOCK.—The Northern Railway of Canada has issued one hundred and fifty thousand pounds six per cent. preference stock for the purpose of extinguishing the floating debt of the company, and they invite tenders at a minimum price of sixty per cent.

THE WAUBUNO.—Portions of the cargo of the wrecked steamer Waubuno have been discovered along the islands of the Georgian Bay, and the Indians, half-breeds, and others are reaping a rich harvest in their search for remains. The captain's trunk has been plundered.

DAIRY EXPORTS.—Shipments of Dairy produce from Montreal to European ports during the season of navigation, compared with those of the same period last year, are:—

Butter, pkgs.....	180,863	101,598	87,245
Cheese, lbs.....	515,350	455,419	398,138

FROM AFGHANISTAN.—A despatch from Cabul to the Daily News reports that General Baker attacked the Afghans on his front in force on Thursday. The enemy fled at the first assault, and the tribes are now dispersing.

BURGLARY.—The residence of Mr. E. O. Bickford, Toronto, was burglarized on Saturday morning, and seven pieces of silver, two gold watches and other valuables carried off. Mr. and Mrs. Bickford were absent from home at the time.

CATTLE IMPORTATIONS.—An Order in Council enacts that regarding European importations of cattle all neat cattle coming from Europe or entering the ports of Quebec, Halifax and St. John will be subject to a probationary quarantine of ninety days before being allowed to come in contact with Canadian cattle or exported to any other country.

SHEFFIELD IRON ORE.—Mr. E. J. Chapman, Professor of Mineralogy in University College, Toronto, has, says the Beaver, made an analysis of Sheffield ore. He says it is a red iron ore or hematite of the best quality, rich in metallic iron, and absolutely free from titanium, and practically free from injurious matters. He says if it occurs in workable quantity—and there are mountains of it—the deposit is of great value.

NEW STEAMSHIP LINE.—A despatch from Yarmouth, N.S., on the 27th says:—"The pioneer steamer of the new line between Yarmouth and the West Indies, sailed this evening for Bermuda and other ports. She had a full cargo of produce and various articles of merchandise, comprising in all 2,000 barrels, and twenty passengers. Mr. Clements, her owner, also took passage to arrange the business of the line in the various ports at which she will call."

THE TORONTO FIRE.—The loss by the burning of the Grand Opera House, Toronto, is estimated at $100,000. Mr. Manning, the owner, is insured to the extent of $42,000; $27,000 on the theatre, and $15,000 on the front portion of the building, which is saved, but somewhat damaged. Mr. Daniel E. Bandemann, the celebrated tragedian, who was filling a week's engagement loses the whole of his costly wardrobe and appointments valued at $25,000. Miss Bennicon, the leading lady, loses dresses which cost her exactly a thousand pounds before leaving England. Other members of the company lose their all; their costumes being valued at from $4,000 downwards. On the property of the actors and actresses there was not a cent of insurance.

" " 20c. " " " 30c

WE carry an immense stock of these Goods, and have in our employ over fifty hands manufacturing, &c., more than ever kept by any one house in Central Ontario. The large quantities of these Goods we are thus enabled to get through, puts us in a position to buy them cheaper than any other house in the City.

AN ADVANTAGE

we give to our customers over importing houses and houses stocking themselves early in the season, is this: We buy moderately at the opening of the season, and put ourselves in the position to now take advantage of late and depressed markets to buy many lines of goods at very great discounts from what they can be bought early in the season.

We have lately taken this advantage in securing many cheap lines in Dress Goods,

Silks, Velvets, Satins, Flannels, Linens, Winceys, Handk'fs,

Hosiery, Millinery, Feathers, Ribbons, &c.

TO THE LADIES.

We ask an impartial inspection of these Goods, when it will be found we are now offering the cheapest lot of goods ever shown in the City.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, NOV. 1.

City and Vicinity.

POLICE.—There were one tramp and one prisoner in the cells last night.

SCHOOL ELECTIONS.—The nomination for School Trustees by the revised Act will take place on the last Wednesday in December, and the election a week later.

VITAL STATISTICS.—The following are the vital statistics of the city, as registered, for the month of November: Births 22; Marriages 1; Deaths 18.

POSTPONED.—The regular meeting of the City Council will be held to-morrow night instead of to-night, on account of the St. Andrew's dinner this evening.

FOR PORTLAND.—A number of cars of Rye are being shipped from Campbellford direct to the seaboard, which is another evidence of the great advantage Railways have been to the residents of this part of the country.

TEMPERANCE.—An interesting Temperance meeting was held in the C. M. Church, Tweed, on Thursday evening. Addresses were delivered by the pastor (Rev. Mr. Walker.) Messrs Robt. Gordon J. C. Jamieson and R. Luttrell.

INLAND REVENUE RETURNS.—The amounts collected in the Belleville Division for the month of November were: Spirits, $3,526.99; Tobacco, $1,476.10; Malt, $117.94; Licenses, $350, Total $5,471.03. Same month last year $6,664.15. Decrease $1,193.02.

ROWDYISM.—During Saturday night a gang of three or four ruffians visited several houses of ill-fame in the city and suburbs. They smashed windows, broke furniture, abused and beat the female inmates of the houses, and otherwise comported themselves in an outrageous manner. The police are looking after them.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—A meeting of the above organization will be held in the Council Chamber, (City Hall) on Tuesday afternoon (Dec. 2nd) at three o'clock. All who are willing to assist in any of the various departments of the work, will be most heartily welcomed by the members.

RAILWAY BONUS.—At a meeting of the Hungerford Township Council held on Friday it was resolved to submit to the votes of the electors of Hungerford a By-law granting a bonus of $10,000 to aid the construction of a branch of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway from Crookston to Tweed. The By-law will be voted upon on Tuesday, the 23rd December next.

FIRE.—Shortly after one o'clock on Sunday afternoon a frame dwelling house on the Wallbridge Road, a short distance north of Moira St., was discovered to be on fire. The inflammable nature of the structure and the long distance from the water precluded its being saved and it was entirely destroyed. The building was owned and occupied by Adolphus Clement, whose wife and children lost all their clothing. Some of the furniture was destroyed, but the greater portion was saved, though in a damaged condition. The cause of the fire was a defective chimney Loss $400; no insurance.

When the skin is hot and dry, take SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

ANOTHER SENTENCE.—The boy burglar who on Saturday morning was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, was brought up again on the afternoon of the same day for another offence and sentenced to five months' imprisonment, the sentence to run concurrently with the previous one. Two other boys who were accomplices in this matter were sentenced, one to three months' imprisonment and the other to one month.

MILITARY.—The following appears amongst the Militia General Orders in the Canada Gazette of November 29th: 49th Battalion, 'Hastings Rifles':—No. 6 Company, Belleville. To be Captain: Lieutenant Edward George Ponton, V. B., from 2nd Battalion, vice David Francis Henry Wilkins, whose resignation is hereby accepted. To be Lieutenant: Lieutenant William Hodgins Biggar, V. B., from 2nd Battalion, vice Charles Lane, whose resignation is hereby accepted. Captain and Adjutant James S. Hurst, V. B., is hereby permitted to retire retaining his rank of Captain.

GOOD ADVICE.—An exchange publishes the following good advice, which is commended to the perusal of whom it may concern:—"That is an erroneous idea that prompts a man to rush to the newspaper office to prevent the publication of facts concerning some misfortune that has befallen him. Matters which have become the subject of comment upon the streets are better explained by the reporter in public print than by street corner gossip. The newspaper gets at the bottom facts of the case and makes them of record, so that exaggerated accounts seldom get in circulation."

POLICE RECORD.—During the month ending 30th November, 1879, 52 persons were arrested by the Police force, charged as follows:—Assault and battery, 2; Burglary, 5; Criminal libel, 1; Drunk, 13; Drunk and disorderly, 5; Exposing person, 1; Frequenting houses of ill-fame, 2; Horse stealing, 1; Inmates of houses of ill-fame, 6; Keeping houses of ill-fame 9; Uttering counterfeit coin, 1; Larceny, 2; Lunacy, 1; Vagrancy, 3. 42 persons (tramps) applied for and received protection in the Police cells during the month. Total number of arrests Nov. 1879, 52; do. in Nov. 78, 41; increase in 1879, 11. Tramps Nov. '79, 42; do. Nov. 1878, 84; decrease Nov. '79, 42.

"BLACKWOOD'S" for November has been reprinted by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., New York. The interest already aroused in "Reata" is well sustained by part 8, which opens the number. "An American Princess," being an analytical narrative of the life of Madame Bonaparte, though it has become a hackneyed subject, is well worth perusal. "Whig Reviewers as painted by themselves" is a readable paper which sets forth the troubles the first editor of the Edinburgh Review had with his brilliant contributors—Macaulay, Brougham and others. "The Marcnites" is concluded. "A Poor Devil" (fiction), "Among the Afghans: A Surveyor's Narrative" and "The Recess" close the number.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE besides the "editor's Chair," literary and historical records, contains The Fortunes of the Bonaparte, with seventeen illustrations; The New York Cooking School, with six illustrations; the City of Atlanta, with fifteen illustrations; the Palestine of To-day, by Dr. J. F. Hurst, with thirteen illustrations; the Iron Pen, a poem by H. W. Longfellow; Sea Drift from a New England Port, with eleven illustrations; Blossoms, a poem; London's Glory and Whittington's Renown, a ballad, with five illustrations; White Wings; A Yachting Romance, with two illustrations; the Connemara Hills; Young Mrs. Jardine, a novel, with three illustrations; A New and True Ghost Story, a poem; Will's Will and his Two Thanksgivings; Mary Anerley, a novel.

PERSONAL.—One of the most accomplished if not the greatest poet of the present day returned to his old home (this city) on Saturday evening last. We allude to Mr. James Gay, "the master poet to this day," the productions of whose pen have created a general awakening to his possession of masterly poetic genius which would thrill the heart of of a frozen cabbage. He wears his honors with penitent heart, yet conscious pride, fully alive to the thought that his inspired muse must yet be inscribed on the nation's roll of fame. The distinctive honorary silver medal given him by the the people of Guelph adorns his manly breast and he points with pride to its possession, fully cognizant of the fact that merit, in this case at least, has received its due reward. Though bowed somewhat by the weight of years and honors, the lustre of his eye is as bright as of yore, and his step is as firm as the junior freshman of a college. And now as genius—unclouded and unadorned—is with us once again, let us weave a garland of flowers—the trophy of the victor—to be placed upon his brow the moment the first grand opportunity offers, and by doing this show that intrinsic merit has its own reward in the Bay City as well as in the Royal City of Guelph.

Marine Notes.

The schr. Mary Foster arrived from Mill Point yesterday with lumber, in tow of the tug Sherwood. The tug proceeded to Trenton and took a barge thence to Mill Point.

The bay was frozen across last night, but lightly, and the ferry steamers succeeded in their efforts to work through the ice.

The perfume of freshly-culled flowers is agreeable to every one, and so it is with the delightful fragrance of MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER. None reject it, none dislike it. From the tropics to the frigid zone, it is the universal favorite on the handkerchief, at the toilet and in the bath.

St. Andrew's Day.

The patron Saint of Scotland, whose anniversary was celebrated to-day, was first a disciple of John the Baptist, and appears to have been the first to follow Christ. For this reason it is supposed that he is given the place of honor in the Anglican prayer book, where he comes first of all those commemorated. But little is known of him beyond that he suffered martyrdom at Patra, in Greece, A. D., 70, by being crucified on a cross in the form of an X.

SHIELDSTOWN, Tenn., Dec. 1.—Edw'd Day, aged 15, went on an errand to the house of his uncle, Thos. Day, yesterday; he was ordered out and struck with a shovel. The boy warned his uncle not to repeat the blow, and on its repetition stabbed him fatally. Edward was arrested.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The six-day bicycle race between the English and American teams was won by the Englishmen.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1st.—The Indian agent at Pine Ridge, Dakota, received a letter from Columbus, Ind., offering employment to Sitting Bull and 8 or 10 of his braves during the coming summer, by exhibiting them. The writer offers to take some Utes if he can not have Sitting Bull.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—General Jeff. C. Davis died yesterday, aged 53. He caught a cold at the army of the Cumberland reunion at Washington, and died of pneumonia.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The World's London special says the Times and Telegraph warn the British public against buying New York Central until the object of the recent transfer is authoritatively explained. There have been no genuine recent purchases of Erie in London.

Washington specials:

The World says the scheme to place telegraphs under Government control will be presented in Congress. The real motive is to continue the fight against the Western Union.

The Sun says that the publication of the President's message in advance created considerable excitement. President Hayes is very angry and the entire force of the secret service here are endeavoring to discover the thief.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The President of the Newark savings bank, which suspended a year ago, states that the securities held by the bank have since advanced over a million dollars and the bank will soon be able to pay our hundred per cent.

John H. Donaghy was shot on the street in Brooklyn early yesterday morning by Allen Market. Market claims he was firing at robbers who attacked him. Donaghy's condition is critical.

The House was called to order at noon. The roll was called and 292 members answered. There were 56 absentees.

The deb't statement shows a decrease for November of $799,823.13.

The Greatest Remedy Ever Discovered.

Quinine is considered the greatest remedy known, but we believe it has its equal, if not its peer, in the product of Cod Fish. Nothing has been discovered to equal Cod Liver Oil as a builder and sustainer of the body in Consumption and all Wasting Disorders; but its usefulness is impaired by its nauseous properties. In SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL this objection is entirely overcome, and combined with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA it is the most valuable remedy ever discovered.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, strong southerly to westerly winds, partly cloudy to mild weather with showers of rain or snow in northern Ontario, followed by colder northwesterly to northerly winds tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Indications: For lower lakes, warmer, partly cloudy possibly occasionable light rain over lakes followed by colder, over upper lakes.

A GOOD PLAN

The most profitable way of dealing in stocks is by combining many orders and co-operating them as a whole, dividing profits pro rata among shareholders, according to the market, monthly. Each customer thus secures all the advantages of immense capital and experienced skill, and can use any amount, from $10 to $10,000, or more, with equal proportionate success. "New York Stock Reporter" and new circular mailed free. Full information for any one to operate successfully. Lawrence & Co., 57 Exchange Place, N. Y.

A Reception Party "Selon les Regles!"

What a stiff thing is a real reception party. The machinery is set going about ten days before the time. Engravers and printers are busy carving out and printing the cards. It won't do for Mr. A. to come, because Mr. B. is not in accord with him. When the preliminaries are completed and the night has come, how the carriages roll up to the door and the ladies sweep in with their dress a "la mode," and the husbands and beaux, after leading them to the dressing rooms, rumble and herd together in the parlors and corridors and talk of the latest novelty; how the Marquis and wife are getting along, or of the value of lumber, or the tonage of the country. They settle the matter of the terrible times which are upon them; while they move among the pomp and glitter of wax candles and costly furniture. And then the feast! What viands! What wines! What "petits morceaux never dreamed of except in Paris. What lassitude and headaches next, as the fair ones breakfast at two P. M., and the husbands doze in their stores. Commend me to a reception party and to Dr. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS to work off the effects next day. If people will overfeed they must apply to Dr. Herrick

IN THE HARD DRY COUGH OF CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, with its difficult expectoration and labored breathing, the demulcent properties of Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Lacto-Phosphate of Lime manifests itself in its most prompt and soothing effect upon the irritated mucous membranes of the Bronchial passages; the cough quickly yields, the breathing is eased, while Nature thus aided reasserts herself, and where once gaunt Consumption stared the victim in the face, now Hope beckons on to life and health.

Prepared solely by J. H. ROBINSON, Pharmaceutical Chemist, St. John, N. B., and for sale by all Druggists and General Dealers. Price $1.00 per bottle; six bottles for $5.00.

THE CORNER of White Street and West Broadway is but at present a sort of rheumatic Mecca to which hundreds of cripples and paralytics make daily pilgrimage. The shrine to which this melancholy procession diurnally wends its way is the laboratory of Dr. Wm. M. Giles, No 120 West Broadway, where with a certain stately urbanity he dispenses his new Iodide Ammonia Liniment—now regularly administered in Bellevue and other hospitals. Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

DR. GILES,
120 West Broadway, N. Y.

Trial size 25 cents.

A Joy for Tender Mothers.

Mothers who have suffered pangs of sympathetic grief when they have had to give their infants Castor Oil, and have seen the unspeakable disgust and misery the little one has endured, will all rejoice to know that their precious pets need never know this sorrow more. The EMULSION OF CASTOR OIL made by SCOTT & BOWNE is as PALATABLE to the baby as its natural sustenance, and is even milder and more efficacious in operation than the old nauseous dose. This new preparation is as welcome to grown up folks as to the babies. It is sold at 25 cents a bottle.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs, DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY has no equal and has established for itself a world wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practise. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The clergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle Free of cost or a regular size for $1.00. For sale by Jas. Clarke & Co.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the several Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced, there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

NOTICE.

THERE is a common practice in many stores of making an abatement on the price first named. Especially is this the case when a customer is wanting Carpets, Silks and such like goods, when on some pretext or another, after a little higgling, 5c., 10c., and even 50c per yard is thrown off, the price first asked, and the buyer thus believes he is getting what he needs less than the regular value, whereas he is actually paying more than he should.

Wherever these devices are resorted to it is an acknowledgement by the store-keeper that he knows the goods he is selling can be had elsewhere for less than what he asks. Certainly it is not safe to deal at all in such places, for almost invariably it is found that after coming down in price more is paid than ought to be. Almost every day such instances come under our notice, when a person sees some piece of goods in our store the same as what he has been buying elsewhere and finds after taking off the abatement he has paid considerably more than what we ask.

We shall always continue to adhere strictly to our well known system of doing business having all goods marked at the lowest price and only one price made.

Every one is perfectly free at any time to look through our stock, to examine the goods and to enquire the prices without in any way being importuned or urged to buy.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

PURE COD LIVER OIL

WITH

HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

This preparation combines the two best remedies ever discovered for Consumption, Colds and Chronic Coughs, Scrofula, Rheumatism and Diseases of the Blood, General Debility, and all Wasting Diseases of Children. It not only contains the well known and highly esteemed virtues of Cod Liver Oil in a form that is perfectly tasteless and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, but the Lime, the wonderful tonic and life-giving properties of the Hypophosphites, so incorporated that the remedial powers of both are largely increased. Physicians universally acknowledge the vastly superior virtues of this combined food and medicine in all the above diseases. It is not only better tolerated, but much more readily assimilated by the system than plain Cod Liver Oil, and a better agent is enriching and purifying the blood, allaying the irritation of the throat and lungs, restoring the impaired functions and giving strength and vigor to the whole body. It is sweet and palatable to the taste, never separates, deposits or spoils. Be sure and ask for Scott's Emulsion. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle.

JOHNSTON'S

is now extensively used in British and Continental Institutions, Hospitals and Asylums, and is prescribed by the medical faculty wherever it has been introduced.

Its adaptability is general to the invalid, the convalescent and the vigorous. To children it secures a strong muscular development, and for maternal nursing, imperfect mastication, athletic training, physical exhaustion, indigestion or mental overstrain, it is the perfection of known food.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND LEADING GROCERS.

Price 35c, 60c and $1.

GENERAL DEBILITY
Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervousness, Consumption, Asthma and Consumption
IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF
Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MEDCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague.—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"
ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, hoping I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, and there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that but for the use of your Syrup, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.
D. WALTER LAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me; I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.
I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.
Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BRILLIANT SPEECH BY SIR JOHN A. MACDONALD.

CONTINUED.

In consequence of the deficit, Mr. Cartwright—I beg his pardon, Sir Richard Cartwright—went to England. Let me have not in regard to titles, that no man living in a monarchy and acknowledging the Queen as the source and fountain of honor, can despise the marks of honor that are conferred by her Majesty.—(Cheers.) I am proud of the honors I have received, and my colleagues are also proud of them, but Mr. Mackenzie, the leader of the Opposition, declared that he would not accept any title, he did not want. (Laughter.) He threw them, as you would throw a bone to a hungry dog, to that renegade Scot, Sir Richard Cartwright. (Laughter.) No blue-blooded Grit could take an honor, but they thought it could be handed down to that other gentleman as a kind of sop. Well, Mr. Cartwright, having failed to get a deficit, had to go and borrow money, and you will know how successful he was in England. He went to the Mother Country and showed the silver side of the shield. When in England he stated that the debt of Canada, and he told the truth, had been incurred for public works and not for war expenditures; but when the hon. gentleman returned he declared that the Government had squandered the revenues of the country. When charged with it here, he declared he did not wish to carry stinking fish to market, and so he turned the silver side of the shield to English capitalists and he reserved the brazen side for us. When he made that statement in Parliament he certainly did something brazen. Gentlemen, when he said he did not do it because he disliked to cry stinking fish, he forgot that by the law of the land in England as well as in Canada, a man who offers stinking fish is liable to be sent to the penitentiary. (Cheers.) The late Government did something else. They altered the railway policy. What was our policy? It was that he should build the Pacific railway by means of a company to be formed, the largest sum of money and the assistance of a liberal grant of land; and we at the same time pledged ourselves to build the road in such manner as not to increase the burthens of the people in the older Provinces. Yes; but they say the people of Ontario have been built in ten years." Certainly ten years was fixed as the time by the delegates from British Columbia and Canada; so that if it were possible it should be built, but it was not the essence of the contract. So much is that the case that although eight of the ten years have expired, the people of British Columbia did not complain. They are not unreasonable, and they know that if we had remained in power during the last five years we would have carried out honestly and sincerely our engagement to the best of our power. Mark the difference between the confidence of the people of British Columbia in us and their confidence in our predecessors. Now they are quite willing to receive at our hands assurances which they took on with distrust and suspicion when coming from the late Administration. The Legislature there passed a solemn resolution, and addressed her gracious Majesty praying for the right to secede from Canada, because of the treatment they had received from the late Government, but the moment we came into power again, by the settlement I assumed my old position, the people there know that my colleagues and myself would carry out honestly and faithfully all we promised. (Loud cheers) We hear no longer talk of secession. (Applause) And, great care to keep myself to one thing, that there should be a readjustment of the tariff, no matter what it was, that would protect the industries of Canada. (Cheers and applause.) Now gentlemen, I ask you have we not kept our word? (Tremendous cheering) Did we not fulfil our pledges? The hon. gentleman says we have fulfilled our pledges, and the triumphal march, as I may say, of my colleague the Finance Minist ter, proves the grateful appreciation of our action, and of his action as Finance Minister in carrying the tariff of last session. We do not profess infallibility; we know that the framing of a tariff is a difficult question, but we said we would introduce as good a tariff as we knew how, and if, after the experience of one year, we found any errors in it, we should not be too proud to amend it in the interests of the country. (Loud cheers) I am pleased to know that in the main the tariff has been successful, that in all its great provisions it has been a thorough success, and although in some of its two instances it may be susceptible of improvement, yet we could leave it confidently even as it is to the calm sober consideration of our country men, knowing that it is good. But we will come, gentlemen, and ask Parliament next session for some amendments, and these amendments will not be in the way of diminishing the protection or encouragement to our native industries (Cheers) Mr. Chairman, it was only our duty to do so when they could not say anything else, that we had gone to England and that we had made a bargain with the Mother Country to endeavor to secure the protection that our manufacturers are promised by the tariff against foreign competition. (Cheers) We smiled with the usual patriotic feeling and desire of the Globe, the organ of the Opposition, to create di union and weakness in Canada. To continue the state of distrust, manufacturers were told that I had gone home to kiss the foot of the Premier of England, and to sacrifice the interests of Canada for the sake of social or other position in England. Now, Mr. Chairman, the policy of the Government with respect to any future alteration of the tariff may be described in one sentence. As between English manufacturers and American manufacturers, we prefer English manufacturers. (Cheers.) But as between the English manufacturers and the Canadian manufacturers, we prefer the Canadian. (Tremendous cheers.) And we know and we feel that we can give that reasonable protection to all our national manufactures and industries as against the industries of other countries, that we can give protection against English manufacturers and at the same time give a preference to England as against other countries, so that if we have to go out of Canada to purchase, we will naturally go to England to make them. (Cheers.) Gentlemen, we found a deficit when we came in, and we found the national credit run down, and what do you think? Mr. Cartwright very readily sacrificed the dearest interests of Canada by his delay in putting the last loan on the market. He was so anxious to go to Eng and, he was so sure his Government could get a renewal of the lease for five years, that they were certain to carry the election on the 17th of September, that he postponed everything to the last hour before going to England. The consequence was that although Parliament was to meet in February, although we had to prepare measures in a few weeks, although we had to get a new tariff ready, Mr. Tilley was obliged to go to England, and by the merest chance arrived in time to save Canada from discredit. If he had arrived only a few days later, when the Glasgow Bank had fallen, and the general discouragement in bank circles, he could not have effected the loan, except at a ruinous loss. However, he succeeded in making a fair loan, and by looking honest, as he does look honest—(laughter)—and I must also add that he speaks honestly, he made even in those disastrous times a better loan than Mr. Cartwright had. Then he came back and prepared a tariff. We all know with what care he prepared it, and with what patience and consideration he received from all parts of the country representatives of the various interests. You know the full consideration he gave them, and I am surprised when I look back, that, in the face of such difficulties, such a satisfactory tariff could have been prepared on such a short notice. We had to reconcile a great many interests. We encouraged our manufacturers to spend their capital, to get up large factories, and to go into large undertakings, and we had to give them outlet. Mr. Blake, in one of his speeches, said in one breath, "You are surprised when I see millionaires at the expense of the mass of the people of this country," and then in the next breath he says, "Competition is dead and they will ruin the manufacturers." (Laughter.) Well, gentlemen, as for the first objection that we were going to have millionaires in this country by this monopoly, I say this—I wish we had a great many millionaires. I wish that those millionaires would invest their money as Mr. Redpath, one of the sugar refiners, had done. They say that our tariff puts $800,000 into the pockets of Mr. Redpath, but before Mr. Redpath made that $800,000, it had gone into the pockets of the American sugar refiners. Sugar is higher in the United States than in Canada, therefore we have not wronged the consumer. If Mr. Redpath has made this large sum of money in the expanding of capital and employment of labour, I say more power to his elbow, and we may we suffer such monopolies. (Cheers) In this way the manufacturers will have great vested interests in Canada, and when the next election comes around they will fight for those interests manfully. But they must be very bad men to go and bribe the country. I do not think it would have come into their minds, if Mr. Blake had not suggested that speech. I have no doubt many of them are very thankful to Mr. Blake for this suggestion as to the modes of carrying the elections and keeping the protective policy, and perhaps they will take the hint and carry it out at the next election. (Laughter.) One thing is clear, Mr. Chairman, that if the late Government had remained in power there would have been no one there to corrupt. There would have been no corruption settled state of poverty. The working classes would have made their way to the United States where they could, under a protective system, obtain ample employment and good wages. That I intended to make you a long speech; but I think I have given you a tolerably one, (Cries of "Go on.") You must remember this is not a political meeting. (Laughter.) Our politics are settled on the 17th of September, 1878. This is a family party. But as to the second branch of Mr. Blake's apprehensions, that the competition would destroy our merchants, I can only say that if competition brings down the prices of goods why, we shall have them all the cheaper. (Cheers.) Mr. Blake talks of annexation to the United States. Look at England under free trade and the United States under protection. The financial depression was felt in England before it was felt in the United States, and the state of depression has ended in the United States, while it still exists in England. But if our Canadian manufacturers have this competition, they will have to do exactly as they have done in the United States. They have not only no control of their own markets, but they send their surplus to England and Europe, and undersell foreign countries. We must do the same thing. (Cheers) We must look for new avenues of trade, and for new markets. In dealing with this tariff subject, we have not been slothful and reached on our ears; we have directed all our attention to the matter, not believing that we are "fixed on the wheel," but that a perfect tariff has a power ul, direct influence, as well as an indirect influence as representatives of the people, and that is the power we have with all countries, but which was introduced especially with the object of opening up trade with Brazil and the West Indies. (Cheers) He further states that in a few days he expects to be able to write that arrangements have been completed for a monthly steamship line between Canada and Brazil. (Cheers) We opened negotiations a year ago and voted $50,000 as a subsidy for such line, and in a few days the arrangements will be completed for this line between the St. Lawrence or Halifax and Brazil by which our manufactures will be carried there and return fruits including sugar and coffee received in return. (Cheers.) To show how vast is Canadian influence I may mention that about a month ago I received a letter from a Japanese gentleman with an unpronounceable name to destroy the possibility of thirty-two steamers plying between Japan and Hong Kong and Shanghai offering for a reasonable rate to make a line of steamers between Japan and British Columbia. (Cheers). Everywhere where we can prove to the world that we are alive we are opening new markets for our manufactures. We are, moreover, going to steadily pursue the arrangements with the West Indies arranged by delays or postponements. (Cheers.) We have already accomplished a great measure of success, but with the support of the people we are sure that our manufactures shall not be shut up within the Dominion, although it is getting pretty large; but are resolved to establish a market for our surplus goods. Independent of the protection of our own gentleman against English manufactures and at the same time give a preference to England as against other countries, so that if we have to go out of Canada to purchase, we will naturally go to England to make them. (Cheers.) Gentlemen, we found a deficit when we came in, and we found the national credit run down, and what do you think? Mr. Cartwright very readily sacrificed the dearest interests of Canada by his delay in putting the last loan on the market. He was so anxious to go to Eng and, he was so sure his Government could get a renewal of the lease for five years, that they were certain to carry the election on the 17th of September, that he postponed everything to the last hour before going to England. The consequence was that although Parliament was to meet in February, although we had to prepare measures

Oh, we are weary of hearing him called just; and so the country was weary of the professions of purity and morality of the late Administration and they returned to their old state of immorality, to their old state of Tory effeteness and corruption (Laughter.) So here we are, as Mr. Gladstone said the other day in England, pardoned sinners with all our sins on our heads and we are accepted by the people of Canada in preference to those purists. (Applause.) Seriously, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I wonder if it ever comes to the thought of Mr. Mackenzie or any of his friends how very bad the opinion of the country must be of them when they prefer us with all our faults and errors and crimes with which we are charged. (Laughter.) But the ballot, gentlemen, was of great service to us because it relieved the honest, the reasoning Liberal, the reasoning Grit from the tyranny of party, which is used so unscrupulously and recklessly by the leaders of that party. (Cheers.) Hundreds and hundreds of men in Ontario, relieved by the protection of the ballot box, voted for the removal of the late Government and the substitution of the present one—men who dared not if it had been open voting forfeit their social position among their extreme Grit friends by giving an honest vote according to their conscience. Well, gentlemen, here we are back again. (Applause.) We took the country by no surprise—no fight march was stolen by us. (Cheers.) I did not do as Mr. Mackenzie did when he came into power in 1873, when he held out that he was going to meet that Parliament. So much did he deceive the country that he and all his colleagues went to their elections in order to blind the people and lead them to believe there would be no general election, but the moment they had secured their own return, and when they felt we could not have an opportunity of appealing to the people, they sought the people, and when they sprung that march upon us and gained a great victory. We had not the same opportunity. We were in opposition. We were a feeble opposition in numbers, but strong in the consciousness of rectitude, strong in the soundness of our principles, and strong in the sober thought of the country. (Cheers and applause.) We gave the country no factious Opposition. For two sessions, as you know, we gave the late Government every opportunity of showing what they were made of, of showing whether they were fit for the position which they so long desired. (Applause) So it was that at the end of the second session the leader of the Government, Mr. Mackenzie, taunted us across the floor that we were effete, even as an Opposition; but, gentlemen, while we did give them fair play we had perhaps a very sinister object in view. We knew our men, and we knew that if we gave them rope enough they were certain to hang themselves. (Cheers and laughter. So we said, "Well, we will change our tactics, and we will show you whether there is any vitality in the Opposition," and I think that even they will admit that they had rather a lively time for the rest of that Parliament. (Laughter). I myself went from one end of the country to the other. I appealed to my constituency; I met them in large bodies; I entered into full, plain, and frank discussions of the questions of the day. I told them what I knew and what I believed, and my labors have not been in vain. (Cheers). Gentlemen, we nailed our colors to the mast. I saw how this country was suffering in its exceptional position, kept out of our nearest and best market of old by the hostile tariff of the United States. We felt that something must be done to help Canada for the Canadians, and keep the ingenuity, the skilled labor, the youth and the wealth of the Dominion from being drained away into a foreign country that knew how to protect their own industries and their own interests. Gentlemen, we pledged ourselves that Canada should be for the Canadians, and we proposed that there should be a readjustment of the tariff. You have heard it said that I deceived the people of New Brunswick, that I denied the tariff was to be increased. Gentlemen, I said what was strictly the truth. You all know what I have said in Parliament; you all know and have read the resolution I moved session after session, that I would not bind the party to anything else but this one thing, that there should be such a readjustment of the tariff as would develop all our native industries—(cheers)—and when I received a telegram from Mr. Boyd, of St. John, N. B., asking if I had said there was to be an increase of the tariff to 35 per cent., I answered that I had never said any such thing. I took great care to keep myself to one thing, that there should be a readjustment of the tariff, no matter what it was, that would protect the industries of Canada. (Cheers and applause.) Now gentlemen, I ask you have we not kept our word? (Tremendous cheering) Did we not fulfil our pledges? The hon. gentleman says we have fulfilled our pledges, and the triumphal march, as I may say, of my colleague the Finance Minist ter, proves the grateful appreciation of our action, and of his action as Finance Minister in carrying the tariff of last session. We do not profess infallibility; we know that the framing of a tariff is a difficult question, but we said we would introduce as good a tariff as we knew how, and if, after the experience of one year, we found any errors in it, we should not be too proud to amend it in the interests of the country. (Loud cheers) I am pleased to know that in the main the tariff has been successful, that in all its great provisions it has been a thorough success, and although in some of its two instances it may be susceptible of improvement, yet we could leave it confidently even as it is to the calm sober consideration of our country men, knowing that it is good. But we will come, gentlemen, and ask Parliament next session for some amendments, and these amendments will not be in the way of diminishing the protection or encouragement to our native industries (Cheers) Mr. Chairman, it was only our duty to do so when they could not say anything else, that we had gone to England and that we had made a bargain with the Mother Country to endeavor to secure the protection that our manufacturers are promised by the tariff against foreign competition. (Cheers) We smiled with the usual patriotic feeling and desire of the Globe, the organ of the Opposition, to create di union and weakness in Canada. To continue the state of distrust, manufacturers were told that I had gone home to kiss the foot of the Premier of England, and to sacrifice the interests of Canada for the sake of social or other position in England. Now, Mr. Chairman, the policy of the Government with respect to any future alteration of the tariff may be described in one sentence. As between English manufacturers and American manufacturers, we prefer English manufacturers. (Cheers.) But as between the English manufacturers and the Canadian manufacturers, we prefer the Canadian. (Tremendous cheers.) And we know and we feel that we can give that reasonable protection to all our national manufactures and industries as against the industries of other countries, that we can give protection against English manufacturers and at the same time give a preference to England as against other countries, so that if we have to go out of Canada to purchase, we will naturally go to England to make them. (Cheers.) Gentlemen, we found a deficit when we came in, and we found the national credit run down, and what do you think? Mr. Cartwright very readily sacrificed the dearest interests of Canada by his delay in putting the last loan on the market. He was so anxious to go to Eng and, he was so sure his Government could get a renewal of the lease for five years, that they were certain to carry the election on the 17th of September, that he postponed everything to the last hour before going to England. The consequence was that although Parliament was to meet in February, although we had to prepare measures

CHANCERY SALE.
IN CHANCERY.
O'FLYNN vs. WALLBRIDGE.
PURSUANT to the Decree and final order for sale made in this cause, and bearing date the 28th day of November, A.D. 1878, and the 20th day of July, A.D. 1876, there will be sold by Public Auction, with the approbation of Samuel Shaw Lazier, Esquire, Master at this Court at Belleville, at his Chambers, Shire Hall, in the City of Belleville, on SATURDAY, the 13th day of DECEMBER next,
at the hour of eleven o'clock in the forenoon, the following valuable City property, being in the City of Belleville, in the County of Hastings, and being composed of Lots numbers 8 on the south side of Moira Street, Park Lot number 56, and Lot number 15, on the south side of Wallbridge Road, and parts of Park Street, which said parcels of land are composed of part of Lot number 15, on the 1st concession of the Township of Thurlow, and are laid down on a plan which was recorded on the 24th day of January, A.D. 1872, in the Registry office of the County of Hastings; said Park Lot lies north of the Railroad, and south of College Street.
The Lots shall be sold separately.
The purchaser shall at the time of sale pay down a deposit of $10 for every $100 of the purchase money, and the balance thereof within one month thereafter.
In all other respects, the conditions of sale shall be the standing conditions of sale of the Court of Chancery.

declared himself in favor of free trade, and he ought to have left the subject there. The subject has been worn threadbare. (Laughter.) It has been discussed in Parliament and in the press, and it is now being discussed so much in the Globe that the Grits say they only read it for its New York news, and they never look at the leading articles because they see nothing in them but N. P. (Laughter.) He had better have left the subject alone, for his early training does not qualify him to discuss commercial matters. (Hear.) There is a story told in "Boswell's Life of Johnson," of Johnson and Boswell going together to the theatre. They sat in the pit and being anxious for the performance to commence, Boswell began to imitate a cow. This was so well applauded by the audience that he tried his abilities with other animals, with none of which was he so successful as with the cow. "I think, my dear Sir," said Johnson, noticing that the efforts of his friend were not appreciated, "I think, my dear Boswell, you had better confine yourself to the cow." (Laughter.) I think Mr. Blake had better confine himself to Chancery or to his constituents—for there are two questions upon which he will not succeed in throwing any new light and they are the questions of free trade or protection, and that of constitutional law. (Loud applause.) Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I thank you heartily on behalf of my colleagues for your kindness. I have thanked you in very inadequate terms. Let us repeat that the way in which I have been sustained in Ottawa—in Ontario—the way in which the Conservative party have supported myself and those who act with me in the conduct of public affairs—commands our deepest gratitude, and claims our most earnest service. Never till I am cold and in the grave can I forget the way in which you, the workingmen, the agriculturists, the manufacturers of this part of the country, the common with those of the other parts of the Dominion, have received me, and I can use truly to you the language of Burns to his noble friend:—

The bridegroom may forget the bride
Was made his wedded wife yestre'en;
The monarch may forget the crown
That on his head an hour has been;
The mother may forget her child
That sits so sweetly on her knee—
But I'll remember thee, Glencairn,
And all that thou hast done for me.

(Loud and long continued cheering).

Favors of this class must be handed in before noon on Wednesday. Contracts can be made at the business office.

Political Notes.

Dr. Barr, the Conservative M. P. P. elect for the county of Dufferin, has resigned his seat in face of a protest, and will not be a candidate for re-election.

Mr. Blake is held up by his admirers as the model statesman—a second Bayard, without fear and without reproach. The gentleman's preaching certain doctrines in stump speeches and running away from the House of Commons when to sustain his professed principles would embarrass his political friends, proves that he is of but clay—and very common clay at that—after all.

Says the Ottawa Citizen:—"Sir John Macdonald's announcement that in a few days he hopes to be able to tell of new and more favorable relations with Brazil and with France and Spain, is one that will be received with great interest by the country at large. It is an especially interesting subject with the people of the Eastern Provinces, because their shipping interests are so great, and because they will be the chief factors in the new traffic; but as the West is the great producing region, the news is also most interesting in this quarter. It marks the fulfilment of another promise by the Government, and the advance in its proper direction of one of the most important elements of the National Policy. In this connection, the remark of Sir A. Galt, that "we must look abroad for a market" by-and-by, is worth noting. A more satisfactory and reciprocal condition of trade with the West Indies, Brazil, France and Spain, would probably afford us a large and profitable market for our products when under the stimulus of the National Policy, these become multiplied beyond our own immediate needs."

The following brief extract from the speech of Sir. A. T. Galt at the Ottawa banquet, fully embodies the feeling of the people of this country generally on the subject of our tariff relations with other countries:—"It was idle to think of throwing open our markets to other countries, whose markets are not thrown open to us, and from his own recent observations in England he was certain that even there a great change is coming over public opinion on that question. He did not care for abstract notions of political economy, so far as that subject was concerned. As a practical man, who had all his life watched the trade and commerce of this country, he said that if we permit the products of other nations to come in here free, while they tax our products going into their markets, they will grow rich, and we will continue to be poor."

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

THE ANNUAL CELEBRATION.

At 2 p. m., yesterday, pursuant to advertisement, the members of the St. Andrews' Society commenced to assemble in front of the new Hall in their Robertson Block, and shortly before 3 p. m. the procession was formed and moved off to the strains of the piper, who discoursed music which, whether or not it suited the taste of the "Southrons" and Canadians, was to all events welcome to the ears of the clansmen and lowlanders. The route was up Front Street, and thence by way of Hotel Street to St. Andrew's Church, where the usual devotional exercises were held under the guidance of the Rev. Mr. W. Maclean, M. A., who is one of the Society's Chaplians.

Entering the edifice the processionists as they took their seats heard the pleasing strains of the organ, which furnished a medley of Scottish airs at the artistic touch of Prof. Stanistreet. A brief delay ensued, after which Mr. McLean entered the pulpit and asked the indulgence of those present, as his absence had been occasioned by unavoidable circumstances.

The 100th psalm, commencing with "All people that on earth do dwell, &c.," was then sung, after which a portion of the 133d psalm "Behold how pleasant it is to dwell &c". Then followed a brief prayer after which the 120th hymn "Fountain of good to own Thy love," was rendered by the choir and assemblago.

The text was taken from the 5th chapter of St. Paul's epistle to the Ephesians, 1st and 2nd verses: "Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children; And walk in love as Christ also hath loved us and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savour."

In opening his discourse on the above text, the reverend gentleman asked what was the cause of this banding together? It was merely to show that a fraternity existed, that there was a genuine patriotism and love of home among those who had assembled together, a love of country and a feeling of brotherliness and regard for fellow countrymen. And why, he took occasion to ask, did this love of country arise and live in the hearts of those present? Because our poetry and our songs are written in our hearts and are dear to them, and no one of any country thinks the songs of another country equal to those of his own. There is no soil like his own, there is no fireside like those from which he has received warmth, no recollections come to him so vivid and green as those which cling to those of his birth place, his heart beats to the memory of things left behind. He thinks in sadness of the days gone by and their pleasant memories, but a hungering, a clinging desire came over his soul, an impassioned yearning made itself manifest to see the old home, the home of his youth and early associations again. The desire to see the dear old familiar spots hallowed by ancient recollections, to see how his old friends are, to speak to them of the land of his birth, of his home, is the governing power with him and it is these which cause him to visit the scenes of his childhood. That is indeed patriotism and that is a principle, and it resolves itself into beneficence in its results, which the word of God endorses. Patriotism was even exemplified in the Scripture, for had not the prophet said "If I forget thee, oh Jerusalem, &c." Patriotism was a genuine love of country, a recollection of happy associations of bygone times; it revived thoughts of our fathers and old friends and by it we are made what we are, and these are some of the blessings we received by it. There are, however, exceptions where men under the guise of patriotism have committed acts of depredation and lawlessness. It is foolish, however, for a man not to love his country, though his cause may be made a bad one by bad or thoughtless exhibition of one of the same nativity. Boys born in Canada had gone away from it to fight the hard struggle of life and to be governed by its successes and reverses, but yet they had returned to their homes as full of love for them as they had been in earlier years. Patriotism harmonizes the mind and makes a man liberal and he then respects in others what he respects in himself. Patriotism and pure nationalism are different; the latter sees no evil within its pale and no good outside; the former is inspired by love of home and rejoices in its welfare and blessings. It cannot be forgotten that though Scotland is small in size it has yet made its mark in the history of the world and that when its people were engaged in battle in a righteous cause, their hopes of success did not depend on numbers. The history of the struggle of Scotchmen for nationality was recorded and though it was thought subjection was to be its fate, still the people never lost heart, they were true to their aim—independence—for the bone and sinew of the country was incorruptible and their love for their old land was too dear to be bought, they persevered in their endeavors and the result was the invaders were driven from Scottish soil and then over all the land the flag of Scotland floated. That was the emblem of Scotland's freedom, that was the bequest of our forefathers, for they hated oppression, tyranny and injustice. They were loyal to their country and were true to Scotland when she was arrayed against herself. They were faithful to their loved king; when followed him who could have made a fortune out of his life, but they gave up all for his cause. Look at the history of Charles Edward after the battle of Culloden, how he was hunted and chased and a reward of £30,000 offered for his head, yet no one would betray him; his honor and his life were dependent, and therefore the offer was spurned. The rose, the shamrock and the thistle were now intertwined and the same valor that had kept the country free had shown the English flag preeminent in Egypt, Abyssinia, and other countries, thus showing that the flag of our ancestors must be respected the world o'er. In arts Scotland had contributed her share, whilst in industry by her coal and iron the result was in the production of the finest ships. Any one could testify to the intelligence and industry of her people, for their lands now bore their share of prosperity. In all cities in Scotland her sons held positions as well as in other walks of life in the world; their honesty and perseverance was worthy of remembrance and they still entertained the fidelity of their fathers to principles they believed true and governed by ideas they conceived to be right. An occasion presented itself when the people of the south of Scotland gave up everything to the creed of the man of the world, which is "myself first, myself all the time." If a man loves God, he loves him all the time; but if he is surrounded by the tempter trickster and loses his affection for his master and gives way his life has been in vain. We should "Love the Lord with all our hearts &c.," and when we band together do what we can for the relief of the distressed, for they who love most, do most for those who need assistance. We should cultivate a spirit of truth, love and benevolence; there should be a spirit of disinterestedness which would bind us together as brethren and all to God. Our religion is a reality, not of the lip; but of life, for the Creator has made us social beings; we crave for companionship, and he who has gone out to fight the battle of life has experienced. The battle of life was a hard one to fight for it was full of troubles trials and discouragement; there was no voice to cheer and aid, no hand to help. Friendship manifested itself in good deeds, and many have experienced its benefits, and but for it they would have famished and died in despair. The one who wishes to go on and rise higher in the world, tears himself from his old associations, goes abroad, and who is so lonely as he, such as who, companionless and without a home, daily lands here. Hard times have probably made such as he poor, but he is full of high aspirations, and has willing hands to help him on in the world. Societies such as this, and sister societies, lend a helping hand where it is required, and teaches the stranger that he has a friend even in a strange land. The stranger is rescued from temporal shipwreck and though he might not be as good as he should be, yet we should bear in mind the saying of the Master, "Inasmuch as ye did it," &c., and "the poor ye have always with you," &c. We should practice the teachings of Christ, and should cheer the sick bed, provide for the widow, and such acts would meet with the approval of Him who gave his only begotten Son to save us. One can always find occasion to help another, and this places in our hands a power for good, and should we act in the premises it will bring blessings from Him who sows blessings broadcast, if not in kind in blessings from God. Societies such as this have made many a home glad and therefore we should strive in the future to make that power felt to do good which will dispense blessings and make many a grateful spirit respond to the spirit above. In later days Ireland, England and Scotland bound together had representatives in other lands where the spirit of the sire was emulated by the children. We should go on and do what we could for the benefit of our fellowman; let us practice the lessons taught us and if we are as true to God as we should be and also to truth, the land of our adoption, where our children were born and will die, will cheer our presence, and interested in it she will continue to be what she is among the nations.

The singing of the 28th Paraphrase succeeded and was followed by a brief prayer. The 1st 3rd and 5th verses of the 72nd hymn were sung and the assemblage, after hearing the benediction, dispersed. The procession then reformed and separated after marching to their hall.

THE DINNER.

The annual dinner was held in the Dafoe House in the evening, there being a goodly gathering of the members and of the Sister Societies. The "haggis"—the great piece de resistance—was ushered in with a procession in its honor. Mine Host Henderson, being himself a Scotchman, excelled all previous efforts on the occasion, the spread being one of the best which has ever been offered to the guests of this celebrated hostelry. The new and spacious dining room was appropriately decorated with mottoes too numerous to enumerate, and all was animation and enthusiasm.

Amongst those present were:—W. H. Ponton, Esq., the President, who presided, and around the tables were the Hon. M. Bowell, M. P., Hon. Robert Read, John White, M. P., Jas. Brown, M. P., Rev. M. W. McLean, Rev. Dr. Clarke, Thos. Wills, Dr. Crozier, D. Pitceathly, Chief McKinnon, W. A. Shepard, Ald. Dickson, J. A. Crozier, R. Newbery, W. Sutherland, Dr. Farley, W. Webster, E. B. Fraleck, Thos. Ritchie, Ald. Holden, Ald. Hulme, Aid. McIninch, Dr. Palmer, Hugh Walker, J. W. Johnson, D. M. Waters, A. Watters, H. C. Fillitter, W. L. Hamilton, Ald. Petrie, Jas. Clarke, W. Tennant, Prof. Macoun, W. J. Diamond, Jas. Smith, E. Taylor, D. Anderson, W. McLaren, and others.

The vice-chairs were occupied by Ald. D. B. Robertson and Mr. John Sutherland.

The usual loyal toasts, beginning with "The Queen," were proposed and heartily drank, songs being given by Messrs. Edgar and Blaind.

Col. J. Brown, M. P., responded to the toast of "The Army and Navy," saying the deeds of the British army and navy were emblazoned in song and in story, and no country could boast of a prouder record for its citizen soldiery than had Canada, whose sons had done their duty on many a well-fought field.

Capt. Ponton and Lieut. Biggar also responded briefly. Sergt. Watters, of the Home Guard, also responded and gave the recitation "The Highlanders' war-cry at the Battle of the Alma."

Collector Webster sang "Red, White and Blue."

"The Day and a' wha honor it," was next drank, and Mr. Edgar sang "Scotland Yet."

Mr. THOMAS RITCHIE responded. He said the day was being duly celebrated with bagpipe, haggis, and sermon throughout the world. Wherever the sun shines Scotchmen were to be found, and their patriotism is neither chilled by the cold winds of the north, or dried up by the hot suns of the south. Their patriotism was a fixed principle, which did not alter under any circumstances. Their compatriots had won a splendid place in history, but though they did not feel any jealousy at the patriotism of others, they might be permitted on this day to dwell upon the achievements of their own countrymen. Scotland's smallness and ruggedness had, he believed, contributed largely to the greatness of her sons. It was not those countries which gave forth the fruits of the earth spontaneously that produced the ablest men; it was lands of rugged and inhospitable climates that did so. It was the privations which Scotchmen had to endure that had developed their character. Where was the land of similar dimensions which had produced so many men celebrated in all the walks of life as had Scotland? A typical Scotchman could not be nurtured in downy beds or halls of ease, and hence he looked for this adopted land of ours to become, because of its circumstances, the greatest country in the world. Let us then be proud of this land of our adoption and lay well the foundations of its future greatness. Scotchmen particularly will do their part.

"The Land we left and the Land we Live In," was the succeeding toast, immediately following which the Chairman said he would interrupt the regular order of proceedings in order to admit of a distinguished guest, whose stay with them was nearly at an end, to address a few words to them before going.

Hon. Mr. BOWELL was called upon and was received with loud cheers. He said he regretted that it was necessary he should at once depart, in order to catch the train. He thanked them for the invitation given, and said it was always a pleasure to meet with his Scotch friends, who were worthy of all the praise that Scotchmen could give them. There were other members of the united Kingdom who had also done their part, and he had no fears that so long as all were united the empire would continue to prosper. He enlogized British connection, saying the history of the Empire is ours, and so long as we hold the opinions which we now do, we would prosper. He advocated the dropping of little prejudices and there would be no doubt that this country would be well governed. With a vigilant and talented opposition, there was no doubt that public affairs would be well conducted. The present House of Commons was, as compared with others in which he sat, perhaps superior to any of them, the best evidence of which, he might be permitted to say, was that a large majority of them supported the present Government. (Laughter.) He would ask permission to break in upon the regular order of proceedings, and concluded by proposing the matter of the President and prosperity of the St. Andrew's Society. Received with cheers.

Hon. Mr. Bowell and Prof. Macoun then retired, and the order of proceeding was continued.

Song by Mr. Webster, and response by Mr. HUGH WALKER, who spoke in an eloquent strain.

Song by Chief McKinnon, "Dear Canada."

Ald. DICKSON responded to the second half of the toast, addressing himself largely to the very high position which Scotchmen had won on the judicial bench in Great Britain. He urged that if the people of Canada continue to be devoted to their country, Canada will become the dominant power on the North American continent. We had all the elements within ourselves, if properly used, to achieve that end. Mr. Dickson spoke at so great length, that our space will not permit even a summary of his remarks, which were forcible and to the point.

"Our Sister Societies," was the succeeding toast, and was responded to by Ald. Hulme, President of the St. George's Society, and R. Newbery, City Clerk.

Song by Mr. Dawson, "Handy Andy."

The Vice-Chairman then gave the first of his toasts, "Burns and the Poets of Scotland."

Song by W. Robertson—"There was a Lad."

Rev. Dr. CLARKE responded in a highly appreciative and neatly constructed speech. He analyzed and criticised Burns' principal poems, and eulogized Burns as emphatically the poet of the people.

The "Dominion Parliament and the Legislative Assembly of Ontario."

Song by Mr. S. Massey "The Heather Hills."

Senator READ replied on behalf of the Senate in a brief and highly acceptable speech.

JOHN WHITE, Esq., M. P., replied on behalf of the House of Commons. He eulogized the efforts of Sir John Macdonald to better the interests of the country. He expressed his opinion that the representatives of this district would endorse the Murray Canal project, and as for himself he would do what he could to forward the project.

Col. BROWN also approved of the Murray Canal scheme and would give it his hearty support.

A duet, "Ye banks and braes," by Messrs. Duncan and Blaind, was rendered with excellent effect.

"Our guests."

Song "A fine old English Gentleman." Messrs. E. B. Fraleck and J. W. Johnson replied to the toast.

This footed the list of the 1st Vice, after which the remainder of the toasts were taken up by the 2nd Vice-Chairman, who gave "The Mayor and Corporation," which was replied to by Ald. Holden and Petrie.

"The Ladies,"—Song, Ald. Robertson, "Maggie by my Side." Dr. Farley responded.

Song by Mr. Blaind "When the Kye comes hame."

Song by the President.

Mr. John Johnson, of Consecon, and Col. Brown also responded to the toast of the ladies.

"The Press" was then offered and duly replied to.

Song by Mr. Thos. Lockerty, which was rendered with excellent effect.

A number of other songs were given, and at 3 a. m. the gathering broke up by singing Auld Lang Syne, and God Save the Queen.

" " 17c. " " " 25c

" " 20c. " " " 30c

WE carry an immense stock of these Goods, and have in our employ over fifty hands manufacturing, &c., more than ever kept by any one house in Central Ontario. The large quantities of these Goods we are thus enabled to get through, puts us in a position to buy them cheaper than any other house in the City.

AN ADVANTAGE

we give to our customers over importing houses and houses stocking themselves early in the season, is this: We buy moderately at the opening of the season, and put ourselves in the position to now take advantage of late and depressed markets to buy many lines of goods at very great discounts from what they can be bought early in the season.

We have lately taken this advantage in securing many cheap lines in Dress Goods,

Silks, Velvets, Satins, Flannels, Linens, Winceys, Handk'fs,

Hosiery, Millinery, Feathers, Ribbons, &c.

TO THE LADIES.

We ask an impartial inspection of these Goods, when it will be found we are now offering the cheapest lot of goods ever shown in the City.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 2.

City and Vicinity.

THE GAOL.—There are 22 prisoners in the gaol—10 males and 12 females.

PERSONAL.—Mr. J. Ham Perry, Registrar of the County of Ontario, was in town to-day.

CITY COUNCIL.—The Council met last night, but adjourned, without transacting any business, for one week.

CHEESE.—October cheese is selling in Montreal at from 12½c to 13c per lb, and August cheese at 12½c.

THE FERRY.—The ferry steamer encountered a good deal of floating ice yesterday afternoon, but managed to work her way through it.

RAIN.—The weather has changed again, in accordance with the predictions, and rain fell heavily to-day. Many people are now longing for the coming of winter in earnest, as the changeable weather renders business dull.

TO BE CONCLUDED.—Many of our lady readers are anxiously enquiring for the continuation of the story "Emmeline." A pressure of other matter has delayed the conclusion of the story, but the closing chapters will be published as soon as possible.

KINGSTON PRESBYTERY.—The Kingston Whig says:—"The deputations that have been holding missionary meetings in the Belleville District have been unusually successful. West Huntingdon, Stirling, Seymour, Trenton, Consecon and Picton, were visited in turn. They were all largely attended and liberal contributions were received not only for the missions but towards the Presbytery funds. Nearly twice as much was raised this year as last for the same purposes. The deputations consisted of Rev. Messrs. Kelso, of Roslin; Gray, of Stirling; Dr. Neil, Seymour; McLean, Belleville; Stewart, Trenton; and Cormack, Kingston. All the stations visited promised to make monthly contributions for the schemes of the Church."

THE BARLEY MARKET.—The Oswego Palladium of Saturday says: "The market during the week has been moderately active, and prices at the close are 5 to 6c. higher for medium and higher grades, and nominally 3 to 4c. for the lower qualities. The sales aggregate 165,000 bu. closing at 98c. for No. 1 bright Canada, 85c. for No. 1, and at 78c. to 70c. for No. 2. The receipts from Canada during the week have been 194,132 bu. of which 132,847 bu. came from Bay Quinte, and 61,285 bu. from up lake ports. The shipments for the week by canal and rail aggregate 189,069 bu. The receipts of new crop barley from Canada to date have been 3,629,332 bu. against 2,709,257 bu. for the corresponding period in 1870, showing an increase this season of 920,075 bu. The total shipments of new crop barley by canal and rail to date have been 3,119,338 bu. Recent sales of 65,000 bu. are reported at Albany, including light weight Canada at 87c., heavy at 95c. to $1.00, No. 1 bright at $1.03 to $1.05, and Jefferson County two rowed at 85c.

Marine Notes,

The schooner Edward Blake has been pulled off the shore at Presquile by the tug Hiram A. Calvin. She is pretty badly damaged. The tug took her to Mill Point, where she will be hauled out for repairs.

The steambarge Saxon, sunk at Beauharnois Canal, has been raised, and passed up in tow of the Lady Franklin to Mill Point, where it will be overhauled.

"Who is Responsible?"

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—I would like to ask the Chairmen of the different Committees of the City Council, how it is that Alderman Proctor, of Coleman Ward, is doing work for the City, for pay, contrary to law? Let some of them explain. Who is responsible? I am, &c.,

TAX-PAYER.

The freight business on the Intercolonial Railway during the past week amounted to two hundred and seventy-nine cars inward and two hundred and seventy cars outward; one hundred and eighty-nine of the latter consisting of English goods received in Montreal by steamers.

The Greatest Remedy Ever Discovered.

Quinine is considered the greatest remedy known, but we believe it has its equal, if not its peer, in the product of Cod Fish. Nothing has been discovered to equal Cod Liver Oil as a builder and sustainer of the body in Consumption and all Wasting Disorders; but its usefulness is impaired by its nauseous properties. In SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL this objection is entirely overcome, and combined with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA it is the most valuable remedy ever discovered.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

LEAVENWORTH, Ks., Dec. 2.—Gould yesterday inspected the railway works hereabouts. In the afternoon he attended a banquet given by the merchants. Gould made a speech, and said that he had arrived at the time of life when investments were not made for making money, but for entertainment. He enjoyed himself better giving personal attention to his interests in the west than being confined by business at home.

MOUNT STERLING, Ky., Dec. 2.—Elliot County Regulators last Saturday visited Morgan County to regulate the inhabitants. They whipped one named Cassidy, Perry and Edwards and three others. They visited a house of seven women, five of whom they whipped.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—John Bogus, a bachelor aged 60 and supposed to be a rich miser, afflicted yesterday by shooting. He left a note asking forgiveness of his creditors, being unable to pay them.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Dec. 2d.—Euphemia Shive, aged 23, died on Friday, the result of criminal malpractice. Henry Trumlore, a prominent democratic politician, is charged with aiding deceased to procure an abortion. Trumlore fled.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—James R. Keerel has given one thousand dollars to the seventh regiment armory fund.

Chief Justice L. Bradford Prince, of New Mexico, was married yesterday to a daughter of Dr. Childs of this city.

Edward Land, a young stowaway on the British bark Star of the West, which arrived yesterday, while trying to work his passage to meet his sister in Newark fell over board and was drowned.

LEBANON, Pa., Dec. 2.—Henry Wise, one of the murderers of Jos. Raber, was this morning sentenced to be hanged. He attempted to deliver a written statement, but was stopped by the Judge. This is the insurance conspiracy case, for which Drews and Stichter were hanged. Sentence on Wise was deferred, that he might testify against Zeichman, another of the gang. His evidence was discredited. Zeichman, after having been convicted, was acquitted on a second trial.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 2.—At the United States Court, the case of Matthew Gotfried, against the Philip Best brewing Company, rendered a decision yesterday sustaining the pitching of the inner surface of the barrels. The process has been in use in all the breweries in the country for several years. The decision makes them responsible for the royalty.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Washington specials:

The Herald says that Grant writes concerning the Nicaragua Canal project advising that Congress be asked to incorporate the Company, because so vast an undertaking will have a higher credit in Europe under national than under state franchise.

A friend of Tilden says that in January Tilden will make known his purposes, whether to claim the nomination for the Presidency or to retire from political life.

The Times says that many western Republicans express regret that the President has spoken so plainly against continuing the United States notes in circulation, and think he has made a mistake which may prove annoying at the next Presidential canvass.

A little child of Jas. Madison, of Guttenberg, N. J., fell over the precipice at Palisades on Sunday, a distance of 100 feet, and escaped with trifling injuries.

The Sun says, that the sales at the New York Central indicate that individuals who hitherto held stock relying on Vanderbilt's ownership as a guarantee for the dividends, are beginning to dispose of it. The Central bonds which had hitherto been out of the market are coming upon it again.

FORT MEAD, Dak., Dec. 2.—Reno court martial was convened yesterday, several witnesses testified Reno was very drunk and disorderly in the billiard rooms of the Club house Aug. 8th.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 2.—Lawrence Myers, an opulent banker, is sued to collect a note given for a gambling debt, by W. L. Paine, a wealthy young resident. Myers swore he did not know the note was a gambling obligation, and has been arrested for perjury.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—A private letter from Bangkok, Siam, says of late the merchants have exhibited a tendency to give preference to American manufactures.

A BACKWOODS SHANTY.—The Ottawa Citizen says:—"It is understood that Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise, before leaving for England, left instructions with the head carpenter at Rideau Hall to fell some pine trees on the grounds and construct a regular backwoods shanty, including *camp*loose, crane, and the usual cooking apparatus, bunks, &c. It is intended as a curiosity."

PEMBINA RAILWAY.—Manitoba gentlemen who have just arrived from Manitoba say that the condition of the Pembina branch has been very much improved, and is now giving general satisfaction. The lessees have changed the time of arriving at Winnipeg to noon, instead of midnight as before, and they propose to run their trains into the new city station as soon as the ice is sufficiently strong to cross the river on the new Government track at Point Douglas.

THE CONSOLIDATED BANK.—The Montreal Gazette of Dec. 1st says: "It having been rumored that there is a prospect of the Consolidated Bank selling its assets to a financial institution in this city, information was sought from the cashier, Mr. Campbell, when it was learned that negotiations to this end are in progress, but have not yet been perfected. If such a sale can be carried out on fair terms it will be a great advantage to the shareholders, as it would obviate the necessity for a call or bankruptcy proceedings, and would enable the directors to pay the depositors without much delay."

BEARING FOR THE HAIR.—Use it once and you will have no other. Price, 50 cents per bottle.

TOOTHACHE.—Do you suffer with it? Go buy a bottle of Pain-Killer and find relief in the twinkle of an eye—for Toothache it is a specific.

By the use of Fellows' Syrup of Hypophosphites the nerves become reinforced in strength, the stomach is made capable of digesting the food, the food changes to blood, the heart becomes strengthened to pump the blood, the lungs distribute and oxidize the blood, healthy blood displaces unhealthy muscle and tuberculous matter, the patient becomes vigorous, and then by using his constitution as intended by a beneficent Creator, he may live up to the ripe old age, when like the corn ready for harvest he drops from the husk.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Post commenting on Yakoob Khan's departure from Cabul says this news is of great significance. It probably means that Afghanistan has seen the last of its Ameers. It also points to the restraint if not actual punishment in store for Yakoob, for his carelessness if not connivance in the massacre of the Embassy.

Paris papers to-day announce that at yesterday's Cabinet Council it was resolved to immediately demand a vote of confidence from the Chamber of Deputies.

BERLIN, Dec. 2nd.—It is stated that the Czar will inform the nobility of Moscow at the reception to-day, of his determination to call a number of unofficial advisers to assist him in the government of the empire. The Council will be purely deliberative, without the right to control or interference, and will be chosen partly by the suffrages of the middle and peasant classes, and partly by direct nomination by the Czar from the ranks of the hereditary nobility. Other measures of local reform will also be announced. These innovations have been strongly advocated by the Czarewitch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Senate Gordon introduced a bill providing that the Government of the United States pledges to accord full entire protection to the Company to which shall be granted the concession by the Government of Nicaragua, for the protection of the inter Oceanic Canal, and will secure to the said Company peaceful enjoyment of rights conceded by such concession. Referred to Committee of Commerce.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Dec. 2.—This a. m. Mrs. Timothy Mee, distressed at the death of her child, cut her throat and will probably die.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 2.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, winds increasing in force and shifting towards the north; cloudy, colder weather, with snow, preceded by rain in southern districts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Indications: For lower lakes, warmer, cloudy probably rain or snow decidedly colder to-night.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City. 1y

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

WE invite the attention of every person wanting to purchase Dry Goods to the following "ACTS," which we think will be of service to them in aiding them to decide where to make their purchases:

1st. Our Stock is the Largest in the City.

2nd. Our British Goods are Imported direct, and are all selected in that market by a member of the firm.

3rd. We claim to have the Choicest and most attractive Stock of Dry Goods between Toronto and Montreal.

4th. We challenge a comparison of the qualities and prices of our goods with those of any other Dry Goods House in the country, believing "a comparison" to be the most convincing argument that could be used in our favor.

REMEMBER, WE HAVE THE

Most Convenient and Best Lighted Shop in the City,

And our Stock is as reliable and cheap as any Retail Stock in the Dominion.

A Reception Party to "Selon les Regles!"

What a stiff thing is a real reception party. The machinery is set going about ten days before the time. Engravers and printers are busy carving out and printing the cards. It won't do for Mr. A. to come, because Mr. B. is not in accord with him. When the preliminaries are completed and the night has come, how the carriages roll up to the door and the ladies sweep in with their dress a "la la mode," and the husbands and beaux, after leading them to the dressing rooms, ramble and herd together in the parlors and corridors and talk of the latest novelty; how the Marquis and wife are getting along, or of the value of lumber, or the tonage of the country. They toast on the matter of the terrible times which are upon them, while they move among the pomp and glitter of wax candles and costly furniture. And then the feast! What viands! What wines! What "petits morceaux never dreamed of except in Paris. What lassitude and headaches next, as the fair ones breakfast at two P. M., and the husbands doze in their stores. Commend me to a reception party and to Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills to work off the effects next day. If people will overfeed they must apply to Dr. Herrick.

In the hard dry cough of Chronic Bronchitis, with its difficult expectoration and labored breathing, the demulcent properties of Robinson's Preasphorized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Lacto-Phosphate of Lime manifests itself in its healing and soothing effect upon the irritated mucous membranes of the Bronchial passages. The cough quickly yields, the breathing is eased, while Nature thus aided reasserts herself, and where once gaunt Consumption stared the victim in the face, now Hope beckons on to life and health.

Prepared solely by J. H. Robinson, Pharmaceutical Chemist, St. John, N. B., and for sale by all Druggists and General Dealers. Price $1.00 per bottle; six bottles for $5.00.

The Corner of White Street and West Broadway is but at present a sort of rheumatic Mecca to which hundreds of cripples and paralytics make daily pilgrimage. The shrine to which this melancholy procession diurnally wends its way is the laboratory of Dr. Wm. M. Giles, No 120 West Broadway, where with a certain stately urbanity he dispenses his new Iodide Ammonia Liniment—now regularly administered in Bellevue and other hospitals. Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

Dr. Giles,
120 West Broadway, N. Y.

Trial size 25 cents.

A Joy for Tender Mothers.

Mothers who have suffered pangs of sympathetic grief when they have had to give their infants Castor Oil, and have seen the unspeakable disgust and misery the little one has endured, will all rejoice to know that their precious pets need never know this sorrow more. The Emulsion of Castor Oil made by Scott & Bowne is as Palatable to the baby as its natural sustenance, while more mild and more efficacious in operation than the old nauseous doses. This new preparation is as welcome to grown up folks as to the babies. It is sold at 25 cents a bottle.

A Wonderful Discovery.

For the speedy cure of Consumption and all diseases that lead to it, such as Coughs, neglected Colds, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Asthma, pain in the side and chest, dry hacking cough, tickling in the throat, Hoarseness, Sore Throat and all chronic or lingering diseases of the throat and lungs, Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal and has established for itself a world wide reputation. Many leading physicians recommend and use it in their practise. The formula from which it is prepared is highly recommended by all medical journals. The glergy and the press have complimented it in the most glowing terms. Go to your druggist and get a trial bottle free of cost or a regular size for $1.00. For sale by Jas. Clarke & Co.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report from any one to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

NOTICE.

THERE is a common practice in many stores of making an abatement on the price first named. Especially is this the case when a customer is wanting Carpets, Silks and such like goods, when on some pretext or another, after a little higgling, 5c., 10c., and even 50c per yard is thrown off the price first asked, and the buyer thus believes he is getting what he needs less than the regular value, whereas he is actually paying more than he should.

Wherever these devices are resorted to it is an acknowledgement by the store-keeper that he knows the goods he is selling can be had elsewhere for less than what he asks. Certainly it is not safe to deal at all in such places, for almost invariably it is found that after coming down in price more is paid than ought to be. Almost every day such instances come under our notice when a person sees some piece of goods in our store the same as what he has been buying elsewhere and finds after taking off the abatement he has paid considerably more than what we ask.

We shall always continue to adhere strictly to our well known system of doing business having all goods marked at the lowest price and only one price made.

Every one is perfectly free at any time to look through our stock, to examine the goods and to enquire the prices without in any way being importuned or urged to buy.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

PURE COD LIVER OIL

WITH

HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

This preparation combines the two best remedies ever discovered for Consumption, Colds and Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Rheumatism and Diseases of the Blood, General Debility, and all Wasting Diseases of Children. It not only contains the well known and highly esteemed virtues of Cod Liver Oil in a form that is perfectly tasteless and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, but in addition, the wonderful tonic and life-giving properties of the Hypophosphites, so incorporated that the remedial powers of both are largely increased. Physicians universally acknowledge the vastly superior virtues of this combined food and medicine in all the above diseases. It is not only better tolerated, but much more readily assimilated by the system than plain Cod Liver Oil, and a better agent in enriching and purifying the blood, allaying the morbid irritation of the throat and lungs, restoring the impaired functions and giving strength and vigor to the whole body. It is sweet and palatable to the taste, never separates, deposits or spoils. Be sure and ask for Scott's Emulsion. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle.

JOHNSTON'S

is now extensively used in British and Continental Institutions, Hospitals and Asylums, and is prescribed by the medical faculty wherever it has been introduced.

Its adaptability is general to the invalid, the convalescent and the vigorous. To children it secures a strong muscular development, and for maternal nursing, imperfect mastication, athletic training, physical exhaustion, indigestion or mental overstrain, it is the perfection of known food.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND LEADING GROCERS.

Price 35c, 60c and $1.

Manufactured by JOHN L. JOHNSON.

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which will be sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia. Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

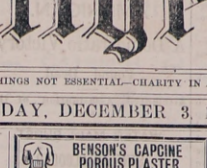

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption, Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epileptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
" JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have delayed writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is unquestionably the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have died ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.
D. WALTER OAKES.
Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR:—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.
I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Females suffering from pain and weakness will derive great comfort and strength from the use of Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster. Where children are affected with whooping cough, ordinary coughs or colds or weak lungs, it is the one and only treatment they should receive. This article contains new medicinal elements such as is found in no other remedy in the same form. It is far superior to common porous plasters, liniments, electrical appliances and other external remedies. It relieves pain at once, strengthens and cures where other plasters will not even relieve. For LAME AND WEAK BACK, Rheumatism, Kidney or colds or weak local aches and pains it is also the best known remedy. Ask for Benson's Capcine Plaster and take no other. Sold by all Druggists. WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT,
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are being put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence reposed in us by one of our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞ This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

Over the Great Plains.

PROFESSOR MACOUN'S LECTURE.

(From the Winnipeg Tribune, Nov. 21.)

CONTINUED.

In the morning, Matheson and I having decided to go to Battleford, about 100 miles off, we travelled through a great plain which you will see marked as the Great Plain in your map. My assistant went straight across it from east to west. I started diagonall ythrough to Eagle Hills and Bad Hills. When we came to Spirit Lake or Devil's Lake, we were told by the Indians that we could not pass through the hills. We said we would. We were determined, steering our course by the compass, to keep north, 40 degrees west. Though it took us four days, we reached our destination all right; and, as one result of our venture were able to ascertain that the Eagle Hills, Bear Hills and Bad Hills contain much good land, but are not wooded. When Matheson and I turned from Battleford, we went 260 miles west over the Great Plain, which we found to be a woodless tract, not a spot of which but was covered with excellent grass. For the first 50 miles from Battleford, the land undulated gently. Then we came to a plain which was void of water. And then for six days we were going up and down until we came to the salt lakes. Between the hills through which we passed, on the outer and inner slopes, we were enabled to obtain good water. Leaving the Great Plain, my course led across Red River and thence to Bow River—the distance between the two being about 40 miles. Red Dear River has a close resemblance to the great rivers of the Central American desert. Lying 600 feet below the prarie level, from its steep banks come out great masses of sand-stone and blue clay, easily acted on by the weather, and turned into all sorts of fantastics shapes. Standing on the bank, you can observe how the river has hollowed out its bed during a long period of time —the different strata being plainly discernible one above the other. Here, almost the highest layer in the lot, we found a good specimen of lignite. I use the term, I may explain, to indicate the coal formation, of the cretaceous period, and think it very possible it may be found quite as good as the bituminous coal so much in use. We found the tract between Red Deer and Bow Rivers very desirable land, but without wood. When we came to the Blackfoot crossing and were entering their camp, I may mention that you here supposed we were dead. You had the rumor before that we were all killed. But, let me tell you, these poor Indians had no idea of killing anything but gophers or badgers. And here let me disabuse your minds of the idea that there is great danger to be apprehended from the Blackfeet, Sarcees and Stonies. Any one who says there is this danger, says what is not true. About the 24th of August we went into the Blackfoot camp, cooked supper, and left our stuff in the carts, paying no attention to it, knowing the Indians to be honest. We had no need to guard our property till we came where white men were. (Laughter.) In the morning, Big Crowfoot, the chief, came to us with an interpreter, and, sitting at the door of the tent, the old man pointed out a Sarcee, saying "That man has two children dying of starvation." Again he pointed to another with two children starving, and yet again he indicated where another was lying dead from the same cause. Not a mouthful of food of any description was in the Blackfoot and Sarcee camp! And yet they neither begged nor stole from us on our arrival, and our provisions and stuff lying loose, was as safe as if locked up under bolts and bars. (Applause.) Now I would wish to ask this audience, can there be any reasonable ground for fear in regard to our future dealings with Indians who could lie down and die of starvation sooner than touch that which belonged to others without their consent. (Applause.) Let me add to this, that Mr. French, who has a farm at the crossing here, had four acres of vegetables growing, unwatched, and had not lost a quarter of an ounce. Those poor Indians, leaving them unmolested, had traversed the whole country, digging up the wild turnips and gathering berries and poplar bark for food. Not a berry bush in the country but had its berries taken off; hardly a poplar could be seen that was not scraped to appease the cravings of hunger! So pitiful was their condition that, and the prices we actually came to the camp to ask permission to lick the plates! Of course they got them—every particle of grease was licked off, and then they were washed and returned. What could I do? I said to the interpreter—Tell the chief that after dinner I will give him every pound of eatables we have with us except what we need to take us to Calgarry. He got all we could possible spare him, and you may be sure, was well pleased. (Applause.) Soon afterwards, while I was on the bank, taking the width of the river, a half-naked Indian came riding along at break-neck speed; and, without a word passing that I could hear, nearly threw him down and ceild in that camp started to run like mad. The fact was that they had heard the buffalo were coming, and this caused a general scamper. (Laughter.) Four out of six buffalo seen were killed, and the Blackfeet were saved, independently of Government supplies. (Applause.) God saved these Indians. You tell me that these men will rise and that they are a menace to settlement! Never—if you only treat them as men—not dogs. (Applause.) In last Friday's weekly Globe I observe a petition from certain so-called stock-men of the North-West, setting forth that 400 cattle had been killed by the Indians during the past season, and praying relief. Now let me tell you, the allegation in that petition is an infamous falsehood. Three of the men whose names are there appended told me that they lost no cattle. (Applause.) I was there fifteen days before the date of the petition, and that is all that they told me. One of our party, now in the hall, who was with these men five days before the date of their petition, can bear me out in the statement. Indeed it is very doubtful if one of those petitioners ever had any cattle to lose. Why did they take this action? On the principle that some people act on when they get up a charter. It is for so-and-so they say,—"and for other purposes." The men getting it up know right well what the "other purposes" are. (Laughter.) Many men, when they talk about the Indians being dangerous, do so purely for the sake of plaice and plunder. Having expressed the hope that the tactics of the American Indian Agents would not prevail in this land, the Professor continued:—In the Free Press tonight there are two articles—one from the correspondent of a Chicago paper, stating that there was extreme danger in the North-West from Indians—and another from a Benton journal stating that the North Peigans had found a lot of cattle and had notified Col. McLeod of the fact. The cattle that the owners dare not, or would not look for, would thus be handed over to them. (Applause.) The one item answered the other. It has been said again that Prince Albert and the settlements in the interior are in danger from the Sioux. I have something to say about them also, for I met these Sioux on the 21st of October between Humboldt and the South Branch. What the tactics had I to use to get along with these dreadful red men! Sandford Fleming told me what to do long ago—take a little tobacco with you, he said. (Laughter.) I did so, and when we met these Indians we gave each of them a plug. It was black stuff—not the very best, I think. (Laughter.) The Indians sat down wherever they could do so handiest—each man filled his pipe—had a decent smoke—and then it took wonderfully little vituals to feed them. (Laughter.) The Professor got on a side-track here again, to dessant on the manliness, noble bearing and fine physique of the Blackfeet and the Sioux as contrasted with other red men and white men too. One of these heroes, the Professor said, measured six feet four in his stockings. The mention of stockings brought down the house in a hearty burst of laughter. At Prince Albertown of the Sioux had repeatedly sought work, being desirous to earn his living like a white man. And Governor Laird had spoken to the Professor of another, Little Drum, who had asked for work in order to be able to buy his own food; but there was none to be had. It is, continued the lecturer, a great mistake to suppose that an Indian won't work. He generally speaks what he will work whenever he can get it. When buffalo are plentiful as they were at Calgarry three years since, and when a hunter can get half a dozen fine fat cows in a day—he has no necessity for other work. Would any of you work if you had such a feast as that before you all the time? (Laughter.) The Bow river country has never been sung yet. It will one day, though, for I assure you that it would be difficult to do justice to the beauty of the river scenery all through the valley. Stand on one of the heights and see the river on its shining course meandering through the valley with every point wooded, and you will see a charming bit of scenery, which is reproduced all along its length to the Blackfoot crossing for forty miles up the river. For Calgarry, though placed by the maps in the mountains, is in reality fifty miles from their base. It is in the valley of the river, and looking from the highest point here, for many miles, as far as you can see you may observe droves of cattle and horses feeding in a district looking beautiful as a garden. This whole region, and for thirty miles to the south, is one of the choice farming tracts of the North-West. But it has no wood, except in the valley of the Bow River. Here, in fact, the wood is not above ground, but lying immediately beneath the surface in vast coal beds. I myself have picked up coal there within a few feet below the surface. It was the uppermost strata—the gravel lying over the coal. At a colliery on Belly River, to the south, they use this coal, and it hat also been taken to Fort Benton, on the Missouri, where it has been used. These coal fields throughout the north-west cannot be doubted, and must prove of immense value in the future. I have seen the Rocky Mountains at various points, but Bow River pass comes up to my idea of the mountains. Nearly one hundred miles off, the rocks are seen towering into the sky. They seem to recede at your approach; and when at length you stand at their base, they face you like an immense wall of granite. For a thousand feet in places the layer of rocks is unbroken; and Mr. Ogilvie and I in climbing up its steep, smooth front, had all that we cared to do. Capt. Palliser and Mr Hector, I may mention, climbed to the mountain at this point, and Mr. Ogilvie, more curious than I was, would not be content until he had climbed into the cave where Hector had found twenty-five skulls, (Laughter) the remains of some dead goats; but I was in hopes he would find something more—a grizzly or two—for I wanted to see how quickly he could come down. (Laughter.) The Professor could not resist telling at this stage what he knew about grizzlies.

While gathering berries one day this summer (he observed) I heard a rustling in the bushes. I was tolerably certain it was a grizzly on the move. He was going very quietly—so was I. (Laughter.) I called softly to my nephew, and pointed out to him the track of the animal—the mark of the claws being plainly stamped in the mud. My nephew was prompt. He never said a word except—which way did it go? (Laughter.) And we went one way and the bear another. (Loud laughter). There was no lack of courage, of course, either in advancing or retreating. (Renewed laughter). There is one topic I would like to say something about, and that is your exceptional climate. During the past summer I have been observing it closely, and I think I can tell you what kind of a climate you have. You speak against tracts of the country because they are sandy. But I ask if any man in this room has been told at any time that anything raised in the country was bad. I have not. I had barley and wheat that took first prize at the centennial exhibition raised on soil so bad that in any other country it could not be used for this purpose. Yet here in this wonderful land it can be raised to such perfection as to take a prize at an exhibition of all nations. It is a necessity that we understand this climate. The three factors usually going to make up climate are the distance north of the equator, the height above the sea, and the prevailing winds. I am going to put another factor in, the dryness or moisture of the atmosphere. Its dryness is one of the grand factors of this climate. Your winds normally come from the south-west. I may be astray as to the time when they come, but I am going to tell you when they ought to be here. The winds continuing more or less from the south-west during the fore part of the day the plains of the west get heated up. The wind then begins to draw from Lakes Winnipeg and Manitoba and the forest country of the north. It is drawn to the heated region, and the result is that the cool air, and warm, moist air form a junction. Hence there should be the greatest intensity in thunder storms in the afternoon or late in the night. Another thing I wish to speak about is the progress of the seasons. In the spring, as the heat increases so do the rains, until after midsummer when they decrease until, towards the end of August, they almost disappear. During the succeeding six months you have hardly any deposition at all. As soon as the warm weather comes, in April, the snow dissolves and leaves very little moisture apparent on the surface. Farmers plough and sow while the frost is yet in the ground. It cannot get out by that time, for the frost extends down seven feet not far from Winnipeg. As the frozen ground melts below, the roots receive moisture, so that during the early spring they have a great growth. I am now speaking theoretically, mind you—for practically, I know nothing about it. Being cool and moist the roots keep on growing. By-and- bye, the rains increase, the frost has all got out, the surface of the ground and the air are warmed, and the root is developing immensely below. What is the result? Ons of the most astonishing the world has ever seen. A result not merely witnessed here, but all over the country, for 1,100 miles to the north-west of where I stand, and away to the south-west, the same distance—for I am satisfied that it is warmer in the interior than here. You have slow growth in spring, succeeded by a season of wonderful energy just at the right time. You have established- the condition of things here—that near the northern margin of where any cereal will perfect its seeds, there it is the most prolific. See the advantage this country has over others in this respect. Lord Beaconsfield in alluding to this country not long ago, used two words which have rung in my ears ever since. Referring to this portion of the Dominion he said—"It is a land of illimitable possibilities." (Applause.) The words are statesmanlike; they are true—your possibilities are illimitable. (Applause.) What I said a little while ago in reference to the progress of the seasons is applicable to 300,000 square miles of the country. You have all heard of the Bow River country as a stock-raising region. This is generally attributed to its nutritious grasses, which receive the benefits of the Chinook winds, said to come from the Pacific. I deny that they do come from that quarter. I say it is against the law of the circulation of atmospheric currents In my opinion these winds come from the south-west, from Arizona and Utah, and push along the base of the Rocky Mountains to the Bow River country. It is my belief that the moisture from the Pacific ceases to be felt farther than the Cascade range. These Chinook winds coming up heated and dry from the American desert make the most wonderful change in the temperature. They tell me they will take the snow right off the ground in ten minutes, and that they sometimes cause the temperature to increase 60 degrees in two hours. When these warm winds get to the wooded country above Edmonton, down comes the snow. They then pass on through the Athabasca—where there is a wonderful deposition—and along to the lovely plains on the Peace River. Leaving a land of desolation to death, these winds come to us bringing beauty and fertility to our north-western domain. Now about the nutritious grasses of the south-west, let me say that from this side the Little Saskatchewan till you get to the second prairie steppe, and from thence to the Rocky Mountains—the same grasses prevail. The nutritious grasses are the same in one place as another, with this difference, that, as the plains are lying exposed to the sun, with little snow, the cattle can go on to them and eat all they want. The atmosphere being dry, cattle can feed out this way in the winter without being injured. Hence we have our great stock-raising plains. In other words, the whole of these south-western plains, the former haunt of buffalo, will one day be covered with cattle. Having recapitulated the wonderful farming and stock-raising capabilities of the country, and glanced at its mineral riches, the Professor went on to notice that our facilities for raising immense crops of flax seed and other articles of export were much greater than generally supposed—and closed his remarks amid loud applause. On motion of Mr. Rowan, a vote of thanks was given to the lecturer—which brought the proceedings to a close.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 3.

The Steel Rail Purchase.

The Ottawa Citizen says : Sir Charles Tupper put the case of the steel rails pretty strongly in his speech The account without interest or other incidents, stands thus :

50,000 tons at $54 60	$2,730,000
50,000 tons at $24.24	1,212,000
Total loss to the country	$1,518,000

But the purchase of Sir Charles Tupper at $24.24 was not only good compared with Mr. Mackenzie's former purchase in 1874 ; it is good as compared with the prices at present ruling, which are higher now than when he bought. At present the account reads thus :

50,000 tons at $24.24	$1,212,000
50,000 tons at £7 5s. stg.	1,764,163
Saving to the country	$ 552,167

Thus, any way the case is looked at, the purchase of Sir Charles Tupper is a most creditable thing compared with the purchase of Mr. Mackenzie.

JOHN DUNN'S REWARD.—John Dunn, of South African fame, the influential adviser King Cetewayo, and now one of the tribal chiefs, is to receive the order of St. Michael and St. George, in recognition of his services to the British Government in Zululand.

—The visit of Major de Winton to Manitoba had nothing to do with any contemplated visit by his Excellency the Governor-General and H. R. H. the Princess Louise to that Province. He made the trip simply for his own pleasure.

A Railway for Hungerford.

The residents of the Township of Hungerford have always expressed their willingness to aid a line of Railway to that Township. The Township once expressed a willingness to aid a road by the Moira valley route by a liberal bonus. That scheme was unfortunately destroyed by the construction of the Grand Junction and North Hastings Railways.

The scheme for a road from Madoc to Kingston, passing through the Township of Hungerford, also received the liberal support of the Township, but that project also fell through, and it seemed that the Township was never to have an outlet to the front by rail, which was alone wanted to make it prosperous. But a practical scheme is now before the people, by which the desired railway facilities can be procured at a small outlay of money, in comparison with the benefit to be received.

The giving of a bonus of $10,000 by the Township, supplemented by other assistance, which the Township aid is required to secure, will ensure the Township a Railway from the village of Tweed to some point on the line of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway.

This route, although not the best that could be desired in the interests of, the Township, has the advantage of delivering the produce it is expected to carry to the nearest point of distribution at Belleville. This does not necessitate the sale of their grain at Belleville, for with an elevator at Tweed, which is assured should the road be built, the farmers of Hungerford will be in a position to ship their grain direct to any foreign market that offers the best advantage for shipment. This statement is borne out by the fact that rye is being shipped direct from the Village of Campbellford to the seaboard. To provide for the shipment of grain and other produce raised in the southern part of the Township, the By-law has wisely stipulated that a siding and platform be built at the junction with the County road running north from the Village of Thomasburg." This point is less than four miles from that village, and will undoubtedly be the shipping point for the southern part of the Township, as it is nothing new on the line of the Grand Junction Railway to see cars left on such sidings and loaded from farmers' waggons. To that point almost any farmer, even from the most southerly limits of the Township, can deliver two loads of grain in a day.

To enable the farmers to the east of Stoco Lake to reach the depot, it is proposed to build a floating bridge along the south side of the lake to Derkin's landing. This would shorten the distance to be travelled from Stoco to the depot over four miles, and already several hundred dollars have been guaranteed by private subscriptions for the purpose. That such a bridge is both practical and cheap can be demonstrated by a visit to the Bobcaygeon region, where a structure of that description of over three miles in length, or more than double the length of the proposed bridge, is in constant use, and answers effectually the purpose for which it was constructed.

To the farmers in the most easterly part of the Township, who use Napanee as their market town, the road would be of little use ; but they should remember that the promoters of the present scheme as strenuously supported the project to build a road through the Township to Kingston, and that the liberal grants they have always received and which will continually be required on their road, have at all times been supported by the promoters of the present scheme, and we much mistake the enterprise of the residents of the far east part of the Township if they give the By-law their opposition.

The sum asked for is less than $1.44 on the thousand dollar assessment,—a sum so insignificant in comparison to the advantage to be derived by the Township from the building of the road, that we would be surprised at any determined opposition to the scheme in the Township, particularly as its interests have been so well guarded in the By law that the bonus can only be granted upon the completion of the road—thus securing the ratepayers against the payment of their money, as has been done in other instances, as the work progresses, or before the road is completed.

The Township can raise as much grain to the acre, if not more, than front townships, yet the price of land in Hungerford is much lower than in the southern townships, simply because front townships enjoy the advantage of nearness to markets. This difficulty would be overcome by the building of the road, and a corresponding increase of the value of all farms lying within at least ten miles of the road would be the result—an increase that would alone amply repay any farmer in the Township for the small amount he would have to pay towards the bonus.

We therefore urge all citizens of Hungerford who wish to secure the advantages above set forth, to give a hearty support to the By-law, and to set themselves to work to assist in securing its passage.

THE LATE MR. ROEBUCK.—The death of Mr. John Arthur Roebuck, M.P. for Sheffield, is announced. He was born in Madras in 1802. His early years were spent in Canada. He went to England in 1824, and after studying law was called to the Bar in 1831. He represented Bath in the House of Commons from 1832 to 1837, and afterwards from 1841 to 1847. In 1849 he was elected for Sheffield, which he represented till 1868, when he was defeated. He again returned for the same constituency at the general election of 1874. For some time subsequent to 1835 Mr. Roebuck represented the House of Assembly of Lower Canada as the result of the political difficulty then existing. Mr. Roebuck was prominent in political life in England. He was a vigorous speaker and was one of those who handled his opponents "without gloves." He was long known by the name of "Tear'em."

—The Rev. Mr. Bray's Church, Montreal, was on Saturday connected by telephone with the Dominion Telegraph Company's office in that city. A number of newspaper men heard the sermon preached by Mr. Bray half a mile away.

VANDERBILT INTERVIEWED.

NEWHAVEN, Ct., Dec. 3.—Full returns show that the Democrats made a clean sweep in the city and town elections, defeating the present Republican majority in the Board of Selectmen—Court of Common Council now a tie, shows a democratic majority and gain of 8.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 3.—Hon. Samuel Reber, of St. Louis, was found dead in bed. Cause, congestive chills. He was the husband of the daughter of Gen. Sherman's sister.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., Dec. 3.—Mayor Powers, Republican, was elected by 1,300 majority, majority last year 35. In Holyoke the Democrats elected a mayor and carried the majority of the city wards.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 3.—D. C. Potter, charged with seven murders, who, with four other prisoners escaped from the Knox County jail recently, were recaptured in the mountains in North Carolina.

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 3.—Chas. C. Bigelow yesterday was held in $1,000 bail charged with distributing obscene circulars among the pupils of public schools.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The Herald's Berlin says that Emperior William received a despatch announcing fresh attempt upon the life of the Czar at Moscow. An infernal machine was exploded on his passage, but it did not burst until his majesty had passed.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—At a public meeting yesterday in favor of the rights of the Ponca Indians, a letter from Schurz was read recommending that the Boston people found an educational institution for Indian children.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 3.—It is understood that the Louisville, Nashville and Great Southern Railway has secured a controlling interest in the Mobile and Montgomery Railway, as well as other southern lines. It is said that eastern capitalists are figuring for a great southern railway combination trunk line after the Wabash style.

FORT MEADE, Dak., Dec. 3.—At Reno Court Martial yesterday, the testimony of General Sturgis, commander of the Post whose only son was killed with Custer, intimated that the accused had insulted his daughter.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 3.—A caucus of the Republican members of the Legislature of all classes was held yesterday to see if a union could not be made so as to hold the balance of power. The majority of negroes present, who are Readjusters, refused to be bound, and declared they would act with the Readjusters. This gives the latter control of the Legislature and elects Mahone to the Senate.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Washington specials :

The Herald says it is quite surprising to find what a number of former silver men now declare themselves ready to vote for a bill stopping the coinage of the silver dollar.

The Tribune says that there is a strong element among the Dem ocrats in favor of persuading Seymour to accept the Presidential nomination.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3rd.—Rollins Sanford, formerly a prominent lawyer in this city, died yesterday, aged 64.

The American Union Telegraph Co. has secured possession of the lines of the old Great Western Telegraph Co., comprising 1,500 miles of wire and 300 miles of poles, in the western States. The Western Union Telegraph Cc. has reduced the rates from New York to the leading western cities.

Considerable excitement was caused in Brooklyn yesterday by the bursting of a 48 inch water main, while the contractors were at work on it. A dozen streets were flooded and much damage done.

The Tribune says that the December advance in coal announced by several companies has not yet been made by all. Up to a recent date there was great activity in trade, with large sales to western buyers; but the demand is now said to have fallen off somewhat. An effort will probably be made to unite the companies in restricting the production this winter, but it is doubted if this will be successful.

The Herald has a long interview with Vanderbilt, in which he states that the conduct of Erie stock is all the work of stock jobbers. Vanderbilt said he did not own, and has not owned, a share of Erie, directly or indirectly. He said that Central stock was the best in the world, and that he sold some because he had too much, and because he knew the western roads were seeking another outlet to the seaboard, which would have been damaging to the interests of the Central.

SHOE AT FORT WALSH.—An Ottawa telegram says : "Yesterday the Department of the Interior received a telegram from the officer in command at Fort Walsh, North-West Territory, announcing that Sergt. M. Grayburn had been shot, and that his body had been found eight miles from the Fort. Particulars of his death have not yet been received, but will likely be sent by mail and arrive in the course of a week or so. It is not known whether he met his death by accident or foul play. Sergt. Grayburn left Ottawa last May, and since his arrival at the Fort has been known as an efficient officer, and was well thought of by his comrades. The unfortunate young man's parents reside in this city, and have the deepest sympathy of their friends in their sad bereavement.

WE carry an immense stock of these Goods, and have in our employ over fifty hands manufacturing, &c., more than ever kept by any one house in Central Ontario. The large quantities of these Goods we are thus enabled to get through, puts us in a position to buy them cheaper than any other house in the City.

AN ADVANTAGE

we give to our customers over importing houses and houses stocking themselves early in the season, in this : We buy moderately at the opening of the season, and put ourselves in the position to now take advantage of late and depressed markets to buy many lines of goods at very great discounts from what they can be bought early in the season.

We have lately taken this advantage in securing many cheap lines in Dress Goods.

Silks, Velvets, Satins, Flannels, Linens, Winceys, Handk'fs, Hosiery, Millinery, Feathers, Ribbons, &c.

TO THE LADIES.

We ask an impartial inspection of these Goods, when it will be found we are now offering the cheapest lot of goods ever shown in the City.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 3.

City and Vicinity.

THE CELLS.—Four tramps slept last night in the cells. No arrests were made.

BARLEY.—Mr. Squier shipped from Wellington on Monday and yesterday, 23 cars, containing 11,500 bushels of No. 1 bright barley, for Chicago direct.

SNOW.—The snow which the "probabilities" foretold for this morning arrived on time, the ground being covered with the beautiful to adopth of about two inches this morning.

BAD GOING.—The going to-day was anything but good, there being too little snow for runners and too much for wheels. Those who turned out their sleighs, wished that they had brought wheeled vehicles instead, whilst the drivers of conveyances on wheels thought runners would have been more serviceable to-day.

THE POET GAY.—This brilliant son of song has about completed arrangements for settling down in the City of the Bay until some future day. He states that his muse is in fine class working order, and expects to manufacture some verse so burning in its intensity that the temple of the muses will be in danger of destruction by fire.

ALONG THE LINE.—Cord wood is being piled along the line of the North Hastings Railway for shipment, as also a quantity of slab wood. Wood dealers from Belleville have been out along the line paying cash for all the wood offered, thus making a home market for wood, from which the profit would have been used up in teaming had the same wood been drawn to this city by horses.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL ENSIGN is a first class illustrated paper. Edited and published by Mr. C. Barker, King Street, Bowmanville. The specimen copies now on our table justify us in heartily recommending it to our Sunday School friends. Send for a specimen copy before ordering elsewhere. A gratis supplement, containing Notes on the International Lessons, is given with each number.

GRIP'S COMIC ALMANAC.—Messrs. Bengough Bros., publishers of "Grip," intend issuing a comic almanac for 1880. From the specimen page sent us, we have no doubt it will fully sustain the reputation of Canada's great humorist. With the exception of 12 sketches, representing political events of 1879, the illustrations and articles will be non-political. In addition to Grip's own contributions there are a number from American humorists. The first edition will br 40,000. It will make a capital medium for advertisers. The rates are for one page $20, half page $10, quarter page $5. All advertisements must be sent in by Dec. 10th at latest. With the resources at the command of the publishers, there is no doubt but that "Grip's Comic Almanac" will be a welcome visitor to every fireside in the country.

SHUT DOWN.—Messrs. Flint & Holton's saw mill shut down for the winter yesterday.

FIFTEENTH BATTALION.—The annual prize meeting of this battalion will be held on Friday next, commencing at 10 a. m over the ranges here.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Jas. F. McCuaig, M.P., is in town to-day. Hon. Billa Flint has returned from a two weeks' journey in the northern townships.

INSTITUTION FOR THE DEAF AND DUMB.—On the first of December there were two hundred and thirty two (232) pupils in the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb at Belleville, an increase of seventeen (17) over the number in residence on the first of December, 1878.

COMING.—Messrs. Anthony & Ellis' "Uncle Tom's Cabin Combination" is to produce the above well known moral drama in this city on the 11th inst. The company, which is said to be the best of the kind ever organized, is meeting with great success in Montreal.

GRAND ENTERTAINMENT.—It will be seen by special notice that a grand entertainment in aid of the fund of St. George's Church, will be held in the Workingmen's Hall, Robertson Block, on Thursday evening, Dec. 4th. The programme is a very choice one, including some excellent vocal and instrumental music and an address on the North-West territories by Prof. Macoun. We hope there will be a large attendance.

DISTINGUISHED ARRIVAL.—Mr. Charles Counter, of Kingston, known to the world as "Canada's own orator," arrived in town last night. He purposes, we believe, delivering some of his masterly lectures, which compositions are said to be to those of other authors who write in prose, what the poet Gay's poems are as compared with those of other poets. Belleville is honored in having two such literary giants within her borders at one and the same time.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The Institute is now thoroughly domiciled in its new premises, with gymnasium in "full swing," chess room open and library and reading room nicely arranged. The Rev. Mr. Schuster requests that those who have already joined and those who intend to join the classes in French and German will meet to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon at 4 o'clock in the class rooms of the Institute. There is no charge for tuition in these branches, and the privilege of learning those desirable languages under so competent an instructor ought to be largely taken advantage of.

ANNUAL BALL.—The first annual ball of the 49th Battalion was held last night very successfully in the City Hall. The decorations were elaborate and artistic, the attendance was large and all the arrangements were carried out efficiently. Music was furnished by the Oddfellows' orchestra, to the strains of which dancing was commenced at an early hour in the evening and continued until the morning hours were well advanced. There was a short intermission, during which supper was furnished at the Commercial Hotel by host McCammon, who prepared an excellent spread. The managers of the ball are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

CHRISTIAN CONFERENCE.—There is to be a Christian Conference in Toronto on the 10th, 11th and 12th of this month, to be similar to the one held here last year in which Dr. MacKay, of Hull, England, took such an active part. This Conference is for the purpose of considering what the Bible teaches respecting the Lord's coming. The inspirations of the Scriptures and Bible study will also be discussed. The Conference will be decidedly pre-milennial. Vice-Chancellor Blake will preside. The Revs' Geo. Muller, of Bristol, Eng., and W. J. Goodman, of Jamestown, N. J., will be the principal speakers. Ministers of Toronto are greatly interested in this Conference and have appointed a Committee to wait upon the promoters.

MURCHISON CLUB.—At the Murchison Club on the 26th ult. Dr. James read a paper on Surface Geology—more particularly in relation to this county. Noting the fact of the immense number and variety of boulder and rocks scattered so profusely all over the country, he ascribed their presence to the action of glaciers in ancient times when the whole country in the region of the St. Lawrence was apparently overlaid with an immense sheet of ice. In saying this he was merely expressing the opinion at which scientific men had generally arrived and which seemed to him to meet most of the facts observed. He also expressed his opinion that the cause of the general direction of the striation of the rocks in this neighborhood being towards the west, was due to the rotation of the earth on its axis having a tendency to cause the ice to move in that direction. Mr. Smith could not agree with Doctor James in regard to the movement of the ice, although he agreed with him in the glacial theory, as on the eastern coasts the striation had a more easterly trend, he thought that the greatest amount of precipitation of moisture was north of Montreal or Quebec, from which point in the form of ice it spread outwards. The President, Prof. Bell, while accepting the glacial theory on some points did not think that glaciers had the power of denudation ascribed to them, but merely moved that which was already disintegrated by the action of the atmosphere, or other causes. Mr. Ackerill exhibited some beautiful slides of salts, &c., in his microscope with polariscope attached, showing angles of crystallization. These were very interesting, both for their brilliant coloring and for showing the manner in which crystals are formed.

Marine Notes.

A telegram from Oswego says:—Daniel S. Killen, seaman, was killed by falling from the cross trees of the Canadian schooner J. Bentley, 85 feet.

From Cornwall.

The Cornwall Canal Closed.

CORNWALL, Dec. 3.—The Cornwall Canal closed to-day. Gangs of men are busily engaged in stripping the locks and making ready for winter.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

SANDY HOOKS, Dec. 3.—The str. Circassia, which left yesterday for Glasgow is off here towing in the overdue steamer California, which left London Nov. 10.

WASHINGTON, Dec., 3rd.—Gen. Hatch telegraphs from Los Pinos that the Indians continue to come in and seem inclined to testify more freely.

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 3.—A large meeting was held last evening to express sympathy with the Irish people. The Mayor presided. The speakers included the Congregational and Methodist ministers. A resolution was adopted requesting Congressmen to urge the British Government for reforms in Ireland, as the British Government was urging reforms in Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 3.—On recommendation of the British ambassador, Rustem Pasha has been appointed Governor of Erzeroum.

MOSCOW, Dec. 3.—The explosives which destroyed the Imperial baggage train are stated to have been placed on Monday evening under the rail at a point over which the Imperial train would pass just before entering Moscow railway station.

The CZAR arrived safely at 11 on Monday night. An explosion occurred on the passage of the baggage train half an hour afterwards. The house from whence the mine was exploded has been discovered, and search is making for the perpetrators. The CZAR will arrive at St. Petersburg to-morrow.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Times says concerning the appointment of SIR A. T. GALT as Canadian Minister resident in London, that it cannot fail to strengthen the hands of the Foreign Secretary in connection with the fishery question negotiations.

The Times says further that it concerns Canada, and that the embargo upon the United States cattle imported into England should be removed, as its continuance interferes with the profits of the Dominion railway shippers and middlemen. Cattle should be permitted to pass after an effective inspection.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., NOV. 3.—A fair was held last night at the Presbyterian church, corner of Prescott & Oxford streets, to defray expenses on new organ. Early this morning the decorations caught fire, and everything combustible, including the new organ, was destroyed. Loss $50,000; fully insured.

NEW BEDFORD, Ms., Dec. 3.—The Rounseville Mills in Rochester are burned. Loss $9,000.

Food as well as Medicine.

Most people think as they swallow Cod Liver Oil they are taking medicine. In one sense they are, for anything that tones, heals and invigorates the system is medicine. But Cod Liver Oil is the finest food as well as medicine. It not only tones and heals, but nourishes. It will save the consumptive, restore the dyspeptic, and build up the baby weakling, when all other remedies fail, and combined with the HYPOPHOSPHITES as found in SCOTT'S EMULSION, it is a most wonderful as well as agreeable remedy.

It is said that some of the alkaloids which enter into the combination of Fellows' Hypophosphites, are extracted from trees which attain to a great age, and that this fact suggested to Mr. Fellows the idea of their employment. Whether the success of the preparation is due to this, we are not prepared to say, but the idea is a good one.

Capt. D. Foster, of Port Burwell, Ont., writes:—"I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from your ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. Having been troubled with an occasional cough, at times very severe, during years past, I have found your BALSAM to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results."

The man who helps to circulate a piece of gossip is as bad as the one who originated it. To put your foot into a tar barrel and then go round shaking hands with everybody is what some people like to do.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk easterly to north-easterly winds, cloudy weather, with light snow.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—Indications: For lower lakes, colder, cloudy with snow follow ed over upper lakes, warmer, cloudy middle States.

SANFORD'S
RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

TESTIMONIALS FROM RELIABLE DRUGGISTS.

We believe SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE to be a genuine meritorious preparation. Some of our customers are extravagant in their praise of it.
D. DEFORD & CO.
OTTAWA, KANSAS.

We have had an extensive sale and no complaints. It is the best selling thing in our store.
WINCH & STYLES.
BOULDER, COLORADO.

We sell more of the RADICAL CURE than all other catarrh remedies put together, and I have yet to hear of a case that it has not given the most complete satisfaction.
S. W. GIFFORD.
OSKALOOSA, IA.

YOUR SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE sells better and gives more satisfaction than any similar preparation we have ever handled.
C. WAKEFIELD & CO.
BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

Having sold SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE for over a year, I can state that it gives better satisfaction than any similar preparation I have ever sold.
A. H. ROBERTS.
MT. PLEASANT, IA.

We have sold SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE for several years, and can say candidly that we never sold a similar preparation that gave so much universal satisfaction. We have to learn the first complaint yet.
S. D. BALDWIN & CO.
WASHINGTON, IND.

I have had an extensive sale of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, and constantly believe it gives better results than any medicine before the public, and for children especially

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

WESLEY BULLEN,

CONTINUED.

'I mean what I say, as I always do,' broke in the other, impatiently. 'When I name that sum as the produce of the enterprise I have concocted I believe I am within the mark.'

'Why, you don't go to think of cracking the crib in Threadneedle Street?' said White.

'The Bank of England! No; that is too high flying game. But the quarry in my eye is a bank.'

'No go,' responded White. 'The London cribs are too well guarded.'

'This is not a London crib,' said M'Koul quietly.

'In the Provinces?'

'In Glasgow,' was the answer.

'Ay, that does look more promising. But have you taken stock of probabilities?'

'I have studied the business closely, and with Scoltcock's help with the keys, and you two as aids, I count the plank as good as won. Look here. The building stands almost by itself, and at night almost nobody goes near it, so we will have plenty of time to work. The bank—the Paisley Union it is called—has connection with a large bank in Edinburgh, and every Saturday this Edinburgh bank sends through with the mail coach an iron box filled with money—notes and gold and silver to almost any amount. When the coach arrives in Glasgow the box is taken to the bank and lodged in the safe till Monday morning. Now the contents of that box is the game for us.'

'The eyes of his listeners gleamed as M'Koul made this revelation. It was a dazzling vision of booty such as they had never dreamed of, and the prospect of realising it was enchanting.

'But I say Jim,' said Huffey White, after a short pause, 'couldn't we save half the trouble by waiting for the mail at a lonely part of the road? or, better still, couldn't we go as passengers, and at a fitting spot knock the driver and guard on the head, and secure the box?'

'That cock is too dangerous to fight, Huffey my buck. We might succeed and we might not—most likely we might; while the other plan is infinitely safer, and almost certain. Now, I take it, in a game of this size we should risk failure as little as possible. It's not a stake to be played for every day, and its worth a deal of care and patience.'

'It's a brilliant idea,' said Huffy, admiringly.

'A gem of the first water,' observed French, in the same tone.

'Blowed if its size don't take away my breath,' gurgled the fat Scoltcock.

'The question is—Are we all game for it?' said M'Koul.

'I'm your man,' cried Huffey in a moment.

'And, of course, I'll make a third,' put in French, with alacrity.

'Will anything be wanted in my way?' called out Scoltcock.

'Of course something will be wanted in your way, and a good deal, too. In fact, everything will depend on your skill and cleverness in supplying us with skeleton-keys and pick-locks.'

'Trust me for that,' responded the locksmith rubbing his hands. 'Band locks are mazzy in the get-up, but I know the trick of most of them; and if I don't suit your book my name aint Bill Scoltcock.'

'Then it's a bargain all round?' exclaimed M'Koul.

'Shall we place hands and pledge it?'

'We shall,' was unanimously returned.

M'Koul placed his right hand palm down on the centre of the table, and said in a keep deliberate voice.—

'True as steel.'

Huffey White placed his hand on the top of M'Koul's and uttered, the same words.

Next followed French, and lastly Scoltcock, and the four conspirators were committed to the enterprise.

Each next filled his mug to the brim, and, joining hands, they drank success to the undertaking, and shortly after they rose and separated, agreeing to meet in the same place on the second night following, to concert measures for the immediate prosecution of their dark and dangerous scheme.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

NOTHING can exceed the folly and stupidity of those who submit to the pangs of the various forms and complications of rheumatism and gout, by which they are tortured and disabled, when they can, by one or two applications of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, obtain instantaneous and permanent relief. Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

DR. GILES,
Trial bottles 25 cents.

IN THE HARD DRY COUGH OF CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, with its difficult expectoration and labored breathing, the demulcent properties of Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Lacto-Phosphate of Lime manifests itself in its healing and soothing effect upon the irritated mucous membranes of the Bronchial passages; the cough quickly yields, the breathing is eased, while Nature thus aided reasserts herself, and where once gaunt Consumption stared the victim in the face, now Hope beckons on to life and health.

Prepared solely by J. H. ROBINSON, Pharmaceutical Chemist, St. John, N. B., and for sale by all Druggists and General Dealers. Price $1.00 per bottle; six bottles for $5.00.

The Greatest Remedy Ever Discovered.

Quinine is considered the greatest remedy known, but we believe it has its equal, if not its peer, in the product of Cod Fish. Nothing has been discovered to equal Cod Liver Oil as a builder and sustainer of the body in Consumption and all Wasting Disorders; but its usefulness is impaired by its nauseous properties. IN SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL this objection is entirely overcome, and combined with the HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA it is the most valuable remedy ever discovered.

The Dutch.

Holland, the home of the Dutch, is surrounded with dikes, to prevent the overflow of the land by the waters of the sea. Every Dutchman whose land borders on the sea, makes it his business to walk every morning along the edges of the dikes, and watch whether, during the night any water has found its way by any chance through them. If there be even the smallest trickling of water perceptible, he drops everything else and repairs the difficulty. Left until to-morrow, the little hole may be widened, until a rude tide forces its way through the embankments and endangers his homestead and family. This prudence is natural to and one would suppose that equal precautions should be taken to prevent the access of diseases to the human system. But every man thinks, "every other one is mortal but himself," and so neglects the plainest rules for self preservation. A box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS kept in the house, and their application upon the first appearance of sickness, will prevent the inroads of disease. They cleanse the system from malaria of disease, stop the gaps, as the Dutchmen in his dikes, and renders all safe again.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

PURE COD LIVER OIL

WITH

HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

This preparation combines the two best remedies ever discovered for Consumption, Colds and Chronic Coughs, Scrofula, Rheumatism and Diseases of the Blood, General Debility, and all Wasting Diseases of Children. It not only contains the well known and highly esteemed virtues of Cod Liver Oil in a form that is perfectly tasteless and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, but in addition, the wonderful tonic and life-giving properties of the Hypophosphites, so incorporated that the remedial powers of both are largely increased. Physicians universally acknowledge the vastly superior virtues of this combined Cod Liver Oil and Lime in all the above diseases. It is not only better tolerated, but much more readily assimilated by the system than plain Cod Liver Oil, and is better agent in enriching and purifying the blood, allaying the irritation of the throat and lungs, restoring the impaired functions and giving strength and vigor to the body. It is invariably palatable to the taste, never separates, deposits or spoils. He sure and ask for Scott's Emulsion. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle.

JOHNSTON'S

is now extensively used in British and Continental Institutions, Hospitals and Asylums, and is prescribed by the medical faculty wherever it has been introduced.

Its adaptability is general to the invalid, the convalescent and the vigorous. To children it secures a strong muscular development, and for maternal nursing, imperfect mastication, athletic training, physical education, indigestion or mental overstrain, it at once takes a position of known food.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND LEADING GROCERS.

Price 35c, 65c and $1.

Manufactured by JOHN L. JOHNSON.
dly Montreal, Canada.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

WE invite the attention of every person wanting to purchase Dry Goods to the following "FACTS, which we think will be of service to them in aiding them to decide where to make their purchases :

1st. Our Stock is the Largest in the City.

2nd. Our British Goods are Imported direct, and are selected in that market by a member of the firm.

3rd. We claim to have the Choicest and most attractive Stock of Dry Goods between Toronto and Montreal.

4th. We challenge a comparison of the qualities and prices of our goods with those of any other Dry Goods House in the country, believing "a comparison" to be the most convincing argument that could be used in our favor.

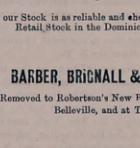

REMEMBER, WE HAVE THE

Most Convenient and Best Lighted Shop in the City,

And our Stock is as reliable and cheap as any Retail Stock in the Dominion.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia. Bronchitis. Loss of Appetite. Nervous Prostration. Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER Co., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Atonic or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epileptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this ; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible : I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR ;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name ; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT, Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are being put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the connection therefore placed us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

was busy striking a light. One of the lamps being lit, revealing to them the figure of the Bank porter, and from his motions it became evident that he had come in search of something which had been forgotten.

The man was utterly unconscious of the presence of the robbers in the strong room, but should he notice the door ajar his discovery by him was inevitable, and in that case his doom was sealed, for they had made up their minds to murder him, in order to escape detection.

All unconscious of the terrible danger in which he was, the porter sought about in the telling room till he found the umbrella for which he had come, and, fortunately for his own safety, his eye did not light on the open door of the strong room, for he put out the light immediately, and departed in the way he had come.

Not a word was spoken or a motion made by the three men till the echo of the sounds he made in closing the door had died away in the silent building. Then Huffay White drew a long breath and whispered—

'By Jove, that was a near shave.'

'It was lucky for him as well as for us that he came no further,' muttered M'Koul.

Re-lighting their lantern, they proceeded with their work as coolly as before, and did not cease operations till the first flush of dawn appeared in the east, and warned them to be gone.

After an immense deal of labor and pains an exact pattern of the lock was obtained, and these, with the skeleton keys, were despatched by carrier to Scoltcock, that his might make on the latter the necessary alterations. This took some little time to effect, and they waited impatiently for the return of the all important parcel. On Saturday afternoon, they received it in the vicinity of the Black Bull Inn to watch the arrival of the mail coach from Edinburgh, and observe the transfer of the iron cash-box to the bank in Jocum Street. The Bank porter they saw was invariably in waiting, and as soon as the mail drew up the box was handed to him by the guard, and away he trudged with it on his shoulder. Sometimes it was very heavy, indicating that the sum was extremely large. At other times it was comparatively light, as could be seen by the ease with which he bore it along.

'Why need we wait for keys from Scoltcock?' said Huffey White, with an oath. 'Can't we screw the fellow as Deghie was served, and bolt with the chest?'

'No,' answered M'Koul, very decidedly. 'And that for two reasons. First, the box is heavy and would hamper our flight; and, secondly, the prize would be less than I aim at. We shall clean out the safes as well as the box. Patience, man, patience. Now that we have got so far, don't let us spoil the game by foolish haste.'

White's sanguine suggestion being thus overruled, their patience was rewarded about the middle of the following week by the arrival of the parcel from Scoltcock. So far as they could judge, the keys and the patterns they had made agreed to perfect exactness. And that very night they entered the Bank to test their capabilities of opening the safes.

Their excitement was extreme, for the time had come when it would be seen whether their long labors were to be crowned with success. Breathlessly White and French, stood, one on either side of M'Koul, as he inserted the first key.

It opened the safe with perfect ease, and there, before their reeling eyes, were glittering piles of silver and gold, such as they had but to secure by the stretching forth of their hands. The other safes were as easily penetrated, and more sums of money were revealed to their enraptured gaze.

Less accomplished robbers would have been unable to withstand the temptation of securing what was now within their reach and decamp at once, but M'Koul was not to be diverted from his grand purpose of obtaining the contents of the iron box which came from Edinburgh. He closed the safes again without touching a single coin, and intimated in a whisper that they would consummate their work on the night of the coming Saturday. His associates silently acquiesed, and they quitted the Bank, not to enter it again till the hour of final action had come.

The two days which intervened made a period of irksome waiting, the tedium of which was somewhat allayed by the diversion they obtained at the Green. It was the Fair week—and the whole of Glasgow was given over to festivity. The Green was covered with shows of all kinds, booths and stands were erected in scores, and mirth and amusement were being indulged in to the full by the holiday-making citizens. Amid the noisy throng moved M'Koul and his associates, viewing with interest the animated scene, and relieved by it in some measure from their consuming impatience.

At length the eventful Saturday came—Saturday the thirteenth of July—and, punctual to time, the mail coach drove up at the door of the Black Bull. From their post of observation at the other side of the street, the three confederates witnessed the descent of the iron box, and saw with unbounded satisfaction that it was extremely heavy.

The porter having it, carried it laboriously along the street, and the robbers following at a distance, saw him enter the Bank with his burden.

'To-night shall witness the success of our glorious enterprise,' said M'Koul in half-suppressed tones of triumph.

His companion responded with an emphatic assent, and turning down into Argyle Street, they proceeded westward to their lodging near the Broomielaw.

The Dutch.

Holland, the home of the Dutch, is surrounded with dikes, to prevent the overflow of the land by the waters of the sea. Every Dutchman whose land borders on the sea, makes it his business to walk every morning along the edges of the dikes, and watch whether, during the night any water has found its way by any chance through them. If there be even the smallest trickling of water perceptible, he drops everything else and repairs the difficulty. Left until to-morrow, the little hole may be widened, until a rude tide forces its way through the embankment and endangers his homestead and family. This prudence is natural and one would suppose that equal precautions should be taken to prevent the access of diseases to the human system. But every man thinks, "every other one is mortal but himself," and so neglects the plainest rules for self preservation. A box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS kept in the house, and their application upon the first appearance of sickness, will prevent the inroads of disease. They cleanse the system from malaria of disease, stop the gaps, as the Dutchmen in his dikes, and renders all safe again.

IN THE HARD DRY COUGH OF CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, with its difficult expectoration and labored breathing, a decidedly beneficial property of Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Lacto Phosphate of Lime manifests itself in its healing action. Hence its effect upon the irritated mucous membranes of the Bronchial passages; the cough quickly yields, the breathing is eased, while Nature thus aided reasserts herself, and where once gaunt Consumption stared the victim in the face, now Hope beckons on to life and health.

EMMELINE.

CAAPTER VIII.

THE MINISTER MAKES INQUIRIES ABOUT EMMELINE—DR. LORIMER'S STORY.

"Where now, my sober brother! How can you suppose that anyone or anything is so absurd and comical! Didn't I enjoy that group! Any more of your members to visit?"

"Do be in earnest, Charles. Their presence was meant as sympathy."

"Sympathy is a good thing, Fred; but what made them run away if it was sympathy that brought them there?"

"I suppose they were scared at our presence; but about this affair of the girl's. I see Andrew will leave no stone unturned to find her; he is a fine young man, and deserves preferment to some more lucrative situation."

"Oh, you want me to do something for his advancy, do you! Well, I confess to liking him."

"Did you see how high he carried his head when he was called Mr. Dick; his cap was in danger of falling off, eh, Fred!" And the merry merchant nudged the minister in the side and laughed heartily.

"Are you in earnest, Charlie! I begin to wonder how you got on in business if you are always bent on fun."

"Ah, that is a different thing, but it is so strange to come to Rollo for a little quiet and relaxation from business, and be startled the very first night by a runaway girl, the portraits in the locket, and lastly, our exploit in Dick's—is it you call them! I was not a bad toast of the old lady's."

"Upon my word I see I must make enquiries alone."

"No, by Jove, I cannot afford that. I will be as sober as a judge. Where to next!"

"To Dr. Lorimer's, for I feel convinced from the share he has had in this business from the beginning, that he is likely to throw some light on the parentage of Emmeline."

"That is if he is willing."

"What can hinder him from so doing; but here we are at his house." And the door being open, the minister asked if the doctor was at home.

"No, sir," said the tidy maid with the jaunty little cap, "but Mrs. Lorimer is," and she ushered them into the sitting room, where sat the lady of the house. She rose and bowed with her usual dignity.

"Glad to see you sir," she said to the minister, "you have been a stranger for some time."

"Not long since I was was he, e either—somewhere about a fortnight, I think. Allow me to introduce you to my brother. Indeed I may add, my only one."

Her piercing eyes were fixed on the stranger here with a questioning glance, and seemingly satisfied with the scrutiny—"I presume," said she, "you are Mr. Steven, the extensive draper in Glasgow, I have heard our friend here, the minister, had a brother in such a business there."

"Well, madam, I am a draper in Glasgow; but as to having an extensive business, that is quite another thing. I have no objections to making it larger."

Rat-tat-tat-tit-ti-tat-tat-tat at the outer door, drew their attention.

"That is the doctor," said Mrs. Lorimer, "he gives such a vulgar knock. Ah, my doctor," said she, as he entered the room, "I am quite shocked at the noise you make at the door."

"Well, my dear, leave it open, and you will not be annoyed."

"Pon my word, this is a pleasure to find you here—and this gentleman will be your brother. You see I can introduce myself," and rubbing his hands, he laughed heartily.

"You fancy we have a resemblance that you took me for his brother!"

"Twas not the resemblance," replied the doctor, "but I happened to hear the minister had a brother in town, so judged, you see, rightly.

"If you pick up your patient's complaints as you have my identity, the people of Rollo must rejoice in speedy recovery from illness."

"Ah, you flatter," said the doctor, and turning to his wife, he asked if they could have luncheon. She answered in the affirmative, and begging to be excused for a minute the stately dame retired.

"Anything new, doctor!" said the clerical gentleman,

"Nothing worth telling" and turning to the city merchant he asked if he had brought any news from Glasgow.

"Nothing that would interest you, but you have heard something in Rollo which interests my brother and myself."

"What can it be that I have not heard!" and the doctor looked interested.

"Oh, the sudden disappearance of Emmeline Dick," said the minister. "You have heard of Miss Dick I presume."

"Yes, professionally, only professionally.

"The way I mentioned the affair," said Charles. "It is so romantic, and your name being mixed up in it."

"My name," vociferated the doctor, 'have they dared to impute my name to the girl's disappearing!"

"The fact is," said the minister, "not that it has been imputed to you but the fact of having placed her in Mrs. Dick's care, and you are likely to throw some light on her parentage."

The man of medicine thought for a minute, with clouded brow, and turning to the rev. gentleman, he asked him to tell him all he knew of the matter, and was told of their meeting Andrew, visiting the house, and the state of distress Mrs. Dick was in.

"Poor girl, poor girl," said the doctor and he coughed once or twice and said—"I have a very great interest in Emmeline, and will tell what I know. Well, about eleven years ago, I began practice in Glasgow, being married a few months before that, in the same city, to her ladyship there (for Mrs. Lorimer had just entered the room). My practice was limited to a very few patients. Being a stranger and young, people seemed to doubt my skill. Our small stock of money was drawing to a close, and I was getting concerned about our future, when one day in November a gentleman called and told me he had been recommended to me as a very clever doctor in midwifery, and said if I could keep a secret he would pay me well. Of course I was only too glad to accept his offer. He then told me briefly that he wished up-putting for his wife. She was a lady, he said, but would prefer home-like apartments till her accouchment was over. He said their parents were at enmity, that they had been privately married, and hence this secrecy. Telling him to call next day and I would be able to fix some place for his wife, he retired, leaving me something handsome to defray expenses. Going to Mrs. Lorimer to find if she could think of any quiet house, she reminded me of Mrs. Renfrew—that was Mrs. Dick's eldest daughter."

"You did not need to be reminded of her—you thought of her at once," chimed in his wife.

"Well, well, be that as it may. I went to Mrs. Renfrew, who had been confined about three months before that time. Her husband was a seafaring man. She was not minding about the strangers, she said. She would have taken them had they been poor, honest folk. She at length assented. The lady was taken to Mrs. Renfrew's on the first of December. Emmeline was born on the second, and was left in the care of Mrs. Renfrew, who died when her foster child was three months old, and on her deathbed she asked her mother to take home little Emmeline, which she did. They have paid monthly the sum agreed on, but with the last there was a note saying that, as Emmeline was now ten years of age, they could provide for her no longer—that their marriage was all a fiction—that both parties were going to be married to other people. And now having told my tale, I hope you are satisfied."

"We are not otherwise," said Charles, "and thank you heartily for your story. I daresay doctors will meet with many such cases, but the name of the parties, you did not mention them."

"No, I pledged myself to secrecy; I must keep my word."

"Oh, certainly a man's honor is his all," added the minister, "and as we have encroached so much on your valuable time, we will go."

"By no means, luncheon awaits us in the dining room," said Mrs. Lorimer. "Please to follow me," and, leading the way, she was followed by the brothers, the doctor keeping in the rear.

While they were partaking of this midday meal, the doctor was called hurriedly away, but his wife did the honors of the table.

Luncheon over, the minister asked if Catherine was quite well, that she was not present.

"Catherine has gone to spend some time with worthy relations of mine, and they wish to keep her altogether."

"Oh, indeed, do they live in this part of the country!"

"Dear me, no. They have no fixed place—now here, now there, as fancy prompts, but mostly on the Continent."

"You must miss your daughter much," said Charles.

"Yes, but it is for her interest," the lady replied; "she must put up with her loss, besides, we have plenty others to fill up the gap."

"True; still you will miss her." And the Messrs. Steven rose to go, remarking at the time, that they hoped her daughter's change would be for the better. Politely thanking the lady for her hospitality, they took their leave. The outer door had scarcely closed on them when the doctor entered the dining-room.

"That was a fix, Kate, but I think they're satisfied with what I told them."

"Yes, but you left me the worst part. The minister asked after Catherine, and I told him she had gone to reside with wealthy friends, and they wanted to keep her."

"Quite right, but that city fellow is shrewd enough to put things altogether; but they seem to be satisfied."

Undoubtedly they are. The game is worth trying. The money we have received enabled us to give Catherine a good education, and fit her for a brilliant future. She may get a good match, and then we can claim our share."

"That is all plain enough, but to run such a risk is dreadful. I feel the burning glance of hate that young Dick gave me. Goodness knows what she would have said had she known the truth."

"For shame, doctor. Such weakness in a man. Afraid of a pert young hussy, who thought nothing of speaking to you, as if you were her equal. Our Kate would not have been so rude. But where did you come from; I thought you were out."

"I came from my laboratory. Before coming to luncheon I gave Jean the hint that I was to be called. I could not have held out much longer before our inquisitive visitors."

"Pshaw! You are a fool for your sentimentality—if you had had a wife like yourself, goodness knows what you would have been."

"Well, Kate, you are something of Eve, and I confess to taking too large a bite of your apple of temptation, in the shape of yielding to your desire. To send our first born away to usurp another's right. How it will all end, Heaven knows;" and walking out of the room, he snatched his hat, and hurried out of the house.

Fire at Bow Park.

Valuable Stock Burned.

LOSS $30,000.

BRANTFORD, December 3.—About eleven o'clock last night a bright light suddenly flashed up, apparently in the southeastern part of the city. The city fire bells rang, and the engines turned out, and rushed down to the fire. It was soon ascertained that the fire was outside of the city limits, and was very large. Soon the news arrived that the fire was on fire at Bow Park, the great stock farm of Hon. George Brown, Toronto. This proved to be correct, and the firemen returned to the stations, as the distance was too great to think of going out. Your correspondent this morning visited the scene and found things in a bad shape. There were ten long stables, which were all full of cattle, horses, sheep, pigs, grain of all kinds, roots, farming implements, etc. Out of these ten, seven are burnt to the ground. The remaining three contained nearly all the valuable cows and bulls. These were all got out safely by the exertions of the men. The next building to the three saved was the one in which the fire started, and the wind being from the east was the only thing that saved the whole lot from destruction. All the buildings to the west, and opposite the one in which the fire began, are gone, burned to the ground. Two very valuable imported mares, ten farm horses, six valuable pigs, twelve sheep and two colts are burned. The loss must reach $30,000 at least. The origin of the fire is unknown. The is no insurance on the stock, but all the buildings are nearly well covered. Word was sent last night to Hon. Mr. Brown, Toronto, and he will likely arrive on the premises this afternoon.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, DEC. 4.

The Sugar Question.

THE "GLOBE" SPEAKS.

"That Canada is the cheapest market for sugar to-day, even the Globe will not and dare not deny."

This gem of concentrated knowledge of the sugar trade could only come from the chief organ of the Government, or the Belleville INTELLIGENCER, the organ of the temporary Finance Minister, who did his best to kill off the West India sugar trade. Canada the cheapest market for sugar! Why it is absolutely the dearest. Granulated sugar is selling at New York to-day for 10¼ cents, after payment of about three cents of taxation. Scotch sugar can almost pay our Canadian tax of nearly four cents a pound, and still come into Belleville duty free. If it were not that the Scotch sugar would immediately come in, Redpath would increase his present price of 11¼ cents up to the full limit which the tariff on American sugar allows him.—Globe, Dec. 2nd.

The above is too good to let pass without a word. The reference to the temporary Finance Minister is so evidently inspired by the animus which pervades all its references to the Minister of Customs, that we will pass it by, asking whether five years of Grit rule, produced one half the West India trade that one year of Conservative administration has done! If the Globe asks we will prove the negative by figures.

It also says granulated sugar is 10½ cents in New York and pays a tax of 3 cents a pound. All very fine; but (we always use the Globe's figures—they are never correct.) Granulated sugar is 10¼ cents in Canada to-day and can be bought less, and pays a tax of nearly 3¾ cents. The reference to Scotch sugar is laughable. No Scotch sugar comes into competition with granulated; and further, Redpath's price for granulated has never, since the N. P. came in force, been over 11 cents, and at that time it was worth 12 cents, laid down without the N. P.

We would like to ask the Globe to be honest on this sugar question, but that it seems is asking too much. In penning the above extract, it had to snatch at a drop in the New York market, but why not give the Canadian refiners credit for reducing their prices also! Notwithstanding every argument that can be produced, still Canada is the cheapest market, and the Globe knows it.

The Tea Trade and the N. P.

The Belleville INTELLIGENCER knows just as much about tea as it does about sugar. It says:—

"Still, a green tea at 38c. or 40c., duty paid, in Canada, is worth the same price in New York without any duty, or 5c. per lb. less. Other teas vary, but all are higher than they are in Canada."

This is nonsense on the face of it. Whatever so called "direct importation" to Canada is done, is transacted mainly by New York importers for the Canadians. The New York importers necessarily have every facility for obtaining tea cheaply that the Canadians have and others in addition: It is perfectly absurd to say that it is important for Canada by a New York merchant, and which has to pay duty of 6 cents a pound at the frontier, is cheaper in Canada than the same kind in New York, where no duty whatever is paid. The benefits conferred on the Canada tea trade by the differential duty of 10 per cent. are all humbug.—Globe, Dec. 2.

There is no nonsense on the face nor yet on the back of it, but an actual fact, we repeat it, that green teas at 38c and 40c in Canada are worth the same price in New York, and it is very easily accounted for. Canada is now a tea market and is not altogether ruled by New York or London. Canadian merchants have enough tea imported direct from the place of growth to supply Canada, and the competition has kept prices below the outside markets. The statement that direct importation to Canada is transacted mainly by New York importers for the Canadians, is not only an insult to Canadian importers, but an untruth, penned either ignorantly or wilfuly, and is only put forward for lack of honest argument.

The facts are well known to the trade. Theorists are no where, and Canada has another home market; namely, for Teas.

THE MINISTER TO ENGLAND.—The Ottawa Citizen, referring to the report in the London Times of the appointment of Sir A. T. Galt as resident Minister of the Canadian Government in London says:—"The fact that Sir A. T. Galt has accepted a position as resident representative of the Canadian Government in England, was announced some weeks ago. We doubt, however, the reliability of the statement that he is to become a member of the Dominion Cabinet, with residence in London. The Times must be mistaken."

THE LUMBER TRADE.—The Monetary Times says:—"It is always a good plan not to halloo before you are out of the woods. But we feel great confidence that the clouds which have so long overhung our lumbering interests are beginning to lift. Besides the improvement in the United States, there is quite a revival in the shipbuilding and other industries of Great Britain; and these circumstances, combined with the greatly increased carefulness and economy being practiced by those in the trade, have given us a foretaste of a revival of our lumbering interests."

The Tea Trade and the N. P.

REPLY TO W. A. HUNGERFORD'S LETTER.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—In the Belleville Ontario of Monday, W. A. Hungerford, a traveller for an almost unknown tea dealer (not importer), tries to advertise himself and John Brown by making an attack on your article headed "The Tea Trade and the N. P." Your article is clear enough to any person who has had anything to do with the direct importation of tea; but as Mr. Hungerford has done you must have overlooked it in your editorial, and to which, with your permission, I will briefly allude. He says:—

New York has been, is, and will be, the great tea market for the Continent of America, and it will take more than the National Policy to change it.

His statements, as regards black teas, prove my statement to be correct. It is a well known fact that green teas but little used in Canada, and are mostly used in the United States and New York, hence the demand for black teas from there entirely, and the willingness of Canadian dealers to sell their lines, even at a reduced price. He also tells us that six or seven years ago Canada boasted of only two importers. This is correct so far as it goes, but he does not tell us that one of those firms imported one (only) cargo of tea to Canada, and that a large portion of that tea is still unsold in our market. If he chooses, I can tell him some of the brands, and where he can buy them. And, all this time these Canadian houses have been buying elsewhere.

That New York has been is a fact, but that it is, is not true. More than three quarters of the tea required for Canada for the next six months is now in store or on the arrive direct from China and Japan. As to the market for black teas, London is the great black tea market, and ships heavily to New York and Canada. The late scarcity reversed that for the time being. It is, and always has been, a rare thing for Canadian houses to buy black teas in New York.

Now for that one (only) cargo of tea. This refers to the cargo of the ship Satsuma. While Sir Francis Hincks was Finance Minister, Messrs. Cramp, Torrances & Co., of Toronto, ordered a cargo of teas for Canada, because a discriminating duty of 10 per cent. was in force, before the ship arrived Sir John's Administration had gone under, and Mr. Richard John Cartwright had taken charge of the Finances. He removed the discriminating duty and allowed the country to be flooded with American teas, and Messrs. C. T. & Co. not any one else, ever felt like importing another cargo of tea. But Sir Richard has fallen, and Canadian importers have again taken courage and are importing direct.

Early in the late excitement some Japan teas were brought in here for immediate consumption, but the bulk of direct imported teas are now near and will be arriving till the 1st of March.

Now let us see what Mr. Hungerford's bluster all amounts to. He is, I believe, a resident of Belleville, and if he has sold such enormous quantities of tea, say double what he did previous to the advent of the N. P., surely large lots must have come to Belleville. Now is the time to put in.

I would say that I am travelling for a New York tea firm, and would positively state that the firm I represent have done almost double the trade in Canada in the six months since the N. P., came into force, than they did in the same time previous, and employ less hands to do it.

Now I know a little about the trade of Canada in teas, and would like an answer to these civil questions:—

Where do you sell any teas? Belleville merchants say not much. I believe them.

Does the firm you represent import a single pound of tea direct from the place of growth?

Why did you leave the Conservative party?

I will answer the last question. Your little business with unposted Canadians has been crushed out by the N. P., and you are wiped out with even the small fry.

Yours,
Y. H.
YOUNG HYSON.

P. S.—I add just one more question for Mr. Hungerford to answer, which is: Why, if the N. P. has doubled your sales in Canada, are you so bitterly opposed to a measure which has conferred so great a benefit upon you?

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.—The Ontario Legislature has been called for the despatch of business on Wednesday, Jan. 7th.

There has been published a good many records of different women who have had full beards upon their cheeks and chins like men. Charles the XII. had one in his army who was full bearded, and who performed the duty of a grenadier.

There is at present living at Crook, near Newcastle, England, an old woman who, if she lives, will enter upon her 113th year in about a month, as the records show. She was born in 1767, the year when the Jesuits were expelled from Spain, Genoa and Venice, and when Wallace and Carteret, Cook's predecessors, made their discoveries in the South seas. She was nearly 7 years old when the American Revolution began, and over twelve at the time of the Lord Gordon no-popery riots. Her eldest living son is over 75 years old, and she, although very feeble, retains all her senses and appears not over 80 years of age.

A Perilous Passage.

NARROW ESCAPE OF THE SCHOONER PICTON.

The schooner Picton, Captain Ostrander, with barley from Wellington, arrived here yesterday morning, after a perilous passage of three days. To an Oswego Times reporter Captain Ostrander gave the following account of the trip: We left Wellington at 12 o'clock of the night of the 26th. It was snowy hard and I kept her in the lake all that night and the next morning about 8 o'clock I ran into Weller's bay, near Consecon, and dropped an anchor. I laid there with a heavy snow storm and gale from the southwest until the morning of the 29th, when a nor-west gale sprung up with a heavy sea running and severe snow squalls. About 7 o'clock she began dragging her anchor and I found it necessary to cut the line and let the anchor go. I ran for Oswego and got abreast of here Saturday afternoon but it got so thick that I had to head her into the lake. I was running under a spritsail foresail and double reefed mainsail. The foresail got so iced up that I couldn't get it on her and about 6 o'clock p. m. then it cleared up for a moment, I saw we were in the breakers about seven miles below. I let go an anchor, which fortunately held, and we lay about four lengths of a vessel from the shore. The schooner kept jumping and was clean to her forecastle, which we had to batten down and live in the cabin. In a short time the schooner became one solid mass of ice, and at ten o'clock yesterday when the tug came after us we looked like an iceberg. Capt. Ostrander went ashore just before the tug arrived, with the intention of coming up here for a tug. The crew all remained on the vessels. Capt. Ostrander desires to express his thanks to the Life Saving crew for assistance rendered him in getting up his anchor, and for their help. The Picton had 9,400 bushels of barley for Failing & Pratt.

[The foregoing, from the Oswego Times of Monday, furnishes another strong argument in favor of the construction of the Murray Canal. If the Canal had been built the schooner could have run into the Bay of Quinte, where she would have been safe, and not have been forced to run for Oswego, where she so narrowly escaped destruction.]

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, DEC 4.

City and Vicinity.

THE ROADS.—The rain and sleet which fell last night greatly improved the roads, and the sleighing to-day was good.

OYSTER SUPPER.—The employees of the firm of J. M. Walker & Co., will hold their annual oyster supper and reunion on Friday evening at Messrs. J. & A. Wallace's.

FIRE IN SEYMOUR.—On the night of the 2nd inst. the barn and stables of James McDaniels, lot 17 in the 1st concession of Seymour, were burned. Insured in Agricultural Mutual.

TRAMPS.—There are but few tramps on the road now, as compared with the the numbers on tramp at this season last year. Four men had sleeping accommodations provided for them in the Police Station last night.

TO-NIGHT.—Remember the entertainment in aid of St. George's Church to-night. Prof. Macoun's lecture cannot fail to prove of the greatest interest, whilst there are a variety of good things on the programme sufficient to satisfy the most exacting.

SALE OF USEFUL AND FANCY ARTICLES.—The ladies of the M. E. Tabernacle announce their annual sale of useful and fancy articles, which will commence on Thursday, the 11th inst., in the store formerly occupied by Messrs. Barber & Brignall, corner of Front and Bridge Streets. Particulars will be found in the advertisement.

PURCHASE OF A MINE.—The Napanee Standard says:—"On Thursday last, as soon as the result of Prof. Chapman's analysis was known, Mr. Williams and others went to Tamworth and effected a lease of the Wager mine for 99 years at 10 cents per ton of ore, and at 10 a. m., on Friday the lease was registered. The mine is now the property of the Railway Company, and will be sufficient, with Municipal and Government aid, to ensure the building of the line."

SONS OF TEMPERANCE.—The annual meeting of the Grand Division Sons of Temperance closed on the 3rd inst., at Almonte. Sir Leonard Tilley was present at the morning session and made a few remarks. The following officers were elected: J. G. Howe, Ottawa, Grand Worshipful Patriarch; R. Hopkins, Ottawa, Grand Worshipful Associate; J. M. Webster, Brantford, Grand Scribe; D. Miller, Toronto, Grand Treasurer; D. Jewell, Grafton, Grand Chaplain; G. P. Bliss, New Edinburgh, Grand Centre; James Brock, Toronto, Grand Conductor.

THE CANADIAN METHODIST MAGAZINE.—The December number has been received. It has quite a Christmas flavor. It has a capital Cornish Christmas story, Christmas poems, and a fine Christmas anthem. The illustrated articles are "Montreal Past and Present," and "China and the Chinese." The other articles make up an interesting number, which concludes the tenth volume of this successful magazine. The Editor claims that it has published more high class engravings than all that were ever published in Canada before, the number of late being about 200 a year. The Story of the War will be republished in book form. The Prospectus for 1880 announces a continued story of the settlement of Upper Canada; a series of papers on the Epochs of Methodism, by Dr. Ryerson; twelve papers on Great Reformers, by the Editor, Rev. W. H. Withrow, M. A., with the continuation of his popular sketches of foreign travel, entitled "A Canadian in Europe." Copious illustrations, especially of Canadian subjects, will continue to be a specialty. The publisher offers Harper's and Scribner's monthlies with this Magazine at three-fourths of the regular price. Published by Rev. W. Briggs, Methodist Book Room, Toronto, at $2 per year, $1 for six months. Single numbers 20 cents each.

SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY.—The November Scribner, of which 100,000 copies are printed, opens with two frontispiece portraits of Bayard Taylor, one engraved by Cole from the large photograph by Gutekunst, the other by Juengling from a replica of the bronze bas-relief by the sculptor O'Donovan, which was executed for Cornell University. An interesting feature of this number is the first instalment of "The Grandissimas," Mr. Cable's new story, and first novel, of Creole Life, which succeeds Mrs. Burnett's "Haworth's" and is to be one of the principal attractions of the magazine for the next twelve months. The opening scene is at a masked ball at the old Theatre St. Philippe, New Orleans, at which there is some lively coquetry on the part of two of the characters, ending in their unmasking to each other; later chapters describe the approach of immigrants up the Mississippi, and relate the ancestry of the great Creole families of the Grandissimas and De Grapions, the feuds of which are the basis of the story. Besides this there are ten papers on various subjects, choice poetry and the various standing departments are well kept up. As usual the number is profusely illustrated.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR DECEMBER, Is the grand Christmas Holiday number of that magazine, and appears in a special cover.—a bright and jolly dress which encloses ninety or more illustrations, and one hundred and four pages of pure delight for girls and boys. John Greenleaf Whittier gives in quaint verse a humorous reminiscence of his boyhood, concerning an Irish Quaker; and Lucy Larcom contributes a sweet and suggestive song. Louisa M. Alcott's new serial story, "Jack and Jill," opens with lively snow-sport of boys and girls, and an exciting coasting accident; and William O. Stoddard's continued story, "Among the Lakes," fills six pages with boy-fun in the open air. Edward Eggleston contributes an amusing play, for boys and girls to act, entitled "Mother Goose and Her Family; a Christmas Recreation for Sunday school and other Festivals," accompanied by costume sketches and full instructions. By J. T. Trowbridge, J. W. De Forest, John Eston Cooke, Washington Gladden, Maurice Thompson, Sarah Winter Kellogg and others, there are short stories of stirring historical events, the land of wonder, the realm of goblins, the hunting-grounds of the Great South, and funny and touching incidents of home life. Then there are: a profusely illustrated description of the small army of Telegraph-boys in New York, their works and ways; and an art-paper on Thorvaldsen, the great Danish sculptor, with a portrait of himself and engravings of his principal works. The list of illustrators includes Gustave Doré, Kraus, Giacomelli, Mary Hallock Foote, and J. E. Kelly, who are represented by full-page pictures; and Frederick Dielman, E. B. Bensell, W. L. Shepard and Jessie Curtis. Besides these, there is Addie Ledyard, with eleven lovely drawings of little-girl life, in illustration of some child-verses by Mary Mapes Dodge. The Departments "For Very Little Folk," "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "Letter Box," are full of Christmas fun and feeling, and there are some book-notices that will be welcome to all who are practically interested in their children.

Marine Notes.

The Oswego Palladium of Tuesday says:—"Captain Williams, marine inspector, reports that the hull of the schr. Dominion, ashore at Ford's shoal, is so badly strained and broken that she will prove a total loss. She has been stripped and the rigging brought to this city and stowed."

The ferry steamers are still running.

The season of navigation may now be said to be closed here. The schooners laid up at this port are the Wm. Elgin, David Andrews, British Queen, Belle, John Wesley and Mary Foster, besides which there are some small craft.

The schrs. M. O'Gorman and O. S. Storrs are laid up at Rednerville, and the Olive Branch at Kingston.

"Allan" Line.

IMPORTANT NEW SHIPBUILDING CONTRACT.

Referring to a recent announcement that tenders were being asked for the construction of a large passenger steamer of 5,500 tons for the "Allan" Line, we are now in a position to state that the order for this steamer—to be called the "Parisian"—has been placed with Messrs. Napier, of Glasgow, the celebrated shipbuilders and engineers. The "Parisian" will be built of steel, mode on the Siemens-Martin principle, and the material to be used in construction will be subject to the most rigid tests both by Lloyd's and by the owners' own surveyor. She is to be fitted through her entire length with a double bottom, divided into water-tight compartments. This mode of structure, besides adding greatly to the strength of the steamer, gives a special security in case of grounding, or other mishap—injury to the bottom of such a vessel being harmless. About nine months ago the Messrs. Allen had the courage to contract for a vessel, for their ocean service, to be constructed entirely of steel and of the double-bottomed arrangement, before such had been so employed in the construction of any Atlantic vessel. The vessel in question—"Buenos Ayrean," now nearly ready for sea—was recently launched by Messrs. Denny, of Dumbarton, and is the largest steam vessel that has ever been built of steel. It may be mentioned that the same system of construction is also to be adopted in the new Cunard steamer, "Sahara." The "Parisian" will be 400 feet long, 46 feet broad, and 36 feet deep, and of about 5,500 tons gross tonnage. Her engines will be of great power, three-cylindered, built to the designs of their superintending engineer, Mr. William Wallace, of Liverpool. The saloon, which will be placed amidships and fitted up in the most complete and sumptuous manner, will have permanent accommodation for about 200 cabin passengers. She will also have room for over 1,000 steerage passengers. Every appliance that can increase the safety or enhance the comfort of the passengers will be found in the "Parisian" which may be expected to take her place among the other well-known steamships of the line in April, 1880.—Liverpool Journal of Commerce, Nov. 10.

Immense Property Claimed.

THE HEIRS OF THE BAKER ESTATE IN CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

The Robinsons, of Ottawa, and other heirs of Hannah and Betsy Baker, according to the N. Y. World, claim 1,500 acres of land on which a part of the city of Philadelphia is built, eleven square miles of land on the banks of the Hudson River, a large tract of coal lands in Pennsylvania, and scattered properties in New York and elsewhere. The Canadian heirs value the whole estate, including the Philadelphia property, at $200,000,000. According to the Canadian story, three generations ago the two married daughters of Colonel William Baker settled near Ottawa, and in 1801 inherited the property of their father, to whom his two brothers had bequeathed their estates. The delay in claiming the estates was due to the ignorance of the daughters of their father's death at the time of its occurrence and their children's ignorance that such an estate waited for them. There are thirty claimants in Canada and Northern New York. There are fifty-seven other heirs at Brockville, Ohio. These make out that Colonel Jacob Baker died intestate at the residence of his brother in Canada, leaving in possession of relatives his discharge from the army, uniform, cocked hat and sword, all of which are still in their possession, though the Canadians declare that they know nothing about them, and that the Colonel did not die there, nor did his brother ever go there. According to the Ohio heirs there were several brothers.

EXCITING ELECTION.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 4.—The price current sees no reason for supposing there will be a less number of hogs for winter packing than last year. The packing up to date is about one hundred thousand more than at same time last year.

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 4.—A large demonstrative mass meeting was held last evening in regard to recent arrests in Ireland.

DENVER, Dec. 4.—The principal business houses of Rouisata were burned last night.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Dec. 4. — Burglars raided on Shelburne Falls early this morning, blew open the safes in the post office and two stores; getting but little money. They escaped.

DEADWOOD, Dec. 4.—The Reno Court Martial examined about fifteen witnesses. The testimony was favorable to Reno while admitting his inebriety, and he showed no particular malice toward Lieutenant Nichols, on whom he had an altercation on the 25th. General Sturges will issue an order prohibiting excessive gambling and dissipation at the post, the extent of which has just been revealed to him.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 4.—An association has been organized to urge the conversion of the Wabash and Erie Canal into a ship canal, and induce Congress to grant its approbation. It is stated such a canal will prove the key to the transportation problem.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 4.—The boring of a tunnel seven miles long for a permanent water supply was completed yesterday. It is 12 feet in diameter, and cost a million and a half.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 4.—It is generally understood that the Governor will soon call a special session of the Legislature to pass an act enabling Memphis to put herself in a thorough sanitary condition by next summer.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 4.—An exciting municipal election was held yesterday. The candidates for mayor were both Democrats and wealthy citizens. Robert H. May was elected. The colored vote was splendidly organized, and polled solidly for the successful candidate in securing the election over Estes, who was mayor during the Hamburg riot. In the fourth ward a colored man was shot in the neck and another severely stabbed in the face by a white man, several whites being knocked down by colored voters.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The Times of New Orleans says it would seem that the Republicans stand a chance of victory in Louisiana should the vote be properly counted. Two polls in Gretna, Jefferson parish, were invaded at midnight and the ballot boxes destroyed; these polls were strongly Republican. In Algiers, at another Republican polling place, irregularities were charged by Democrats, and the deputy Sheriff seized the box and brought it uncounted to the clerk of the criminal court in this city. In this manner the entire vote of that poll was lost.

A suit has been begun against Gen. Sigel, for $4,000 damages alleged while he was register in New York. The plaintiff employed the register's clerk to examine the title of certain property and he reported the title clear. The plaintiff loaned money on it afterwards and then discovered a previous mortgage.

Jacob Hermance, a member of the Produce Exchange, died on Tuesday. He made a fortune in business enterprises during the war, and advanced $50,000 towards the equipment of the Ulster County regiments.

Mrs. Margaret Turpy died at Flushing, on Tuesday, aged 110.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Eugene Legrave, recently arrested in Frankfort on the Main, will not be extradited, as it is considered certain that he will be punished by the German authorities. He swindled Stewart & Co., and Claflin & Co., out of $40,000 and fled to Europe. The stolen American bonds and banknotes were found in Legrave's lodgings when arrested.

It is stated that Grant has accepted the invitation to preside over the mass meeting soon to be held in this city in favor of holding a world's fair in New York in 1883.

AFGHANISTAN.

PROGRESS OF THE SUBJUGATION.

CABUL, Dec. 3.—Wali Mahomed will start for Badakshan shortly with 2,000 soldiers and four guns to reduce that district to obedience.

The Kohistani chiefs continue to come in, and local disturbances are ended. The Ameer has arrived at Gaudamuk.

WEST AFRICA.

A WAR BETWEEN RIVAL CHIEFS.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 3.—It is learned that war has broken out between the rival chiefs in New Calabar, West Africa. Two hundred persons have been slain. The wounded prisoners were killed and eaten. Europeans in New Calabar have requested the British Naval officer to interfere. It is apprehended that the outbreak will spread from Opobo to Bares.

Legal.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

TORONTO, Dec. 3.

HICKS v. SNIDER.—Judgment. Rule discharged.

SUTTON v. KELLY.—Judgment. Rule nisi granted. The points taken by the opposite party to be disposed of in the argument without a cross rule.

GOLDING v. MACKEY.—Mr. Clark moved to set aside rule for a new trial, which has been abandoned. Rule discharged with costs of this motion.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

SEVERN v. CLARKE.—Crickmore showed cause to a rule nisi for a new trial; Mr. Ferguson, Q.C., contra. Judgment reserved.

CORBY v. CLARKE.—Dr. McMichael, Q.C., showed cause to the rule nisi in this case; Mr. Ferguson, Q.C., contra. Stands for judgment.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Times says United States bonds are hardly to be got here now, their prices are a mere reflex of those of New York.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Parnell appeals for assistance to defray the expenses of the defence of the Sligo prisoners.

The Queen yesterday telegraphed to the Emperor of Russia, congratulating him on his escape from assassination.

A Berlin despatch says the ostensible cause of the suspension of the publication of the St. Petersburg Golos for five months was an objectionable article in the feuilleton, but it is believed that the real reason was its hostile, defiant tone toward foreign powers, especially Germany.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A Berlin correspondent discussing the recent attempt on the Czar's life, says it was committed but a day or so after the Czar had commuted the sentence of death passed on the Nihilist Mirsky. The outrage cannot but intensify the Government's resolve to show no pity to those incapable of compassion.

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 3.—Intelligence has been received that the allied Peruvians and Bolivians have been completely defeated at Tarapaca, Peru, by the Chilians, who have taken possession of the town. Blanco will probably die; the infant lived a few hours. The couple had been married two years, and hitherto had lived happily.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 4.—The employees of the Delaware car shops, numbering 600, have been notified of an advance of 5 to 10 per cent. of wages without request.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 4.—About 1,500 men of the Lackawanna iron and coal Company, employed in the iron and steel works, have just been given an increase of 10 per cent., without any demand from them.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 4.—A strike of silk weavers is in progress at the Murray mill against the running of two jacquard looms by one weaver. The weavers are sustained by the international labor union.

ARCHBALD, Pa., Dec. 4.—The miners of Simpson & Jo. are striking because the Company refuse to permit their weigh-master to inspect the Company's books.

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 4.—The embarkation of the obelisk presented to the United States, is expected in a few days.

DIED,

The Sun for 1880.

THE SUN will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language, and p inted for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well-abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is, the law controling its daily make up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction if some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save which may be had by any purchaser for two cents. It hates injustice and brutality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores all impostors of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is imp sible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of constant vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly over in this strife throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration entrenched at Washington. The Sun did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. The Sun will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily SUN, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

WE carry an immense stock of these Goods, and have in our employ over fifty hands manufacturing, &c., more than ever kept by any one house in Central Ontario. The large quantities of these Goods we are thus enabled to get through, puts us in a position to buy them cheaper than any other house in the City.

AN ADVANTAGE

we give to our customers over importing houses and houses stocking themselves early in the season, is this: We buy moderately at the opening of the season, and put ourselves in the position to now take advantage of late and depressed markets to buy many lines of goods at very great discounts from what they can be bought early in the season.

We have lately taken this advantage in securing many cheap lines in Dress Goods,

Silks, Velvets, Satins, Flannels, Linens, Winceys, Handk'fs, Hosiery, Millinery, Feathers, Ribbons, &c.

TO THE LADIES.

We ask an impartial inspection of these Goods, when it will be found we are now offering the cheapest lot of goods ever shown in the City.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

PURE COD LIVER OIL

WITH

HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

This preparation combines the two best remedies ever discovered for Consumption, Colds and Chronic Coughs, Scrofula, Rheumatism and Diseases of the Blood, General Debility, and all Wasting Diseases of Children. It not only contains the well known and highly esteemed virtues of Cod Liver Oil in a form that is perfectly tasteless and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, but in addition, the wonderful tonic and life-giving properties of the Hypophosphites, in an incorporated that the remedial powers of both are largely increased. Physicians universally acknowledge the vastly superior virtues of this combined food and medicine in all the above diseases. It is not only better tolerated, but much more readily assimilated by the system than plain Cod Liver Oil, and a better agent in enriching and purifying the blood, allaying the irritation of the throat and lungs, restoring the impaired functions and giving strength and vigor to the whole body. It is sweet and palatable to the taste, never separates, deposits or spoils. Be sure and ask for Scott's Emulsion. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle.

JOHNSTON'S

is now extensively used in British and Continental Institutions, Hospitals and Asylums, and is prescribed by the medical faculty wherever it has been introduced.

Its adaptability is general to the invalid, the convalescent and the vigor-us. To children it secures a strong muscular development, and for maternal nursing, imperfect mastication, athletic training, physical exhaustion, indigestion or mental overstrain, it is the perfection of known food.

PATENTS

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new Inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Officials of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia. Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite. Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James L. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES L. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible : I am, sir, yours very respectfully,
D. WALTER OAKES.
Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES L. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR :—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing ever six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by worthless imitations bearing a similar name ; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

EMMELINE.

CHAPTER IX.

CHARLES STEVEN RESOLVES TO ADOPT EMMELINE.

We will return to the new friends of our young heroine. They left the doctor's house in a confused state of mind, convinced of the doctor's innocence of wronging wilfully the deserted girl, and yet a thought would cross their minds. They walked on in silence for some time, and at length Charles broke—

"Who is that Amazon of a wife the doctor has got! Surely she was not a lady in spite of her airs of dignity and wealthy friends !"

"There you have hit on a puzzler. Her daughter gone to a friend of her own, and that friend wealthy—it is a puzzler to me."

"How ?"

"Why, the doctor's mother told me she had taken her from some institution when she was quite young to assist in the housework, and she knew then of no friends, and when she was grown to womanhood she went to Glasgow to be a servant in a good family, and after a lapse of a few years they met again. That was young master Lorimer and his mother's own servant. She, being his senior, no doubt knew how to win his heart, or what was of more consequence to her, his head, and they were married there; and where this wealthy friend turned up from to claim her daughter, is a mystery to me."

"Mystery upon mystery, but my mind is made up, Fred, to adopt Emmeline, and as I am not going to call her Dick, suppose you suggest some other name."

"Well, what say you to Emmeline Charles ?"

"That sounds very well, but folks about town might think there was a closer relationship. Suppose you share the odium of thing, and we call her 'Emmeline Fredricka Charles.'"

"By all means. You are welcome to call her all my name, Fred Steven if you choose, so long as you take her under the shelter of your own wing."

They had arrived at the manse by this time, and were not long in the house when they called Emmeline into the room.

"Well, missie," said the merchant, "would you like me to adopt you, and send you to school ?"

"Will they not tell you who my parents are ?" said the poor girl.

"No. They say they would not own you, and we—that is the minister and myself—will take charge of your future if you are not afraid of us ?"

"Oh thank you both. It is God has sent me here to kind friends, but I would like to work for myself. Rebecca says that you sir, have a large business in Glasgow."

"I have a place in town, but you must go to school in the first place, and share our name. By the way, how would you like to be called Emmeline Fredricka Charles ?"

"Oh, sir that is a beautiful name, but it is not my own."

"Why, we do not know about that. Emmeline C. was your mother's name, and 'C.,' may mean Charles."

"My mother's name !" said Emmeline, clasping her hands and kneeling before them, "tell me all you know ; oh tell me of my mother !"

"That is all child, you unman one altogether. Speak to her, Fred, she vexes me."

"And don't I feel also, knowing her as I do."

"My poor little dear, your mother's name is best left unspoken, even if we knew it in full, and as you are too young to work, you must go to school, and we will watch over your future."

"I will do anything you wish, and if you teach me something I will pay you back when I am older. Oh, I will be so attentive to my lessons and learn quickly."

"That is a good girl. We will tell Rebecca now. Please touch the bell, Charles."

Scarcely had the bell touched till the door was opened, and there stood Rebecca. It was evident she had been in close proximity to the door, or shall we say the keyhole.

"Well, Rebecca," said her master, "you will be glad to learn that we are going to adopt Emmeline, as there is no satisfactory tale to be learned of her parents."

"What, sir, nae news frae the Dicks ! Surely they can tell wha they got her frae."

"Only from a doctor, and he says they cannot be made to own her, so we will keep her, or rather my brother will take charge of her. What say you, is your protege in good hands ?"

"Bless you, sir, better couldna be, but she, if I may make sae bold, will be as weel taen care o' in this house as ony other, and the tak' her frae a place like Glasgow is puttin' temptation in the lassie's way."

"Pooh, pooh, Rebecca, you are in plain words wanting to have her to yourself ; but consider what harm might come to my brother, your master, by taking in a girl brought up by members of his congregation —the thing is ridiculous, and the girl herself I am sure would not like to stay here where she would meet those people who had brought her up. No, the thing won't do at all. What says Emmeline Eredricka Charles ?"

"Guidness, what a name. Surely that's no' Emmeline."

"No 'Becca, but my kind friends have given me a name, seeing I had no claim on any particular one."

"But, look me, they might a gi'en you a decent name. That's a queer ane."

"Now," said the minister to his favored domestic, "you have been in good families though you keep your broad dialect, did you never hear a name sounding like this, her new one ?"

"Oh, aweel they have strange enench names, but you micht hae ca'd her Emmeline Steven."

"The fact is," said Charles, "she is Fredrica after my brother, and Charles after myself."

"Oh aye, that's anither thing. Ye micht hae gi'en her shee'r mine tae, tae mak' her a wee mair kenspeckle."

"Ha, ha," laughed bothgentlemen, "you must have some share in her well-being. Meanwhile you may take charge of her, Emmeline, you may go with Rebecca, while we mature your plans."

"Yes, sir," said the docile girl, and on the way to the kitchen Bebecca remarked to our heroine :

"That Glasgow gent is rather meikle o' the master for me, ordering you doon wi' me as if the hoose was his ain."

"But the minister was thinking at the time and seemed to forget we were there."

"Oh, he's subject tae what he ca's broon studies."

Leaving them at their kitchen duties, for Emmeline would help, we will return to the parlor. There were no words spoken by either gentlemen for a few seconds. At length our clerical friend looked up, for he had indeed been enjoying a brown study.

"Why Charles you had better start rangements you think necessary ; but one thing is evident, you cannot take her to your bachelor's home, and as to sending her to a boarding school, it would not do for her sensitive nature to mix with those who have parents or near friends."

"Stop, stop, you are running away altogether, just you wait with patience till I return or send for her, and all will be well. I start to-night with the six o'clock train, so you had better have an earlier tea, if you want my company !"

"By all means, I will order tea immediately after dinner. By the way, it must be near that time. Did you notice the going sound (for they announced all meals by the gong sounding at the manse) !"

Scarcely had he finished speaking when the house rang with the summons to dinner. Rebecca skilfully waited at table, and after the cloth was removed she received orders for tea as quick as possible. She was heard to murmur, not quite in sotto voce :

"Some mair new-fangled notions o' his, I'se warrant."

"Something up with your housekeeper to-day, Fred. Why, man, you perfectly spoil her. She is mistress here, and you are nowhere."

"Well, well, so long as she is faithful at her post, I will allow her full sway. Such bother I've had with some ; why I prize Rebecca after the troublesome servants I have had."

"Well, Fred, please yourself, put every one in their own place is my motto."

Shortly after tea was partaken of, our friend started for the city. Arriving there he hailed a cab, and was driven to his residence in St. Vincent Street, where he startled his housekeeper by his unexpected arrival.

"Dear me, sir," said she, "I did not know of your coming, and there is no fire in the parlor."

"Get one, then, as quick as possible, and after you give orders about tea. I wish to speak to you on a matter of importance."

But a short time elapsed till the housemaid appeared with a shovel of hot coals, Miss Darling, the housekeeper, coming immediately behind. She told her master that he would have his tea in a short time.

"All right, Darling," for our friend generally dropped the "Miss" in addressing the mistress of his household. "But to business," said he. "You have a sister staying at Avenlee, am I right ?"

"Yes, sir. She is married to one of the Duke of Avenlee's gamekeepers."

"Do they stay near a school ?"

"Did you say a school, sir ?"

"Yes, a school."

"Well, the nearest will be two miles from their house."

"I presume they will have young ones attending it."

"There is certainly some of the children attending school."

"Do you suppose they would take a young girl of ten to board with them ?"

"A young girl ! No, sir. His Grace does not allow any lodgers or boarders in his keepers' houses, at least I have heard my sister say so."

"Well, if she don't you must prepare a room and she will stay here, and then I must engage a governess for her."

"Stay here in this house, sir ! I will resign my situation. A girl and a governess in an unmarried gentleman's house, why, sir, you must be joking :"

"No joke. While visiting my brother I saw a young girl whom he has always been interested in. It would seem she has been named after both of us and we would like to do something for her, and if she were placed at school, and getting a good education, I might, indeed I may say, will adopt her as a daughter."

"Dear me, sir, I'm sure I don't know what to do to help you, but may I ask if she is of any relative ?"

"No, she is a friendless deserted child of rare beauty, and her future prospects are good if she is spared. Write to your friends and see what mind they are in, and tell me what answer they send."

"Yes, sir, I will write at once," and as she disappeared, the housemaid appeared with his tea for the second time that evening. We will leave him to enjoy his meal and mature his plans.

A Marvellous Transformation.

Physicians as a general thing are slow to accept any change in medicine or any new remedy. But with remarkable unanimity they have received and endorsed the PALATABLE CASTOR OIL manufactured by Scott & Bowne. They prescribe it for all ages and conditions, but especially for children. The transformation of the most estimable cathartic known from being the most nauseous to the most palatable of medicines is the greatest blessing that has been conferred on the age. Price only 25 cents per bottle.

BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS.—These pure vegetable blood disinfectants contain no element that is not restorative, cleansing and antiseptic. They do not expel poison by poison. Their operation is kindly, gentle, and in harmony with the efforts made by nature to rid herself of the virus by disease.

THE PLEASURE OF BATHING IS GREATLY increased by mixing in the bath half or even a quarter of a bottle of MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER. Instantly the whole atmosphere of the bath-room is as fragrant as a blooming flower garden, the mind becomes buoyant, and the body emerges refreshed and strengthened.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, DEC. 5.

Benefits of the National Policy.

In introducing the Budget and introduced the National Policy, the Finance Minister stated that the duties had been so arranged that they would bear less heavily upon goods of British manufacture than on those imported from the United States. Of course this assertion was disputed by the Grit critics and their organs, which latter for a long time harped upon the "loyalty" string, asseverating loudly that British connection was endangered by the evil effect which the tariff would have in discriminating against the classes of goods suplied from the mother country. Time has put these directly contradictory opinions to the proof, and as a matter of course Sir Leonard Tilley proves to be correct, the outcry of his opponents having been made with the sole object of serving a temporary purpose, but without effect. The imports at the principal ports of the Dominion for three months show that whilst the import trade with Great Britain has fallen off 10 per cent., that with the United States has decreased no less than 50 per cent., and that whilst in some lines of British manufactures there had during that period been an increase, there has been a decrease in the same class of goods from the United States. Thus the tariff is working in the right way, and hence the outcry of United States newspapers against a policy which gives them reciprocity in tariffs.

Mr. Rosamond, of Almonte, has increased the wages of his woollen weavers by 10 per cent. This is a practical answer to the assertion that the woollen trade is in a bad state. All the woollen manufacturers of Almonte—whose factories are the most extensive in Canada—declare themselves well satisfied with the tariff.

Messrs. Meekins & Sons, brush manufacturers, Hamilton, employ 65 hands, but find their business premises too small and will enlarge them and employ additional hands, in order to meet the demand. This business was chiefly in the hands of U. S. manufacturers before the N. P. came into existence.

A knitting factory is to be started in Moncton, New Brunswick.

A new steamship line has been established between Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, and the West Indies.

A Montreal sewing machine company purposes starting a branch factory in Halifax, to make machines for the lower provinces, Newfoundland and the West Indies, and expect to get stock subscribed in the city last named.

Leakard is to have a woollen factory.

The oatmeal mills at St. Thomas were re-opened recently.

The Truro, N. S., hat factory has received an order from Montreal for 800 dozen hats, to be delivered by Feb. 15, 1880. A St. John firm has a standing order for 24 dozen per week, and has just received an order from Quebec for 300 dozen.

A nail factory is in course of construction at Pictou, N. S. The material used will be Canadian iron from the Londonderry works.

A factory for the manufacture of seamless bags is to be added to the Hudon cotton mill at Hochelaga.

The Cornwall cotton mill is rapidly approaching completion, and another cotton mill is to be built at Brantford.

The operatives in the Kingston woollen mills are working overtime to fill orders.

The Campbellford woollen factory is kept at work incessantly.

The addition to the Dominion Organ Company's building, Bowmanville, Ont., necessitated by increase of business, is now nearly completed.

A new pottery is to be started in Toronto.

The proprietor of the Berlin slipper factory finds an addition to his manufacturing capacity necessary, and will enlarge his premises and increase the number of workmen. He will also manufacture the felt used in his business hereafter.

The Ontario Gazette contains the notice of incorporation of the Canada Window Glass Company, which will manufacture window glass, shades, jars, globes, &c., at Penetanguishene.

Several of the more extensive manufacturers of agricultural implements are making goods especially for Manitoba, which was formerly supplied from the United States.

The magistrates at Sligo committed Killen for trial, but offered to accept the same bail as in the two previous cases. This offer Killen refused to accept, and the police were obliged to carry him out of the Court-room. Rae, Killen's counsel, made a violent speech at the close of the Court, and denounced the stipendiary magistrate as a police spy.

The largest carpet in the adjustor's room of the San Francisco mint was taken up recently for the first time in five years and burned, for the purpose of reducing the accumulation of filings. The value of the bullion obtained was $2,400.

Russell Election Case.

A CONSERVATIVE GAIN.

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—The Russell local election petition came up before Chief Justice Moss and Vice-Chancellor Blake to-day. The first question taken up was the validity of the ballots rejected in polling divisions Nos. 2 and 3 in the township of Cumberland and No. 9, Gloucester. The Deputy Returning Officers for these booths being called, stated that they had placed the numbers on the Voters' List on the backs of the ballot papers and the counterfoils, because they considered it to be their duty under the Statute. If it was contrary to the principles of the Ballot Act, the violation was a matter of accident. The Court held that by a Statute passed last session in the Local Legislature, it was proved that ballots, either wilfully or mistakenly numbered by Returning Officers did not invalidate the vote. The counting of these three polling divisions gave Mr. Baker a majority of votes and made him the sitting member. The onus was now thrown on the respondent, Mr. Morgan, of attacking the return. Judge Moss asked if the counter charges of corruption, &c., would be proceeded with. The respondent's counsel replied in the affirmative, and the case is now in progress.

LATER.—In the Russell election case the counter charges were withdrawn, and Mr. [illegible] was declared duly elected.

News Condensed.

—A whiskey still has been seized on the premises of Donald Campbell, near Owen Sound.

—Very slight hopes are entertained of the recovery of Mr. Galbraith, M. P. His malady is thought to be cancer of the stomach.

—The French Cabinet has obtained a good majority in the Chamber of Deputies over the interpellation of the Extreme Left.

—Samuel Sechtel, aged about 27, committed suicide near Keeper on the 4th by cutting his throat from ear to ear.

—The Toronto customs collections for November show an increase of $9,575 39 over those of the corresponding month last year.

—Mr. John B. Smith, who was unjustly dismissed by the Mackenzie Government, has been reappointed Section Superintendent on Welland Canal.

—Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise has been enjoying a round of festivities at Sandringham, which place she left November 17th.

—The members of the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island Governments in Ottawa were entertained at dinner at Rideau Hall last evening.

—Mr. George Groom, Clerk of the Peace and County Attorney for the County of Peel, died at Brampton very suddenly on the 4th inst. of hemorrhage of the lungs.

—A telegram states that the rinderpest in Russian Poland continues to gain ground. The establishment of a military cordon on the frontier by the Prussian authorities is anticipated.

—Sir Leonard Tilley will leave for Quebec on Monday. On Tuesday he will inspect the Quebec industries, and then proceed to New Brunswick, where he will probably spend eight or ten days.

—James Smith a Montreal grocer, who disappeared on the 19th of September last, was found dead on Thursday between the ceiling of the top story and the roof of the Exchange Bank.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—Sir Charles Tupper, Minister of Railways and Canals, is to receive the deputation for the Trent Valley Canal at Ottawa on the 23rd inst.

ADVANCE IN SUGARS.—A cable despatch of Thursday reports an advance of 6d per cwt. in Refined Sugars. New York is firm, with an advance of ⅛c per lb. on quotations of the early days of the week.

TWO MEN DROWNED.—The schooner Highflyer, arrived at Gloucester, reports the loss of two of her men, Robert McDonald and Joseph Chisholm, on Jeffrye's Bank on the 1st inst. while hauling trawls. Their dory was found bottom up. The drowned men belonged to Cape Breton.

PURCHASE COMPLETED.—A Detroit, Michigan, despatch of the 3rd says : "The purchasing committee of the Grand Trunk completed its purchase of the Western division of the Chicago and Lake Huron to-day, by planking down $250,000 cash, which will be used by Special Master Commissioner Mandell to pay off receiver's certificates. A deed was given to the purchasing committee this morning."

BEING PROVIDED FOR.—The Grits have an admirable way of providing for their poor relations. Mr. Dymond, who was defeated in North York, where he boasted that beating Dr. Strange would be as easy an operation as sticking a sheep, has become a kind of pensioner on the party. Having no good office to give him, his friends have discovered a new method of accomplishing the same result. They sent him to investigate the municipal affairs of the town of Cornwall, and now, according to the Reporter, the only result to the town is a bill from the Commissioner for $567.77 ! Cute people, these Grits.

BOOKS BY MAIL.—The following information quoted from the Canada Official Postal Guide, may be useful to persons sending books by mail : "No book packet may contain anything which is sealed or otherwise closed against inspection ; nor must there be any letter, unless the whole of such letter be printed. Entries, however, merely stating who sends the book, etc., or to whom it is given, are not regarded as a letter. Indeed, as respect the name and address of the sender, writing is not only permitted but recommended ; so that if the cover comes off, or for other reasons the packet cannot be forwarded, it may be returned."

"CUTS."—The best thing we know of to heal a cut or wound is to bind up the injured part with a cloth saturated in Perry Davis' Pain-Killer.

DIAMOND FRAUD CASE

ACCIDENTS AND OFFENCES.

BULLDOZING IN LOUISIANA.

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 5.—The officers and directors of the defunct Mechanics and Laborers Savings Bank, on trial for fraud, while leaving Court at recess on Wednesday, were assailed by an angry mob of depositors, mostly women. Threats of violence were made and at one time a riot was feared.

NORWICH, Conn., Dec. 5.—The funeral of Mrs. Gilman, wife of the forger recently pardoned from Auburn, occurred yesterday. Gilman and two sons were present. Henry Ward Beecher and Rev. Dr. Houghton officiated. The latter grasped Gilman's hand at the grave and kissed him. Gilman seemed utterly broken down.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 5.—Two employees at Tredegar iron works objected to working at a mill where negro rollers were employed, and 2000 rollers and puddlers struck. 350 men are thrown out of employment.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 5.—Wm. Yocum on Wednesday night, was awakened by a noise supposed to be burglars in the house, and fired, fatally wounding his brother George, aged ten.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 5.—The old Arnold diamond fraud case has been revived by a suit brought yesterday in the United States Court against Mary Arnold, wife of the late Philip Arnold, executrix of his will, by Samuel L. M. Barlow of New York, for $143,000 advanced on Arnold's representations of the discovery of an immense diamond fields in New Mexico and Arizona. These field were afterwards found to have been "salted" to deceive experts.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 5. — Squire McMullen, who led the gang which broke up two Democratic conventions because they were against Randall, was arrested and charged with assault and battery with intent to kill Michael Lyons.

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—Thos. W. Davey, the well-known theatrical manager, is dead. He played low comedy in Buffalo for several seasons.

ELKTON, Md., Dec. 5.—The Governor refused to commute the sentence of Medford Waters, who will be hanged to-day for the murder of a fellow laborer during a dispute in a cornfield. When asked yesterday if he was prepared to die Waters replied "if they would let me out to kill that nigger woman who testified against me I should then be prepared."

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5th.—Reports from Tahiti state that the Government grants a subsidy of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars yearly for a line of steamers between Papeta and San Francisco. The line will be started next spring.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5th.—The Times' New Orleans special says that the fact that Madison parish, formerly giving 2,500 Republican majority, now returns 222 Democrat majority, is explained. Some days before the election, bulldozers from the country made hostile demonstrations, picked out colored men with whom the management of the campaign rested, and systematically got rid of them. On Sunday Dave Armstrong was hanged at Morrassas. H. M. Brown, late postmaster, was hanged on Monday night. Ex-sheriff Peck was whipped. All the other Republican election officers fled. The parish vote was deposited in the boxes in bulk, all Democrat, and counted as above. The negroes and Republicans did not vote, except in one precinct ; only 100 votes were cast. This operation alone makes a difference of 5,000 in favor of Wiltz. Robbing two polls in Jefferson, and the capture of one in Algiers destroyed about 2,000 Republican majority. New Orleans polled only half her registered vote. The department ordinance on repudiation was defeated in the State. The parish of St. Mary's gave 800 majority for Beattie, Republican ; before the returns could be compiled the clerk's office was entered, and the ballot boxes destroyed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A farmer named Mason, residing at Fort Edward, arrived on Tuesday to attend his son's funeral. He seemed beside himself with grief. He suddenly left the body and has been missing ever since.

Long Island villages suffer severely from scarlet fever. The schools in Hempstead were closed yesterday. It is stated that 30 cases existed among the children.

It was reported yesterday that the police commissioners had ordered the lotteries and raffles at the seventh regiment fair to be stopped. It is claimed the drawings do not differ from those at all church fairs.

At a meeting yesterday for the prevention of cruelty to children, a letter was read from Milan, Italy, stating that a society had been formed there to aid the New York society in suppressing the system of importing children by padrones for begging purposes.

Arrived, the City of Brussels from Liverpool, and the Belgianland from Antwerp.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons ; for those of small means as well as for the rich ; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society :—

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, DEC. 5.

City and Vicinity.

QUARTER SESSIONS.—The sittings of this Court will commence on Tuesday next, 9th inst.

POLICE.—The policemen were busy last night, they having made seven arrests. Three tramps sheltered in the cells.

MEETINGS.—The City Council will hold an adjourned meeting on Monday night, and the Board of Education will hold a regular meeting on Tuesday night.

CLOSED.—Navigation has finally closed for the season. The steamer Armenia, which was the last boat out, yesterday, and the choice above Telegraph Island too heavy for her, so she was obliged to run back to Mill Point, where she will winter.

DANGEROUS.—The attention of the Street Committee is called to the dangerous state of the excavation where the water tank formerly stood, adjoining the Dafoe House, on Bridge Street. Either the tank should be replaced or the excavation should be filled in.

RAILWAY CONTRACT.—The Campbellford Herald says :—"Reeve J. W. Dinwoodie has been given another job on the Railway, that of building and putting in a staunch condition the piers in the Moira River. It will be remembered that the work on these piers was condemned by the railway authorities, and Mr. Dinwoodie has been employed to make the bridge which spans the piers, permanently strong and secure."

WHARFAGE.—The wharf accommodation for the Grand Junction and North Hastings Railways, has proved to be entirely too cramped for the amount of business transacted by those railways this year. As the trade of both roads is likely to be very largely increased during next season, further wharf accommodation ought to be provided. The winter is the most favorable time for doing at least a part of such work, and as the water is unusually low, the time is exceptionally favorable for such an undertaking, which we hope will not be long delayed.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."—This ever popular moral drama will be presented at the Opera House on Thursday next, at a matinee in the afternoon and in the evening, by Messrs. Anthony & Ellis' company. These managers claim to have the best combination for the performance of this play that has ever been organized, and the success which their organization has met with in Montreal seems to bear out the assertion. The Evening Post of that city says of the performance at the Theatre Royal there :—"The company is exceptionally fine and one in which no weak point can be detected. The principal characters are sustained by thorough artists, and in each case the acting is marked by a quiet finish which was in pleasing contrast with the usual run of ranting George Harrises, swashbucklers of Phineas Fletchers, and ridiculously exaggerated Marks. The Uncle Tom of Mr. Fisher was a careful and consistent impersonation ; strong in emotion without apparent effort, and subdued and telling even in the less powerful scenes. Miss Minnie Foster was such a Topsy as the imagination would depict after reading Mrs. Stowe's story, as full of unexpected, weird-like eccentricities as a French paper is of politics. A negro melody, with banjo accompaniment, was an original feature in the impersonation. A better team of comedians than Phineas Fletcher or Gumption Cute and Marks of last night's performance would be difficult to find. Their appearance on the stage was the signal for uproarious laughter, and the murriment continued, with slight interruptions, until their exit. The precocious talent displayed by little May Hillman was something remarkable. Her lines were read with an expression and depth of feeling which would have been creditable to an actress of mature years. The rest of the cast was faithfully fulfilled, and the entire peformance was one of unusual merit. The only fault to be found with the Jubilee Singers was that their appearance on the stage was of too brief duration." Popular prices have been adopted, and seats can be secured at Reynolds.'

GRAIN SHIPMENT.—Five cars of barley were shipped to-day by Downey & Preston for Albany.

RUN OFF.—The engine of the B. & N. H. Railway ran off the track in the yard at Madoc last night. It was put on the rails again without having sustained any damage.

POSTPONED.—The employees of Messrs. J. M. Walker & Co., have postponed their oyster supper, which was to have taken place this evening, until Friday evening next, because of illness in the family of a member of the firm.

THE ICE BRIDGE.—Such was the strength of the ice between Ferry Point and Zwick's Island on Saturday that three men pulling a boat after them were enabled to reach within 40 rods of the shore of the latter before any thin ice was encountered. The remainder of the passage was made in safety.

PRINCE EDWARD RAILWAY.—From the Picton Times we learn that a gang of men with a ballast train are at work putting the road in thorough order for the winter. A train is said by the same authority to have recently run from beyond Consecon to Trenton, a distance of 14 miles, in 12 minutes, including a stoppage to let off some passengers at Consecon. On Monday last several freight cars on the afternoon train ran off the track near Wellington. The damage was not heavy, and nobody was hurt.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.—The entertainment in aid of the funds of St. George's Church took place in the Workingmen's Temperance Hall (Robertson's Block) last evening before a fair audience. A pleasing programme was rendered, consisting of instrumental and vocal music, the contributions of Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Goetzel and Mrs. St. Clair, Professor St. Clair and Mr. Adams. Messrs. Carmichael and Lewis pleased the assembly with excellent readings and recitations. In the absence of Prof. Macoun, Rev. Dr. Clarke delivered an address on the North-West territories, which was highly appreciated. Dr. Potts occupied the chair, and the musical portion of the programme was under the direction of Prof. St. Clair.

THE BAY.—A strong sheet of ice formed on the bay last night, stretching from shore to shore. The ferry steamer Prince Edward attempted to make a passage to Ferry Point this morning, but after proceeding about half the distance the ice was found to be so thick and strong that her rudder became fast in it and she was then forced to return to her dock. Capt. Jellett states that he will not attempt to cross again to-day.—Edward Reddick, the wheelsman on this ferry, met the ferry with an ice boat this morning, having come from the Point on the ice.—The upper ferry steamer Mary Ethel was able to continue her trips to-day. Capt. Jellett has since informed us that one of the steamer's rudder chains was broken, and he was confident that he could reach the southern shore quite readily this afternoon.

Marine Notes.

The Oswego Palladium of Wednesday says:—"The steam barge S. H. Johnson left here on Sunday night for Trenton for lumber ; on Monday she found the Bay frozen and is loading lumber at Mill Point for E. W. Rathbun, Oswego."

The schooners D. Andrews and British Queen may probably be used as floating storehouses by Messrs. Downey & Co. during the winter

Messrs. Dorsey and Kelly have arrived home from the wreck of the Phelps. The only body recovered was Dowey's, which was buried at Glen Arbor. Mr. Dorsey thinks the chances poor for recovering the other bodies.—Oswego Times.

Eight of the scows which went adrift from the tow which met such a disastrous fate on Lake Ontario, have been hauled off by the tug Seymour and taken to Little Sodus.

The schooner Ontario arrived yesterday from Oswego, and will winter here.

Campbellford and Vicinity.

(From the Herald.)

A burglary and robbery was committed in this village a few nights ago. Future developments may throw some light on the present darkness of the act, awaiting which we give no present particulars.

Mr. WM. Denmark, a resident of Manitoba, has come back again to visit his family and friends in this village. He remains here over the Christmas holidays, when he will return in his western home. [Mr. Dunmark is a brother of Geo. Denmark, Esq., of this city.]

The traffic on the Grand Junction is still of considerable bulk, and it is not a little strange where all the freight comes from. Many passengers pass up and down the line. A continuation of the road through Ireland, by the recently appointed Governors of Maidan, Logar and Kohistar. The Regulars mentioned are probably part of the ex-Ameers army.

VIENNA, Dec. 4.—Accounts from Egypt state that the Government is actively completing preparations for a war with Abyssinia. If hostilities are resumed the Egyptian forces will be divided into two armies, an offensive army of 8,000 men and a defensive one of 12,000. The offensive army will be directed on the Egyptian harbor of Arkiko, the capital of Abyssinia. The defensive army will take up two entrenched positions commanding the two main roads of Abyssinia.

WEATHER REPORTS

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours : For the lower lakes increasing northeasterly to southeasterly winds, cloudy, mild weather, rain or possibly snow to-night in north easterly Ontario.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.— Indications : For lower lakes, warmer, threatening and rainy, partly as snow in northern portions, temporarily followed over upper lake regions by cold winds.

Capt. D. Foster, of Port Burwell, Ont., writes: —"I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from your ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. Having been troubled with an occasional cough, at times very severe, during years past, I have found your BALSAM to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results."

Police Court.

(Before A. DIAMOND, P. M.)

FRIDAY, Dec. 5 1879.

DRUNK.

John Curto and John Patterson, charged with the above offence, were dismissed.

LARCENY.

Elgin Hogle was charged with having stolen feloniously a quantity of goods and chattles the property of Jessie Liddle.

Owing to the absence of witnesses the case was enlarged till three, o'clock at which time the Magistrate said if the witnesses were ready he would hear the case ; if not he would remand the prisoner until Monday and would accept bail in $400, the prisoner in $200 and one surety of $200.

HOUSE BREAKING.

Peter Mahon appeared on remand charged by Elizabeth Langley with house breaking. The prosecutrix identified the prisoner, as did also her mother, as one of the parties who were engaged in the house breaking on Saturday night last. The evidence proved an alibi and the prisoner was discharged.

Edward Clancey, Jas Macfarlane and Lawrence Flannery, charged with the same offence, were remanded until Monday.

VIOLATING THE LIQUOR LAW.

John Barry was charged with selling liquor without a license. After hearing the evidence the case was enlarged till Wednesday next for judgment.

POLICE COURT INCIDENT.—A scene which caused some hilarity and gave a more than ordinary interest to the proceedings of the civic tribunal, occurred this morning. An old woman named White, who was a witness in the case of Langley vs. Males, lost control of her tongue and it began to wag so desperately that the directors of the court were not listened to and the cel- mination was such abuse of Mr. P. Mc- Mahon, the counsel for the prisoner—who made his first appearance in the Court, and won his first case—that she was sent to the cells.

Burglary at Lucknow.

The Thieves Captured at Listowel.

LUCKNOW, Dec. 5.—Early this morning the shop of Mrs. Chas. Secord, of this village, was entered, the safe broken open and about $300 stolen. The supposed thieves left here on the 4.50 a.m. train and were captured at Listowel.

War in West Africa.

A Conflict Between Two Cannibal Tribes.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The conflict in New Calabar, West Africa, is between King Amachree, of New Calabar, and his followers on one hand, and a powerful chief called Will Praid and his adherents on the other. Since the late King of New Calabar died, the accession to the throne of Amachree has not given satisfaction. During the conflict mentioned the wounded or prisoners were immediately killed, and in many cases eaten by the lower classes.

It is thought the British naval commander would not interfere unless the British subjects were molested. Boany is suffering almost equally with New Calabar, and the trade of the district is almost a a standstill.

King Jaja is also reported as collecting forces to join in the struggle. In such an event the inhabitants of the three kingdoms, would be drawn into the conflict. Her Majesty's ship Dido was outside the bar at Bonny, ready to enter.

AFGHANISTAN.

A GOVERNOR KILLED BY AFGHAN TROOPS.

CABUL, Dec. 4.—The Governor of Maidan was killed by the Afghan regulars and Hillmen yesterday. The Governors of Kohistan and Logar Valley have been threatened with the same fate.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 5.—The Arizona, from New York, which was seriously damaged by collision with an iceburg off the banks of Newfoundland on Nov. 7th, has arrived.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Thomas Boland, inspector of elections, for falsely issuing certificates of votes for alderman, has been sentenced to 2 years imprisonment.

LONDON, Dec. 5th.—The Industry cotton spinning Co., owners of large mills at Oldham, have gone into liquidation, in consequence of the depression in trade.

The report of the Cleveland iron masters' association for November shows the revival of the iron trade to be well maintained.

The issue of prior lien bonds by the Atlantic and Great Western R.R. reorganization trustees, is stated to be successfully completed in Holland. The amount issued there and here is $8,000,000, but it is contemplated to increase that amount by two millions, to complete the equipment of the road, to narrow the gauge, and to pay off all existing prior liens.

The steamer Anglia, from New York for Glasgow, stranded in a snow storm near Pladda, a low rocky island off Scotland in the Frith of Clyde off the south end of the island of Arran. It is expected she will be got off. The vessel makes no water.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Joseph and Mary Valkner, indicted for alleged attempt to poison Charles Blair, a merchant from Chatham Four Corners, pleaded not guilty this morning. Trial on Monday.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—Select councilman McMullen was arraigned to-day for assault with intent to kill Michael Lyon at the 40th ward democratic convention, on Tuesday. The complainant failed to appear. McMullen entered bail in $2,000 for his appearance.

CABUL, Dec. 5.—The Governor of Maidan reported killed by Afghan regulars and hill men, and the Governors of Kohistan and Logar Valley, are reported threatened with the same fate. They probably are Mahomed Hassein, Major Abdullah Khan, and Shebaz Khan, the recently appointed Governors of Maidan, Logar and Kohistar. The Regulars mentioned are probably part of the ex-Ameers army.

VIENNA, Dec. 4.—Accounts from Egypt state that the Government is actively completing preparations for a war with Abyssinia. If hostilities are resumed the Egyptian forces will be divided into two armies, an offensive army of 8,000 men and a defensive one of 12,000. The offensive army will be directed on the Egyptian harbor of Arkiko, the capital of Abyssinia. The defensive army will take up two entrenched positions commanding the two main roads of Abyssinia.

An Honest Medicine Free of Charge.

Of all medicines advertised to cure any affection of the Throat, Chest or Lungs, we know of none we can recommend so highly as DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness, tickling in the throat, loss of voice, etc. This medicine does positively cure, and that where everything else has failed. No medicine can show one-half so many positive and permanent cures as have already been effected by this truly wonderful remedy. For Asthma and Bronchitis it is a perfect specific, curing the very worst cases in the shortest time possible. We say by all means give it a trial. Trial bottles free. Regular size $1.00. For sale by James Clarke & Co.

It is said that some of the alkaloids which enter into the combination of Fellows' Hypophosphites, are extracted from trees which attain to a great age, and that this fact suggested to Mr. Fellows the idea of their employment. Whether the success of the preparation is due to this, we are not prepared to say, but the idea is a good one.

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CHAPTER III.

THE DESERTED CHILD.

Collins's Court was a dirty, smoky, begrimed square of houses, entered by a low, dark passage from the High Street. The dwellings in it were enormous and dense-ly crowded by people, poor, squalid, and wretched—people who, by vice or misfortunes, were ever fighting a hard battle with poverty, want, and disease.

Very little light and still less sunshine ever entered the dingy place; and even in these bright dry summer days it was shrouded in gloom, and the stones of the pavement were wet with damp. The other common and unlovely features of such a locality we need not describe. The dwellers in large cities know them well enough. The inhabitants of sweet rural villages and rose to ivy-covered cottages, who knew nothing of them by experience, by perchance even by cultivation, should thank Providence out of grateful hearts that they live amid such different surroundings. At the outside of many windows wet clothing were hung on ropes to dry, though, if they did dry there, it would be more by the influence of smoke than anything else. And a few of the windows were open, and from them protruded the heads and shoulders of slovenly women, and half dressed men, on whose faces the freshness of health was not to be discerned, but instead the sallow, sickly hue of diseases, the paleness of confinement, or worse still, the bloated stamps of debauchery. Down in the area of the court groups of children were playing, for childhood must have its play, even in the most untoward circumstances. And, oh, what pitiful specimens of youthful humanity did these children present, their bare limbs but partly covered by the rags of their tattered garments, their bare feet defiled by the mire, their sharp eyes set in dirty, unwashed, pinched, and hungry-looking faces, half concealed by masses of matted hair, which no comb had ever separated.

How different the whole scene from the thousand rural pictures which that same golden Saturday afternoon presented in the villages and hamlets, the straths and glens of the country. On these fell heaven's bright sunshine, and over them floated the pure free breeze of health and fragrance. The faces of the men and women were blooming with health as they sat in their porches, or lay on mossy banks or gowany braes, listening to the murmur of the stream, or watching the gambols of the rosy children on the grassy and flowery banks, where shouts of glee and burst of merry laughter made brighter still the gladsome scene, and filled the thoughtful heart with a keen sense of happiness.

Yet even in Collins' Court, with all its gloom and filth, the children played, and that was the saddest and most pitiful sight there presented. It was childhood trying to assert itself, and, oh, in what a strange and mournful light. Instead of the artless innocence which we see in the looks and words and actions of childish hearts, their young faces showed a sharpness little akin to childhood, and their words and gestures partook little of the gullelessness which should have attached to their tender years. Poor, hapless things, the sights they saw, the experiences they underwent, tended not to foster the natural simplicity of their infant minds, but awoke in their young souls a preternatural and unlovely intelligence, which banished many of childhood's charms, and made them the saddest objects of human contemplation. Those who knew what they should have been—who knew what children of their age in happier circumstances are—felt a sore suffering of heart as they gazed on their young lives already so greatly warped, and thought of the dark future into which they were likely to grow.

In a miserable, empty, and fireless room on the third story, the window of which overlooked the court, sat a man and woman alone. They might be about forty years of age—not older—and had that hard feeling, less expression which poverty so often give. We have seen these two people before. They were Dick Marston and his wife, Bet, who, on a December night, some years before, had, in their residence among the hills received an unexpected visit from Haffoy White and taken charge of the new born infant he brought in consideration of the sum of fifty pounds which he handed over with it.

That fifty pounds don't seem to have improved their circumstances—rather the reverse, if we may judge from the locality where they have their abode, from the aspect of their abode itself, and from the poverty-stricken appearance which their own persons present. The room in which they were was entirely destitute of furniture. The only thing in the shape of a seat was a large stone, and on this Bet sat. Dick lay a yard or so from her on the floor, with his back against the wall, and having a very moody expression on his surly face. In one corner a bundle of mingled straw and shavings was spread, and that was positively the only article of domestic use remaining to indicate a place of habitation.

'Well we're not moving too soon, at any-rate,' muttered Dick, in a bitter growling tone. 'We've stayed on here till we've got completely cleaned out.'

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Dutch.

Holland, the home of the Dutch, is surrounded with dikes, to prevent the overflow of the land by the waters of the sea. Every Dutchman whose land borders on the sea, makes it his business to walk every morning along the edges of the dikes, and watch whether, during the night any water has found its way by any chance through them. If there be even the smallest trickling of water perceptible, he does everything else and repairs the difficulty. Left until to-morrow the little hole may be widened, until a rude tide forces its way through the embankments and endangers his homestead and family. This prudence is natural and one would suppose that equal precautions should be taken to prevent the access of disease to the human system. But every man thinks, "every other one is mortal but himself," and so neglects the plainest rules for self preservation. A box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS kept in the house, and their application upon the first appearance of sickness, will prevent the inroads of disease. They cleanse the system from malaria of disease, stop the gaps, as the Dutchmen in his dikes, and renders all safe again.

NOTHING can exceed the folly and stupidity of those who submit to the pangs of the various forms and complications of rheumatism and gout, by which they are tortured and disabled, when they can, by one or two applications of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, obtain instantaneous and permanent relief. Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

Trial bottles 25 cents.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhage, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

IN THE HARD DRY COUGH OF CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, with its difficult expectoration and labored breathing, the demulcent properties of Robinson's Pumpkin-seed Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Lacto-Phosphate of Lime manifests itself in its healing and soothing effect upon the irritated mucous membranes of the Bronchial passages; the cough quickly yields, the breathing is eased, while Nature thus aided resorts herself, and where once gaunt Consumption stared the victim in the face, now Hope beckons on to life and health.

Prepared solely by J. H. ROBINSON, Pharmaceutical Chemist, St. John, N. B., and for sale by all Druggists and General Dealers. Price $1.00 per bottle; six bottles for $5.00.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT,
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are being put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer them facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

SCOTT'S EMULSION
PURE COD LIVER OIL
WITH
HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

This preparation combines the two best remedies ever discovered for Consumption, Colds and Chronic Coughs, Scrofula, Rheumatism and Diseases of the Blood, General Debility, and all Wasting Diseases of Children. It not only contains the well known and highly esteemed virtues of Cod Liver Oil in a form that is perfectly tasteless and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, but in addition, the potent curative properties of the Hypophosphites, so long celebrated that the remedial powers of both are largely increased. Physicians universally acknowledge the vastly superior virtues of this emulsion of cod liver oil and medicines in all the above diseases. It is not only better tolerated, but much more readily assimilated by the system than plain Cod Liver Oil, and a better agent in enriching and purifying the blood, relieving the irritation of the throat and lungs, restoring the impaired functions and giving strength and vigor to the whole body. It is sweet and palatable to the taste, never nauseates, deposits or spoils. Be sure and ask for Scott's Emulsion. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle.

JOHNSTON'S
is now extensively used in British and Continental Institutions, Hospitals and Asylums, and is prescribed by the medical faculty wherever it has been introduced.

Its adaptability is general to the invalid, the convalescent and the vigorous. To children it secures a strong muscular development, and for maternal nursing, imperfect mastication, athletic training, physical exhaustion, indigestion or mental overwork, it is the nutrition best known to food.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER

FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

Females suffering from pain and weakness will derive great comfort and strength from the use of Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster. Where children are affected with whooping cough, ordinary coughs or colds or weak lungs, it is the one and only treatment they should receive. This article contains new medicinal elements such as is found in no other remedy in the same form. It is far superior to ordinary porous plasters, liniments, electrical appliances and other external remedies. It relieves pain at once, strengthens and cures where other plasters will not even relieve. For LUMBAGO WEAK BACK, Rheumatism, Kidney disease and all local aches and pains it is also the best known remedy. Ask for Benson's Capcine Plaster and take no other. Sold by all Druggists. Price 25 cents.

SHE LOVES ME WELL.

If my fine heart can naught divine,
Her own true heart is surely mine ;
In her pure presence, peace so sweet
E'er makes my early life complete ;
If this be not true love, and rare
Beyond compute, beyond compare,
Then long drear days in cycles by,
For woman's love is all a lie !

Though silence often holds us long,
Our hearts o'er sing in sweetest song,
And soul communes with soul the while,
And eyes glad glow, and lips still smile.
No vague, wild thought or sad unrest
E'er stirs the outlet of my breast,
But every hour we chance to meet,
My heart throbs new with love complete.

She loves me well, she loves me well ;
Her heaving breast the tale will tell !
And well I know she loves me well,
She loves me well ;
I will know I know she loves me well
Full well—full well !

I love her well, I love her well—
How well my fluttering heart will tell !
Enough I love her well—
She knows I love her well,
Alas, she knows too well how well,
Only too well.

I caught her look of fond delight
When first her eyes met mine to-night ;
Her voice was low—why did I dread ?
Low, but I heard the words she said—
I heard each accent said :
Over our head the myrtle tree,
And this is the thing she said to me ;
Yes, this is what she said to me,
Still coy, but not afraid :
"My darling, sure you will not tell,
If I confess I love you well !"

Sunday Reading.

Speech Versus Silence.

It is hard to tell which is the most provoking—one who talks when silence should reign or quiet is necessary, or one who keeps his lips closed on all occasions with a portinacity which makes us wonder that na ure bestowed a tongue upon him at all. There are certainly occasions when speech is silver and silence gold, but pleasant talk is something every one likes. Therefore, a first visit from a "charming person" seems agreeable ; but know him intimately, and you will know that he—by the way, it is oftener a she—that she, then, jabbers on complacently and continually without the slightest consideration for the feelings of any other individual.

The joy of hearing her own voice seems to be quite enough. At funerals or weddings ; at church during the sermon or the hymn ; while someone else is trying to talk ; while an elocutionist is endeavoring to thrill the souls of his hearers ; particularly in the domestic circle, if any one is reading, writing, or engaged in important calculations—on patter the words faster than rain drops.

The chatterer goes everywhere ; why, it is hard to tell, since her only joy is talking. She declares that she adores Shakespeare, but would not walk across the street in a la e of Ophelia, and the immense audience listens in silence, the chatterer pours into the ear of her unfortunate escort an account of how Cousin Jennie's cloak is made, and what Fannie and the modiste and she herself said about it when it was being fitted.

Recently, at a lecture given by one worth hearing, I sat just before a blatant creature of the male sex, who never closed his lips during the whole evening. He began criticising the personal appearance of the speaker, added, by degrees, his biography, with slight sketches of celebrated persons, and what he said when he saw or heard them. Then he gradually glided into a minute description of Boston and all its public places, which being a comprehensive subject lasted the rest of the time. As he walked down the aisle, still chatting to his apparently delighted companion, I rejoiced that man was no longer a creature of impulse, else he would have been attracted hither and have descended from his platform, and, assisted by the enraged audience, annihilated the self-sufficient babbler.

The worst of these eternal talkers is that they always consider themselves fine conversationists, whereas, even at its best, monologue is not conversation, and is the greatest blight upon social intercourse, even where it contributes to the gratification of the vanity of one individual.

At times, one is forced to declare that the incessant talker is the bitterest of all inflictions. But weeful indeed is the silent caller, who has not a word to say for herself on any subject, vainly does one work to interest her, and when after painful labor nothing has been elicited but "Yes" or "No," "I don't know," "I suppose so," "Really," and "Dear me !" the soul sinks, words refuse to come, and one sits staring and silently until the Silent One grows offended and departs, palpably and deeply injured. Then, indeed, in the remorseful moments that follow, for the silent person is generally a very good individual whom one would not offend for the world, arises the question : "Which is the worst—too much talk or too much silence ?" and echo answers, "I don't know." I don't know either.

Finding "Girl" in the Bible.

An English town missionary a short time ago, related a remarkable incident. There was a dodging house in this district, which he had long desired to enter, but was deterred from so doing by his friends, who assured him that life would be thereby endangered. He became at length so uneasy that he determined to risk all consequences and try to gain admission. So one day he gave a somewhat timid knock, at the door, in response of which a coarse voice roared out, "Who's there ?" and at the same moment a vicious looking woman opened the door, and ordered the man of God away.

"Lest him come in, and see who he is and what he wants," growled out the same voice. The missionary walked in, and bowing politely to the rough looking man whom he had just heard speak, said :

"I have been visiting most of the houses in this neighborhood to read with and talk to the people about good things. I have passed your door so long as I feel I ought, for I wish to talk with you and your lodgers.

"Are you what is called a town missionary ?"

"I am sir," was the reply.

"Well, then," said the fierce looking man, "sit down and hear what I am going to say. I will ask you one question out of the bible. If you answer me right, you may call at this house, and read and pray with us or our lodgers as often as you like ; if you do not answer me right, we will tear your clothes off your back, and tumble you neck and heels into the street. Now, what do you say to that ! for I am a man of my word."

The missionary was perplexed, but at length quietly said :

"I will try."

"Well then," said the man, "here goes. Is the word girl in any part of the bible ? If so, where is it to be found, and how often ! That is my question."

"Well sir, the word girl is in the bible, but only once, and may be found in the words of the prophet Joel, iii. 3. The words are, 'And sold a girl for wine, that they might drink."

"Well," replied the man, "I'm dead beat ; I durst to have bet five pounds you could not have told."

"And I could not have told you yesterday," said the visitor. "For several days I have been praying that the Lord would open me a way into this house, and this very morning, when reading the scriptures in my family, I was surprised to find the word girl, and got the Concordance to see if it occured again, and found it did not. And now, sir, I believe that God did know, and does know what will come to pass, and surely His hand is in this for my protection and your good."

The whole of the inmates were greatly surprised, and the incident resulted in the conversion of the man, his wife and two of the lodgers.

Old Friends and New.

An old friendship, though so much more valuable, is perhaps less delightful than a new friendship. Few persons, indeed, would be aware of any sense of loss, if they passed at once from the keen interests of one to the steady repose of the other ; but we lose the first long before we gain the last and the intervening stage in the world of friendship, and indeed in the whole world of intercourse between mind and mind, is apt to be disappointing. It is one of the commonest of errors to mistake loss of novelty for deterioration. All that is meant by saying that such and such a writer is "gone off," for instance, is in many cases merely that a condition of equilibrium is established between his mind and that of the public ; that he has taken his place among those influences from which men expect much, and know, on the whole, what they are to expect ; and that the kind of interest which is akin to surprise is roused by him no longer. And all that is implied in the disappointment which often succeeds to the first enthusiasm of a friendship, is that it no longer inspires that thrill with which the mind expands to receive a new influence. Perhaps even the stability of absolute confidence, the repose of a perfect understanding, are not so delightful as the stimulus to thought and feeling afforded by the new sounding-board which we gain in the first contact with a reponsive mind. Much less is the mixture of feeling which intervenes between the excitement of a new affection, and the repose of an old affection. The perils of this trying interval, most evident in the case of husband and wife, threaten in a less degree, every intimate relation. We forgive many sins more easily than the natural, unreasonable claim that a transient stage shall be permanent. Nothing equally innocent is so disastrous to conjugal happiness, as that disappointment in the relation which is so apt to follow the agitation and the mystery of its dawn. We should find the same relief in realising that the desire for what is new is a part, not of frivolous human nature, but of all human nature, as in learning that the damage we had ascribed to a malicious enemy was due to some wild animal. The damage, no doubt, remains the same. But the inference from it, that was more bitter than itself, is gone.

The gain of recognizing a disadvantage as inevitable is often exaggerated, no doubt. One wonders, for instance, at the nutriment which the memories of the ancient world must have derived from the everlasting assurance that all men were mortal ; and the so-called "Consolation" presented to them often consisted of little else. Still, there is such a thing as making a place in the mind for inevitable misfortune. Life's ills are marvellously diminished when we have extracted from them the sense of unreasonableness. "My old friend is tired of me." You have merely said twice over that he is an old friend—or rather, that he is not a new friend. Old friends, properly so called, do not grow tired of each other, but they must pass through many stages of mutual weariness before they come to that infinite variety lying in the depth of every human nature which no one can reach as he quits the stage of novelty. We should no more feel disappointed at our friends being sometimes tired of us, than at his wishing to quit our homes far the seaside ; he will not wish to take up his abode there.

Our readier acquiescence in renouncing all that is at once delightful and fugitive in new friendship is not the only advantage we should gain in rightly apprehending the different seasons of a relation between human spirits, or by without some peculiar circumstance occurring calculated to produce painful sensations. To those who lie out of the road of great affections and assigned various positions, which will answer all the purposes of disturbing their serenity. It is when prosperity is at the highest that our prudence should be awake and vigilant to prevent misfortune.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true German Syrup is curing thousands of these dreadful diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you clear from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

It is said that some of the alkaloids which enter into the combination of Follows' Hyphophosphites, are extracted from trees which attain to a great age, and that this fact suggested to Mr. Fellows the idea of their employment. Whether the success of the preparation is due to this, we are not prepared to say, but the fact is a good one.

Gems of Thought.

How much pain the evils have cost us that never happened.

Following many vocations has ruined the life of many a man.

An ounce of generous praise will do more to make a man your friend than a pound of fault-finding.

If you regard yourself as the guardian of your own honor be careful that your position is not a sinecure.

It is a great deal easier to build castles in the air when you are young than it is to live in them when you are old.

A man of sense is not ashamed of poverty or of deficiency in learning, but he keeps the marks of it out of sight.

It is a very good thing to mean well, but if you expect to get on in the world you must also do well. Good intentions pay no debts.

A man should always look upwards for comfort, for when the heavens above our heads is dark, the earth under our feet is sure to be darker.

Activity, like zeal, is only valuable as it is applied, but most people bestow their praises on the quality, and give little heed to the purposes to which it is directed.

We esteem in the world those who do not merit our esteem, and neglect persons of true worth ; but the world is like the ocean, the pearl is in its depths, the seaweed swims.

Manhood in the Christian life is a better thing than boyhood, because it is a riper thing, and old age ought to be a brighter, and a calmer, and a more serene thing than manhood.

Let us think much of rest—the rest which is not of indolence, but of powers in perfect equilibrium ; rest which is deep as summer midnight is, yet full of life and force as summer sunshine, the Sabbath of eternity.

The world is a looking glass, and gives back to every man the reflection of his own face. Frown at it, and it will frown ; and look merrily upon you ; laugh at it and with it, and it is a pleasant, kind companion.

Don't flatter yourself that friendship authorizes you to say disagreeable things to your intimates. On the contrary, the nearer you come into relation with a person, the more necessary do fact and courtesy become.

Our sight is the most perfect and delightful of all our senses. It fills the mind with the largest variety of ideas, converses with its objects at the greatest distance, and continues the longest in action without being tired or satisfied with its proper enjoyment.

Never sit down and brood over trouble of any kind. If you are vexed with yourself or the world, this is no way to obtain satisfaction. Find yourself employment that will keep your mind active ; and doing so you it, this will force out unwelcome thoughts.

Small facts of kindness, how pleasant and desirable they do make life ! Every dark object is made light by them, and every fear brushed away. When the heart is sad, and despondency sits at the entrance of the soul a kind thing will drive away despair, and makes the path cheerful and pleasant.

To keep the mind alive and clear, to think out truths and principles, and keep the heart open to embrace them ; to cling with loving reverence to all noble and generous thoughts, and to cherish every imagination of moral beauty, will gradually strengthen our purposes, ennoble our affections, and lift us to that higher region of sentiment, where truth, love, and duty, walk hand in hand.

Courtesy which is not home-bred may seem, like a hot-house plant from the tropics, to be very fully developed, very luxuriant, and almost overpoweringly pungent; but take away its artificial adjuncts, expose it to the rough weather of every-day life, and it will soon wither away, just as a gorgeous and expensive stove plant, when banished from the conservatory and exposed to the frosty air becomes ugly and repulsive in comparison with the commonest field-flower.

It seldom happens that any period of human existence, whether extensive or contracted, passes by without some peculiar circumstance occurring calculated to produce painful sensations. To those who lie out of the road of great affections and assigned various positions, which will answer all the purposes of disturbing their serenity. It is when prosperity is at the highest that our prudence should be awake and vigilant to prevent misfortune.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, DEC. 6.

The North-West Indians—Rumored Trouble Denied.

The Ottawa Citizen says : "We have been informed by the Department of the Interior that there is no foundation whatever for the sensational reports telegraphed from Winnipeg to Western papers, in which it is made to appear that the North West Indians were driven by want to commit overt acts. There has been no such occurrence as that alluded to in connection with Captain Herchmer. At the time of the Indian treaty payments in September at Fort Ellice, the Indians killed three head of cattle, which they thought had been brought there to feed them (the Indians). During their stay, Captain Herchmer, who happened to be present with some of the Mounted Police, arrested the Indians who killed the cattle, but released them again on their agreeing that the price of the animals should be deducted from their annuities. L'Abbe Martin, Bishop of St. Paul, had a conference with some of the refugee Sioux, but he did not see Sitting Bull. The sensation about the Indians at Prince Albert has no foundation. They are quiet and well disposed.

"Col. Richardson, who is reported to be in Ottawa in connection with Indian affairs, is here on private business, having obtained leave of absence. The Department have positive information that Sitting Bull is not urging an uprising. Lieut. Governor Laird has not gone to confer with the Sioux, but advices were received yesterday stating that there was no foundation in fact for the report that obtained credence some little time back that the Sioux were killing settlers, cattle at Prince Albert, and further stating that everything was quiet and no prospect of a disturbance with the Indians. The report that Sergeant Grayburn was shot is true, but it remains to be proven that he was killed by the Indians. The opinion of those conversant with the situation as regard the Mounted Police and the Blackfeet and other Indians near Forts Walsh and Macleod is adverse to the assumption that Grayburn was murdered by them. The impression is that when the facts come out it will be seen that the Indians had nothing to do with it."

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.—It is said the Dominion Parliament will be called for dispatch of business the second week in February.

UNITED STATES FINANCES.—A Committee of Republican senators has been appointed to confer with President Hayes on the financial policy of the Administration. The views expressed in the President's message have not met with the approval of the party in Congress, more especially the views of Western men, and this conference is intended to promote harmony in view of the next Presidential election.

SAD FATE.—A despatch from Toronto on the 5th says;—"The brother of Thomas Scott, the Orangeman who was killed at Fort Garry, died yesterday in the Provincial Lunatic Asylum. His mind became unsettled by the circumstances attending his brother's murder and consequent excitement that he finally became mad, and for several years has been an inmate of the Asylum. The Orangemen will probably attend his funeral in one large body."

A SENSIBLE VIEW.—The New York Herald says that the best answer America can make to the Irish appeal for sympathy is—not to contribute to the funds of the Land League, nor to assist in bringing the Irish peasantry to this continent, but to send the thousands who need it cargoes of food to eat, or the money to purchase food. The Herald believes that if the English Government does not undertake to solve the question of Irish grievances in response to the spontaneous discontent of a people who are little backward in proclaiming their grievances, it will never do so in response to the outcries of agitators in America.

POLITICAL HELP.—The Detroit Free Press says: "Our marine columns announced that the tug John A Macdonald went to the assistance of the schooner Edward Blake. As these two men are the strongest political opponents in the Dominion, it is not likely that that item will ever be reproduced in political life." Our contemporary is slightly mistaken, as in past times Sir John has extended assistance to Mr. Blake, in towing him off dangerous shoals of constitutional law on which he was stranded and might have broken up. Sir John is not a vindictive man, and would as readily help Mr. Blake out of difficulty as the tug which is named after him would assist the schooner which bears Mr. Blake's name when in distress.

An ounce of generous praise will do more to make a man your friend than a pound of fault-finding.

Election of School Trustees.

As an important amendment with reference to the election of School Trustees in cities, towns and villages was made to the School Act at the last session of the Legislature, we reproduce below, for the information of all concerned, the sections of the law in question. In rural sections the method of election remains as before, but the annual school meeting is to be held on the last Wednesday of December instead of on the second Wednesday in January, as heretofore. The sections applicable to cities, towns and villages are as follows:—

1. A meeting of the electors for the nomination of Candidates for the office of Public School Trustees shall take place at noon on the last Wednesday in the month of December, annually, or if a holiday, on the day following, at such place as shall from time to time be fixed by resolution of the Public School Board; and in municipalities divided into wards, in each ward thereof if the Board in its discretion thinks fit.

2. The Public School Board shall by resolution name the returning officer or officers to preside at the meeting or meetings for the nomination of candidates, and in case of the absence of such officer, the chairman chosen by the meeting shall preside, and the Public School Board shall give at least six days notice of such meeting.

3. If at the said meeting only the necessary number of candidates to fill the vacant offices are proposed and seconded, the returning officer or person presiding, shall, after the lapse of one hour, declare such candidates duly elected; but if two or more candidates are proposed for any one office and a poll, in respect of any such office, is demanded by any candidate or elector the returning officer or chairman shall adjourn the proceedings for filling such office until the first Wednesday of Jan'y then next, when a poll or polls shall be opened at such place or places, and in each ward, where such exist as shall be determined by resolution of said Trustees.

4. The poll or polls shall be opened at the hour of ten of the clock in the forenoon and shall continue open until five o'clock in the afternoon ; and no longer, and poll may close at any time after eleven o'clock in the forenoon when a full hour has elapsed without any vote having been pooled.

5. The Public School Board shall before the second Wednesday in December in each year, by resolution, fix the place or places for the nomination meeting, and also for holding the election in case of a pool, and also name the returning officer who shall preside at the respective polling places and forthwith give public notice thereof.

6. The returning officer or person presiding shall, on the day after the close of the election, return the poll book to the Public School Board with a solemn declaration thereto annexed, that the poll book has been correctly kept and contains a true record of the votes given at the polling places for which he was returning officer.

7. The Public School Board shall add up the number of votes for each candidate for an office as appears from the poll book so returned, and shall declare elected the candidate or candidates having the highest number of votes and shall at noon, on the day following the return of the poll books put up in some conspicious place in the municipality, and at one or more of the school houses therein, a statement showing the number of votes for each candidate, and a majority in number of trustees remaining in office, shall be a quorum for the foregoing purposes.

8. In case two or more candidates have an equal number of votes the member of the Board present who is assessed highest as a rate payer on the last revised assessment roll, shall, at the time of declaring the result of the poll give a vote for one or more of such candidates so as to decide the election.

THE TARGET.

The 15th Batt. at the Butts.

The annual prize matches of the 15th Batt. A. L. I., opened yesterday morning, over the usual ranges. The attendance of marksmen, all things considered, was very fair—spectators numbered nil. The weather was favorable—the season of the year considered—and yet there was a cool raw air, and a keen though light wind, which somewhat interfered with the accuracy of the shooting. As the score will show, many of the shooters need experience, for several at some of the ranges were unable to hit the target, and therefore they need experience, which it is hoped they will strive to gain. The first match was the SNEAK THIEF CAPTURED.—One of the sneak thieves who robbed the office of Assistant Receiver-General Fraser, in Toronto, in July of last year, has been arrested by the German police in Frankfort-on-the-Main, and the stolen notes and bonds found with him will be returned. The German authorities will themselves, it is said, attend to his punishment, so that his extradition will not be necessary.

North Hastings Iron Mines.

For the Intelligencer.

I left Belleville on the 18th ult. for Bancroft, commonly called "York River," via Bridgewater, arriving at Bancroft on the 21st, and finding the people excited over the prospects of the iron ore.

From reliable information I learnt that Mr. Pusey had sent out one of his miners to make an examination as to the quantity of iron, using a "dip needle" to test the width of the veins, &c ; that upon one lot in Dungannon he found it about 35 feet wide, and that he also traced it on several other lots. From what I learned it appears he was anxious to secure all the ore he possibly could ; that inducements were held out that a railroad would be built in two years ; that Mr. Pusey (or the Company he represents) had a bank in New York and London, intimating thereby the wealth of the party or parties, which was all very fine, but when he came down to the real question of purchasing the ore the whole thing collapsed.

Mr. Cleak informed me that he proposed to let him have the ore on the following conditions : $200 down, they to quarry 100 tons, which they proposed to do this winter, and draw it out, for which it appears a partial agreement could be made with Mr. Bentley at $6 per ton, delivered at Madoc station. This 100 tons was to be sent to test the quality of the ore, which I was informed was said to be over 90 per cent. of pure iron, (a large quantity surely to make a proper test). $400 was to be paid in one year, and at the expiration of two years (when the railroad was finished) Mr. Pusey was to get out yearly a certain quantity per year and pay 25 cents per ton, or to pay for that quantity yearly whether or no, out of which the $600 was to be repaid, but this offer would not be accepted, as it was "establishing a precedent which others would also claim," and so the party left.

I learned from Mr. Cleak that after this agent left, Mr. Pusey had written him on the subject, but Mr. Cleak had no desire to offer the same terms again, and he is wise in doing so, as there is no use in working on uncertainties, and he agrees with me that it is not best to lock up the ore in the hands of speculators, who care nothing for our country, but to make themselves rich at our expense, unless an equivalent is given for the privilege.

I also learnt that parties are trying in Carlow for ore, but was told that my letters on the subject are having an effect to make the people wary. The people in these back townships have had to undergo many privations and hardships, and if any of them have beds of iron ore, they should not give them for a song, nor allow them to be locked up in any other hands than their own, for it will not be many years before they will realize fortunes from the ores through other sources than Mr. Pusey and other speculators, whose only object is to grab what they can and then laugh at those who have been so silly as to be duped by them.

If Mr. Pusey (or the company if one) are wealthy as has been represented, surely they might advance a reasonable sum to secure the ore beds. One farmer in Madoc informed me that his ore bed was wanted and he "proposed that the party should pay him $5,000 down, and when he had taken ore enough at 25cts. per ton to pay the amount advanced, that then he should be entitled to the balance of the ore at the same rate per ton." That farmer was wise. No doubt Mr. Pusey and other speculators have got as many if not more ore beds at present than they can work and for years to come, therefore let those owning ore beds be careful and not lock them up, hold on to them unless well paid to begin with, and no doubt it will not be long before we shall have iron masters with capital amongst us who will not want to ship the ore to England or the States, but will build up furnaces and forges and work the ores amongst us, giving us the full benefit of capital and labor.

One thing more, if Mr. Pusey could quarry 100 tons of ore at York River, pay $6 per ton for carriage to Madoc Railway, pay transportation by rail to Buffalo, pay the duties on the ore, which in all would cost him over $10 per ton, what must the value of the ore be to the country to have it manufactured on the spot ! Persons with half an eye can see how much Canada would be the gainer in material wealth by keeping the ore and working it at home.

I left Bancroft at 1:30 p. m. on Wednesday, 26th ult., and staid over at Mr. Menzies', a canny Scotchman, a regular Grit, and a great admirer of Geordy Brown and the Globe, but withal a fine man, and full of talk. He would give me no peace until I read a portion of Mr. Blake's speech from the Weekly Globe. I left on the 27th, and arrived in Bridgewater the same afternoon, having found splendid roads all the way, and came home Monday, the 1st inst., all well.

Smelting Works in Belleville.

For the Intelligencer.

Is it not about time that the Belleville people should awake to their best interest, and not only start, but carry out the project of smelting iron ore here ? Can not a company be formed, and may they not confidently ask the City Corporation to take stock to a certain amount under the Act, and thereby insure not only the manufacture of the ore into pig, but eventually into bar iron and steel ?

Having received a letter from a gentleman who has read my letter published in the INTELLIGENCER a short time ago, I thought it might be advisable to give extracts from the same. He states, "I thought I would bring under your notice the fact that there are two blast furnaces with machinery and plant in perfect order lying idle in the County of Charlevoix below Quebec. Those furnaces were erected in 1875 by the Canadian Titanic Iron Company, of which I was Manager. They were in blast only eight months when the Company had to wind up its affairs owing to the depression in the iron business."

He states that he thinks "they could be purchased, taken down, removed to Belleville, erected and put in working order for a less sum than it would cost to build one furnace. There are two furnaces 50 feet high capable of turning out 20 to 25 tons of iron each, daily. Two 30 horse-power engines, three boilers—one was sufficient to furnish steam when the furnaces were in blast—two blowing cylinders, in fact everything in complete order."

Again he states that I was quite correct in my estimate of the cost of making iron in Canada.

I have written for further information on the subject, which I will lay before your readers on receipt thereof, and I trust it will not be long before some action will be taken to give us smelting works.

Yours, &c.,
BILLA FLINT.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

WE invite the attention of every person wanting to purchase Dry Goods to the following "FACTS, which we think will be of service to them in aiding them to decide where to make their purchases :

1st. Our Stock is the Largest in the City.

2nd. Our British Goods are Imported direct, and are all selected in that market by a member of the firm.

3rd. We claim to have the Choicest and most attractive Stock of Dry Goods between Toronto and Montreal.

4th. We challenge a comparison of the qualities and prices of our goods with those of any other Dry Goods House in the country, believing "a comparison" to be the most convincing argument that could be used in our favor.

REMEMBER, WE HAVE THE

Most Convenient and Best Lighted Shop in the City.

And our Stock is as reliable and cheap as any Retail Stock in the Dominion.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, DEC. 6.

City and Vicinity.

POLICE.—One prisoner and one tramp were the only occupants of the cells last night.

IRON ORE.—Five cars loaded with iron ore, from Madoc for Buffalo, left here last night.

CITY COUNCIL.—The adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held on Monday night.

CONVERSAZIONE.—The Mechanics' Institute intend having a conversazione on the 18th.

STEAMSHIP MOVEMENTS.—The steamship Moravian arrived at Halifax at 3:30 a. m. The Hibernian has arrived out.

LUMBERING.—We learn that lumbering operations are being conducted upon a rather larger scale than usual in this district.

RESIGNED.—The Napanee Beaver states that Mr. Hooper, M. P., has resigned the County Treasurership of Lennox and Addington.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. James Marshall, Road Master G. T. R., whilst shooting at a target on Thursday, received a slight wound on the cheek from a splinter off a bullet.

LAID UP.—The tug Boxer, which during the greater part of the season has been engaged in towing in the vicinity of Mill Point, arrived here on Thursday and has been laid up for the season.

PERSONAL.—Professor Macoun, who has been in Ottawa for some days, arrived home this morning, and will here prepare his report on his recent explorations in the North-West.

DEATH TO LIVE STOCK.—On Thursday a calf which had strayed on to the line of the Grand Junction was killed by a train in the vicinity of Bleecker Street, and on the day previous a dog was killed on the same line.

EXPORT OF TURKEYS.—Mr. Dunn, of Madoc, has shipped for Liverpool a large consignment of turkeys, and Mr. Job Lingham is purchasing fowls for the English market. The export trade in poultry is growing rapidly, and seems likely to attain large proportions.

THE WEATHER.—The snow has once again disappeared and given place to a general slush, which to-day made it very disagreeable to persons having business on the street. The waggon and buggy have again taken the place of the sleigh and the cutter, and the hand sleigh and skates of the small boy have been again relegated to the dark closet.

SHALE-FOIL AT MILL POINT.—From a paper read by A. A. Riddell, M. D., before the Toronto Medical Society, and published in the December number of the Canadian Journal of Medical Science, we learn that during the late outbreak of small-pox in Mill-Point, the number of cases in all was seventeen, of which five proved fatal.

LATE.—The train from the west due here at 11.40 last night was three hours late, whilst the morning express from the east was half an hour behind time.

SHIPMENTS.—Four cars of coal were shipped over the North Hastings Railway yesterday for Mr. H. Warren, Bridgewater. Three cars of potash from Tweed arrived this morning.

ARREST.—Officer Downs this morning arrested Ida Cole on a warrant, charging her with keeping a house of ill-fame. Her case was set down for hearing at three o'clock this afternoon.

THE MARKET.—There was a large attendance of sellers and buyers on the market this morning and the greater part of the square was filled with farmers' vehicles, containing supplies of beef, poultry, vegetables, &c.

The friend of temperance and sobriety, SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

LECTURE.—Prof. A. H. Blankman, of New York, is announced to deliver a lecture in the Metropolitan Hall on Friday evening, 12th inst. Subject: "How we live; how we should live; and what becomes of man."

AT VARIANCE.—The weather-vanes which adorn the City Hall tower are not agreed as to the direction of the wind, unless a gale is blowing. At present one points north-west, another south-east, a third south, and the fourth about north. The application of a little oil would correct the vagaries of these misleaders.

THE TELEPHONE.—The popularity and usefulness of this invention manifested itself to-day in an instrument being placed and the necessary wires run to the residence of the following named gentlemen: Henry Corby jr., Lake & Jenkins, John Bell and K. Blackwell. The work was done by the employes of the Montreal Telegraph Company.

TRENTON ST. ANDREW' SOCIETY.—The following are the officers of this Society for the ensuing year:—President—John S. McCall; 1st Vice President—Dr. McLellan; 2nd Vice President—L. Cruickshank; Secretary and Treasurer—R. A. Weddell; Physician—Dr. Day, Chaplain—Rev. J. A. Stewart; Piper—R. McKinnon; Standard Bearer—John Broatch.

MR. GEORGE MULLER.—Our readers will be glad to learn that Mr. George Muller, founder and patron of the Orphanage, in Bristol, England, will give two addresses in the Bridge St. Methodist Church, in this city on Tuesday and Wednesday, 16th and 17th inst. He will deal with faith and prayer and give a statement of the manner in which the Lord has supplied the wants of his Institution.

THE BAY.—The upper ferry has experienced no difficulty on account of the ice as yet and makes her trips regularly. The Prince Edward, in attempting to cross yesterday afternoon, broke another rudder chain and what with the strength of the ice and brisk wind was obliged to return to her dock. Her first effort to cross this morning was successful and she was enabled to run all day as usual.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—At the annual meeting of Moira Hose Co. No. 1 the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President—Wm. Robertson; Vice-President—James Wilson; Foreman—W. J. Brown; 1st Assistant—Jos. Braddon; 2nd Assistant—A. Stratton; Secretary—W. G. Robertson; Treasurer—A. McGinnis; Trustees—E. Pringle, T. McNamara, Robt. Wilson, Chas. Lockerby and W. Brodie.

L. O. L. No. 727, BELLEVILLE.—The above Lodge met on the 1st Dec. inst., and elected their officers for the ensuing year, namely, Bro. Jas. Macoun, W. Master; Bro. Jas. Richards, D. Master; Bro. Robt. F. Benjamin, Chaplain; David Serviss, Secretary; Geo. Thompson, Treasurer; John D. Corbett, D. of Ceremonies; Hugh Thompson, Sen. Committee-man; Sam'l. Dawson, Inside Tyler; Frank Hewell, Outside Tyler.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—The election of officers for Downey's L. O. L. No. 425, Huntingdon, for the ensuing year, took place on Tuesday evening last, and resulted as follows:—Thomas Tummon, W. M., (re-elected); William Chambers, D. M.,; Samuel Tummon, Secretary; John Tweedy, Treasurer; William Tummon, Chaplain; Richard Downey, D. of C.; Joseph Chambers, James Lancaster, Cornelius McGuire, William Best, and John Downey jr., Committee-men.

TARRED AND FEATHERED.—The Trenton Advocate says:—"A man between here and Brighton, who was in the habit of beating his mother and sister (not his mother-in-law) was invited out by some of the boys in the neighborhood last Saturday evening to have a tar-bath. He was called out and two of them very politely caught and held him while the others stripped him and applied the tar and feathers. It is to be hoped that he enjoyed it very much, as the thermometer was several degrees below zero at the time. The old lady is about 80 years of age."

REBUILDING.—The work of rebuilding Hambly's bakery, which was destroyed by fire a short time since, was begun on Thursday last, on which day the foundation was completed. Brick laying commenced yesterday and will be pushed forward rapidly, so that the building will be completed with as little delay as possible. The building will be furnished with patent ovens and all necessary improved machinery. Forty-one men are employed in the work. Workmen are also engaged in rebuilding Thompson's sash factory, the completion of which will be hastened as rapidly as possible.

CHICAGO, Dec 6.—Christopher Kegel, a farmer aged 65, died on November the 10th. Daniel Zimael, horse doctor, who has since been living with Kegel's widow, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of having poisoned Kegel. The widow, who is only 30, is also suspected.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—A private letter from Grant says he expects to reach New York a day or two before Christmas to remain one or two days. He thinks he will accept the offer of a special train to Florida and steamer thence to Havana.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Washington specials:

The World says it is conceded Mahone will be sent to the Senate from Virginia. Mahone will come to the Senate as a Republican and repudiator.

Schurz requested Scales, Chairman of the House in the Indian Commission not to press his request for all correspondence relating to the Ute troubles, as this might seriously embarrass the Department in its pending negotiations.

The Herald publishes a letter from the President to a personal friend on Dec. 4th, in which he says:—If legal tender for debts depends on uncertain action of the Congress, there will be want of confidence. The only constitutional legal tender is gold and silver; depart from that and confidence is gone. All the world now believes investments in America are likely to be profitable. A sound financial policy will bring us money from all commercial nations of the earth. In good times prepare for hard times—in good times pay debts. Legal tender notes are debts,—let them be paid by coin in the Treasury and with that coming in from abroad, and it will not contract the circulation.

State Senator Foster, of Indiana, reports that 2,000 negroes arrived in that State recently, some deplorably destitute. The people of the State are beginning to look upon the whole project as a scheme to colonize voters. The feeling is so strong that farmers who employ these people find themselves in a measure ostracized.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Mayor Howell, of Brooklyn, is opposed to spending the city's money for the reception to Grant, and has not approved of the Common Council resolution tendering him a public reception. The Mayor has invited Grant to visit the city, his plan being to have him at the City Hall for an hour or two.

JAS. ELLINGER, clerk for Claflin & Co., was arrested yesterday charged with thefts of merchandise amounting since August to $2,000. Isaac Morse, who bought the stolen property, was also arrested. Ellinger alleges that Morse repeatedly threatened to expose him, on expressing a wish to discontinue the thefts.

Dr. Gabriel Wolf was arrested yesterday charged with prescribing poison for a sick infant left in his charge by its mother, a servant girl. The infant cannot recover.

The 7th regiment fair closes to-night. The estimated net profits are $100,000.

A delegation of Ponca Indians at the 5th Avenue hotel arrived yesterday, to seek aid in securing restoration to their lands.

Capt. Benj. Simonson, aged 45, one of the oldest Sandy Hook pilots, suicided by cutting his throat at his house on Staten Island yesterday. No cause assigned.

The Tribune says that President Sloan, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway, refuses positively to sign the compact to suspend running during the holidays. He proposed to restrict the production during this month by working two-thirds time. One of the officers of a Company says: "I am willing to sign anything that will bring about some restriction of output. The Companies are mining too much coal, and in the face of a light demand this cannot go on long without a reduction of prices."

Arrived, the Sorrento from Hull.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Arrived, Britannic from Liverpool.

"CUTS."—The best thing we know of to heal a cut or wound is to bind up the injured part with a cloth saturated in Perry Davis' Pain-Killer.

Food as well as Medicine.

Most people think as they swallow Cod Liver Oil they are taking medicine. In one sense they are, for anything that tones, heals and invigorates the system is medicine. But Cod Liver Oil is the finest food as well as medicine. It not only tones and heals, but nourishes. It will save the consumptive, restore the dyspeptic, and build up the baby weakling, when all other remedies fail, and combined with the HYPOPHOSPHITES as found in SCOTT'S EMULSION, it is a most wonderful as well as agreeable remedy.

On November 10th work on sections 1 and 2 of the Lachine Canal, A. P. Macdonald's contract, was completed. All the sections are now completed saving section 11, at the western entrance, which section will not be completed for two years to come.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Arrived, the Egypt and Donau from Europe. The latter brought $970,000 in gold.

Child's paint works, South Brooklyn, were burned. Loss, $15,000.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—The Gaulois states that the ex-Empress Eugenie will proceed from Spain to Zululand.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—A commercial agent at Geneva reports that a great article of import from the United States is petroleum.

There was a sudden rise in iron in America caused by the large exportation of German iron.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Bank statement loans: Decrease, $338,803; specie increase, $2,060,300; legal tenders decrease, $2,098,500; deposits decrease, $165,400; circulation increase, $230,300; reserve increase, $403,150.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—The Marseilles newspaper is suspended six months, and the manager sentenced to six months imprisonment and a fine of 5,000 francs for publishing a statement of Humbert, in which he stigmatized the acts of the Versailles Courtmartial as a prostitution of justice.

FLUSHING, N. Y., Dec. 6.—Geo. Hendricks alias Geo. Stroker was arrested yesterday, for attempting to negotiate forged papers. Developments disclosed he was concerned with a gang in a plot to rob the Flushing and the Queen's Co. Bank, by decoying the President and Cashier away, leaving the bank in charge of one person, who would have been easily overpowered.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 5.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, strong easterly to southerly followed by westerly winds, cloudy, mild weather, with rain areas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—Indications: For lower lakes, generally colder, cloudy and rainy, preceded over lower lakes by warmer weather.

RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

TESTIMONIALS FROM RELIABLE DRUGGISTS.

We believe SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE to be a genuine meritorious preparation. Some of our customers are extravagant in their praise of it.
D. DEFORD & CO.

OTTAWA, KANSAS.
We have had an extensive sale and no complaints. It is the best selling thing in our store.
WINCH & STYLES.

BOULDER, COLORADO.
We sell more of the RADICAL CURE than all other catarrh remedies put together, and I have yet to hear of a case that it has not given the most complete satisfaction.
S. W. GIFFORD.

OSKALOOSA, IA.
YOUR SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE sells better and gives more satisfaction than any similar preparation we have ever handled.
C. WAKEFIELD & CO.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.
Having sold SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE for over a year, I can state that it gives better satisfaction than any similar preparation I have ever sold.
A. H. ROBERTS.

MT. PLEASANT, IA.
We have sold SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE for several years, and can say candidly that we never sold a similar preparation that gave so much universal satisfaction. They have to earn the first complaint yet.
S. D. BALDWIN & CO.

WESTPORT, IND.
I have had an extensive sale of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, and constantly believe it gives better results than any medicine before the public, and for children especially.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Death of Mem'b'r
From 16 to 20 yrs.	$4.40	$0.88

EMMELINE.

CHAPTER X.

EMMELINE LEAVES THE MANSE.

A fortnight had scarcely elapsed till Mr. Steven, of Glasgow, again visited Rollo, for the purpose of taking his protege to her new home. He found his brother would have liked to put her departure from the manse off for a little while longer, and he asked him if he rued the bargain of delivering up to his charge the fair Emmeline.

"No, by no means; but I find her a very intelligent girl, with a mind to nature, in fact, for her years. I will miss her company, but you have a right to claim her, when it suits you, as you were the first to move the subject of her adoption, and God grant his blessing on your undertaking. When do you leave this—what is your latest moment?"

"To-morrow, at twelve, we must leave Rollo for the city. My housekeeper is to meet us there, and we will all proceed together to Avenlee. She will escort us from there to her brother-in-law's residence, Cawderwood Lodge, which is in some outlandish place, two miles from any other dwelling."

"And what are the people she is going to reside with?"

"The man, I understand, is a gamekeeper to the Duke of Avenlee, and his wife is a sister to my housekeeper."

"And what are your arrangements with this keeper?"

"Oh, simple enough. They could take no borders or lodgers, but will take her as a friend or relative for a time, if I will look after her schooling fees and keep her in clothes, and that her food won't be missed in their house. They will take no money, so I sent an equivalent in the shape of stuffs suitable for children's clothes, and a few rarities in the provision line, seeing that they, in their isolated position, would feel great inconvenience in obtaining those necessaries."

"You are a generous fellow, Charles. All this for a girl you have only known two weeks, and, for my sake, to keep me from being scandalized by her adoption."

"I know you have plenty to do with your income, Fred, giving as you do to the needy. By the way, you will receive a small bale in the afternoon, which will contain warm stuffs suitable as Christmas gifts for some of your people."

"A thousand thanks, my dear brother. I have been grieved to see the poor, starving creatures, with scarcely any fire and little clothing to cover them, huddled together—the healthy with the sick—and no means to relieve their wants."

"But I know, Fred, you would give them more than you could spare."

"No, no; I'm blessed with plenty, and it is my mission to minister to their physical as well as their spiritual wants."

"There you are right. If there were more gospel preachers like you, there would be more Christians."

"But had I a wife and family, Charles, my income would scarcely meet all ends."

"Those who grudge ministers' salaries had better lay that to heart. I have often thought that some individuals expect ministers' money to go double the length of other folks. They expect them to dress well, give to the poor, give their children a superior education, and be liberal on all occasions; yet they grudge the wherewithal to do this."

"Bravo! Charles. But I am sorry to say there are too many who would like ministers to work for nothing, unmindful of the opinion that our wants should be supplied as were those of the Israelites of old in the wilderness by showers of manna."

"That is an opinion which suits those very well who like to keep their money in their pocket, but I am in the opinion of David Dale—if it be given out in handfuls, you will be sure to get it back in shovelfuls, provided it be given in a right spirit."

They were now disturbed by the arrival of the bale before referred to, and with it a travelling basket, containing an outfit for Emmeline's journey. The basket was delivered to Rebecca—Mr. Charles Steven telling her, at the same time, to have Emmeline dressed and ready at half-past eleven next morning.

Next morning they were all earlier astir than usual, and, there being no appearance of our heroine at eleven, or a little after that hour, the parlor bell was rung, and in came Rebecca, smiling and weeping at the same time.

"What, Rebecca, surely not in tears," said her master. "Is there anything wrong?"

"There is naething wrong. I'm jist wae tae pairt wi' the bit lassie," and turning to the merchant, she said, "I've wranged you sair, sir. I thocht you was nae way like my maister, but I see ye hae a good kin heart, tae dae sae much for Emmeline, and her a mere stranger tae ye. You'll be blest for a' your kindness tae her, and it lets me see ye are worthy tae be a brither o' the minister's."

"What did you take me for, Rebecca? Some wicked person?"

"Oh no, sir; but yer way was sae different frae my maister's."

"Is that all! Then you have done me no wrong. But is Emmeline dressed, and do her clothes fit?"

"Oh, beautiful. Sic' a change dress mak's on a bonnie bairn."

Our heroine was called in, and truly a transformation there was in her appearance. She wore a black cloth pelisse, trimmed with ermine, a Scottan dress was barely distinguishable, her hair had been carefully curled. She wore a black beaver bonnet, tied with rose-pink strings (hats not being so common then). Her sweet little face beamed with pleasure. The change in her appearance fairly took the brothers by surprise. "Where," came from Charles, while his brother smiled pleasantly, and congratulated our heroine on her changed appearance.

"I declare," said Charles, "this is beyond my expectations; so like a little lady she is, that it is a pity to take her from town, where she would create a sensation in a year or two."

"Do you think, Emmeline, you would like to stay in a forest, with I don't know how many children to play with? Were you ever at a keeper's lodge?"

"Yes, sir, at Sunnyside, and it was so delightful that I could have stayed altogether."

"So much good, but mind, if you weary, you must write to me, and I will have you brought beside myself."

"How can I thank you for all your kindness to me, sir, but if I grow to be a woman I will try to pay you back."

"And how are you going to manage that?"

"By working, or, if you were ill, I might nurse you into health again."

"Bravo! You are wise beyond your years, but keep yourself easy about the future, Emmeline; if aught goes wrong with me, you are provided for."

The minister eyed his brother in admiration. The rattle of wheels proclaimed the time up. Rebecca appeared with a muff and victorine of ermine, which completed the costume of our little Emmeline. They were escorted to the carriage in waiting. After they were seated the poor girl fairly broke down and sobbed. The minister leaned in to shake hands with her, but she covered her face with her hands and sobbed convulsively. All of a sudden she flung her arms around his neck and kissed him. The minister was taken by surprise, but seemed pleased. Rebecca next came in for a share of hugging, which disordered the good old dame's cap not a little. At a signal from the merchant the carriage was driven off, leaving the minister and his servant gazing after them.

"They're aff noo, Mr. Steven, bo't for guid or ill."

"Yes, Rebecca, they are gone. It is meant for good," and he hurried up stairs to his study, where the voice of prayer was raised in behalf of her who had been neglected by those who ought to have tended and guided so fair a flower.

Rebecca was in her little room off the kitchen, sitting in a cane chair rocking herself to and fro, uttering such expressions as—"Oh, the affectionate thing, hoo she clung tae me an' cuddled me tae the very last, an' this is yer bit wincy frock, thrown aff by a leddy for the royal Stewart's," and holding up the discarded garment, she burst again into another flood of tears. After a while, seeing she was in good hands, a' she could dae was tae keep the bits o' claes she had thrown aff. Placing them in her chest, she, in pa very loud tone, said—"Gin that auld Beelzebub, Dick, had seen her dressed, wad she ha'e dared tae misca' her"; and clenching her hands, and priming her lips over her toothless gums, in determination of something she did not express. We will leave her and follow the travellers, or rather waylay them.

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Dutch.

Holland, the home of the Dutch, is surrounded with dikes, to prevent the overflow of the land by the waters of the sea. Every Dutchman whose land borders on the sea, makes it his business to walk every morning along the edges of the dikes, and watch whether, during the night any water has found its way by any chance through them. If there be even the smallest trickling of water perceptible, he drops everything else and repairs the difficulty. Left until to-morrow, the little hole may be widened, until a rude tide forces its way through the embankments and endangers his homestead and family. This prudence is natural and one would suppose that equal precautions should be taken to prevent the access of diseases to the human system. But every man thinks, "every other one is mortal but himself," and so neglects the plainest rules for self preservation. A box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS kept in the house, and their application upon the first appearance of sickness, will prevent the inroads of disease. They cleanse the system from malaria of disease, stop the gaps, as the Dutchmen in his dikes, and renders all safe again.

NOTHING can exceed the folly and stupidity of those who submit to the pangs of the various forms and complications of rheumatism and gout, by which they are tortured and disabled, when they can, by one or two applications of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, obtain instantaneous and permanent relief. Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT, Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are being put in first class condition.

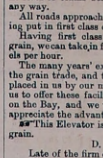

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

SCOTT'S EMULSION
PURE COD LIVER OIL
WITH
HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

This preparation combines the two best remedies ever discovered for Consumption, Colds and Bronchitis, Scrofula, Rheumatism and Diseases of the Blood, General Debility, and all Wasting Diseases of Children. It not only contains the well known and high-est curative properties of Cod Liver Oil in a form that is perfectly tasteless and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, but in addition, the wonderful tonic and life-giving properties of the Hypophosphites, so incorporated that the medicinal power of both are greatly increased. Physicians universally acknowledge the vastly superior virtues of this combined food and medicine in all the above diseases. It is not only better tolerated, but much more speedy in results than Plain Cod Liver Oil, and a better agent in enriching and purifying the blood, allaying the irritation of the throat and lungs, restoring the impaired functions and giving strength and vigor to the whole body. It is sweet and palatable to the taste, never separates, deposits or spoils. Be sure and ask for Scott's Emulsion. For sale by all druggists at 50 cts per bottle.

The Sun for 1880.

THE Sun will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest for the greatest number—that is, the law controling its daily make-up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. Hostile to all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction if some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party clans, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language shall be print and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save which may be had by any purchaser for two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores nincompoops of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise first-class instead of the second, and disconcert even the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of telling them so, to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is imp ssible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration intrenched at Washington. The SUN did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. The SUN will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the Constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the DAILY SUN, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $9.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

Mining in North Hastings.

(From the Globe's Special Correspondent.)

MILLBRIDGE, North Hastings,
Nov. 20, 1879.

Leaving the Jordan early on the morning after my visit to the Orton mine, we took what is knowna s the "snow road" for an excursion to the Baker iron mine. To the north and east of the rocky ridges the timber had escaped the fire, while to the south-east a clearing of considerable size ran down to the edge of a swamp, through which a small stream was running. The road skirted along close to the northern edge of the clearing, and on the crest of a high ridge a hundred yards north of the road the outcrop of the iron ore shows itself. Crossing over the narrow intervening flat we reached the lowest opening where the ore had been uncovered, just on the brow of the hill. Here the deposit is exceptionally heavy, and though somewhat irregular and broken in places with lean ore, the amount of rich mineral in sight is such as to afford the most promising indications as to the value of the location. Farther eastward the outcrop can be traced by the test pits through a remarkably fine and well matured growth of sugar maples for a distance of fully a quarter of a mile, and the most pronounced needle attractions, with occasional outcrops, indicate its continuance for some three miles, the course being somewhat curved or irregular. As far as this deposit has been uncovered by casteens or test-pits, it varies in width from 50 to 150 feet, and so far as the lode has been broken though irregular in quality, it shows a very large percentage of rich ore. The test-pits made on this lode are on lots 18 and 19 in the 18th concession of Tudor, but the most unmistakable indications exist of its persistence across two or three more lots in the in the same range. Here a large number of men can be profitably employed as soon as a railway has been built to carry away the ore; and it is very probable that after one year's working this location alone would give employment to not less than 500 miners, while the supplying of the wants of these men and the handling of the ore in transit to the border would employ many more. As yet, however, the Baker location is the only opening on what appears to be an enormously long and persistent range of excellent magnetic iron, and it is not unlikely that it may only prove one of many of the same class in this immediate locality.

The following is the result of an analysis of ore from this property:—

Metallic iron	62.20
Phosphorus	.057
Sulphur	.090
Silica	8.500

A drive of about eight miles brought us to the Limerick lead mines, near Wardsworth Lake, in the south-east corner of the township of Limerick. This, like the Baker iron mine, is the property of the Ontario Mining and Manufacturing Company. Two shafts have been sunk on what appear to be two different branches of one vein. Both of these shafts are in the slope of a hill which rises westward, the more easterly of the two having been sunk to a depth of 140 feet, and the other, which is further down the hill, has been sunk 120 feet, with a drift of 60 feet in the vein from the bottom. In both these shafts the veins have shown a steady improvement from the surface down to their present depth, and both show a very fair percentage of galena. So far as the actual condition of these openings was concerned, I was of course compelled to accept the statements of one of the proprietors, as the pits were both partially filled with water, but the appearance of the dumps bore strong testimony to the accuracy of his assertions. Through the leads appeared to be comparatively insignificant at the surface, being not only very narrow but exceptionally poor in galena, they improved in quality and width as they went down, so that at the bottom of the shafts they were four and a half and six feet wide, with a large percentage of galena, much of which was in a solid leaf. Numerous assays of the galena in these shafts have been made of ore taken at different depths, but the results were so variable that it is difficult to form any definite idea as to its richness in silver, the products ranging from seven to fifty-five ounces per ton. Further north these two veins unite into one, with a distinct line of cleavage, equally increasing in population, and so long as they remain without railway connections this state of affairs will in all probability continue. Under wild lands to be had in different parts of the Dominion offer superior inducements to the agriculturist Grain and farm produce generally, can be handed a long way to market, but with the mineral products of these townships the case is quite different. Iron ores are too heavy for any distance profitably, and at present the state of the roads here is such that it would be impossible to haul over them the heavy machinery required for the reduction of galena. In short, nothing more than prospecting can be done in the way of developing these northern townships until a railway has been extended into them. Here is certainly a fine field for a colonization railway. As it is at present, a large tract of this and any prospector is lying useless and undeveloped, giving only a meagre living to a small, fixed population engaged in lumbering, and a few settlers struggling for the lumbermen, and to a few hundred lumbermen each winter, whose operations will only last till the banks of the larger streams are stripped of pine and cedar. Let this mineral region be tapped with a railway, however, and the whole aspect of affairs will be suddenly and materially changed. In one year from the opening of such a road, a prospector, Mr. Blacklock, of Toronto, also own a portion of this same vein. Capt. Mitchell, an intelligent and thoroughly experienced miner, assures me that this is a true fissure vein, and that it will be sure to prove the "deepest rock in the country," and in all probability improve in quality as lower levels are reached.

Leaving the lead mine, we made our way back to the Jordan, having completed our second day's explorations of the back townships.

Early next morning we were on our way to visit the Lake lead mine, which is situated on lot No. 8 in the 11th concession of Lake.

Driving to the edge of a clearing we left the horses, and after a walk of nearly a mile and a half through a fine hardwood forest, we came upon a trench in the clay some two or three feet deep. Several fine specimens of galena lay upon the surface, having been thrown out of the trench; but as the clay had caved in upon the vein, it took some little time to strip even a small portion of it, and that very imperfectly. Selecting a spot for this purpose at random, I picked through the frozen crust of the soil, and then removed the wet clay below it with my hands till I had succeeded in uncovering about a three-inch section of the vein, which at that point was 12 or 13 inches wide. After removing some loose fragments of ore, I succeeded in striking the pick into solid ore that appeared to be in plates. After a time I managed to force the pick into a crevice, and pried up two pieces of ore out of a layer two and a half inches thick. I found these pieces to be solid galena, and that after breaking them off I had left a breast of equally good ore. This was about all I could do under the circumstances, as I had nothing with which to take the dirt out of the trench,—but as far as it went the prospect was as favorable as any one could ask. I have no doubt that I must have accidentally stumbled upon an extraordinarily rich spot in the vein, but at the same time it is quite evident that the surface also here is decidedly promising. This mine is the property of W. H. Gorry & Co., of Toronto.

Among the other lead properties of Tudor may be mentioned the properties of Chard & Co., who own upwards of two dozen lots in different parts of the township, all of which showed galena. On lots 27 and 28 in concession B (known as the Kinuyan mine) they have a shaft sunk 28 feet in a 23 inch lode, carrying an average of four inches of solid galena, which shows a high percentage of metallic lead and a small trace of silver.

On lot 32, in the third concession, very little has been done. There is said to be a five inch vein of solid galena, showing at the surface, but as yet it has not been tested further than what can be done by digging the lead out of the vein with a pick.

On lot 23, in concession B, are two small scams of pure galena, running at right angles to each other. Lead was also found on lots 14 of the free grants east, where a farmer ploughed up some fine samples by accident. Besides the two dozen or more lead lot sawned by Chard & Co., there are numerous other promising leads and locations scattered through different portions of the township.

The Wollaston iron mine, near the centre of the township of Wollaston, is an immense depot of highly magnetic coarse grained iron ore, showing a length of fully half a mile, and varying in width from 45 to 130 feet. This mine alone is capable of an output of 500,000 tons of ore per annum. This ore yields by analysis 61 per cent. of metallic iron, is very low in sulphur, has no titanic acid, and only a trace of phosphorus, while the rock matrix it contains would, it is thought, be useful as a flux, and therefore beneficial rather than otherwise.

At York River, near where it crosses the Hastings Road, is an immense deposit of iron, which it is reported has recently been purchased by an American company, who purpose during the coming winter to haul 40 tons of the ore to Eldorado to be shipped as a trial lot. This ore will be hauled a distance of 45 miles. Even now numerous representatives of American capitalists are in Madoc doing their best to secure any fairly promising location within reach of the railroad, and there can be no doubt that as fast as the railway system is extended into the mineral region, all available mineral lands will be promptly secured. Another favorable sign of the times is that those who are now seeking to secure mineral in North Hastings are not mere speculators as heretofore, but people who either want to secure a supply of ore for their own furnaces or for those of their customers. The ore can be marketed as fast as it can be shipped, and were the railway and mining facilities ten times what they now are the demand would still exceed the supply. Scarcely a day passes that some new purchase or lease is not effected, and already many are turning their attention to the back townships in the belief that they will very soon be able to place the product of their immense mineral resources upon the market. As soon as the sleighing becomes good several properties now lying idle in Madoc will be vigorously worked, the ore being hauled in sleighs to the railway during the winter months.

WHAT IS WANTED.

It is hardly necessary to inform anyone who has read this and my previous letters from North Hastings that the great and immediate want of these back townships is the construction of a railway, and that it affords facilities for putting the product of their immense resources upon the market. Just now they are only thinly settled, but are yearly increasing in population, and so long as they remain without railway connections this state of affairs will in all probability continue. Under wild lands to be had in different parts of the Dominion offer superior inducements to the agriculturist Grain and farm produce generally, can be handed a long way to market, but with the mineral products of these townships the case is quite different. Leaving the lead mine, we made our way back to the Jordan, having completed our second day's explorations of the back townships.

Early next morning we were on our way to visit the Lake lead mine, which is situated on lot No. 8 in the 11th concession of Lake.

Driving to the edge of a clearing we left the horses, and after a walk of nearly a mile and a half through a fine hardwood forest, we came upon a trench in the clay some two or three feet deep. Several fine specimens of galena lay upon the surface, having been thrown out of the trench; but as the clay had caved in upon the vein, it took some little time to strip even a small portion of it, and that very imperfectly. Selecting a spot for this purpose at random, I picked through the frozen crust of the soil, and then removed the wet clay below it with my hands till I had succeeded in uncovering about a three-inch section of the vein, which at that point was 12 or 13 inches wide. After removing some loose fragments of ore, I succeeded in striking the bable that the lower portions of the ridges should constitute their choicest sections. The reason of this is apparent. The soft, rich ores would offer much less resistance to the abrading forces of nature than the harder and more impure vitreous ores. Thus those portions of the ridges containing the soft ore would be cut down to a low level, while that carrying the vitreous ore would retain its original altitude. Nor has the latitudinal extent of these ranges been as yet fully determined. Farther north there has been little or no exploration by practical men, and it is not improbable that the northern section of this great Laurentian range may prove quite as rich in minerals as has the southern.

But to return to what is definitely known. Supposing that the inducements already referred to and the prospects in their immediate vicinity should prove to include all the iron locations of any value that would be tributary to the proposed colonization railway. With one year's working after the opening of the railway these sections could be put in shape to give profitable employment, as I before stated to not less than 3,000 men, while the same locations would in five years employ a population of not less than 10,000, bringing into the country not less than $5,000,000 of foreign capital annually. Experienced men from Lake Superior declare this to be a larger iron field than that of Marquette, and it has the advantage of being nearer both to miners' supplies and to the market. The case may be stated in a few words.

Colonization roads are being subsidized to open up wild lands, that promise in time to become fine agricultural districts, but in such cases the process of developing the country must in the very nature of things be comparatively slow. Settlers must be brought in, and these men must be allowed time to clear the land and get it under crop before they can become producers and furnish freight for the railways. If, however, there was a large community of farmers, with abundance of grain locked up in their granaries, cattle in their stalls, and dairy produce in their cellars, which they had no means of carrying to market, there would be no difficulty from the proprietj, from a purely economic point of view, of tapping such a section with a railway, in order that its rich resources might be made tributary to the general prosperity of the country.

Here is a parallel case, or even a stronger one. Here are many millions of dollars worth of mineral locked up in an almost uninhabited wilderness, and doing no good to anybody. It can only be utilized by the construction of a railway, and this railway will suddenly transform this now useless wilderness into a thickly-populated and wealth-producing section. Does any portion of the Dominion present a more fitting field for the construction of a colonization railway?

From the 10th of May to the middle of this month the shipments from the Lake Superior region footed up over 1,300,000 tons of ore, representing a cash value at the furnaces of about $7,800,000. This, it will be remembered, all comes from a region which North Hastings promises in time to rival, and even surpass.

WHATEVER IS DONE SHOULD BE DONE AT ONCE.

In my first letter I fully gave the reasons why the iron ore of North Hastings should be put upon the American market as rapidly as possible, and it will only be necessary in this connection to recapitulate them very briefly.

1st. Now, when the demand for ore is unusually active is the time when furnacemen are most willing to experiment with any new ores that promise well.

2nd. It is of the utmost importance to impress American customers with the fact that they can depend upon Canada for a large and regular supply of ore, and this should be done at the very commencement of our dealings withh them.

3rd. As our Canadian ores are much more desirable in quality than they are generally supposed to be, now when the demand is strong, is the time when they should be afforded such an opportunity of advertising their own excellences as will cause them a ready sale even in times of the greatest depression.

4th. Now is the time when, if they can be afforded means of trmsporting their ores to the furnaces, some of the heaviest consumers of iron on the continent are ready to make heavy investments and at once begin extensive mining operations in North Hastings, which must in the very nature of things be permanent.

CORRECTION.

In my first letter, by a singular error, I stated that the Lake Superior ores contained titanium, of which they do not carry a trace.

Facts and Figures.

The exports of ice from Boston since Jan. 1 have been 55,654 tons.

For every thousand inhabitants America contains 3,094 cattle,sheep and swine. In European countries the average is only 1,-166. An interesting fact.

The exports of the United States to Great Britain during the last fiscal year amounted to $333,000,000, while the exports thence to them were but $111,900,000 in value.

Prof. Church estimates that the loss resulting from diseases among domestic animals, in Great Britain alone, during the past ten years, cannot have been less than $30,000,000 annually.

Dr. Glenn, the great California land monopolist, has this year sacked 1,200,000 bags of wheat, making 55,000 tons, and valued at $2,200,000. It is said that this nets him a yearly loss, and is gradually but surely, swallowing his estate of 60,-000 acres.

Dr. Philip Schaff estimates that in 1878 all branches of Methodism in the United States had: Ministers, 20,562; congregations, 34,000; communicant membership, 3,428,000; nominal membership, 14,000,-000; colleges, 52; theological seminaries,12.

American farmers grow wheat, send it by rail 1,500 miles to a port of shipment, then send it across the ocean 3,000 miles (at a total cost for shipment from the first starting-place of twenty cents per bushel) and sell it in the English markets at thirty-five cents per bushel less than it costs the English farmers to grow it.

Of the total of 8,431 sets of woollen machinery in the United States, 1,418 are in Massachusetts, 331 in Maine, 505 in New Hampshire, 179 in Vermont, 469 in Rhode Island, and 669 in Connecticut—a total for the New England States of more than 43 per cent. of the woollen machinery in the entire country.

The Swiss Government carries on a great coaching business, but at a serious loss. In 1879 it owned 1,393 conveyances, estimated at about $300,000, and the total net loss on this branch of the postal service for the year was over $80,000. The number of passengers conveyed was 1,329,305, of whom 273,884 travelled on what are known as Alpine and tourist's routes.

France has the largest wheat area in proportion to population of any country in Europe; but while England's average wheat yield is from 28 to 30 bushels per acre that of France is only 15½. An increase of one bushel an acre there would amount to 16,-000,000 bushels. This small yield is attributed to poor cultivation, and in the south to the dryness of the climate in spring.

The report of the Auditor of the Treasury for the Post Office Department of the United States for the fiscal year ended on the 30th of June last shows that the net cost of the postal service to the Treasury during that period was only $3,031,445, nearly $1,000,000 less than that of the preceding year. The total revenues of the Post Office Department during the last fiscal year were $30,041,982, an increase of $704,465, and the total expenses $33,072,-427, a decrease of $1,091,697 in comparison with the preceding year.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 8.

Mining in North Hastings.

We publish in to-day's issue the final letter of the Globe's correspondent on the mining region of North Hastings. Mr. Williams—the correspondent in question—has discharged his arduous task with ability and fidelity towards the public. Although having a good knowledge of the country, which he obtained by lengthened visits in previous years, Mr. Williams has not spoken from that knowledge, but has personally visited and seen for himself the further developments which have taken place within the last few years. Consequently he has been able to do justice to the subject, and to give to the public a statement of facts—not the mere hearsay of interested parties.

The information which has thus been acquired shows that the iron deposits of North Hastings are not only of so yast an extent as to be practically inexhaustible, but also so rich and so free from objectionable qualities that the demand for them is certain to grow to immense proportions. The suggestion, therefore, that the Ontario Parliament should grant a large bonus to the promoters of the North Hastings Railway in order that the line may be so extended as to cause the opening up of mines and the extensive working of these great deposits, is one in which every one interested in the welfare of the country will heartily join, irrespective of politics, as the investment could not fail to be a paying one for the Province. The Dominion Parliament are also asked to aid in the matter by constructing the Murray Canal, so that a sufficient number of vessels and reasonable rates of freight—besides the other important purposes which the canal would undoubtedly serve—may be secured, so that the export trade may be we might almost say created for the cost of transportation under present circumstances would limit the export trade to very small dimensions. In this latter connection we hope much from the promised visit to the mining region of the Minister of Finance and other Ministers of the Dominion. We trust that the Ontario Ministers may follow this good example, and also visit the mines, in which case they can hardly fail to fall in with the suggestions of the Globe's correspondent.

As to gold, the prospects are now more favorable than ever before. The wild excitement of former times has abated, and the business of mining is now being gone into by cool and calculating capitalists, who have satisfied themselves that they can obtain a rich return from their investments. Lead mining is also likely to be carried on upon an extensive scale, and what with the men employed in the iron, gold and lead mines, those hitherto comparatively deserted townships of North Hastings which are located on the Laurentian rocks, promise to become the most thickly populated in the County and the most valuable in the Province.

The Railway and the Canal are the great keys which will unlock all these vast stores of mineral wealth, and we look with confidence to the assistance of the Provincial and of the Dominion Governments to enable the proprietors of these hidden treasures to bring them to light, and thereby to benefit the whole country.

Dominion Revenue.

The following is a comparative statement of the revenue for the months of October, 1878-79:

REVENUE.	Oct. 1879.	Oct. 1878.

The Lake Marine.

The Cleveland Penny Post has compiled a valuable article on the extent, character, value and profits of the lake commerce for the past seven years, with its present tendencies and future outlook. The important facts adduced from the article are that the number of craft has materially diminished since 1873, while the tonnage has slightly increased. The style has materially changed since that time from sail to steam and towing vessels. Sail vessels are fast disappearing, and their places are being filled by steam propellers and towing vessels. The increase in the number of steam and towing craft is marked as is also their increase in size. The great majority of the vessels now afloat are old, and must rapidly pass out of existence; hence if there is not a striking revival in vessel building during this and the two succeeding years, the marine of the lakes must show a startling decrease. A healthy increase in building is, however, already noticeable, and must be augmented by the large increase in the quantity of freight to be moved and the increase in freight rates. The lake marine, like the railroads, is fast passing into the control of large corporations, which must in a few years monopolize the business. There has been a remarkable decrease in the valuation of vessel property since 1873, but the late rise in freights is already enhancing it again. The profits this fall are good, and during the last few months extraordinary. The increased productions of the country and the revival of business will make these advanced rates permanent. Capital, therefore, judiciously invested in vessel property, will for several years return good dividends.

1,000 MEN EMPLOYED.—It is said that Messrs. F. B. McNamee & Co. of Montreal, who have been awarded the contract for section 34, Welland Canal, will commence work immediately and will employ about a thousand men during the winter.

A CELEBRATED CASE DECIDED.—A Quebec despatch says: "The Corporation has been informed by its London solicitors that the Privy Council has rendered judgment in favor of the corporation in the celebrated case of Bell vs. the Corporation of Quebec,in which the plaintiff sought to recover $50,000 amount of damages in connection with the aqueduct bridge."

NEW TELEGRAPH LINE.—Application is to be made to the Dominion Parliament at its next session for an Act to incorporate the Great Western Telegraph Company of Canada, with power to purchase, build, lease and maintain lines, and carry on the business of telegraphing in Ontario, Keewatin, Manitoba, the North-West Territories and British Columbia.

DISASTROUS FLOODS IN HUNGARY.—A Pesth despatch says the Koros river has risen rapidly in consequence of severe snow storms and inundated the city of Grosswardein. Thousands of fugitives are in need of shelter. Many houses are destroyed. The neighboring villages are threatened with destruction. The general distress in Hungary is increasing rapidly.

HEAVY DAMAGES CONFIRMED.—The Toronto Telegram says: "The celebrated breach of promise case,Woodman vs. Blair, in which the courts at London awarded the lady $4,500 damages, was taken up yesterday in the Common Pleas here on the argument for a new trial. The Court held that the verdict though large was not so excessive as in their opinion would warrant them in granting a new trial. The rule was discharged accordingly, so that the lady will secure the $4,500."

MR. ROEBUCK.—The Right Hon. John Arthur Roebuck, whose death was announced in a despatch on Saturday, was born at Madras, in 1805, and was, therefore, 77 years of age. He was a grandson of Dr. John Roebuck, maternally descended from the poet Tickell. In his boyhood he came to Canada, but in 1824 he left for the purpose of studying law in England, and was admitted as a barrister to the Inner Temple seven years later. He was an uncompromising Reformer.

HANLAN'S MOVEMENTS.—The Mail says: "It is possible the champion will go to New York this week, and interview Mr. Blaikie regarding the disposal of the six thousand dollar prize. Hanlan does not desire to have any further transaction with Courtney, direct or indirect, and will listen to no proposal for a race for the purse next spring. The only way the Union Springs sick man can make a match now is by putting up stakes and challenging in the usual way; but as Hanlan will probably go to England early in the spring, there is little possibility of his rowing any races on this side of the Atlantic until the fall, unless Riley should come ont of his shell."

Fifty thousand dollars, which an American company offered for the Montague gold mines, situated a few miles from Dartmouth, N. S., which have done very well lately, were paid on Saturday.

"CUTS."—The best thing we know of to heal a cut or wound is to bind up the injured part with a cloth saturated in Perry Davis' Pain-Killer.

It is estimated that 50,000 men and women are employed in Philadelphia in the manufacture of clothing, and 20,000,000 suits are made there every year. Cutting machines are gradually finding their way into all of the large manufacturing establishments of the city.

Pay as You Go.

This advice is always good, but it is specially timely, now that the prospect ahead for work or business looks incouraging, and everybody feels cheerful. How many times have you said to yourself during the past few years, "if I could only get my bills squared up, I never would be caught in this way again," and you have fussed and worried over debts, contracted when times were flush and the prospect of paying them seemed fair. Now is a good time to turn over a new leaf, because it is just the time when the temptation to do the same thing again is strong upon you. If your wages are increased or you are selling more goods and getting a better profit, you are beginning to think, "now I can buy that new carpet or chamber set that my wife wants and can pay for it in a short time." You had better wait till you have paid up all the old debts first. Don't get trusted. Pay for your provisions and grocories as you go along and husband what you have over. The relief from the old debts will be like the recovery from a boil—you feel better when it is well—and the comfort of feeling that as little you accumulate is subject to nobody's lien, is a positive pleasure. The man who buys what he is unable to pay for at the time of the purchase, incumbrancing his life and his labor, and incurring a burden which most likely he will regret. "Pay as you go" is a wise maxim, for yourself honest, and for your neighbor just. Its observance will lighten the cares and burdens of life, sweeten toil, encourage industry, and induce prosperity.—Detroit Free Press.

To the Electors of the City of Belleville.

GENTLEMEN:—At the request and solicitation of a large number of the ratepayers of the City, I beg to announce myself as a candidate for the Mayoralty for the ensuing year 1880.

Very respectfully, Yours, R. S. PATTERSON.

Belleville, Dec. 8, 1879. ft

To the Municipal Electors OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

GENTLEMEN:—Having been honored by you with the position of Mayor for the past two years, although strongly urged by many friends to again be a candidate, I have no desire to monopolize this important office to the exclusion of citizens, who by reason of long residence, enterprise, or service to the people, are entitled to fill it. I have for the above reasons, determined to retire at the expiration of the year.

In making your selection for the ensuing year, you will have my hearty co-operation in selecting a candidate who has the interests of our fair young City at heart.

I have the honor to remain, Yours faithfully, ALEX. ROBERTSON.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

WE invite the attention of every person wanting to purchase Dry Goods to the following FACTS, which we think will be of service to them in aiding them to decide where to make their purchases:

1st. Our Stock is the Largest in the City.

2nd. Our British Goods are Imported direct, and are all selected in that market by a member of the firm.

3rd. We claim to have the Choicest and most attractive Stock of Dry Goods between Toronto and Montreal.

4th. We challenge a comparison of the qualities and prices of our goods with those of any other Dry Goods House in the country, believing "a comparison" to be the most convincing argument that could be used in our favor.

REMEMBER, WE HAVE THE

Most Convenient and Best Lighted Shop in the City.

And our Stock is as reliable and cheap as any Retail Stock in the Dominion.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 8.

City and Vicinity

THE CELLS.—Two tramps and no prisoners in the cells last night.

COUNTY COURT.—The next sittings of the County Court and General Seasions of the Peace will commence to-morrow.

CITY COUNCIL.—There is much important business to be transacted at to-night's meeting of the City Council, and the session is likely to be a lengthy one.

KINGSTON PRESBYTERY.—The quarterly meeting of the Kingston Presbytery will take place in St. Andrew's Church, Belleville, on the 29th December.

WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—The Womens' Christian Association will meet at the Council Chambers every Tuesday afternoon at 3, till further notice

THE MAYORALTY.—Alderman Patterson is first in the field as a candidate for the Mayoralty. His card appears in another column. Mayor Robertson announces that he will not be a candidate.

MINING MACHINERY.—Four loads of gold mining machinery for the Gatling mine and three loads of machinery for Mr. A. S. Brown's mine, left Brown's foundry, where it was manufactured, last week.

MUNICIPAL NOMINATIONS.—The nomination for municipal offices throughout the Province will be held on Monday, 29th December. Polling day will be on Monday, 5th January.

A CURIOSITY.—Mr. J. G. Robinson, of Albert University, exhibited in our office today a curiosity in the shape of an Indian War Club, which has evidently seen service. It was presented to Rev. Mr. Stone, editor of the Christian Advocate, Hamilton, by Mr. N. G. German, merchant, Winnipeg, during Mr. Stone's visit to that city this fall. The War Club, which is a formidable looking weapon, has been in the possesion of the great Sioux chief, Sitting Bull, and was used in the Custer massacre in 1876. It has a large feather attached to the stone, which represents the slaying of an American officer, and at the other end, there are five small feathers, which represent many private American soldiers as having fallen victims to the dangerous weapon. There is a braided hair strap, which is generally bound around the hand, and the club then becomes a terrible death instrument in the warrior's hands. It will be exhibited at the ladies' sale of fancy articles at Barber & Brignall's old stand, on Thursday next.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE.—The numbers of The Living Age for the weeks ending Nov. 29th and Dec. 6th respectively, contain the following articles: Pascal and his Editors, Quarterly; Mozart, Edinburgh; History and Politics, by Prof. Seeley; and A Mathematician's View of the Theory of Evolution, Macmillan; The Maronites of Syria, Blackwood; Matthew Arnold's Selections from Wordsworth, Fortnightly; Hunting for Sharks at Lyme Regis, Temple Bar; A Village Idyll, Fraser; The Criminal Code of the Jews, Pall Mall, The Bis-Cobra, the Goh-Samp and the Scorpion; and The Silk Goods of America, Nature; with instalments of Mrs. Oliphant's new story "He who will not when he may;" the conclusion of Miss Keary's "Doubting Heart," and other fiction, and the usual amount of poetry. A new serial story, "Adam and Eve" by the author of "Dorothy Fox" "Hero Carthew," etc., will be begun in December. To all new subscribers for 1880, the six numbers of 1879, which contain parts of Mrs. Oliphant's new story, and also the opening chapters of "Adam and Eve," will be sent gratis. The presen is therefore, a good time to subscribe. For fifty-two numbers of sixty-four large pages each (or more than 3,000 pages a year), the subscription price ($8) is low; while for $10,50 the publishers offer to send any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies with The Living Age for a year both postpaid. Littell & Co., Publishers, Boston.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—At the regular meeting of Hearts of Oak Lodge, No. 139, O. Y. B., Madoc, held on the 4th inst., the following officers were duly elected and installed for the ensuing year:—David W. Wright, W. M.; George Rollins, D. M.; Frederick Taber, Sec.; Frederick Rollins, Treas.; Robert Rollins, Chap.; Jas. Hill, D. of C.; Thos. Cottom, I. Tyler; Alfred Guffin, O. Tyler; Jos. Pringle, J. McBean, Jno. Thompson, Edw'd West, Jas. Palmer, Committee-men.

Marine Notes.

The gale and rain of Saturday and yesterday have broken up the ice on the bay, but no further movement amongst vessels is probable, the chances being too precarious.

Hon. A. C. Mattoon, of Oswego, will have built during the winter at that port a propeller, which will be 110 feet keel, 120 feet over all and 20 feet beam. She will be run as a day boat between Oswego and Alexandria Bay from June 1st to Sept. 10, and carry freight during the remainder of the season.

Police Court.

(Before A. DIAMOND, P. M.)

SATURDAY, Dec. 6th, 1879.

KEEPING HOUSE OF ILL-FAME.

Ida Cole, charged with this offence was dismissed.

HOUSE-BREAKING.

Edward Clancy, Patrick Taugher, James McFarlane and Lawrence Flannery, were charged with breaking into and entering the house of Jessie Liddle on the 29th ult.

The last named was dismissed. Taugher, who is at present in gaol, was not tried, as he is now serving a sentence, and the other two were after hearing evidence found guilty.

In passing sentence His Honor said, in addressing Clancy, that he was a hardened character and the leniency before shown him had not proved of any good. It was probable that if his ways were not changed, he would end his days in the penitentiary or on the gallows. He was then sentenced to fifteen months in the Central Prison at hard labor.

The prisoner.—Fifteen months! that's not much.

After a few moments Clancy said: "You bet they wont keep me tnere that time." Again after a brief silence, he requested to have nine months added to his sentence and be sent to the penitentiary, as he averred he could learn something there.

The Magistrate declined to grant the request.

Turning to McFarlane, the Magistrate said he was less hardened than Clancy, and he would give him six months in the Central Prison.

Clancy was also charged with breaking into the house of Mrs. Elizabeth Langley.

He was found guilty on this charge. The prisoner was very impertinent to the Magistrate, who said to him, "I will give six months additional for your insolence and impudence." The prisoner again pleaded to be sent to the penitentiary, but in vain. The prisoner then said, "You will never have a day's luck for this," and on leaving the court remarked, "I will never serve twenty-one months."

LARCENY.

Elgin Hogle appeared on remand, charged with the larceny of certain property owned by Jessie Liddle. He was discharged.

Stirling and Vicinity.

(From the News-Argus.)

ST. JOHN'S DAY.—The Masonic celebration has been finally arranged, to take place on the 26th inst., as the 27th is Saturday. The new choral club will then make its first public appearance.

SHARP PUNISHMENT.—We are informed that all the section men of that section of the Grand Junction on which the engine was ditched a few weeks since have been discharged, the accident having been clearly traced to negligence on their part.

CHANGE OF TIME.—By an order from the post-office department, the stage from Marmora to Stirling is now compelled to be in Stirling by half-past eight, instead of half-past ten, as formerly. This would seem as though the mails were to be placed on the Grand Junction, as no reason can be seen for the order only to meet the train going south from Stirling.

ASBESTOS.—We have been shown samples of this mineral, which has been discovered in unlimited quantities in the vicinity of Marmora. It is used for the manufacture of felt, etc., and is said to be worth $85 per ton in New York. If such is the case, a source of wealth hitherto unknown lies in that region, which promises to be even more valuable than any of the gold or iron mines now in operation, as there is no further preparatory process after the stuff is taken from the earth.

An Honest Medicine Free of Charge.

Of all medicines advertised to cure any affection of the Throat, Chest or Lungs, we know of none we can recommend so highly as DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY for Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Hoarseness, tickling in the throat, loss of voice, etc. This medicine does positively cure, and that where everything else has failed. No medicine can show one-half so many positive and permanent cures as have already been effected by this truly wonderful remedy. For Asthma and Bronchitis it is a perfect specific, curing the very worst cases in the shortest time possible. We say by all means give it a trial. Trial bottles free. Regular size $1,60. It is said that some of the alkaloids which enter into the combination of Fellows' Hyphophosphites, are extracted from trees which attain to a great age, and that this fact suggested to Mr. Fellows the idea of their employment. Whether the success of the preparation is due to this, we are not prepared to say, but the idea is a good one.

Cruelty of a Policeman.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Washington specials: The Sun says Granville O. Haller will be appointed to succeed Jeff. C. Davis as Col. of the 23rd infantry. Haller was removed from the army early in the civil war for alleged treasonable utterances. He was restored to full rank with pay last year.

The World says it is announced by the friends of Tilden that he is preparing a paper for publication, in which he will withdraw his name for the candidacy for Presidency in favor of Randall.

The Tribune says representative Singleton says that the Republicans need not expect or hope to carry a single southern state next year. You will never get negroes to vote for the Republican ticket again, we have them now and we propose to keep them. There will be no more bull dozing. There are cases of it here and there but they are exceptional and are becoming less frequent.

The Times says investigation by the Indian Commissioner discloses that the Arizona Indian contractors have formed a ring to secure the contracts and practice dishonesty.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—At a meeting held yesterday of sympathizers with the Irish tenant farmers and Central Parnell Union, formed to solicit funds. A meeting is to be held on Monday to receive Parnell.

The front walls of a row of five story brown warehouses just completed in the upper part of third avenue, fell with a crash yesterday morning, the heavy rains having undermined the foundations. Loss $2,500.

MAX MARETSCK, who was reported missing from St Louis, arrived in this city yesterday. He is said to be entirely broken down and is under the care of a physician.

Assemblyman Costello, erroneously reported dead, is suffering from pneumonia, but is still alive with the hope of recovery.

The building on Water Street occupied by the Steamboat and Canal boat lines, was burned yesterday. Loss $35,000.

A policeman found a helpless stranger on Hester Street on Saturday night and locked him in the cells, and two hours later it was discovered the man was not intoxicated but ill he was sent to the hospital and died yesterday. An examination disclosed a fractured skull.

The source of the fire by which the pavilion attached to Bellevue hospital which was destroyed on Saturday night is still unexplainable. The fire spread so rapidly that only the presence of mind and heroic conduct of the nurses saved many helpless patients from destruction.

Geo. Kaupf who came from Germany 5 months ago suicided at Brooklyn yesterday leaving letters saying his wife had driven him from home and he was unable to find employment.

—Amongst the deaths reported by cable is that of the Duke of Portland, a nobleman long noted for his retiring and accentric disposition.

—Several thousand bales of cotton at Memphis are infected with yellow fever. Eighteen railway men who have handled them have died of the disease.

—A Berlin despatch reports that the Constitutional party of Russia despair of producing any impression on the Czar after the late attempt upon his life.

—Among the guests at the Ottawa banquet was an elderly gentleman, who came all the way from British Columbia to do honor to the great Conservative Chieftain.

—Cardinal Manning and the Jesuits are at loggerheads. His Eminence has gone to Rome to try to have that Order and all the religious orders subjected to the power of the secular bishops.

Food as well as Medicine.

Most people think as they swallow Cod Liver Oil they are taking medicine. In one sense they are, for anything that tones, heals and invigorates the system is medicine. But Cod Liver Oil is the finest food as well as medicine. It not only tones and heals, but nourishes. It will save the consumptive, restore the dyspeptic, and build up the baby weakling, when all other remedies fail, and combined with the HYPOPHOSPHITES as found in SCOTT'S EMULSION, it is a most wonderful as well as agreeable remedy.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

SOREL, Dec. 8.—The dissolution of the Bulgarian assembly by Prince Alexander produced the utmost astonishment among the opposition members, who being in majority expected to come into power.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—By a fire yesterday which threatened the destruction of the Wesleyan Chapel in City Road, the main chapel was greatly injured. The historic building, Wesley's morning chapel, was gutted, but Wesley's pulpit was saved. The beautiful frescoed ceiling was irreparably injured. Great doubts are entertained whether the roof can be restored.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—The British India steamship Co.'s ship Eldorado, with 95 passengers and the Lascar's crew of the Aboot Co., put into Plymouth on Saturday, after a hairbreadth escape from total loss in the Bay of Biscay, where she lay for 30 hours during the storm of Wednesday and Thursday, totally disabled. Nearly all the crew were incapacitated by fear, and but for the exertions of the passengers, there is little question she would have gone down.

The waves broke one of the shafts and flooded the engine rooms. All the fires were extinguished. The crew abandoned their posts, the male passengers at the Captain's call bailed and pumped water from Wednesday night to Thursday night when the storm abated, and the fires were relit.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A Cairo despatch says that King John is reported marching forward with the main body of the Abyssinian army and forty guns, determined to occupy Semar and Galabatin, Blue Nile territory. He declares that European intervention will not prevent him from enforcing his just claims, including indemnity for Egypt an aggression.

MADRID, Dec. 8.—A despatch says that the leaders of the Conservative party have threatened to abandon and defeat the Ministers if the scheme of rapid abolition of slavery and reform in Cuba was persisted in. Under these threats of the premier, Martinez Campos permitted the alterations in the draft of the bill, which changed the whole tenor of the measure to such an extent as to convince the Liberals that the premier has completely surrendered to the Conservatives.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The San Francisco ministrels have tendered a benefit to Bob Hart, the former negro minstrel, to aid him in pursuing his theological studies.

LONDON, Dec., 8th.—Arrived, Canada.

CORTLAND N.Y., Dec., 8th.—Edgar F. Brown formerly a resident of N. Y. suicided this morning by shooting.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 8.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, moderate to fresh north easterly to north westerly winds, partly cloudy to cloudy colder weather, with light snow in some localities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—Indications: For lower lakes, colder, generally cloudy and snow principally along the lower lakes.

Capt. D. Foster, of Port Burwell, Ont., writes: "I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from your ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. Having been troubled with an occasional cough, at times very severe, during years past, I have found your BALSAM to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results."

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment.	Death of Member.

FELLOWS' SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES COMPOUND

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We would recommend it to the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 6th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully,
D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

The Dutch.

Holland, the home of the Dutch, is surrounded with dikes, to prevent the overflow of the land by the waters of the sea. Every Dutchman whose land borders on the sea, makes it his business to walk every morning along the edges of the dikes, and watch whether, during the night any water has found its way by any chance through them. If there be even the smallest trickling of water perceptible, he drops everything else and repairs the difficulty. But until to-morrow, the little hole may be widened, until a rude tide forces its way through the embankments and endangers his homestead and family. This prudence is natural and one would suppose that equal precautions should be taken to prevent the access of diseases to the human system. But every man thinks, "every other one is mortal but himself," and so neglects the plainest rules for self preservation. A box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS kept in the house, and their application upon the first appearance of sickness, will prevent the inroads of disease. They cleanse the system from malaria of disease, stop the caps, as the Dutchmen in his dikes, and renders all safe again.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreadful diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

NOTHING can exceed the folly and stupidity of those who submit to the pangs of the various forms and complications of rheumatism and gout, by which they are tortured and disabled, when they can, by one or two applications of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, obtain instantaneous and permanent relief.

OYSTERS! OYSTERS! OYSTERS!

THE weather is now getting settled, and this delicacy will come to hand in good condition, and the public may rely on getting a reliable article, and as cheap as AT ANY OTHER PLACE IN THE CITY. I shall have a small lot

In Fresh this Evening, which will be sold BY THE CAN OR LOT AT LOWEST FIGURES, or Served up in the Oyster-room in the different styles. Having gone to great expense in fitting up an apartment especially for Ladies and Ladies accompanied by Gentlemen, I hope to merit their esteemed patronage.

The Gentlemen's apartment is an entirely new addition to the business, and will be found large, lofty and clean. Every effort will be made to please.

For those who like it, I am drawing a splendid article of two year-old ALE,—exceedingly fine and sound.

I have also a splendid stock of Havana Cigars, consisting of Fine Partagas and real Henry Clays, as also the leading Domestics, including "Tom's" SPECIALS.

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT,
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are being put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

SCOTT'S EMULSION PURE COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

This preparation combines the two best remedies ever discovered for Consumption, Colds and Chronic Coughs, Scrofula, Rheumatism, and Diseases of the Blood, General Debility, and all Wasting Diseases of Children. It not only contains the well known and highly esteemed virtues of Cod Liver Oil in a form that is perfectly tasteless and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, but in addition, the wonderful life-giving properties of the Hypophosphites, so incorporated that the remedial powers of both are largely increased. Physicians universally acknowledge the vastly superior virtues of this combined food and medicine in all the above diseases. It is not only better tolerated, but much more readily assimilated by the system than plain Cod Liver Oil, and a better agent in enriching and purifying the blood, affording a perfect emulsion of the throat and lungs, restoring the impaired functions and giving strength and vigor to the whole body. It is sweet and palatable to the taste, never separates, deposits or spoils." Be sure and ask for Scott's Emulsion. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle.

JOHNSTON'S

is now extensively used in British and Continental Institutions, Hospitals and Asylums, and is prescribed by the medical faculty wherever it has been introduced.

Its adaptability is general to the invalid, the convalescent and the vigorous. To children it secures a strong muscular development, and for maternal nursing, imperfect mastication, athletic training, physical exhaustion, indigestion or mental overstrain, it is the perfection of known food.

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

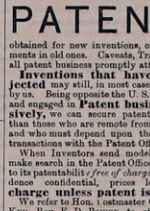

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and employing Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and we advise inventors to employ only those who are experienced in the business of obtaining patents.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge, and conduct correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

Death of the Princess Alice.

BY J. W. DAFOE.

Dark and gloomy are the plumes
Waving o'er the funeral car,
Dark and gloomy are the faces
Of the crowds that watch afar ;
For a noble one has perished,
Yes, the spark of life hath fled ;
Weeping friends and sorrowing husband
Bend above the coffined dead.

Princes from the mightiest nations
Gather at thy burial place ;
There's thy brother Albert Edward,
See his grief within his face ;
There's thy sorrow-stricken husband
Lowly bending o'er thy form,
Clouds have dimmed his bright horizon—
Sunk his hopes 'neath sorrow's storm.

In an old ancestral building,
Far across the ocean wind,
There's a Royal mother weeping,
Weeping for her darling child,
Far away, o'er wilder hill ways—
Far across the Atlantic wave—
There's another lady weeping
For her father in the grave.

Mourning hundreds, thousands, millions,
Miss thy kind and generous hand,
From the mightiest lords in England,
To the lowliest of the land,
Thou art loved, respected, honored,
Cherished in their inmost heart,
Time shall ne'er efface thy memory,
Cause the bonds of love to part.
Farewell Princess ! thou hast left us—
Left this world of toil and care,
While the sighing and the weeping
Waft thy spirit through the air.

CAST ON THE WORLD :

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

"And whose fault is it that we are cleaned out ?" said Bet, in accents of vehement reproach. "It's all owing to your idle, drunken, vagabond habits. If you had had sought about for something to do, and left me to look after the shop, we could have got on well enough. But you know when we came to Glasgow you gave up work altogether, took up with worthless associates, fell a-drinking, and squandered everything, till the last half-penny was gone."

"Oh, don't go to rake up things which I know well enough," rejoined Dick, savagely. "I can tell the story as well as you, we had to leave the shop ,and came to live here. I earned a shilling or two by any odd turn I could get, but it wasn't near enough to keep us, and we've been half starving for months. Then, to complete the business, the landlord came here, sold us up for rent, and here we are without a stick in the house, or a farthing in our pocket. I can't raise a pipeful of tobacco, or the price of a thimbleful. Of course, you are ready enough to say that I alone am to blame. Couldn't the shop have done us a good turn if you'd behaved yourself ? Going to Glasgow, Dick, has been your ruin, and the ruin of us all."

"And that was all along of Huffey White and his coming to leave the brat with us," returned Dick, who, for all his drinking, sought about for other shoulders than his own on which to lay the blame.

"Yes,' said Bet, 'it would have been telling us to-day had we sent both child and money back to him you see, at night. Before that we were well off, and didn't know it.'

'Never mind, old lass,' cried Dick, as, with an effort he partially roused himself. 'I mean to make up for it now. We'll go out of Glasgow the very night, and when we make our way to England, I'm sure of getting a hire at my old job.'

'And what's to be done with Charlie ?' inquired Bet, marpishly. 'What's the good of being burdened with a child as is not a drop's blood to either of us ?'

'We won't be burdened with him,' responded Dick. 'We'll leave him,and when he's found the parish will have to look after him. Where is he now ?'

'Playing down in the court with the children.'

Dick rose from the floor, and crossing to the open window, leant out his head and surveyed for a few moments the group of urchins on the pavement. Then,in a loud, husky voice, which made itself heard above the other noises, he shouted 'Charlie.'

In an instant several dirty little faces, with sharp gleaming eyes, were turned upward, and amongst them the dim features of a little fellow with curly brown hair, who, the moment Dick beckoned with his arm, darted into the entry, and in a minute or so made his appearance with noiseless alacrity in the miserable chamber.

He was a smart, quick-motioned little fellow,slim,small limbed,but with a pinched, joyless expression on his face. Ah, me, there was no freshness of enjoyment in those young and already hard features. He wanted that trustful and trusting look which children of his age usually have—children that is, who are cared for and tended and loved, who have all their wants supplied as they arise, who have a mother's bosom to nestle in, and a mother's love to draw forth all that is docile and affectionate in their nature. You saw at a glance that little Charlie was no such favored subject in the blessed kingdom of childhood. He had the look of one who had long suffered neglect, who had been left very much to his own resources, who had not been kissed or fondled or petted, who had not been indulged or pampered in his whims and tenderness, but in whom the absence of all loving influences had developed a preternatural sharpness and quickness of intellect more suited to a boy of twelve than of eight.

His dress was of the scantiest kind, and what there was of it was of a very dirty and ragged description. He was without stockings and shoes, and wore no bonnet on his curly head, yet still, in the midst of this terrible wretchedness, he gave the impression that in happier circumstance he would have been a handsome and engaging boy. That face of his, so dun and pinched, had features of a kind which lavished love would have brightened into radiance. As it was, those bright, fearless eyes, of almost azure blue, had an honest frankness in them, and an attractive power, which incited one whose heart was anything near the right place to draw the curly head towards him, and stroke the brown, luxuriant hair, matted though it was.

Yes, you saw at a glance that Charlie had been utterly neglected and wholly unloved, but you saw also that, further than this, he had not been ill-used, he had not the cowed look of a beaten, broken spirited child, who was in the habit of cowering away from blows, and slinking out of sight to escape the grasp of brutality. Dick and Bet, though thriftless, unprincipled, and selfish enough, had no great spice of wanton cruelty in their natures. Either of them were particularly tinged with spite or vindictiveness, and Charlie never felt the weight of their hands unless he had been guilty of some heinous transgression, a circumstance which had happened very seldom. He had felt cold and hunger often enough, and had never known what it was to be cared for or tenderly regarded, but a sense of gross ill-usage was not sent crushing in on his young spirit, nor his life and energy repressed by cruel kicks and blows.

'Charlie,' said Dick, when the boy came into the room, 'would you like to go down to the Green and see the show ?'

'Yes, I would,' replied Charlie, staring in astonishment at the unexpected question.

'And could you find your way there yourself ?'

'Catch me for that was, the answer.

'Well, you can go for a while, and perhaps you may pick up summat to eat among the stalls.'

'I wish I could,' said Charley, 'for I'm very hungry.'

'You are no more hungry than I am,' spoke up Bet. 'We have hot eaten anything since the morning any more than you. So be off with you, and use your eyes, and see what you can pick up.'

Charlie wheeled, and vanished, and the thud, thud, of his bare feet sounded for some moments on the dirty stair as he rapidly descended to the bottom.

'There, we have got rid of him now,' was Dick's callous observation ; 'and we had better be on the tramp at once.'

Bet got up from her seat on the stone, and with a dejected air, drew close around her shoulders the tattered shawl, which, with a dingy cotton gown, torn in many places, was almost her only covering.

They were still standing in the middle of the apartment, when a slow footstep was heard ascending the stair, and having gaining the landing, came direct towards them. The half open door was pushed wide open, and an old weasel-looking man in ancient dress, showed himself on the threshold.

'I say, Dick Marston,' he exclamed in a harsh croaking voice, 'you'll have to get out of this early on Monday morning, for I have let the room to another party, and they are coming then. So if you don't go I'll have to fetch a constable to turn you out.'

'You'll not be put to that trouble old thumbscrew,' answered Dick, 'for me and my missus are just going to leave this minute and you can take the key with you.'

'Going to-night, are you ! Oh that's all right. I'm glad I stepped up.'

'Yes, we are going to-night,' said Dick, with a scowl at him. 'What's the use of our staying within four empty walls, when you haven't left us a stool or a dish ! Didn't you clear us out to the last stick and rag !'

'And the things didn't half pay me,' replied the landlord. 'You are in my debt still, but I don't suppose I shall get a farthing more from you.'

'You may take your davy on that you old miserly skinflint. Why, man, you haven't got no more heart than that stone.'

'There you go, there you go,' said the old man peevishly. 'Because I only look after my own, and don't get it either, I am called all sorts of ill-names. Why should I keep up houses for other people ?'

'Come Dick,' said Bet. 'As we have to go we may as well go at once. It will do us no good that I know of to stand here saying hard things to Mr. Dacres.'

'Look ye here, Dacres,' said Dick,as they were about to cross the threshold ; 'we haven't a copper, and neither me nor my missus has eaten a thing since the morning. When we had a crust between us and a drink of water. Give us a tanner to—'

'Not a farthing,' cried the old man, determinedly. 'I've lost too much by you already.'

'Well, a copper or two, then. You'll never miss them. You are rich, I am told, and have no mouth but your own to fill.'

'Not a farthing. I tell you,' reiterated the old man, as hastily he buttoned up his trousers' pockets. 'I have no money to give way, I need all that I have got.'

'Curse you, for a stony hearted miser,' roared Dick, as he scowled past, and, followed by Bet, descended the dark turnpike stair.

After they were gone the landlord lost no time in shutting up the room, and with the key in his pocket, hurried up the High Street, while his late tenants trudged down towards the Trongate, and, proceeding along Argyle Street, crossed the river by the lowest bridge, and moved on towards the southern outskirts of the city, where we shall allow them to pass for the present out of view.

The Dutch.

Holland, the home of the Dutch, is surrounded with dikes, to prevent the overflow of the land by the waters of the sea. Every Dutchman whose land borders on the sea, makes it his business to walk every morning along the edges of the dikes, and watch whether, during the night any water has found its way by any chance through them. If there be even the smallest trickling of water perceptible, he drops everything else and repairs the difficulty. Left until to-morrow, the little hole may be widened, until a rude rush of the waters through the embankment, and endangers his homestead and family. This prudence is natural and one would suppose that equal precautions should be taken to prevent the access of diseases to the human system. But every man thinks, "every other one is mortal but himself," and so neglects the plainest rules for self preservation. A box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS kept in the house, and their application upon the first appearances of sickness, will prevent the inroads of disease. They cleanse the system from malaria of disease, stop the ague, as the Dutchman in his dikes, and renders all safe again.

Deep learning will make you acceptable to the learned, but it is only an easy and obliging behavior and entertaining conversation that will make you agreeable in all companies.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 9.

The Grand Junction

The petition of the Grand Junction Railway Company for the extension of the time for the completion of their railway to the Town of Peterborough to the 1st of January, 1881, was the subject of a lengthy discussion in the City Council last night. Various motions were made, as will be seen by reference to our report of the proceedings, but no definite conclusion was reached. A motion made by Alderman Jellett was carried, postponing the matter until the next meeting of the Council, the views of the ratepayers meanwhile to be taken by means of a public meeting. This meeting will probably be held on Thursday night, when we hope to see a large attendance of the qualified electors, as the subject is one of the greatest importance to the City, and the Council evidently wish to be guided by the views of their constituents. Such expression of opinion will be of little value unless the meeting is a representative one, and hence we urge that every ratepayer who can do so may attend.

County Court.

TUESDAY, Dec. 9, 1878.

The County Court and General Sessions of the Peace opened at noon to-day before His Honor Judge Sherwood. Mr. G. E Horton, shorthand reporter, is the official reporter.

There are 32 civil causes on the docket composed as follows :—jury 17, non jury 15. There are no prisoners for trial.

The following named gentlemen compose the Grand Jury :—Wm. Archibald, Davis Beatty, Wm. Bird, Robt. Chambers, Charles Cheesbro, Lewis Davis, Francis Elliott, G. S. Graham, Jno. Graham, C. W. Huffman, D. Haight, A. H. Jones, W. W. Kelly, G. W. Meyers, J. A Meyers, A. R. Ketchenson, Wm. Mullett, Wm. Maynes, C. R. Ostrom, Wm. Prentice, Wm. Thompson, Wm. Vanblaricom, W. R. Vandevoort, R. S. Young.

There being no prisoners for trial, his Honor was presented by the Sheriff with the customary white kid gloves.

The names of the Grand Jury having been called, they were retired, and returned into Court with the nomination of Mr. Wm. Vanblaricom as Foreman.

News Condensed.

—The new building for Queen's College at Kingston has been roofed in.

—The first shipment of iron ore from Ottawa to Cleveland was made on the 8th.

—The Supreme Court will sit for the delivery of judgments on the 12th.

—A fast train ran off the track on the Great Eastern Railway, England, yesterday. Several passengers were injured.

—Another telegraph company, to be called the Canadian Telegraph Company, is about to be started.

—Brennan, the Irish agitator, has been committed for trial, and Davitt has repeated his seditious speech.

—Four persons who were going in a small boat from Shag Harbor to Pubnico, N. S., on Sunday to attend church, were drowned.

—The Ute Indians say they will surrender for trial those charged with the massacre of Meeker, provided they are tried at Washington.

—Ex-Lieut.-Governor Trutch, of British Columbia is mentioned as the successor of the late Dr. Carrol in the Senate. Mr. Trutch has been in Ottawa for some weeks.

—It is stated that Constable Grayburn, of the North-West Mounted Police, was shot by a band of Indians while driving a lot of cattle. His horse was also shot.

At a funeral in St. Catharines the other day a strange occurrence took place. While the corpse was being conveyed from the house to the hearse, a dog belonging to the deceased followed, howling mournfully, and trying its best to jump upon the receptacle in which its deceased master lay. It ran after the funeral procession, and while at the cemetery again endeavored to jump on the coffin, making the same mournful outcry.

Samuel Shook got married at Hillsboro, Ohio, and took his bride to the home that he had prepared. The newly-wedded of the neighborhood, desiring to play what they conceived to be a good joke on the husband, broke into the house that night while he was asleep and carried off his wife, frightening her into silence by brandishing pistols. They hid her for three days, and then returned her to the anxious Mr. Shook. They said they meant no harm, but he refuses to regard the exploit as fun, and has had them arrested.

The quantity of silver obtained in 1878 from British mines was 307,471 ounces, and most of the precious metal was found in combination with lead. The total value of the silver thus obtained in the year in question was estimated at £68,296 19s 6d. In the same year the gold found in British mines weighed 702 ounces 16 dwts, 8 grs, and was estimated to be of the value of £2,845 15s 6d. Nearly all this British gold—namely, a fraction over 697 ounces—was procured in Wales.

A gloriously beautiful widow, says the Washington Capital, has the best dodge of them all ; she takes home a hundred of her photographs and when a gentleman calls the maid happens to be looking at one of them. "What is that, Susan," says the caller. "A photograph of Missis," says Susan. "Ain't it just too lovely!" "Rather," replies the caller, and then he gives Susan a dollar for it.

CITY COUNCIL.

MONDAY, Dec. 8.

The Council met at 8 p. m.

PRESENT.—His Worship the Mayor ; Messrs. St. Charles, Proctor, Dickson, Green, Vandusen, Robertson, Holden, Jellet, Hayne, Petrie, Wallbridge, Hulme, Panter, Hambly, Doyle, Brennan, Farley, and Lingham.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

PETITIONS, etc.

The following were read :

From John Bell, Esq., Q. C., counsel for the lumbermen, stating that he had on their behalf accepted the proposal of the Council, which was subsequently altered and agreed to by him, except in one particular, and that as he had not since heard of the matter, he had been requested to fill a bill against the city, unless the agreement be carried out, to compel them to do so.

From James Carroll and wife, for remission of taxes.

From James Munley, contractor for the wall at No 2 engine house, for compensation for delay caused by the Corporation's officers, and for extras.

From Deborah Wilson for remission of taxes.

From Joseph Wilson, wrong assessment.

From H. A. Thompson for reduction of taxes on property destroyed by fire.

From E. Dolan, regarding assessment.

The account of Mr. German and the petition of Edward Dolan were by request laid on the table.

REPORTS

Of the Finance Committee, that sundry accounts be paid.

Of the Treasurer of the Committee for reception of the Governor General and the Princess Louise, that the expenditure amounted to $881.

Of the Court of Revision, reporting as already published.

Of the Printing Committee, on sundry accounts, and that three squares in the INTELLIGENCER for advertising be contracted for at regular rates.

Of the special Committee on Harbor, that they had made a continuous effort to arrange with the lumbermen, and submitting a contract of which they recommend the acceptance.

Of the Special Committee re the Grand Junction Railway, as follows :

The Special Committee appointed to consider the petition of the Grand Junction Railway Company, praying that your honorable body should extend the time for the payment of a bonus, beg leave to report as follows :

1. At the first meeting of your Committee, which was attended by the President of the said Railway and two of the contractors therefor, your Committee decided against granting the prayer of the said petition.

2. At a subsequent meeting of your Committee, attended by the said President and one of the said contractors, your Committee endeavored to see if any better terms for the City could be procured, in case your honorable body consented to extend the time. The following several propositions were discussed :

a. Providing we gave the extension, we should have secured to us by legislative enactment the nomination of the majority of the Board of Directors.

b. That the whole $50,000 should be payable when the road has been completed and equipped to Peterboro.

c. That the extension should be submitted to the people.

d. That if the extension were granted, a bond should be given to the City guaranteeing the completion and equipment of the road to Peterboro.

But none of these suggestions were acceptable to the petitioners ; and your committee were given to understand that the petitioners were not prepared to make any alterations in the prayer of the said petition, nor have they since expressed their willingness to do so.

Your Committee therefore, on the above facts refer the matter to your honorable body.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEO. D. DICKSON, Chairman.

A HOME FOR THE POOR.

Mr. Thos. Ritchie, as a member of the deputation regarding a home for the poor, and with whom Messrs. Jas. Ross and R. Costello appeared, was heard. He stated the action of the public meeting held on the subject, which was to recommend the establishment of an institution for the deserving poor. The Committee appointed by the public meeting had conferred with a Committee of ladies, and it had been agreed to ask the Council to rent a building and grant a sum to comfortably equip the same, the ladies agreeing to look after the working of the institution.

Mr. James Ross was also heard in the same behalf, and said if the Council rented a building and made a small appropriation, the Women's Christian Association would canvass the city and procure the necessary funds to carry it on. This, though not all that was wanted, in his opinion, would be a good commencement.

In answer to Ald. Dickson, Mr. Ross said he thought from $200 to $300 would be sufficient for a start. The appropriation for poor and sanitary would not all be expended, there being likely to be a surplus of $400 or $500, part of which could be used. He thought the infirm poor would be better looked after in such a house and be better cared for than they now are in a boarding house, where the rate of pay is not sufficient to secure proper attendance.

Mr. Ritchie stated that the proposed establishment would enable the ladies to minister more effectually to the sick and debilitated gathered together, as they would be, than scattered as they are now, and the expense would be smaller. The institution would be largely if not entirely supported by the contributions of the benevolent.

Mrs. Agnes, who with Mrs. Sherwood, and Mrs. N. Jones was present, stated that she had learned that there are several old women who live in gaol and are committed for no offence, but to give them a shelter during the winter. She urged that provision should be made for such cases. They had promises of contributions of furniture, etc., and would guarantee that there would be no additional expense, but they asked assistance to make a start.

In answer to Ald. Dickson, Mrs. Jaques said it was intended by the members of the Woman's Christian Association to take an entire charge of the proposed institution.

Ald. Vandusen said the present system had not worked well, being practically advertising for paupers. He strongly advocated an appropriation of the sum estimated for poor and sanitary for carrying out the project of the ladies. He would move accordingly.

The Mayor said the resolution would have to come up at a later stage.

Ald. Holden said consideration was required, and although the project was a worthy one it should be carefully considered by a Committee. It was confidently stated that there was a surplus of the appropriation for poor and sanitary, which statement he very much doubted the correctness of.

Ald. Proctor approved of Ald. Holden's suggestion.

Ald. Robertson moved for a grant of $300 to establish a House, and for an annual grant of $130, payable quarterly, to the Treasurer of the Women's Christian Association, the money to be disbursed by the Committee of the Association, in conjunction with the Mayor and Chairman of the Poor and Sanitary.

Ald. Jellett wished the matter referred to a Committee composed of an Alderman from each Ward, and he moved in amendment seconded by Ald. Vandusen, that the matter be referred to a Committee composed of Aldermen Holden, Brennan, Lingham, Hambly, Hulme, Geen and Patterson.

After some discussion as to a point of order, the Council went into Committee of the whole to consider the matter. Ald. Geen in the chair.

Ald. Robertson moved the resolution as given above, which he amended after some discussion so as to make the grant for equipment $170.

Ald. Holden said instead of there being a surplus, he ventured to say that the appropriation had been overdrawn $300 or $400.

Ald. Dickson wished the matter referred to a committee, and Ald. Doyle wished it disposed of at once.

Ald. Jellett moved the amendment as above stated, which was carried.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL'S GRANT.

Ald. Brennan moved for a grant of $50 to aid the St. Vincent de Paul Society in maintaining three indigent patients in Kingston hospital. He said a similar grant had been made for the last three or four years, and the sum asked was a little more than one-third of the total expense incurred by the Society.

At the suggestion of Ald. Holden the resolution was deferred until the Council went into Committee on Ways and Means.

INQUIRIES.

Ald. Petrie inquired if there is any license fee charged persons selling small wares by auction on the market ?

The Mayor said that such parties are obliged to take out a license or be liable to a penalty.

The Clerk explained that by the decision of the Solicitor no fee could be exacted from persons selling goods of Canadian manufacture, and but two had paid fees.

NOTICES.

Ald. Petrie's notice of a By-law for the appointment of a Deputy Clerk was allowed to stand.

Ald. Holden gave notice of a By-law for the holding of elections and the appointment of Deputy Returning Officers.

Ald. Petrie gave notice of a resolution for a return from the Treasurer of moneys paid him in 1875, 76 and 77 by the Clerk.

BY-LAWS.

Council went into Committee on By-laws. Ald. St. Charles in the chair.

The By-law for the opening of Ann and William Streets, which has previously been debated several times, was brought up for a second reading, and was carried so far as Ann Street in concerned, the clause regarding William Street being withdrawn.

Committee rose and reported.—Adopted.

Ald. Robertson moved the suspension of the rules for the purpose of passing the By-law.—Carried

The By-law was passed accordingly.

WAYS AND MEANS.

The various reports were received and Council went into Committee on Ways and Means. Ald. Brennan in the chair.

The report of the Finance Committee was adopted.

The report of the Special Committee on Harbor was also adopted.

The report of the Special Committee on the Grand Junction was brought up.

Ald. Robertson moved that the prayer of the petition of the Company be granted, and that the seal of the Corporation be attached to the resolution, which should have the effect of a By-law.

Ald. Dickson moved in amendment to grant the petition on the condition that the Corporation be given the power of nominating a majority of the Board of Directors.

Ald. Robertson said the principle of representing bonuses was foreign to Railway corporations ; the $25,000 payable on completion of the road to Hastings was already hypothecated, for the payment of work done ; and there was not time to submit a By-law to the people. The Company were willing to give a bond to complete, equip and operate the road. He urged that the project would be destroyed unless the extension of time were given, by prejudicing bonuses already voted. We would thus lose to a great extent the benefit of our large investment in the enterprise. The Company could not give us increased representation on the Board, because the County of Hastings is the largest stockholder and will not give up its valuable rights.

Ald. Hambly would like the matter to lie over until another meeting, in order to see if the contractors would not accept some of the propositions of the Committee. He at the same time felt that in justice to the citizens we should extend the time, by which means we would, without increasing our debt, get a through route to the west. If we allowed this opportunity to pass, Belleville would regret the day.

Ald. Holden said the matter was one which was of great importance to the City and would have to be considered with regard to its interests. He suggested that the whole $50,000 be made payable on the completion of the road to Peterborough. He thought they now had in their power to rectify the mistake—if it was a mistake—of dividing the bonus and making the whole sum payable, as passed by the people, on the completion of the road to Peterborough. This extension of time would give the Company an extra $25,000, for which we ought to have an equivalent. The only objection which the Company had to the postponement of the payment was that the sum had already been hypothecated. He considered it childish for them to say that men so wealthy as they could not finance for that amount. He would go this far, and say if the Company would wait for the whole sum, as he proposed, he would be willing to pay them interest on the $25,000 which they claimed they had earned, from the date of Mr. Shanly's report stating that the stipulations of the By-law had been complied with. This he thought was fair and ought to secure a solution of the matter. He should oppose the division of the bonus, as in doing so the will of the people had been set aside, the almost unanimous wish of the people having been to pay no money until the road was finished to Peterborough. He concluded by moving in amendment to the amendment to extend the time, as proposed, on condition of the payment of the whole $50,000 on completion of the road to Peterborough, interest being payable on one half of the amount from the date of Walter Shanly's report certifying the completion of the line to Hastings.

Ald. Dickson said he considered the Grand Junction as of paramount importance to the city. He contended that Ald. Robertson's statement as to the representation of bonuses on the Board, was not borne out by the legislation on the subject, and in support of this he cited the representation of the County and of the City in the first place on the Board. It was in the $100,000 By-law passed by the people of Belleville stipulated that at least six of the Directors should be residents of Belleville, which with the six nominated by the county, gave twelve of the Directors, residents of the county, directly interested in this city ; and moreover the Railway Board itself had directly recognized the principle by a resolution passed in January last. The Company had accepted the money of the County and this municipality on the agreement that twelve of the Directors should be residents of Belleville and Hastings. If we were to have six directors for $100,000, should we not have a like proportion for the additional bonus of $50,000 ? The Grand Trunk now controls this road and will control the Midland, and in such case was it likely that they would allow the link between Hastings and Peterborough to remain unfinished ? He held not, as it was as much if not more to the interest of the Grand Trunk to complete the Grand Junction as it was of the people of Belleville, because it was their interest as well as ours to prevent the Toronto and Ottawa being built to take away their trade. We have taxed ourselves to the utmost to assist this road, leaving nothing for other local improvements for years to come. If we are therefore to mortgage the property of the City for all that it will bear, and give another $50,000 to this road, let us control it, which is the only commensurate advantage that can be given to us. On this condition only, he contended, should the money be granted.

Ald. Robertson held that it made no matter who controls a Railway Board, as trade would seek its natural channel. The right of the County to appoint six Directors was because of a special provision in the original By-law. Their contribution was stock, which they still held, and which had its own representation. We had put our bottom dollar in the road, and let us reap the benefit ; let it be finished and we will find no difficulty in paying our bonus.

Ald. Jellett had heard all the arguments on the subject, but had not as yet been able to make up his mind as to what should be done. He thought it advisable to lay the matter over for a week and take the sense of the people upon it and get an expression of their views. He moved in amendment to the amendment to the amendment to lay the matter over for a week and to request the Mayor to call a public meeting in the meantime for the discussion of the subject.

Ald. St. Charles would second the motion, believing that the people should be consulted. If a majority of influential ratepayers support the proposal for an extension it would be their duty to act in accordance, and if the Grand Trunk were to run the road and have the profits from it, they were the proper parties to complete it.

Ald. Petrie said a great deal of fault had been found last year with the division of the bonus, and in order to give satisfaction all around it would be desirable to have the views of the people. The chief benefits from the road could not be derived until the junction with the Midland was effected. He should support Ald. Jellett's amendment.

Ald. Dickson said the Grand Trunk could discriminate in rates as between their own station and the wharves here, and thus deprive us of a large share of the profit which we should have from the road. What benefit was the carriage of iron ore from Madoc and directly over the Grand Trunk ? Another important and serious question was, did they believe that if they did not give this $25,000 a road which had already cost $750,000 and would cost only $300,000 to finish would they believe that this mere drop in the bucket of $25,000 would prevent its completion ? It seemed to him child's-play to say that this great enterprise would be left incomplete, with the Grand Trunk and the contractors so anxious to finish it, on account of so small a sum as $25,000. We were to give them $50,000 ; let us have something in return.

Ald. Hambly argued that we were to give $25,000 not $50.000; for the one half of the bonus was in arbitration. He held that they would not be acting consistent with the interest of the citizens of Belleville to refuse this bonus.

After some further discussion, Ald Jelleti's amendment was put and carried.

The report re the reception was adopted.

Ald. Brennan's motion for a grant to the St Vincent de Paul Society was then moved.

Ald. Dickson objected to the motion as being out of order, as having been submitted to the Finance Committee and decided against within the year.

Ald. Brennan said if this grant were not made, the three patients would be sent here and the City would have to support them. They were not helpless women, one of whom is in the Hotel Dieu and the other two are in the House of Providence.

Ald. Doyle stated that it had been agreed some five years ago with the Society that the Corporation should contribute a portion of the expenses. They would not have been removed but for this agreement.

The Mayor said that under the rule it would require a two-thirds vote to pass the resolution.

Ald. Robertson thought they should have a declaration that these people are still alive. If the arrangement had been made, it ought to be carried out.

Ald. Holden said the grant had usually been made out of the appropriation for Poor ann Sanitary, and he suggested the laying over of the matter till next week.

It was finally agreed to refer the matter to the Finance Committee.

The account of D. German for gravel was passed.

Ald. Dickson moved for a grant of $50 to each of the Charitable National Societies of the City.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

Committee rose and reported.—Adopted. Council adjourned at midnight.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 9.

City and Vicinity

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—A regular meeting of the Board will be held to-night.

SOCIAL.—A social will be held this evening at the residence of Mrs. D. Price, in aid of the Bridge Street Methodist Sunday School

SALE OF LANDS.—The County Treasurer's sale of lands for taxes will take place at the Court House on Tuesday next, the 16th inst.

AMUSEMENT NOTE.—"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be presented on the stage of the Opera House in this city on Thursday afternoon and evening.

CLOSE SEASON.—As the close season for deer commences on the 15th inst, it behoves those who desire to hunt or secure a supply of venison to do so by the date mentioned above.

LUMBERING.—A gang of men numbering over fifty-two leave here this evening by the G. T. R. for Grand Island, Michigan, where they will be employed in Mr. Joseph Weller's lumber shanties, which are located there.

PERSONAL.—Mr. C. J. Pusey, who has been operating largely in iron ore in the Madoc mines, has determined to make a short visit to his family in England and will sail from New York to-morrow. We wish him bon voyage.

RECOVERED.—The gold watch advertised in the DAILY INTELLIGENCER of yesterday as having been lost has been recovered and returned to its owner, T. C. Wallbridge, Esq. This is an instance of the benefits derived by advertising in the INTELLIGENCER.

NEW CROSSING.—A new crossing is being put down at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets. Like other places this change was much needed, and now let us hope whilst this moderate weather lasts that all the crossings and walks will be put in proper order.

L. O. L. No. 442.—The following officers were duly elected and installed for the ensuing year:—John Bateman, W. M.; William Haslett, D. M.; Duncan Nerrie, Treas.; William H. Thompson, Sec.; William T. Bateman, Chap.; James Johnston, D. of C.; Committee—Charles Wright, Henry Courtney, Mark McMurray, John Green, Caleb Bateman. Ed. Caverly, Tyler.

A DEPUTATION OF LADIES.—It is rarely that the sessions of the City Council are graced with the presence of ladies, but last night a deputation of the Women's Christian Association were present. It seems quite probable that the object of the ladies —which is to secure the establishment of a home for the sick and debilitated poor—will be achieved. The work which they propose to carry out is a noble one, and one in which we are sure they will meet with a hearty sympathy and generous support from the citizens generally.

BELLEVILLE ABROAD.—Mary Troy, alias Beatty, appeared in the Police Court at Port Hope yesterday, charged with keeping a house of ill-fame. Mrs. T. evidently strains the truth for after being charged with the above offence she stated that her husband lived in Belleville, was rich, and that when she came to Port Hope she had $700, and she wanted to know in the face of these facts why she should be necessitated to keep such a place? She said she was born in this city, and could get a character from a thousand. She was nevertheless found guilty and sent up for three months.

ENGLISH MAIL.—An English mail arrived and was distributed at the post-office here this morning.

THE LAST VESSEL.—The schooner Oneida, laden with coal, left here to-day for Kingston.

THE MAYORALTY.—There is, it seems, to be a contest for this office, as Mr. J. H. Hambly announces himself as a candidate.

POLICE COURT.—There was no business before the court this morning, but at three this afternoon a case of horse stealing was set down for hearing.

LECTURE.—Prof Blankman of New York will deliver a lecture in the Metropolitan Hall on Friday evening next on "How we live: How should we live: And what becomes of man."

GAY.—The poet Gay has, as will be seen by advertisement, established himself in business here, and can now be found over McCrudden's shop on the market square. Read his poetical pronunciamento.

TEA MEETING.—A tea-meeting, will be held in the Methodist Church, Plainfield, on Tuesday the 30th inst. Vocal and instrumental music and addresses will be added as an additional treat on the occasion.

O. Y. B. No. 210.—The election of officers of "John White" Lodge, Plainfield, was as follows:—John W. Lloyd, W. M.; John Martin, D. M.; Willet Gould, Sec.; Thos. Hinds, Treas.; Thos. Martin, First Com.; Wm. A. Caverly, Chap.; Anson Latta, D. of C.; Wilson Lloyd, Inside Tyler.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—Services will be held in the Methodist Church, Foxboro, on Sabbath Dec. 21st, when sermons will be preached by Rev. N. R. Willoughby, M. A., and Rev. O. Lambly, M.A. A tea-meeting will be held on Christmas night in the same church when a programme of vocal and instrumental music and addresses will be rendered.

"BENJAMIN" L. O. L. No. 274, BELLEVILLE.—The following are the officers of this Lodge for the ensuing year, viz:—J. H. Post, W. M.; Wm. Minore, D. M.; Rev. A. Schuster, Chap.; W. H. Gordon, Sec.; J. W. Dafoe, Treas.; Jas. Cunningham, D. of C.; B. Skimmerhorn, I. T.; Jas. Gibson, O. T.; Committe—F. M. Clarke, John G. Mooro, I. Barlow, John Druce, C. A. Pettitt.

A SUGGESTION.—This being an age of invention, a correspondent of the Port Hope Times suggests to the lumbermen a possibility of lessening the cost of driving logs in the spring by substituting a kind of ice barge on wheels that could be run by steam; a portable engine could be used which would cost little more for fuel than a stove. If the idea is practicable, the suggestion ought to be rewarded by the lumbermen with an annuity which he undoubtedly would cheerfully accept.

BARLEY MARKET.—The Oswego Palladium of Saturday says:—"The receipts from Canada during the week have been 187,980 bushels which about closes the receipts for this season. The shipments by rail have been liberal during the past week. The receipts of new crop barley from Canada to date have been 3,807,312 bu. against 2,837,407, bu. in 1878, 3,893,384 bu. in 1877, 3,014,732 bu. in 1876, 3,695,835 in 1875. Compared with the receipts in 1878 the increase this season is 969,815 bu. The stock of Canadian and state barley in store is over 730,000 bu. which is less than the supply in store a year ago. The receipts of new crop Canada barley at Fair Haven up to Nov. 30th were 191,772 bu. The last barley boat from Oswego arrived at tide water yesterday."

WRESTLING CONTEST.—A match for the champion belt and $200 has been arranged to take place in the Opera House in this city on Saturday evening next between Duncan C. Ross and J.C. Daly, the present holder of the belt, who won that emblem at Albany through Ross having sustained a fracture of his right arm. A meeting was arranged to have taken place at this office at nine o'clock this morning, but Daly failed to appear, either in person or by representative, though he had promised by telegraph that he would be on hand; yet he acted in a similar way during the preliminaries of the Albany contest. Mr. J. S. Barnes, of Toronto, champion runner of Rhode Island and also of Canada, is in the city looking after the interests of Ross. The event will take place, however, as stated above, and will consist of five contests as follows: Catch as catch can Irish, Scotch, Cumberland, collar and elbow and Graco Romana. The winner of three of which will be proclaimed the victor. As the contest will be the first of the kind to come off here, and as the parties are well-known athletes, there is every likelihood of there being an interesting and exciting match.

A Marvellous Transformation.

Physicians as a general thing are slow to accept any change in medicine or any new remedy. But with remarkable unanimity they have received and endorsed the PALARABLE CARTON OIL manufactured by SCOTT & BOWNE. They prescribe it for all ages and conditions, but especially for children. The transformation of the most estimable cathartic known from being the most nauseous to the most palatable of medicines is the greatest blessing that has been conferred on the age. Price only 25 cents per bottle.

It is said that some of the alkaloids which enter into the combination of Fellows' Hyphosphites, are extracted from trees which attain to a great age, and that this fact suggested to Mr. Fellows the idea of their employment. Whether the success of the preparation is due to this, we are not prepared to say, but the idea is a good one.

Capt. D. Foster, of Port Burwell, Ont., writes:—"I am pleased to notify you of the benefit which I have received from your ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM. Having been troubled with an occasional cough, at times very severe, during years past, I have found your BALSAM to relieve my cough more readily than anything I ever tried. My wife has also used it with most satisfactory results."

DEVELOPMENTS IN A WILL CASE.

ACCIDENTS AND OFFENCES.

The Irish Nationalists.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 9.—A check signed by T. F. Scott, a wealthy merchant of this city, for $1,500, arrived yesterday for collection. Payment was refused. Scott, while in New York recently, was enticed by confidence men into a banko house and refusing to play they threatened to throw him into the river unless he signed a check for $1,500. He drew up a check on a bank where he he had no account.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Washington specials: The Times says that the Senate Judiciary Committee have reported favorably the bill to admit ex-rebel officers to the army.

The Tribune says it is stated that the Democrats propose to adjourn Congress Dec. 17th until January 8th.

The House Committee's bill concerning the electoral count provides that a dispute in any state as to electors chosen, be submitted to the highest judicial tribunal of that State; and its decision shall be conclusive, unless both Houses of Congress agree to reject it. The Senate bill provides that the subject shall be referred to whatever State tribunal the State law may direct; the decision of that tribunal to be final.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—In the contest over the estate of Lewis, an eccentric Hoboken millionaire who left his fortune to the United States Government, a sensation was created yesterday. Elijah Cauldwell, a witness for the alleged widow, retracted all his former testimony, and swore that the marriage certificate produced was a forgery and that Mrs. Lewis had several times admitted to him that she never saw Lewis. Other witnesses corroborated Cauldwell.

Arthur Neason, Fort Edward, who came here to attend his son's funeral and suddenly disappeared, was found yesterday half nude and starving at West Farm, where he had wandered while demented from his son's death.

Dr. Demeron, an English physician, recently arrived in this city on his way to British Columbia to take possession of a large estate left him by an uncle. On Friday he disappeared. He had a passion for drink, and there are fears of foul play, as he carried a large sum of money.

Josiah M. Fisk, Fifth Avenue, gave an informal reception last evening to the Ponca Indians. Many prominent gentlemen were present.

Mary Fauth suicided by paris green in Jersey City yesterday. Her husband had deserted her.

Eight Arabs, who claim to have escaped from prison in French Guinea, arrived yesterday, destitute. They were transported for a revolt against the French in Algiers in 1870. They will be assisted to employment.

The Irish Nationalists of New York, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Detroit, have united in a despatch to P. J. Smyth, member of Parliament for West Meath, Ireland, inviting him to America to assist in laying the whole case of Ireland before the American people. His views are understood to be entirely at variance with Parnell's.

The stranger who was arrested for alleged intoxication on Saturday, and who died on Sunday from a fractured skull, is identified as Edward Wischert, a Williamsburg tailor. It is reported that his skull was fractured by a policeman's club.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Heavy snowfalls are reported throughout Germany, Austria and Switzerland, and from Paris, Madrid, Brussels, Florence, Genoa, Venice, Bologna, Verona and Rome. At Nantes the river Loire was frozen.

PARIS, Dec. 9.—The Municipality has voted $100,000 for the relief of the poor.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—It is reported that the Kashgar revolt ended by the complete defeat of Hakim Khan of Tura. Hakim Khan besieged Tashkougan with 5,000 men, while the Chinese numbered only 2,000, but all of Hakim Khan's Kirghiz force deserted, leaving only 600 Sarts.

Hakim retired with these into the country of the Kirghiz, which he ravaged, and then started for Russia, laden with booty. Some Chinese from Tashkowgan overtook Hakim on 21st Sept. in the Kinalarte defile, and slew a thousand.

ROME, Dec. 9.—The Fanfulla says that Bismarck has written to Senator Jacins, author of a pamphlet on Conservatism in the Italian Parliament, saying that an agreement of the Powers devoted strictly to a conservative and pacific policy can alone bring about a partial disarmament, which is the only remedy for the prevailing depression in finances and the miseries of the people in various countries.

PARIS, Dec. 9.—At 9 o'clock this morning the thermometer at Fathenheim was 3 degrees above zero. The Seine is frozen. Ex-Empress Eugenie passed through Henaye, France, yesterday on her return to London.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Arrived, the Hindoo.

The factory owners of Arbroath, Scotland, have agreed to restore the reduction on wages made last January.

MADRID, Dec. 9.—By advice of Canovas del Castillo, the King summoned A. Valla, formerly Minister of Colonies, to form a Cabinet.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Arrived Wieland, from Hamburg, and Hans from Bremen.

PITTSTON, Dec. 9.—Jno. Hindle, probably fatally, John Connor and Wm. Sheridan, slightly burned by the explosion of fire damp in the Pittston coal Company's twin shaft this morning.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 9.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, brisk to high easterly to southerly winds, cloudy weather, followed by snow or rain.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—Indications: For lower lakes, slowly rising temperature, threatening rainy partly as snow.

FROM MADOC.

ANOTHER GREAT GOLD DISCOVERY

An Ounce and a Half of Gold washed from a Pan of Dust.

MADOC, Dec. 9th.—The gold excitement has been contin ually growing stronger and stronger here every week, and last night it reached a fearful pitch when the news came that a very rich vein had been struck at what is commonly known here as the "Dale, Stanlick and Harrison mine." The find is estimated to be worth from seventy to eighty thousand dollars. From one pan of dust there was washed an ounce and a half of pure gold.

To the Electors of the City of Belleville.

GENTLEMEN:—At the request and solicitation of a large number of the ratepayers of the City, I beg to announce myself as a candidate for the Mayoralty for the ensuing year 1880.

Very respectfully,
Yours,
R. S. PATTERSON.

Belleville, Dec. 8, 1879. ft

To the Municipal Electors

OF THE

CITY OF BELLEVILLE.

GENTLEMEN:—Having been honored by you with the position of Mayor for the past two years, although strongly urged by many friends to again be a candidate, I have no desire to monopolize this important office to the exclusion of citizens, who by reason of long residence enterprise, or service to the people, are entitled to fill it. I have for the above reasons, determined to retire at the expiration of the year.

In making your selection for the ensuing year, you will have my hearty co-operation in selecting a candidate who has the interests of our fair young City at heart.

I have the honor to remain,
Yours faithfully,
ALEX. ROBERTSON.

A number of accounts were presented and ordered to be paid.

Council adjourned.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS IN ARREARS FOR TAXES, IN THE County of Hastings.

BY VIRTUE OF A WARRANT ISSUED under the hand of the Warden of the County of Hastings and the Seal of the said County, bearing date the Ninth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, and to me directed and delivered for the collection of the arrears of taxes due for three years and over upon the lands hereinafter mentioned and described as being in the County of Hastings.

These are therefore to give notice that unless the arrears and costs are sooner paid, I shall on Tuesday, the Sixteenth Day of December next,

at the hour of Ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Court House, in the City of Belleville, proceed to sell by Public Auction, the said lands or as much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge such arrears of taxes and all lawful charges incurred.

SCOTT'S EMULSION
PURE COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA.

This preparation combines the two best remedies ever discovered for Consumption, Colds and Chronic Coughs, Scrofula, Rheumatism and Diseases of the Blood, General Debility, and all Wasting Diseases of Children. It not only contains the well known and highly esteemed virtues of Cod Liver Oil in a form that is perfectly tasteless and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, but in addition, the wonderful tonic and life-giving properties of the Hypophosphites, so incorporated that the remedial powers of both are largely increased. Physicians universally acknowledge the vastly superior virtues of this combined food and medicine in all the above diseases. It is not only better tolerated, but much more readily assimilated by the system than plain Cod Liver Oil, and a better agent in enriching and purifying the blood, allaying the irritation of the throat and lungs, restoring the impaired functions and giving strength and vigor to the whole body. It is sweet and palatable to the taste, never separates, deposits or spoils. Be sure and ask for Scott's Emulsion. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle.

JOHNSTON'S FLUID BEEF is now extensively used in British and Continental Institutions, Hospitals and Asylums, and is prescribed by the medical faculty wherever it has been introduced.

Its adaptability is general to the invalid, the convalescent and the vigorous. To children it secures a strong muscular development, and for maternal nursing, imperfect mastication, athletic training, physical exhaustion, indigestion or mental overstrain, it is the perfection of known food.

BENEFITS OF THE PROPOSED CUT OFF.

When this project was first mooted it was urged on account of its importance from a military point of view, and as long as there can be any possibility of Canada's having any trouble with her neighbors across the border the military (or rather naval) argument must have more or less weight. It is quite easy to understand that were this canal cut the Bay of Quinte would afford an admirable site for a naval station, at the same time easy of access and very defensible at both ends. Supposing an enemy to have a superior force on Lake Ontario, the Prince Edward peninsula and Long Point, which juts out from it, would render it nearly or quite impossible for Canada to maintain water communication along the Lake Ontario coast. On the other hand, however, without the very closest block-ade by any overwhelmingly superior force, it would not be at all difficult to maintain communication between Kingston and Toronto could the sheltered Bay of Quinte and the Murray Canal be substituted for the exposed and treacherous passage via Long Point and "the Duck."

Just now, however, it would be difficult to induce the majority of our more intelligent classes to sanction any very serious outlay for work that could only possess a military value, as perhaps the chances of a rupture with the people of the United States were never more remote than they are at present. Indeed it is more than likely that for future Americans and Canadian statesmen will follow the example of their great oarsmen, and settle their difference through the columns of the newspaper without appealing to anything as unæsthetic as physical force.

From a purely economic point of view the scheme certainly has a great deal to recommend it, but unfortunately it seems that those who have, from the nature of their calling, been hitherto most keenly alive to the importance of this enterprise, are about the last men to trouble themselves with the conduct of public affairs. Any sailor, who has had a season's experience on Lake Ontario, knows well that the most treacherous and troublesome section of it lies off the Prince Edward shore, and especially off Long Point, that stands out prominently from that shore. Here a west to south-west wind sweeps along the channel with tremendous force. In fact, there appears to be no point of the compass from which the wind can come with any degree of force, that it will not make it unpleasant for navigators off Long Point. It is of course these gales that vessels are obliged to run which to gather force that are most to be dreaded in this locality; and in this connection it may be remembered that west, south-west, and north-west winds are more commonly met with on the lake than any others.

It is not necessary, however, to point out the reason why it is so, but every one who has paid any attention to the record of marine disasters on Lake Ontario knows that the stretch of water lying between Presqu' Isle and Kingston has been the scene of many more wrecks, often resulting in loss of life, than all the rest of Lake Ontario. Once past Presqu' Isle the eastward-bound vessels has no further refuge till South Bay is reached, and even here it seems that the anchorage has proved so insecure that a gale from the north has been known within the past few weeks to drive vessels out into the lake despite the efforts that they could gain from their anchorage. Besides this, it is urged that while westward-bound vessels are anchored at South Bay waiting for a storm to abate they might, were the Murry Canal built, work their way fifty miles farther on their journey, and then be in a position to face weather that they dare not run into out of South Bay. Supposing the gale to be blowing from the north or north-west, it would be comparatively easy for a craft that could not live in the middle of the lake or off the Prince Edward coast to make its way westward in comparatively good water under the shelter of the mainland. Besides this, vessel captains say that even when the wind is from the south-west, or directly down the lake, it is nowhere so severe as out in the middle of the lake as it "falls off" toward shore. At all events it appears quite certain that there are every season many steamers and schooners detained at South Bay, much to the detriment of their masters and owners, and to that of trade generally, that would, could they pass through Bay Quinte and the Murray Canal, make their destinations without further detention or danger. As before remarked, vessels coming up the river could, upon reaching Kingston, either elect to take the open lake for it, should the wind and weather be favorable, or in case they were not, work seventy or eighty miles farther on their westward journey, enjoying the same perfect immunity from gales and rough water that they had experienced in ascending the St. Lawrence to Kingston. On the other hand, vessels descending the Lake with grain could, if caught in a gale off Prescott, run into and lying-to in that harbor for favorable weather, pass safely through the Murray Canal into Bay Quinte, where they could either make their way eastward in perfect security or transfer their cargo to barges, which could be towed down the bay and river to the side of ocean-going steamers without the smallest danger from stress of weather.

It will be observed, however, that thus far the reasons urged in favor of the construction of the Murray Canal are from a purely Dominion standpoint. There are local interests to be served that constitute an important factor in the case. It is well known that Belleville is, and has always been, considered the natural outlet for the minerals of North Hastings, and in the course of a very short time, provided suitable railway facilities be provided, the shipment of iron ore from the northern townships will be enormous. So far nearly or quite all of this ore has been shipped over the Grand Trunk Railway to Buffalo, but doubtless when navigation reopens it will be found more profitable to ship by water. In this case vessels carrying the ore will be compelled to pass almost completely around the Prince Edward peninsula, and brave the most dangerous portion of Lake Ontario, before they will be as far on their journey toward the furnaces as they would be at the mouth of the Belleville Harbor were the Murray Canal constructed. And of course what applies to the iron ore applies to nearly every other product that finds its way from the back country, through Belleville, to a western market. Of course the construction of the Trent Valley Railway to Malone would furnish the shippers of iron with facilities for transporting their ore to Weller's Bay, where they could be loaded into westward-bound vessels; but the Trent Valley Railway is not built yet and should it fall into the hands of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, or any other corporation operating the Belleville and North Hastings and Grand Junction Railways, it is not likely that it would be extended northward further than Stirling, where it would meet the Grand Junction. By this means the ore would be furnished with a somewhat round-about route to Weller's Bay. Leaving the mines in the vicinity of Madoc, for example, it would go south by the Belleville and North Hastings to Wallbridge's Mills, thence west by the Grand Junction to Stirling, and thence south or south-west to Weller's Bay over the Trent Valley Railway. This, of course, would be still farther diverting the current of trade from Belleville, and by adding to the length of land carriage, raise the rates of freight on the ore. In fact, nothing short of the extension and completion of the Trent Valley Railway to Malone, in the township of Marmora, would save the interests of North Hastings as well as the construction of the Murray Canal.

If this work is to be undertaken at all, it will devolve, of course, upon the Dominion Government to carry it through.

In the first place it is necessarily a Dominion enterprise, and one in which the whole Dominion, or at least that portion of tributary to the Atlantic seaboard, must feel more or less interest, either from a purely commercial or from a military point of view. In the second place, its promoters claim that the Dominion Government owes this enterprise for some 6,000 acres of land originally set apart to defray the expenses of the construction of the canal. This land is now occupied by thrifty and prosperous farmers, and, estimating the Dominion indebtedness by the present value of the original reservation, the old claim would not in all probability fall far short of $300,000.

Aside from this, however, there is a local view of this case that can hardly fail to impress itself upon the minds of the gentlemen composing the present Dominion Cabinet.

It has already been shown that while the interests of our lake and river navigation generally would be served by the construction of the Murray Canal, the city of Belleville and the North Riding of the County of Hastings would be particularly benefitted by it.

Now, if there are two sections of the Province of Ontario that deserve special consideration at the hands of the present Dominion Administration they are the city of Belleville and the North Riding of the County of Hastings.

International Dairy Fair.

Splendid Display of Butter and Cheese.

VISITORS FROM CANADA AND ENGLAND.

(From the Montreal Gazette, Dec. 6.)

The second International Dairy Fair, which commenced in New York on Monday evening, December 8th, at the American Institute Building, promises to be a grand and monster affair, far excelling its predecessor in the variety and magnitude of its exhibits. Great Britain, France, Denmark, Canada and the United States will compete for the honor of carrying off the prize for making the best butter and cheese in the world, and the display will no doubt be an imposing one. Ex-Governor Seymour will deliver the opening address, after which Mayor Cooper will declare the Fair open. The following is Gen. Grant's reply to an invitation sent him to attend the Fair :

GALENA, Ill., Nov. 22, 1879.

GENTLEMEN,—Your letter of the 11th of November inviting me to attend the Exposition of the International Dairy Fair Association, to be held in New York city for two weeks from the 8th of December, was duly received but has been unintentionally overlooked. I expect to be in New York during the holding of your Fair or Exposition, and will take great pleasure in availing myself of your kind invitation, if possible, to do so.

Very truly yours,
U. S. GRANT.

FRANCIS B. THURBER and others.

On their way to the Fair, the following gentlemen from Chicago spent a pleasant time in this city on Saturday, and left for New York by the evening train :—Messrs. A. H. Barber, of Mann, Barber & Co., judge of the Illinois department of butter and cheese; S. B. Davis, of Davis Bros., judge of the Wisconsin cheese department; Thomas Hoops, General Through Freight Agent of the National Despatch Line of Chicago, and Mr. Hopkins, agent of the South Branch of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway. The judges for Canadian butter and cheese, are Messrs. Alfred J. Brice, George A. Cochrane and Thomas Leeming, of Montreal, and Mr. Thomas Ballantyne, M. P. P. of Stratford, and Mr. E. Caswell, of Belleville. The exhibitors from this city will be Messrs. A. A. Ayer & Co., A. Hodgson & Sons, Fuller & Shufeldt and Frank Wilson.

Special by telegraph to the Mail.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—The International Dairy Fair was formally opened this evening. Among the objects of interest is a great obelisk of cheese, forty feet in height. The base of this obelisk is formed of ten cheeses weighing each half a ton. From these rise 125 cheddar cheeses, each 60 lbs weight. Above these rise 750 pine-apple cheeses, weighing 6 pounds, and still higher are 400 young American cheeses, each 8 pounds. A pine-apple cheese makes the point at the top. In this one obelisk there are 25,000 pounds of cheese, the exhibit of one firm. There are also two pyramids of salt. There is also a pyramid of foreign cheese of every known variety. The display of butter is also large and from all the States in the Union as well as from Canada. The exhibition of cattle and dairy implements is very fine. Among the prominent persons present at the opening exercises were Messrs. Albert Pell and C. S. Read, English members of Parliament, who are on a visit to the United States to investigate the causes of agricultural prosperity here and depression in England, and also a large delegation of influential Canadians. Among the distinguished visitors who are to come, Canada will have the following representatives:—Messrs. Alfred J. Bryce, Thomas Leeming and George H. Cochrane of Montreal; Thomas Ballantyne, of Stratford; and E. E. Caswell, of Ingersoll.

THE OPENING CEREMONIES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—This evening the second annual international dairy fair opened at the American Institute. A large number were present. Governor Seymour, who was to deliver the opening address, was absent on account of illness. Mr. F. B. Thurber, President of the Association, made an address on dairy interests in this country compared with other countries. In this country, he stated, during 1878 three hundred and forty million pounds of cheese were produced, and nine hundred and sixty million pounds of butter. Of this, but three-ninths per cent. of the butter was exported, while of the cheese 41.6 per cent. was exported. The speaker said improved dairy appliances and machinery, much of it of American origin, had been introduced on the Continent and in Great Britain. Dairy school's had been established in continental dairy countries. Mayor Cooper formally declared the fair open. The display of cheese and butter from various sections of the country is excellent.

Bilious Complaints

Arise from a morbid or unhealthy condition of the liver. This unhealthy action goes on slowly two, three, or may be four weeks, the morbid deposits gradually increasing and accumulating until the crowning act, the overcharged liver can contain it no longer, and a discharge of vicious bile takes place into the stomach, which produces a sickness, attended with headache and more or less unpleasant symptoms. The liver thus becomes purged of its unhealthy matter, the system suffers for a few days, then finally reacts, recovers, and goes on for another period. Hence the importance of using DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which are composed entirely of medicines calculated to produce this proper discharge, and thus save the unpleasant week's illness which must else be borne. It is the most certain way to obtain relief. Beginning always, in the cases of those who are constitutionally bilious, on the appearance of the first symptoms of an attack, the attacks will be lighter every time, until they succeed finally in breaking up the morbid condition which gives rise to the disease.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10.

The Murray Canal and the Railway Extension.

Saturday's issue of the Globe contained a lengthy letter from its correspondent who has been "doing" the mining region of North Hastings,on the subject of the Murray Canal. A portion of this letter appears in another column, the lengthy but interesting history of the project, with which our readers in general are familiar, being omitted. The corespondent in question treats the subject fairly and with ability, showing clearly the advantages of the proposed canal—first as a work of military importance ; secondly from an economic point of view ; and thirdly as of the greatest importance to the export trade in iron ore from this district, and otherwise as of much benefit from a local point of view.

We are pleased to have the assistance of the leading organ of the Opposition in this matter, and trust that other influential journals will also lend their aid in securing an object so much to be desired.

This and the twin project—the extension of the North Hastings Railway into the free grant territory—ought to be agitated for and petitioned for by our people and by the Councils of the various municipalities interested. The Murray Canal project is in good hands; but the railway extension, which is scarcely inferior in importance to the people of this city, has attracted but little attention. It is perhaps considered that the proprietors of the railway, being of all persons the most interested, should take sole charge of the matter. This we conceive to be an erroneous idea. It is to our interest as well as theirs that the iron mining region should be opened up and its trade secured to this city ; for there could not be a man employed,a part at least of whose food and clothing would not be furnished by the merchants of Belleville. The Legislature will meet at an early date, and there is no time to be lost ; therefore we urge the City Council to not only adopt a memorial, but to appoint a Committee to draw up a form of petition for general signature by the ratepayers. Such will be done in the case of the Murray Canal, the petitions for which will be presented when the Dominion Parliament meets, and to impress the importance of which upon Ministers a deputation will be sent to Ottawa. Let the same be done with reference to the Railway project, and we have little doubt that the appeal will be successful in both cases.

The Board of Education's Finances.

In our report of the proceedings at last night's meeting of the Board of Education will be found a statement of the financial relations of the Board and the Corporation of the City. From this it will be seen that the City is largely behind in the payments due to the Board,and that the latter body will have a handsome surplus after all the liabilities have been met.

It has been the habit of certain persons to denounce the Board of Education as being extravagant, but this accusation we have on several occasions shown to be entirely erroneous, and the fact that the expenditure will this year be considerably below the estimate, whilst the efficiency of the schools has not been decreased, shows that the financial affairs have been looked after very closely. The credit of this is largely due to Mr. James Glass, the Chairman of the Finance Committee, who has for several years occupied that position with much ability and with entire satisfaction to the public and to his fellow members, and whose care for the public funds has been as watchful and constant as if the business was his own private affair. That Mr. Glass has been seconded by his colleagues in his efforts to secure economical administration is self-evident, otherwise it would have been impossible to have achieved a result which is so creditable and so satisfactory.

THE MURDERED MOUNTED POLICEMAN.—The Department of the Interior has received particulars in regard to the death of Grayburn, of the Mounted Police. It appears that he was out herding cattle, and asked permission to go four miles distance for a lariat and axe he had left at a certain point; not returning that night search was made in the morning and his body found, having been thrown over a bank. Further still his horse was found shot in the head. His rifle had been taken, but the ammunition was there. There is no doubt of a murder having been perpetrated, but by whom is a mystery. Moccasin tracks were found near by, but nearly every one wears moccasins in that section.

There is an opening in Jupiter twenty-five thousand miles miles long and seven thousand miles broad—which is a nice opening for a young man who does not wish to go West,and has a moderate capital.

Board of Education.

The Board met at the usual hour.

PRESENT.—Messrs. W. A. Shepard (Chairman) Newbery, Jas. Macoun, Peck, Glass, McGinnis, Wansley, Hudson, A. Diamond, Tennant, Northcott, Dr. Tracy.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

A communication was read from the High School Board of Clinton, asking the Board to join in a petition to the Ontario Government for an increase in the legislative grant to High Schools.

Mr. Peck asked would it be necessary to give notice of a By-law for the appointment of Returning Officers.

The Chairman said he did not think it was necessary, as the matter was a statutory requirement.

Mr. Peck thought it would be better not to make the appointment to-night, but to choose the same officials as the City does, as a saving would thus be effected, and as the City Council will meet on Monday night next, they could hold a special meeting next Tuesday night.

The Chairman said they could, when the business was concluded, adjourn until that time.

Mr. Glass presented the report of the Finance Committee, recommending the payment of accounts and salaries amounting to $3,167.09.

Mr. Glass also read a statement showing that the City Corporation is indebted to the Board on their requisition as follows :

Statement of indebtedness of Corporation of Belleville to Board of Education, Belleville :

Balance due on requisition of 1877 :
1st Aug. 1877, purchasing Sch'l premises		$1,000 00
Balance due on requisition of 1878 :
1st June '78, building and rep'g	$1,000 00
1st Aug. " "	1,000 00
1st Sept," " "	500 00
		2,500 00
Balance due on requisition of 1879 :
20th Mar. '79, building and rep'ng	$350 00
31st " " " and salaries	1,850 00
15th April, building and repair'g	225 00
30th Sept., building, repairs, &c.	112 50
15th Nov., " " "	225 00
31st Dec. salaries, build'g & rep'g	2,975 00
		5,937 50

This money had been levied for and was doubtless in the City Treasury. The Board owed about $1,100 to the bank in addition to the amount presented in the report to-night, so their position was a good one.

The Chairman considered Mr. Glass was entitled to the thanks of the Board for presenting this statement. The financial position of the Board was certainly very satisfactory.

The report was received.

The Inspector presented his report of the attendance at the Public Schools during the past three months. The returns for November showed a total of 1270 pupils registered; average attendance 1018; or a percentage of 81 attendants.

The report was referred to the Committee on School Management.

The Board went into Committee on Finance. Mr. Tennant in the chair.

The report of the Finance Committee was adopted, and the Committee rose and reported.—Adopted.

Mr. Diamond said he learned from the report of the Inspector that the attendance of pupils was 81 per cent for the last three months. He asked how did this compare with the attendance at the schools in other places ?

The Inspector said it was higher than in almost any other place except Toronto.

The notices of motion given by Messrs. Johnson and Dr. Tracy were allowed to stand.

Mr. Diamond stated that Professor Dawson had this afternoon cut his hand seriously and would not be able to attend school for at least a month.

Dr. Tracy said he was attending Prof. Dawson,and he would probably be laid up for two weeks.

The Chairman greatly regretted to learn this, and supposed the Committee for the school would act in the premises.

Mr. Diamond thought it advisable that children in whose homes there is scarlet fever should not allow them to attend school, as thereby the disease had been disseminated.

Dr. Tracy said he had advised parties to that effect.

After some further discussion the matter dropped.

Mr. Johnson came in.

On motion of Mr. Newbery, Wm. McCoy was appointed census enumerator at the same salary as last year.

Mr. Peck moved for the purchase of 30 copies of Dr. Hodgins, lectures on the amended school law. He said these books were necessary, as there had been changes in the law, and these changes were not understood.

Dr. Tracy protested against the frequent changes in the law, and held that the Government should supply to School Boards particulars of the changes made in the law.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Johnston asked was it not possible for the Finance Committee to arrange future payment of the teachers monthly instead of quarterly. It would be a great convenience to the teachers to do so.

Mr. Glass said the next year's requisition could be made payable monthly instead of in quarterly instalments.

The Board adjourned until next Tuesday evening.

WINTER SPORTS IN ENGLAND.—A cable despatch says:—"The sports of winter have been fairly inaugurated. The lakes and ponds are covered with ice and are in splendid condition for skating. It is estimated that on Sunday in the vicinity of London 10,000 people participated in the sport."

UNSEATED.—At the trial of the Dufferin election petition yesterday Dr. Barr, the member-elect, was unseated for bribery by agents, and the personal charges were not pressed. The seat has been declared vacant, and Dr. Barr is still eligible for re-election.

THE SITUATION IN AFGHANISTAN.—A Cabul despatch says some Kohistans have come in and surrendered. An influential native agent collecting supplies at Maidan has been murdered. That part of the country is much disurbed, and it is reported the rebels are collecting in force there. Two brigades march upon Maidan immediately under command of Generals Baker and McPherson. An imposing parade of all the troops here, numbering 5,000, was held today. The display made an evident impression on the numerous Afghan spectators. The report that Ayoub Khan has started from Herat with twelve regiments to attack Candahar is confirmed. It is thought probable, when he obtains full intelligence of the condition of affairs at Cabul, he will abandon the enterprise.

In splitting open a log hauled on land from the Susquehanna River at Marietta, Pa., three handsome bass, one weighing five pounds, were found in a cavity in the centre of the log.

TRACKING THE MURDERER.

TROY, Dec. 10.—T. B. Simmons & Co., pork packers,East Greenbush, have failed. Liabilities reported to be heavy.

LICHESTER, Md., Dec. 10.—Raymond Kane Nicols, superintendent of the Thistle Cotton Mills, on Monday evening attempted to ascend to the upper story by a rope used in hoisting the cotton. The steam windlass started and jerked him to the roof, fatally crushing his skull. The body fell 200 feet.

MARSHALL, Texas, Dec. 10.—The authorities tracked Nat Harvey, the most important witness for the State against Currie, who murdered Porter the actor, to his hiding place in the swamps of Louisana. His capture is assured.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 10.—Grant will be escorted on his arrival on Tuesday by a monster procession, on Wednesday he will have a public reception in the morning and receptions at the Mayor's residence in the evening. On Thursday he will attend a grand army campfire, on Friday the Commercial Exchange reception, on Saturday the school children's reception and a banquet of the City Council in the evening, Monday he will visit the Girad College, and in the evening meet the military gentlemen. Tuesday he will be a guest at the Union League Club with a final reception in the evening.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The Times says that the President will at once nominate ex-Senator Ramsey as Secretary of War.

The Herald publishes a long statement intimating that Tilden has bought the New York and Oswego Midland and is securing control of the New Jersey Midland, intending to create a terough route from New York to the west three or four hours shorter than the Central.

Vanderbilt, it is said, to head off this scheme found it necessary to combine with the Wabash people.

The St. Domingo Consul in this city yesterday received a despatch from the insurgent chief, Gen. Heranz, stating that the revolutionists had captured the capital after a fierce struggle. The ports are open.

First mate Vanklien, of the ship Cashmere, was brought before the U. S. Commissioners yesterday, charged with killing Christian Holemon, a German sailor, on the voyage to Java. The captain has been arrested in Boston for complicity.

The physicians of Paterson were astounded by the case of James McEvoy, aged 78, whose brain was cut open by a circular saw on Monday, but was still alive and conscious.

The Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph has declared the usual dividend of three-quarter per cent. with one-quarter additional from the surplus.

Three trunks full of goods seized from Geo. L. Amsden, a wealthy Albany brewer, on the steamer Germanic, were sold by auction yesterday for about $2,000.

Whooping Cough is successfully treated by separating the patients beyond hearing distance of each other, and by the employment of Fellows' Hypophosphites. Whooping Cough is a nervous disease of so sympathetic a nature,that a paroxysms may be produced in one susceptable by simply hearing the cough of another person. The above named treatment has been found singularly effective.

County Court.

TUESDAY, Dec. 9, 1878.

In addressing the Grand Jury His Honor remarked that it was merely a formal matter to bring the members of it together as there was no business to transact—the calendar being a blank. In accordance with the time honored custom, he had been presented by the Sheriff with a pair of kid gloves. Yet although there was nothing for the Grand Jury to do, he could not congratulate them on the non-commission of crime. The Police Magistrate of the city tried nearly all the cases that came within the jurisdiction of this court, for when a prisoner sees fit he can in the discretion of the Magistrate he tried for the offence he has alleged to commit, and in that way many cases that otherwise would have come to the court are disposed of. This state of things might be pleasant for the Grand Jury and the Court ; but still he could not congratulate them on the absence of crime. The Jury should examine the goal and endeavor to ascertain Valencia Raisins, if the prisoners are satisfied with the treatment they receive and also to see if the building is neatly kept and report to the Court thereon. After this duty was rendered it was probable he might discharge them unless something occurred in the meantime,as at the past assizes—and it was a long court. Cases occurred and were disposed of during its sittings and if similar circumstances now arose such cases should be submitted to the jury. They should now look into the gaol and if afterwards there was nothing to put before them he would discharge them.

DONNELLY vs. HOGGARD.—This was an action of replevin. Plaintiff had a spirited horse which he traded with one Green, who in time bartered the animal with the defendant. Plaintiff not liking the horse he got replevined the one originally owned by him, and in Green's absence from home returned the horse formerly belonging to him and put the animal in the stable. Counsel for plaintiff asked for a postponement of the trial, owing to the illness of the wife of the plaintiff, who is a material witness and at whose suggestion the exchange of horses was made. Stands till Thursday. Clute for plff ; Holden for deft.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10.

City and Vicinity.

Postal.—The Postmaster-General has issued instructions to Postmasters to allow all invoices not sealed to go through for one cent—the same as circulars.

Splendid Yield.—Messrs. Vandervoort and Hogle dressed with their new clover mill, 70 bushels of clean seed from 12 loads of clover for Mr. Norval Boisinot, 4th concession of Sidney.

Accident.—We regret to learn that Prof. Dawson, Head Master of the High School, met with a severe accident yesterday, in cutting one of his hands so severely that he will be incapacitated for probably about two weeks.

Taxes on Indian Lands.—We learn that the result of the visit to Ottawa of the deputation regarding the taxation of Indian lands in Tyendinaga, is that the municipality has been empowered to collect the taxes for the present year. Definite arrangements will doubtless be concluded at the next sitting of Parliament.

A Busy Scene.—The scene at the Grand Trunk depot last evening, prior to the departure of the train for the west, was a busy one. There was a large quantity of baggage awaiting "checkage" and a great number of passengers were on hand to take their departure for the west; indeed such was their number that the waiting room could not contain them.

Hurrying Up.—The work of finishing the buildings now in course of erection in this city is being hurried onward to completion with all possible despatch, and every advantage is taken of the mildness of the season to hasten the onward work, as, if a cold spell set in a stop would be put to all outside operations until the approach of another season.

Opera House.—Messrs. Anthony & Ellis' combination will present the favorite moral drama "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at a matinee to-morrow afternoon and in the evening. The company is said to be a first class one in every respect, and numbers about thirty people, including a party of colored jubilee singers, who render the plantation melodies with fine effect.

Social.—A pleasant time was spent at a social last evening at the residence of Mr. D. Price, and a substantial sum realized in aid of the Bridge Street Methodist Sunday School. A feature of the evening was a couple of recitations in sign language by Miss Lorenzo, interpreted by Mr. McDermot, of the Deaf and Dumb Institute. The recitation was very graceful and received with merited applause.

Accident.—William Hodgson, a lad of about fourteen years of age, who lives in the township of Storrington, was a passenger by last evening's express for the west. He took the train at Kingston and in his anxiety to get off the train before it reached Shannonville, whither he was bound, he jumped off before the train stopped. The result was he fell on his face which was cut and bruised, and he was picked up in an insensible condition and brought to this city, where his wounds were dressed and other attentions bestowed on him, which had the effect of bringing him to his mental basis. Mr. Gunn, the Station Agent, very kindly took the boy to his house, where he was attended by Dr. Burdett, and where he was sat up with during the night. Mr. Yourex, brother-in-law of the injured boy, arrived this morning, having been telegraphed to by Mr. Gunn, and the boy was so far recovered that he was taken to Shannonville on the noon train.

Rain Storm.—A very heavy rain-storm from the south-east has prevailed since last night, when a sudden shift of wind took place.

Heavy Trains.—Both yesterday morning and this morning the Grand Trunk express for the west was so heavy that two engines were required to draw it.

The Wrestling Match.—Prof. D. C. Ross is in town, and states that the champion belt has been detained at the Suspension Bridge by the Customs authorities, but that it will arrive to-morrow. Capt. Daly is to arrive to-night.

Public Meeting.—The public meeting concerning the extension of time to the Grand Junction Railway Company will be held on Friday night, instead of on Thursday, as at first proposed. The Mayor's proclamation appears in another column.

A Blunder.—In our report of the Campbellford woollen factory a short time since, a stupid blunder occurred. The compositor made us state that the factory now gave employment to 10 persons, whereas it should have been 43. We understand that the capacity of the present staff is taxed to the utmost, requiring extra work, and that additional workmen will soon be employed.

L. O. L. No. 94, Hungerford.—The following members are the officers elected for the ensuing year:—Rob't Sayers, W. M.; John Kelley, D. M.; J. B. Brown, Chap.; John E. Gordon, Sec.; James Finley, Treas.; Wm. Brown, D. of C.; Committee—Wm. Craig, Wm. F. Campbell, Josiah Whillcar, R. Collins, James Gordon. Meetings on the first Wednesday of each month.

Fishing.—The catch of herring and whitefish this season has been far below the usual average in this district. This may be accounted for by the fact that the pleasant spells of weather in October and November made it almost useless to fish at these times, whilst later on ice has formed and thus made it destructive to nets as well as very laborious work for the men engaged in this avocation. Besides the price is low, and holders prefer keeping what they have until the market begins to manifest a changing tendency.

St. Thomas' Church.—Considerable energy is shown in the work of completing this structure. The masonry and slating were finished some time ago, and what now remains to be done will be supplied by the carpenter and painter. The main body of the building has been floored and the chancel and gallery will be in a like state in a few days. The edifice is supplied with two large furnaces, which it is thought will furnish all necessary warmth. The ceiling is panelled and is neatly finished in oil and varnished. The pews are yet to be supplied, as is also the glass for the upper portion of the several windows, which will be stained and ornamented. A new organ is being built and will be put in position when the building is completed.

Scribner's Monthly, December.—Among the finest and most perfectly executed engravings which we have ever seen in the pages of a magazine are those accompanying, in December's Scribner, the article upon the New York State Capital at Albany. They are artistic gems. The advance of Scribner's has been steady and unchecked since its first issue, and especially since Dr. Holland assumed the management; this number only adds another leaf to its laurels. A characteristic paper upon Victor Hugo is very interesting, although decidedly amusing from its desperately journalistic stamp; but the second instalment of a review of Bayard Taylor's life and works confirms the impression previously made that the writer, able and widely-read as he clearly is, nevertheless is like the majority of biographers, too highly appreciative of his subject. A timely shot at "Sunday bummers" is sent forth from the editor's sanctum.

Snow and Ice.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

Dear Sir,—Will you permit me through the columns of your widely circulated journal to draw the attention of our merchants to the danger of shovelling ice and snow from the roofs of buildings to the sidewalk below, especially on Front Street, without taking any means to warn passers by. This (Saturday) morning some men were shovelling from the roof or cornice of the new store occupied by Barber & Brignall, and a quantity of ice or frozen snow was thrown down on my little son's head, cutting and breaking her umbrella. Had she not had the umbrella raised she must have been seriously injured, if not killed.

Yours truly,
Geo. Adams.

Belleville, Dec. 6, 1879.

Murder.—A Canada Southern brakesman named Michael Donly was stabbed by a navvy named Lewis in a Waterford hotel last night, and died within ten minutes. Donly was a resident of St. Thomas. Lewis was arrested.

Railway Prospects.—The Chief of the Bureau of Statistics has prepared a report on the Internal Commerce of the United States. The report states that the growth of the traffic on railroads is indicated by the fact that the total freight movements of three of the most important trunk lines connecting the west with the seaboard has increased from 11,000,000 tons in 1863 to 25,000,000 tons in 1878.

What is the matter!—Your hair looks dry and dead, it breaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away these things, go buy a bottle of Bearine which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better at once.

The man who helps to circulate a piece of gossip is as bad as the one who originated it. To put your fist into a tar barrel and then go round shaking hands with everybody is what some people like to do.

Special from Madoc.

A RICH POCKET OF GOLD FOUND.

Exciting Rumors as to its Probable Value.

Madoc, Dec. 9.

A special telegram from Madoc says:—Messrs. Dale & Co., while working on a lead near Malone, struck what miners call a pocket. All sorts of rumors are afloat as to its richness, probably this is a specially rich one for this section. It is like the Richardson mine but nothing like that in value. It would not be surprising if it resulted in a few thousand dollars in value, possibly less. Stewart, of the Foigel mine, who is working near, says he has repeatedly found pockets but they never amounted to anything more than a few hundred dollars. The talk about the find is that its value is from fifty thousand to half a million. The facts don't warrant such statements so far as can be learned.

FROM TRENTON.

BRAKEMAN KILLED.

A GHASTLY SIGHT.

(Via Dominion Telegraph Line.)

Trenton, Dec. 10th.

Last night about nine o'clock a brakeman named Jones, from Belleville, fell off a car on a freight train going east two miles west of Trenton Station. He was not missed until the train arrived at Belleville, when word was sent back to Trenton. When the remains were found they were completely cut up, his arms and legs lying in different directions. An inquest is being held.

LATER.

We learn, from another source, that W. Jones, who was employed as brakesman on Eagan's down special freight, which arrived at this station about 10 o'clock last night, was missed when the train was between Sidney and Belleville stations. The fact was made known to the Asst-Superintendent at Toronto, who stopped other trains at Trenton and Brighton, and despatched a special engine from Trenton westward, the remains being found west of Trenton. The body was found very badly cut up, and was taken to Trenton, where an inquest is to be held this afternoon. Deceased was about 23 years of age, and resided in Belleville, and was a son of Mr. Thomas Jones, who lives on Yeomans' hill, near the railway track. He was a sober and reliable young man, and it is supposed met his death by slipping from the roof of one of the cars, which had been rendered very slippery by a shower of sleet which had fallen during the evening.

From Bridgewater.

Bridgewater, Dec. 10.—Majority for Toronto and Ottawa Railway Bonus in Kaladar and Anglesea, thirty nine.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

Cornish Flat, N.H., Dec. 10.—The inquest in the case of Levi H. Stone, of Cornish, who died a short time ago of a fractured skull has concluded, and disclosed evidences of a fight. The jury rendered a verdict of "death from a blow given by some unknown parties." Mrs. Stone and her oldest son have been arrested on suspicion.

Pesth, Dec. 10.—The destruction of dams on nearly all the principal rivers in Hungary and Transylvania, and terrible inundations are again filling the public mind with anxiety. But for the intense cold Groswarden and several other villages would have shared the fate of Szegedin.

Temesvar Arad and several towns in Transylvania were partly inundated on Monday and a great number of houses fell in. So suddenly came the flood, that hardly any preventive measures had been taken, and great damage to property is reported. No loss of life. The continuance of frost alone can prevent most serious disasters.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 10.—Another number of the new reactionary journal the Will of the People has been distributed. The Governor has ordered every householder to display a red lamp before his door nightly bearing the number of the house.

It is stated that the Russian Imperial Council, which was to have been held yesterday under the presidency of the emperor, was summoned to consider how it was best to retire from the present diplomatic attitude of aggression.

A new war would produce an explosion calculated to shatter the whole organism of the state. The last war proved that foreign enterprises do not remove peril involved in passive opposition of society to the present system of the Government, a peril greater than desperate conspiracies of the Nihilists.

London, Dec. 10.—A Vienna despatch says the Bulgarian assembly was dissolved because the leaders of the majority refused to allow Prince Alexander to have any voice in the nomination of the new Cabinet, and also refused to modify the address replying to the speech from the throne, wherein the late Ministry and by implication the Prince himself, were accused of unconstitutional proceedings.

Rochester, Dec. 10.—Tollgate House, near this city in the gates, was totally burned this morning. Miles Tuttle, gate keeper, and a child two years of age were burned to a crisp. The mother and two children escaped.

Albany, Dec., 10th.—The Governor has decided to grant a reprieve until January the 20th in the case of Greenfield, who was to be hanged at Syracuse on Friday.

WEATHER REPORTS.

Toronto, Dec. 10.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, cloudy weather, rain, strong, warm southeasterly to southerly winds, followed by colder westerly winds to-morrow.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Indications: For lower lakes, decidedly colder, cloudy or partly cloudy preceded by rain.

Summer Heat.—This is the season for Bowel Complaints. Green apples and cucumbers produce them, and Perry Davis' Pain-Killer cures them. To the troubled stomach it comes like a balm, and says "peace, be still," and the wind is assuaged, and the trouble ceases. Every druggist in the land keeps the Pain-Killer, and no other should be without it in his family.

It is said that some of the alkaloids which enter into the combination of Fellows' Hypophosphites, are extracted from trees which attain to a great age, and that this fact suggested to Mr. Fellows the idea of their employment. Whether the success of the preparation is due to this, we are not prepared to say, but the idea is a good one.

EMMELINE.

CHAPTER XI.

THE SOURNEY TO AVENLEE AND CAWDERSWOOD.

Avenlee is a thriving little town about twelve miles from Glasgow. The female portion of the inhabitants are mostly employed in what was a pastime for the greatest ladies in the land in days gone by—namely, tambouring. It is one of those beautiful employments for women which astonish strangers to Avenlee. The thin Brussels lace is stretched in a long frame, at which is seated the worker with a needle—or more appropriately, a hook—in her her right hand, while she guides a tiny thread with her left, and the noticing the gliding motion of the nimble fingers, patterns of rare beauty soon appear. The male portion was greater than in most towns where there are no engineering or shipbuilding yards. Some were employed in the weaving trade. There were a good many tradesmen, such as mason's joiners and, in fact, all that is required in house-building. The Duke of Avenlee's estate being very extensive, he employed many men, and even women. Avenlee was famous for its tasteful shops, of which there were not a few. The wonder was how they all thrived in a town not so large or attractive. But it boasted a palace, a castle, barracks, and there were many noblemen and gentlemen's ancient family estates situated in the suburbs. To this fact we may attribute the prosperity of Avenlee, while the beauty of the scenery attracted many strangers.

We will pass through the town and way-lay the vehicle containing the city merchant, his housekeeper, and little Emmeline. They had taken the train from Glasgow to Avenlee, where he hired a conveyance to take them to Cawderwood. They have just passed the ducal entrance to the palace and caught a glimpse of the tall trees—black and bare they were, but like so many sentinels guarding the ancient domain. A long dyke, very high, prevented any further view, so they turned to look at the other side, and were well repaid. They were just passing a wooden bridge, white as snow, under which the Avon flowed, brown and swollen with melted snow. On the opposite side of the Avon could be seen (in the distance) a large mansion, a long avenue leading from the bridge to the lawn in front, where a large fount was sending the water in showers of spray into the basin below.

"Whose house is that so pleasantly situated?" said Mr. Steven. The rising hills at the back protected it in that quarter from severe weather.

"But what have we here—a meeting of waters! What black dormant water is that!"

"It is the Awther, sir. Many a one has been drowned there—they say it is very deep."

"I should say so. I declare the tops of the trees are almost meeting above it, forming a watery cavern,"

"Oh, sir, it is sublime," said Emmeline, who had spoken little for some time. "See how the two waters meet—the foam is dancing about so grand and angry like, as if they were fighting with each other for supremacy."

"Yes," said her guardian, "it is strange to see that dark snake-like river meeting the brown roaring Avon, which seems to carry all before it, and yet it loses itself in the more subtle Awther."

The driver had slackened the rein to allow them to enjoy the panoramic view. He then crossed an old bridge with low parapets, which, with the narrowness of the bridge and the height from the river, made them dizy looking at the seething boiling water below, for it was just within a little piece of the new brig as it was called that the meeting of the rivers took place. The bridge being crossed, they alighted at a gate within a few yards of it. An old thatched house stood almost close to the gate, and after several ineffectual attempts to open it, an old woman made her appearance and inquired where they were going to. Being told, she said "Oh aye, the Cawderwood folks were looking for strangers," and eyeing them closely, she discovered Miss Darling, whom she had seen more than once. That lady nearly bowed, knowing the light the housekeeper was looked on by unsophisticated parties, she deigned not to speak.

"Hech, me," says Miss Christie, "it's guid tae be a housekeeper, and no' gate-keeper in a dirty place like this, no' tae speak o' the danger a lone body is in o' being murdered by some rascals. This missie is a bonnie wee leddy, nae doot that will be her father, though she's no like him." Having closed the gate she turned into her old cot of grey time-worn stone, from which the line in more places than one was mouldering away.

Our travellers had not a very clear road, though romantic enough. Their path lay for about a hundred yards straight along the river side—swollen as the river was, and the roads still lowering or sloping downwards, brought them nearer the brink—shrubs grew in abundance in summer affording only a peep of the other side, but now there was no foliage, no wild roses or water saugh to obstruct the view of the opposite side, which was mostly lawn and avenues, with the rare old trees, whose height and gigantic proportions were the wonder of all who saw them,

"This may be all very fine in summer," said Mr. Steven, "but I am shivering already, looking at this bleak mass to the right."

"I am beginning to fear there's no chance of going the low road," said Miss Darling.

"The dickens you are, sir. What did you bring us for! See, it will be dark in a short time, and to wander about in this place won't be pleasant, I tell you."

"Oh!" said Emmeline, "there is a gate a little farther on," and truly there was—but as they neared it they discovered brown muddy pools in all directions. A paling here divided the road from the haugh, which was literally covered with water where the ground was level. To the right of the haugh was a young plantation, sloping towards the upland. Miss Darling, pointing to the young woods, said they must turn to the high road at the back of it, as the low was flooded.

"Humbug!" said Mr. Steven,—"lead the way, you will have to get on my back, Emmeline, or you will be lost in the mud altogether."

"No fear of me, sir, I won't go wrong."

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more serious, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily obtained. Hoofland's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Hoofland's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

WE invite the attention of every person wanting to purchase Dry Goods to the following FACTS, which we think will be of service to them in aiding them to decide where to make their purchases:

1st. Our Stock is the Largest in the City.

2nd. Our British Goods are Imported direct, and are all selected in that market by a member of the firm.

3rd. We claim to have the Choicest and most attractive Stock of Dry Goods between Toronto and Montreal.

4th. We challenge a comparison of the qualities and prices of our goods with those of any other Dry Goods House in the country, believing "a comparison" to be the most convincing argument that could be used in our favor.

REMEMBER, WE HAVE THE

Most Convenient and Best Lighted Shop in the City,

And our Stock is as reliable and cheap as any Retail Stock in the Dominion.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrecy and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

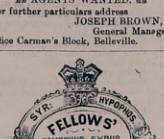

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment.	Death of Member's Fee.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James T. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Agne, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENSA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in cases of Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best "thing" we know of.

Epelepic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MINN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, and there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that she was a very bad case, and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR:—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

The Sun for 1880.

THE Sun will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction of some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is and will continue to be absolutely independent of party, class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to print what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save which may be had by any purchaser for two cents. It hates prejudice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores unicompoops of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the fundamental ideas of the Government as they were established by the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the next Fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was defeated by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration intrenched at Washington. The SUN did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. The SUN will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to tell them as clearly and forcibly as its relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the daily affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily SUN, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

EMMELINE.

CONTINUED.

The housekeeper now took the lead through the forest, which was dark enough in some places where the trees grew high and close together. Suddenly they came upon a little rivulet meandering on by the foot of a steep embankment, there being a large stone in the middle of the rivulet, placed no doubt for a stepping-stone. With Mr. Steven's assistance Miss Darling stepped on it, then gathering her skirts about her she made a bound on to the slippery slope and clutched firmly a small bush, which yielded to her enormous weight, and hang she came against Mr. Steven, who was close behind her, but he grasped desperately at the broken trunk of a tree and stayed himself, which broke the fall of his housekeeper, who, though draggled in the skirts and clay besmeared, was not hurt. Emmeline stood in terror as she saw the pair descending, but after position was less dangerous, she burst into a hearty fit of laughter. Mr. Steven felt inclined to be angry, but in looking at his housekeeper, who had regained the sagging-stone, her fat, red face now almost livid, looking to see what damage had been done to her clothes, and casting wistful glances on her dirty gloves, it was too much for him, and he too laughed merrily. The housekeeper turned on him, her eyes flashing, but seeing him holding on to the broken tree trunk she remembered he had broken her fall, and was silent. Mr. Steven asked her if there was no way of getting to the house but this, remarking that it was now dusk, and he did not like their position there.

"There are other roads, sir, but they are far from this."

"Your brother might have been meeting us."

"I expected he would,but something has likely come in his way."

"Oh, never fear," said Mr. Steven.

"Oh, never!" shouted Miss Darling, "she is mad!"

The cause of their alarm was Emmeline; light as a wood nymph, she had tied her muff in her handkerchief and pitched it right over the housekeeper's head, and sure enough it landed on the other side of the fence at the top of the embankment. She next went back a few yards, took a run and sprang right over the brook, which her quick eye detected was narrow a little farther down. Arriving dry shod on the other side of the brook, she scarcely allowed feet or hands (for she used both) to rest a second till she gained the top, where she caught hold of a low wire fence and was seen on the other side.

"Well, to be beaten by a chit like you," said Mr. Steven,and making a grand effort he too soon gained the top, for though he had been placed in an awkward position it [illegible] but Miss Darling's.

"See here," he shouted to that lady,"I'll step here," and he stepped to the sloping part once more, catching a young tree firmly with his left hand. "Throw up your plaid and I will pull you up." She accordingly pitched the plaid up to him, which he caught one end of, reaching as far as he could—the other was within two yards of the brook. Another bound—a fierce clutch at the plaid—up a little—down again, but by dint of perseverance she was at length landed beside the young pair, on whom she cast no pleasing glance, attributing, as she did to her the spoiling of her clothes,for as she argued with herself, if she had stayed still at Rollo this would not have happened.

"Now," said her "master, "lead on, and for mercy's sake take us quickly." She led them for about two hundred yards over a narrow path; they then gained a wide road, or ride as it was called by the keeper; this they traversed for about fifty more, when the rush of water was plainly heard.

"Surely there is water here," said Emmeline, for all the light they had was barely sufficient to show a few yards in advance.

"Pon my word, darling,this is a dreadful place to bring one to. Hillos, another halt," for Miss Darling had stopped all at a sudden.

"This is a burn," she remarked, "we run no risk in crossing,for there are planks forming a little bridge." They were soon on the other side, when he impatiently asked if they had much further to go.

"We will soon be at the house," was the answer.

"Thank goodness," he said, and turning to Emmeline, "You must be tired, my poor child," and taking her hand, he led her the rest of the way in silence.

Emmeline's heart was too full now to speak, it was also like a dream to be with comparative strangers, who were bringing her to people also strangers, with whom she was to stay. She felt giddy and faint, but by an effort kept hold of Mr. Steven's hand. The barking of a dog proclaimed, as Miss Darling said, they were near Cawderwood Lodge. A few steps brought them to the door,at which— Miss Darling knocked.

CHAPTER XII.

CAWDERWOOD LODGE.

We will forestall them and take a peep at the large kitchen in the lodge. There was no gas, lamp, or candle burning, but there was a bright fire blazing, and diffusing light enough to make each individual plainly visible. The fireplace was large, and a window at either side of it. From one of the windows a dresser reached to a door which led to the back yard. At the left of the fire sat the keeper, and he filled it well, large as it was; his hair was fair, and cut short; his face was full, and sunburnt; he wore a corduroy suit, knee breeches, and gaiters of the same stuff, buttoned up with many a bright pearl button, and strong thick soled boots. He leaned back in his chair and snored loudly. His wife was thin and not very tall. She was dressed in a lilac print gown, and a large dragget apron; her dark hair was neatly braided; she held a baby on her knee, not more than two years old, and wonderfully like its father. Twin daughters, the eldest of the family, sat on the hearth, leaning their elbows on the fender, looking over their school books. They were green and white gingham dresses, and white aprons. They were about thirteen years of age, and very much like. Their dark hair was plaited and tied with colored ribbon. Another girl, evidently not more than eleven, sat on a cutty stool, with a slate in her hand. Very unlike the twins was this sister, so fragile and fair to look upon. Her dress was exactly like theirs. A cloud of bright golden hair fell around her, and reached half-way to her waist; her eyes were raised for a minute and startled one by their soft beauty—they were hazel in color, and contrasted well with the bright eyes and clear skin; a pinkish hue tinged her cheeks; her mouth was small, with thin coral lips; her nose was aquiline, and she had a small round chin. Her long slender fingers were rapidly making out a difficult arithmetical puzzle, given her by her father. Two romping boys were scampering about the house, aged respectively eight and five years. The barking of the dog roused Andrew Ross, the father, and,turning to his wife, he said he would take a strol to the foot of the wood, and see if all was clear. Rising, he put on a fur cap, and had one arm on his velveteen jacket, when a loud knock was heard at the front door. Passing through a lobby, he opened the front door, and was greeted with—

"Dear me, Andrew, I thought you would have met us."

"I went to meet you at Moreway Station, but you have not come that way, or I would have seen you."

"Preserve me," said Mrs. Ross, "what a mess you are in. Have you fallen?"

"Yes, but this is my master and the girl he wrote to you about."

"I am glad to see you; but come into the big room."

"No, no, Mrs. Ross," said Mr. Steven, "that fire of yours, after such a struggle to get this length, is refreshing. I will take the stool, if there is no harm in doing so." And he seated himself on the stool which the late Annabell had used a few moments before.

Andrew scratched his head good humoredly, and remarked—that many a nobleman and gentleman had enjoyed their smoke, while seated on that stool.

Maggie, the eldest of the twins, stepped out from the the window recess, behind Mr. Steven, and took the baby from her mother. Annabell looked a moment at Emmeline, and Emmeline looked at her, and one of those electric glances passed between them which drew them towards each other. Mrs. Ross placed Emmeline by the fire, and felt that her poor dress was wet. She told her fair daughter to bring a pair of dry stockings. A pair of strong warm stockings were accordingly brought, and a little stool placed for her feet, by her young friend. Mr. Steven remarked—they were friendly already, and trusted they would continue so.

"There is no fear of that," said Andrew Ross, "and this seems a bonnie, good girl you've brought us."

"I have no doubt you will find her all she looks," said Mr. Steven. "Be good to her, and spare no pains to make her comfortable, and you will be no loser."

"O, there is no fear of her, if she does not weary!" and the kind-hearted keeper patted her on the head.

The second twin had now come out of her hiding-place, in the window recess, re-clothes and boots were wet, a fact which the keeper upbraided himself for not noticing before. Mr. Steven remonstrated, but was eventually taken off to the room which Mr. and Mrs. Ross used as a bed room. Miss Darling then told her sister to give her a candle, and she would change her dress.

"Dear me," said Mrs. Ross, "there's not a dress in the house will fit you."

"Well, I cannot sit in this state. My good dress, petticoats, plaid, and everything, are completely wasted."

Mrs. Ross accordingly lighted a candle, and led the way to the attics. "Your master is very homely to come to the kitchen," she remarked to her sister, "and he has sent such a lot of stuff. I declare it is far too much, and will do us good for a long time; but we'll be good to that bonnie lassie." Reaching the attics, the housekeeper had some bother ere she found anything to suit her. However, finding nothing better than good warm petticoats and snow-white bed-gown,she smirked and said it was better than the dirty wet things she had on. So she descended to help Mrs. Ross to set the table for tea in the big room. While they were busy placing the best china (for Mrs. Ross possessed no less than two valuable sets) the young one in the kitchen were not idle. Emmeline tried to feel that it was not a dream, that all was real, and, turning her eyes toward the bed, where the eldest of the boys stood with her muff on his head like a busby, and looking so ludicrously comical, that she burst into one of those hearty fits of laughter, young ones so much enjoy. The twin sisters joined heartily with her, and this childish enjoyment of the ludicrous, broke the barrier which stood between the eldest and the new comer, for the young one still sat her feet. They touched her ringlets examined the style of her dress, took the muff from the now bashful boy, tried on her hat, and Emmeline, knowing how long she had been without one, wished that she had been some good fairy,that she might have divided it into one for each of them. Andrew Ross and Mr. Steven now entered the kitchen.

"Ah, ha," said the city merchant, "you are dressing each other are you? Why you are quite at home Emmeline."

"Yes sir, I like this place already."

"That's right," said Andrew Ross,"we'll make her like it."

Miss Darling now came to tell Mr. Steven that tea waited in the front room for him and Miss Charles.

"Hillos," said he, "how could your servants in town look to see you in that garb; you have undergone the same transformation as I have."

"With this difference," said Mrs. Ross, who now appeared, "that she could not get anything large enough to fit her, in the shape of a gown, and had to take five shortgowns or waists, and you have not got anything small enough."

"Aye, the clothes are wide a little, but warm in spite of that. Your husband tells me that I cannot get a train to the City tonight."

"No sir, there is no train for Glasgow from Moreway, to-night; but come away to my tea tea, and bring the missie with you."

Emmeline turned, and looking at the girls, asked if they were coming.

"No, no, we are not going," said the eldest.

Emmeline looked perplexed at Mr. Stevens, who took her hand, and took her to the room, the door of which stood open. They entered, and were pleased to see the cheerful fire. The large table was set at one end for two. Mr. Stevens remonstrated with Mrs. Ross for her trouble, saying he could have enjoyed it as much in the kitchen beside themselves, but it was of no avail. She insisted he would make a good tea, and her sister would wait the table. Their appetite was good, and they relished the deliciously tender stewed rabbits, flour scones, and oat-cakes. There was also a small cut of boiled pork, jams, jellies, honey, and marmalade. This last had been sent in the hamper, by himself. Tea over, Mr. Ross came into the room went to a press, from which he took a bottle of rum, and filling out a glass he mixed it with honey, and gave it to Mr. Steven, who enjoyed it immensely. An hour after, the whole family were in the parlor enjoying themselves to their heart's content. As ten o'clock struck, Andrew rose, took the family bible, gave out a psalm, which was sung with great feeling, the young voices joining in so sweetly, that Mr. Stevens could not help thinking how pure in heart those children ought to be, brought up amid the beauties of nature, and away from those temptations which often beset a city life. After reading, Andrew offered up prayer, and it was truly a solemn and beautiful sight to see all kneeling with bent heads, in all humility before the great Author of their being. After devotion, they retired to rest; but, before going to the room placed at his disposal, Mr. Steven kissed Emmeline, slipped a purse into her hand, whispering in her ear at the same time—

"Remember and write once a week to me, and look to me as a father, and I will be faithful to the trust."

"O, sir, you are so kind; I cannot thank you enough," and she flung her arms around his neck, and would not leave him till he released her.

Annabell led her up a narrow flight of stairs, which led to attics, one of which was to be Eumeline's. There was a tidy little bed, two chairs and a small trunk containing Eumeline's apparel, a small chest of drawers, a looking-glass, and a small table, on which stood a work-box and a writing-desk, gifts from the Rev. Mr. Steven to our heroine. Annabell offered to sleep with her till she got used to the place. Emmeline gladly accepted the proposal, and, in spite of the novelty of their position, they were soon in the arms of Morpheus.

Next morning Mr. Steven departed with the first train from Moreway to Glascow, leaving his housekeeper to follow in the course of the day.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, DEC. 11.

Some Predictions and how they have been Verified.

The Globe was strong in predictions immediately after Sir Leonard Tilley announced his new tariff policy, which is popularly known as the "N. P." What some of these predictions were, and how they have been verified, we propose to show, quoting from our files of the Grit organ and contrasting its assertions with facts which cannot be disputed.

In the Globe of the 17th of March last we find the following in the leading editorial :

(1.) A dollar will only buy nine pounds of sugar to-day, when, on Friday it would buy ten pounds.

Canada is to-day a cheaper market for sugars than the United States, which disproves the above insinuation.

(2.) The increase in the cost of tea is another gross case. It is ostensibly made in order that one or two Montreal and Toronto firms may do the importing business, in which we now get all the benefit from the British and American capital invested in the trade; but nothing is more probable than that the whole increase in cost now made will be permanent.

As we have recently shown, tea in Canada is to-day cheaper than in any other market in the world.

(3.) The duty on flour of fifty cents a barrel will also add some ten per cent. to the expenditure of the family man under this head, unless it should happen that the millers are not able to agree among themselves.

Flour is on the average about $1 per barrel dearer in Canada than when the above was written, but as the price in Liverpool has gone up from 10s to 13s per cwt., it will at once be seen that flour is relatively cheaper than in March last.

(4.) Perhaps the wickedest job of the whole category is that of innocent Mr. Hay, who has managed to get the taxes doubled on furniture, which stood in need of no protection whatever. That entire uncalled for augmentation of our burdens will represent $200 or $300 additional in the cost of furnishing a small house, and some twenty or thirty dollars a year additional to the cost of maintaining it in order—quite a sufficient price to pay for the honor of being represented by Mr. Hay

Neither Mr. Hay nor Mr. Any-body else receives a higher price for his furniture now than in March last. Home competition has kept down prices; the business which was done by Yankee manufacturers has been almost wiped out, and employment has been given to a large number of mechanics who were then idle, whilst the amount of capital invested in the business has been largely increased.

In its issue of the 18th of March the same journal repeats the above predictions and some others. Speaking of the working-man's condition under the N. P. it says :

(5) The clothes which he wears, whether cotton or woollen, will be from 15 to 25 per cent. dearer than they were before the change, and all the more so the more common they are in quality.

Not true. Neither cottons nor woollens have advanced beyond the increase which has taken place in other markets, whilst the number of men employed in these industries has been very largely augmented since the N. P. came in force.

On the 20th of March the Globe said :

(6) Under the new tariff the duty on American grains will cause them entirely to abandon the Canadian route, because it is impossible to ship in bond without an increase in the expense of forwarding which will be quite sufficient to turn the scale in favor of the American routes.

The result has been a very considerable increase in the amount of grain forwarded via Kingston.

Returning to the subject on the following day, the free trade organ said :

(7) Then again, the duties on wheat, corn, etc., amount to a virtual closing of the Grand Trunk Railway as a means of transport for the cereals of the Western States to tide water. The struggle for Western freights was previously of the sharpest description. It is perfectly hopeless to think that our railroads will be able to compete with the American lines, when the former are weighted with a coal tax which the latter does not pay.

Nevertheless the coal tax has been paid, and the Grand Trunk, which is the great carrier of western produce, shows an immense increase for the past three months. The Great Western, the Canada Southern and the other leading lines also show a large increase over last year. The steamship lines also carried much larger quantities of grain and miscellaneous freight from Montreal during the past season than whilst the anti-trade-restriction tariff of Mackenzie, Cartwright, Cauchon & Co. was in force.

As to the anti-British and pro-Yankee nature of the tariff the Globe never tired of dilating. It said on March 22nd :

(8) When the tariff is annalyzed it will be found that the duty to be levied on American manufactures amounts to an average of a little less than 25 per cent. On the British manufactures the average duty will be more than 40 per cent. As the manufactures we take from the Americans came mainly under the old 17½ list, the increase in the tariff on the American goods is about 8 per cent. And as the average rate on the goods we took from Britain under the old tariff was less than 14 per cent., it follows that the increase in the duties on British goods under the new tariff is at least twenty-six per cent. Yet Mr. Tilley says that he is discriminating in favor of Britain, and can find journalists to endorse his statements! Truly, Americanization is going on at a round rate.

And yet a few days ago the Finance Minister was able to tell the public that, whilst the value of imports from the United States since the new tariff came into operation had decreased by 50 per cent., the decrease in imports from Great Britain amounted to but 10 per cent.

In all, probably five hundred additional predictions of evil omen were made by the Globe since the N. P. was born, such as that the oatmeal millers, the flour millers, the woollen manufacturers, the furniture manufacturers, and persons engaged in other branches of business would be ruined. These predictions, without exception, have turned out to be as true as those which we have categorically disposed of above. All sorts of dodges have, in fact, been tried to set the minds of the people against the tariff, but with out effect. The farmer has been told that the tariff was framed in the interest of the manufacturer; the manufacturer has been informed that the tariff meant ruin to him, and so forth, but the one assertion of the anti-tariff agitators has controverted the other so effectually that the effect produced, instead of being a feeling against the N. P., has been precisely contrary.

People are always willing to listen to and to duly consider honest arguments; but when it is attempted to deceive them by means so easily detected as those which the Globe has used, their intelligence revolts against the parties who are guilty of such practices. The Globe's prophecies have proved a complete failure, and now that their authors have cooled down somewhat and that time has put their auguries to the test, we ask how they like to be confronted with them?

Meanwhile our readers can rejoice with us that the prophets of ill omen have failed in their predictions and that the country is advancing rapidly on that pleasant pathway which leads direct to prosperity.

OUR TAXES.

The City Treasurer has kindly furnished the following statement in regard to the taxes of the present year, which will be of much interest to the citizens generally :

A DENIAL.—It having been asserted that all Dominion officials over 65 years of age were to be superannuated, the Ottawa Citizen says there is no truth in the report.

MORE COUNTERFEITING.—The Montreal Gazette says, we were yesterday shown a capital counterfeit of the Dominion one dollar bill. The imitation can be detected by the faulty color of the ink on the back, and the fact that the paper on which it is printed is much thinner than that of the genuine note.

FROM MADOC.

Great Gold Excitement,

A BIG BONANZA.

(FROM OUR OWN REPORTER.)

MADOC, Dec. 10.

As reported in the INTELLIGENCER yesterday, the excitement in Madoc village and vicinity over the recent gold discovery is great. In speaking of the discovery all seem determined to wait with patience for further developments before giving expression to opinions, as the excitement about the Richardson mine and its disastrous consequences to many is too fresh in the minds of the people for them to be carried away even by the most flattering prospects of a rich gold discovery without having the necessary patience to await further developements. That the discovery is real and a rich one there can be no doubt, as can be testified by many who visited the mine from the village today.

The mine where the discovery has been made is situated on lot 17, 11th con. of Madoc, next lot to the Feigel mine, and is owned by Messrs. Dale, Stanlick, Powell and Harrison, as equal partners.

On the lot there are three veins in a width of thirty feet, which it is expected will some together. In all of these veins shafts have been sunk, some to the depth of fifty feet, which have had to be abandoned on account of water. From all of these, or nearly all, gold in paying quantities has been taken. As the proprietors are not wealthy capitalists, they during the last two years that the mine has been worked have depended on the product of the mine for working capital. The mine has steadily turned out from $8 to $20 to the ton since it has been worked. From one of the shafts abandoned on account of water $300 worth of gold was taken from 15 tons of ore.

The present rich discovery has been made on the east vein, which is about four feet in width and is visible on the ground in places for about 2000 feet. The rich deposit was struck at a depth of only two feet, and although now a depth of twelve feet has been reached there is no sign of its giving out.

That the deposit is rich in gold there is no doubt, and all sorts of calculations are made as to its worth; many says its value is $4,000 to the ton and large offers have been made for an interest. The deposit is the same as in the celebrated Richard mine and the washings have proven so far truly wonderful.

Mr. Dale, one of the owners, assures us that from a peck of the dirt he has washed out from $10 to $12 worth of gold and from less than half a pan of dirt an ounce of gold was washed, one piece of the gold being fully an inch in length. There is a five stamp mill on the lot and about fourteen men are engaged in and about the mine, so that the only question that remains as to its being merely a pocket or not will be soon determined, as its richness is without a doubt.

The Murray Canal.

The Napanee Standard comes out strongly in favor of this enterprise. It says :—"We are fully convinced of the great importance of this public undertaking, and cheerfully unite whatever influence we possess with the promoters of the scheme. We know that no part of Ontario is more deserving of the liberality of the present Governments of the Dominion and Ontario, and the former has now an opportunity of appropriating a few thousands on capital account in a way which will merit the approbation of East Northumberland, Prince Edward, Hastings, Lennox and Addington. Was there ever such a chance of killing so many birds with one stone?"

The Public Meeting.

In accordance with the Mayor's proclamation a public meeting will be held in the City Hall to-morrow night to consider the petition of the Grand Junction Railway Company for the extension of time for the completion of their line to Peterborough until the 1st of January, 1881. As we have previously said, the subject is one of such great importance that it is to be hoped there will be so large an attendance of ratepayers as to make the meeting really a representative one. This is especially to be desired, in view of the fact that the members of the City Council have indicated that they will to a great extent be guided by the action of the meeting.

EXPRESS.—The Canadian Express Company have opened offices at Madoc, Stirling, Campbellford, and Hastings, and run messengers over both roads every day. This will be a great accommodation to the public.

THE CONSOLIDATED BANK.—It is said that a call will shortly be made on the shareholders of the Consolidated Bank under the double liability clause of the Banking Act, in order to meet the claims of the creditors.

BODIES TO BE EXHUMED.—It is stated that the West Winchester murder case is to be revived by the exhumation of the bodies of Clarke Brown's father and sister for re-examination, and that some startling revelations are expected.

A HORRIBLE CASE OF NEGLECT.—An Ottawa report says :—"A shocking case of neglect has just come to light in Hull. A youth of seventeen was taken down with small-pox, and his family were so scared of the disease that no one would go near him. Some of the neighbors hearing of it went to the house with a bowl of soup. On entering the room, they found the youth covered with blood, and almost at the point of death. The soup being placed to his lips, he ravenously swallowed it. An examination showed that he had eaten the flesh from one of his arms in his agony of hunger. He died a few minutes after the arrival of the neighbors."

News Condensed.

—Crude oil has advanced in Pennsylvania to $1.24.

—Mr. Hilton has been appointed Appraiser at Montreal, vice Bryson, deceased.

—Phosphate mining is about to be resumed on an extensive scale in the Ottawa district.

—Dominion Parliament is expected to meet on the first Thursday of February.

—The weather is so fine in parts of New Brunswick that the farmers are still ploughing.

—On the 10th inst, telephone conversation was successfully carried on between Montreal and Quebec.

—The change of gauge in the line of the Canada Central Railway is to be made next spring.

—An Alexandria despatch reports that the Egyptian Government has ordered 800 troops to embark at Suez on Saturday for Massowah.

—Further disasters by floods are threatened in Hungary and Transylvania, the only thing that can avert them being continued severe frost.

—A rumor has been put in circulation to the effect that the Czar of Russia is about to give up in disgust the task of governing the country, and announce his abdication.

—Arthur Hunton, Ottawa, while drawing the charge from a shot-gun on the 10th inst., the piece was discharged, inflicting a wound from which he died shortly afterwards.

—Consolidated Bank Stock was offered in Montreal on the 19th for nothing, in consequence of the suspension that calls would be made upon the shareholders.

THE INDIANS IN THE NORTHWEST.—The Department of the Interior has received information from Col. McLeod that the Indians in the Northwest are quiet. The American Sioux question reported as having plenty of buffalo meat and are now moving up towards Cypress Hills. The Canada Indians are moving westward in pursuit of buffalo.

FEARFUL STORM.—A St. Paul despatch says :—"A Fargo special says the hardest storm in the history of the Northern Pacific Railway prevailed along that line from Bismarck to Duluth over an area 400 miles square. The snow fell a foot deep on the level, and drifted four feet deep. Trains were all delayed and business in the towns stopped. It is feared that casualties to settlers in exposed premises will result."

WHAT IS THE MATTER!—Your hair looks dry and dead, it breaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away those things, go buy a bottle of Bearine which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better at once.

Whooping Cough is successfully treated by separating the patients beyond hearing distance of each other, and by the employment of Fellows' Hypophosphites. Whooping Cough is a nervous disease of so sympathetic a nature, that a paroxysms may be produced in one susceptable by simply hearing the cough of another person. The above named treatment has been found singularly effective.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, DEC. 11.

City and Vicinity.

A VISIT.—The Grand Jury yesterday afternoon paid a visit to the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb.

TO-NIGHT.—Anthony and Ellis' "Uncle Tom" combination will appear at the Opera House to-night. Their performances in other places have given great satisfaction.

MEETING.—A meeting of the members of No 4 Company of the 49th Battalion is to be held at their armory to-morrow night, for the purpose of making arrangements for a ball.

THE "ONTARIO."—This schooner, which left here with a cargo of coal for Kingston on Tuesday morning, was detained by ice near Northport, but as this obstruction has been removed the schooner proceeded on her voyage.

REBUILDING.—The work of rebuilding Mr. H. A. Thompson's sash factory, which was recently destroyed by fire, has progressed so rapidly that the roof has been nearly completed. The cost of restoring the structure will be about $1,200.

GYMNASTICS.—The new gymnasium at the Mechanic's Institute has met with the favor of young men, numbers of whom practice nightly. On Tuesday night Prof. Boasley, of New York, gave an exhibition, which was much admired, the Professor being evidently a thoroughly accomplished athlete.

DOMINION GRANGE.—At the annual meeting of this institution in Toronto on the 9th inst., there were present from this district Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Massey, Steward and Stewardess respectively; John A. Sprague, Demorestville, Prince Edward Grange No. 41; and Wm. Anderson, Hastings Grange No. 42, Mountain View.

PREPARING TO BUILD.—Mr. F. W. Glen, M.P., President of the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company of Oshawa, has purchased from Mrs. Alcorn, of Picton, a piece of land on the north side of the market square as a site for a large brick building in which will be established an agency of the Company. Mr. Henry Pretty has been appointed to the agency.

SMALL-POX AT MARMORA.—From a paper read by A. A. Riddel, M. D., before the Toronto Medical Society, and published in the December number of the Canadian Journal of Medical Science, we learn that during the late outbreak of small-pox there were twenty-two cases, with six deaths in the village of Marmora, seven cases with one death in the township of Marmora and thirteen cases with one death in the adjoining township of Rawdon.

CHAMPION BELT AND MEDAL.—The Champion Belt and Gold Medal won by Capt. J. C. Daly, of New York, at the last wrestling match at Albany, N. Y. with Mr. Ross is on exhibition at the jewellery store of Mr. S. A. Spangenberg. The belt is composed of heavy silver clasps with gold plates, showing wrestlers in position throwing heavy and light weights, &c., the centre clasp being plated with a gold coat of arms surmounted by an eagle, and containing the inscription—Heavy "Weight Champion of America and the British Provinces." It is valued at $700. The gold medal is a beautiful specimen, the centre piece being the coat of arms surrounded with a wreath, and containing the inscription, "Champion of America and the British Provinces." The medal is valued at $300. The match for this medal and belt comes off at the Opera House on Saturday evening. For particulars see advertisement.

IRON MINING.—Such is the productiveness of iron ore and the value set upon it that strangers interested in the trade are now attracted to this locality to ascertain the character of the deposits and their value. Six gentlemen of Toledo, Ohio, visited Madoc yesterday to prospect in iron ore mining, and others are expected during the week.

THE GOLD FIND.—From a resident of the village of Madoc who arrived in this city this morning, we learn that the report of the recent big gold find is not in the least exaggerated. The pocket, which is about 9 x 11 feet, is one of immense richness and gold can be seen on all its sides. It has been visited by many mine operators of experience, both in Australia and California, who pronounce it the richest yet seen in this country.

A GREAT LOCOMOTIVE.—One of the new freight engines of the Grand Trunk was in the large engine shed last night. This machine—No. 437—was built at the Company's car works at St. Charles, and is said by Mr. Reid, the Mechanical Superintendent here, to be one of the best put together engines he has ever seen. This locomotive has six wheels coupled—three on each side, the centre pair of driving wheels having no flange, so that sharp curves may be taken easily. The boiler, cylinders and tender are of course very much beyond the usual size, the latter containing a tank which holds 3,000 gallons of water, which is fed to the boiler by injectors, no pump being used. The trucks are entirely of iron, with safety chains, and the engine, which weighs 43 tons, is a credit to Canadian workmanship. It has hauled twenty-six loaded cars up the steep grade at Trenton, which is about one-half more than the hitherto heaviest engines could draw. There is another even heavier engine on this division, and it may be stated in this connection that Belleville is now the headquarters for fifty-four engines.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING.—The following paragraph from a Wisconsin paper is of local interest, the victim of the accident having several relatives in this locality:—"A despatch from New London, Wis., gives particulars of a most terrible case of accidental shooting, on the prevalent 'didn't-know-it-was-loaded' plan. David Dixon, of Embarras, Waupaca county, was engaged to marry Mia Mary Swinton. The wedding was fixed for Monday, the 21st inst. On the afternoon of that day Dixon called to see his betrothed at her sister's residence and while there picked up an old pistol that was lying on the table and commenced snapping it, taking care to point it out doors. Three times he snapped it and it didn't go off. The ladies were examining the wedding-dress in an adjoining room and Dixon put his head in at the door, jokingly threatening to shoot them if they made so much noise. The bride expressed her lack of fear and Dixon pointed the pistol at her, pulled the trigger and shot her through the head. She died in a few hours. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict that death was caused by the accidental discharge of a pistol in the hands of Dixon. The fourth barrel of the revolver was loaded."

HORSE-STEALING.

James Vandervoort was charged with stealing a horse the property of John T. Lattimer. Prisoner pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried summarily.

The story of the prosecutor was to the effect that on Saturday last the defendant went to his stable and took therefrom a horse which he (the defendant) stated he had loaned for his use to Mr. Vandusen. Complainant went and saw the defendant, who told him that he was ashamed of his conduct. On promising to return the horse, Lattimer said he would forgive him for this act and other delinquencies as well. Although asked several times to fulfil his promise to the prosecutor, the defendant had not done so. He had received a letter purporting to be signed by James Vandervoort, which contained a statement of an account in which the latter charged himself with the horse, which he valued at $100, and added that he had sold the animal for $75. From information received Lattimer learned that the horse had been sold to Mr. Vandusen, and was now in Mr. Sharp's stable.

In cross examination by Mr. H. Bleecker, the defendant's counsel, Mr. Lattimer said the defendant was in his employ selling sewing machines, and that he considered the horse was the property of Wanzer & Co., for whom he had bought it per order.

The case was adjourned until Thursday.

THURSDAY, Dec. 11.

HORSE STEALING.

The hearing of the evidence for the prosecution in the case of Lattimer vs. Vandervoort, was concluded to-day. The defence will be heard on Wednesday next.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

Fight with Mexicans.

DESPERATE STRUGGLE.

IMPORTANT ARREST.

AROUND THE WORLD.

DENVER, Dec. 11th.—An El Paso despatch states that the Apaches under Chief Jo, numbering 100, engaged in a fight with the Mexicans in Chihuahua, on the 5th. Jo lost 80 killed and wounded.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Mrs. Hust, a French woman, on her arrival from Paris in October, sold two bonds of the Compagnie Universelle du Canal le Suez, for 500 francs each to brokers here. The bonds were afterwards found to have been stolen from a police magistrate in Paris named Brissard. The woman was arrested yesterday and four similar bonds recovered. She states that she was seamstress in Brissard's house. Her lover gave her the bonds and sent her to America, promising to follow.

The Herald says that Congressman Kenna is collecting five dollar subscriptions for the Irish sufferers from members of the House. It is expected that $1,500,000 will be contributed.

The largest foreign mail ever despatched from the post office in this city left in six European steamers yesterday. It comprised over 115,000 letters.

During the trial of the officers of the bank rupt Mechanics and Laborers Bank in Jersey City yesterday, depositors testified that Secretary Donelan, by representing that his bank was an Irish Catholic institution and more honest than Protestant banks, induced them to withdraw their savings from solvent deposit companys and entrust them to him.

M. Say, nephew of the French Minister of Finance, started yesterday for a tour around the world in the steam yacht Henrietta, purchased from Bonciault recently.

14,600 emigrants arrived in November, an increase of 8,900 over the preceding November and an increase since January of 50,000.

Mary White and her husband were arrested in Brooklyn last night for systematic shoplifting. $1,500 worth of stolen goods were recovered from pawn shops. The woman executes her husband.

The report of the Dwyer Ryan prize fight is not confirmed. It is stated that a match has been made, but Ryan denies it.

The World says the agents of various Companies failed yesterday to agree upon an advance of coal to go into effect Dec. 15. The wholesale demand is too insignificant to warrant any change.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Smyth, a member of Parliament, has been invited to visit New York by the Irish Nationalists, but he is unable to comply.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—The North German Gazette makes merry over the American interference in behalf of the disaffected Irish, and asks what has become of the Monroe doctrine. The Government refuses to assist the scheme for a universal exhibition at Berlin, and the project must fail.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—The Minister of Colonies telegraphed yesterday to Cuba that he would dispatch means to complete the suppression of the insurrection, and also to carry out the proposed economic reforms.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11. — The benefit at Niblo's for the fireman Lynch, who was badly burned while rescuing an inmate of a burning tenement, netted $2,000.

Letters from Havana state that Senor Antonico Fesser, Grandee of Spain and President of the Company controlling the Commercio Bank, Havana Bay Railway, and Havana sugar warehouse, is a defaulter in $300,000 gold. On the demise of his first wife, of one of the best families in Havana, Fesser married his nursery maid. She is said to have led him into extravagant living.

FALMOUTH, Dec. 11.—Capt. Barker and 9 of the crew of the British bark Warren Hastings, from Lisbon for Delaware breakwater, have been landed here; the vessel was abandoned at sea. The bark encountered a gale from the 15th to the 16th Nov., during which two seamen were lost. The masts were cut away, pumps choked, and she sprung a leak. The crew was rescued by the British ship Tallington, from Phizla.

ROME.—The Pope has sent fresh dispatch es to Bishops Chili and Peru to use their influence in favor of the peace.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—This morning Pietro Balto, convicted of murdering his wife, was sentenced to be hanged on January 16th.

A portion of the crew of the wrecked bark "Editha" was landed here by the British ship "Caliope" yesterday. It is reported that eight of the crew, who left the sinking vessel in a small boat, were doubtless lost. It is learned, however, that the missing men were picked up by the steamer Atlas and landed in Boston. Both boats were saved on one day.

GLOUCESTER, Ms., Dec. 11.—The owners of the schooner Andrew Leighton, which sailed for LaHave bank on Oct. 21st, have given her up for lost. She had a crew of 14.

CAPE, Dec. 11.—Most damaging evidence has been obtained against Yahiyo Khan, father-in-law of the ex-Ameer, in the discovery of a mounted copy of a large map of Turkestan, bearing Yaragnari's name, which was hidden in a box of clothing in Yahiyo's house.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of ever curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 11.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, brisk to high westerly to north-westerly winds, decidedly colder, cloudy to partly cloudy weather, with light snow in some localities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Indications: For lower lakes, colder, partly cloudy, occasional light snow.

SUMMER HEAT.—This is the season for Bowel Complaints. Green apples and cucumbers produce them, and Perry Davis' PAIN-KILLER cures them. To the troubled stomach it comes like a balm, and says "peace, be still," and the wind is assuaged, and the trouble ceases. Every druggist in the land keeps the PAIN-KILLER, and no other should be without it in his family.

BELLEVILLE MARKETS

INTELLIGENCER OFFICE,
Belleville, Dec. 11, 1879.

The market for grain during the last week has been quiet with light receipts. There is a better enquiry for the best grades of barley, for a No. 1 sample in color and weight 65c. would be paid.

There is very little wheat offered on the street, most being sold at the mills where good samples command $1.25.

Rye is up 5c, it being in demand at 70c.

Pease brings 45c for the best, buyers complain that there is but little good pease offered, the greater amount being buggy. For a quality free from bugs 55 higher would be paid.

Oats are in demand for home consumption.

The hog season is almost over, and buyers report the quality offered as inferior to that of last year. The price somewhat is firmer during the last week at $5.50 for first quality.

Messrs. Shearing & Panter and E. Hayne, were the principal purchasers this season, each having secured about 35,000 lbs.

A number of very heavy hogs have been sold in the market here. The heaviest we heard of was fed by Mr. Wm. Crothers of Northport, and sold to Mr. E. Hayne of this city, its weight being 520 lbs.

Bilious Complaints

Arise from a morbid or unhealthy condition of the liver. This unhealthy action goes on slowly two, three, or may be four weeks, the morbid deposits gradually increasing and accumulating until the crisis arrives, the overcharged liver can contain it no longer, and a discharge of vicious bile takes place into the stomach, which produces a sickness, attended with headache and more or less unpleasant symptoms. The liver thus becomes purged of its unhealthy matter, the system suffers for a few days, then finally reacts, recovers, and goes on for another period. Hence the importance of using DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which are composed entirely of medicines calculated to produce this proper discharge, and thus save the unpleasant week's illness which must else be borne. It is the most certain way to obtain relief. Beginning always, in the cases of those who are constitutionally bilious, on the appearance of the first symptoms of an attack, the attacks will be lighter every time, until they succeed finally in breaking up that morbid condition which gives rise to the disease.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

Moved by Mr. Duncan, seconded by Mr. Williams, that the necessary steps be taken to give Francis Hogle a deed for said road allowance.—Carried,

Mr. Williams introduced a By-law for the purpose of holding general meetings, appointing Returning officers, and providing polling places for the same, which was passed through the several stages and numbered 33.

Polling place No. 1 to be held at School House No. 7, in the 4th con., and that Thos. Soole be Returning Officer.

Polling place No. 2, to be held at School House No. 3, in the 3rd con., and that Emanuel Maybee, jr., be Returning Officer.

Polling place No. 3 to be held at the Town Hall, in the 8th con., and that David McQuaig be Returning Officer.

Polling place No. 4 to be held at School House No. 20, and that Wm. Haslett be Returning Officer.

Council adjourned until the second Saturday in January, 1880.

JOSEPH HOGLE,
Clerk.

CORRECTION.—In last published minutes of Rawdon Council, John McCaw received $46.75 instead of $64.05 as stated; also J. Bateman's expenditure on road was at lots 7 and 8, 11th con., instead of in the 8th con. as stated.

It is said that some of the alkaloids which enter into the combination of Fellows' Hyphosphites, are extracted from trees which attain to a great age, and that this fact suggested to Mr. Fellows the idea of their employment. Whether the success of the preparation is due to this, we are not prepared to say, but the idea is a good one.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

WE invite the attention of every person wanting to purchase Dry Goods to the following FACTS, which we think will be of service to them in helping them to decide where to make their purchases:

1st. Our Stock is the Largest in the City.

2nd. Our British Goods are Imported direct, and are all selected in that market by a member of the firm.

3rd. We claim to have the Choicest and most attractive Stock of Dry Goods between Toronto and Montreal.

4th. We challenge a comparison of the qualities and prices of our goods with those of any other Dry Goods House in the country, believing "a comparison" to be the most convincing argument that could be used in our favor.

REMEMBER, WE HAVE THE

Most Convenient and Best Lighted Shop in the City,

And our Stock is as reliable and cheap as any Retail Stock in the Dominion.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $3 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES

COMP: FELLOWS

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in use.—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it in the best thing we know of.

ST. PAUL, MINN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ever since I received the box of your medicine, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully,

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have had 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with the most promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish advice as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish, Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. Court of Claims, to the Postmaster and Chief of the U. S. Patent Office, and to Senators and Members of Congress from every State.

PATENTS

The Sun for 1880.

THE Sun will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is, the law controlling the daily make-up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction if some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save which may be had by any purchaser for two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores simpocrite of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and reckless Administration intrenched at Washington. The Sun did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. The Sun will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily SUN, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

REMINISCENCES OF A BIG SWINDLE.

(Montreal Post Dec. 4.)

Most people people will remember that about six years ago goods to the amount of $40,000 were abstracted from the Custom House here in Montreal with the connivance, it was supposed, of the officials. The goods were mostly composed of brandies and choice liquors. The detectives were at once employed to recover the brandies and to capture the parties taking them, but had to give it up without success. Mr. Thomas Barry, at present Deputy Collector of Customs at Richmond, was then, after three months, entrusted with task. This gentleman, by untiring energy and the sagacity for which he is noted among his brother officials, succeeded in recovering a quantity of the brandies, amounting to about $8,000, but gave up the rest as a bad job. Hoping, however, that his good fortune might give him a clue, he went to Upper Canada and roamed about Toronto for over a week without success. One fine day he wandered listlessly into an aution room of the Queen City, more to pass away the time than anything else. As he was about leaving he observed something that made him start, which was no less than what is technically termed an 'octave' of brandy, and he at once recognized it as part of what he was in search of. Mr. Barry can talk Irish fluently, and, when a little excited he will actually thinks in that language. Hence he said to himself in Irish, which were : "Wherever there's smoke, there must be fire," never dreaming that a Dutch looking man beside him (the caretaker of the establishment) hailed from Munster and understood him perfectly. By pumping his new friend the Customs officer obtained a clew which enabled him to recover $6,000 worth more of the goods at Windsor and other places. He hastened back to Ottawa and informed the Hon. Mr. Burpee, then Minister of Customs, of his success. This gentleman was delighted, and praised Mr. Barry to the skies for his energy and success, but that was all; for notwithstanding the officer's repeated demands, he could not obtain the percentage to which he was entitled for his success. Mr. Johnson, the Commissioner, received him coldly, and repeatedly told him he had not time to attend to the business. When the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell assumed charge of the department, Mr. Barry tried once more to obtain justice, but Mr. Commissioner Johnson was still pressed for time. Mr. Barry then went to the head of the department with fear and trembling, knowing Mr. Mackenzie Bowell to be the great Orangeman, and as he was strong on the other side, thinking his reception would be the coolest. But he was agreeably disappointed, for as he himself says, Mr. Bowell does not allow party nonsense to interfere with his duty, and treats all Canadians exactly alike. Mr. Bowell at once gave him a cheque for three hundred dollars on the first seizure, and no later than yesterday, through the instrumentality of the same Minister, he received $200 on the second, which delighted him beyond measure, and convinced him that the tales in circulation about the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell were lies, all lies.

How to get Eggs in Winter.

The farmer who leaves his poultry to roost in the apple tree at the corner of the barn, and to pick up their living in the barnyard and in the barnyard, may (says an American contemporary) occasionally get an egg in winter. But as a matter of fact there is on most farms a great dearth of eggs from November to March. With a warm shelter and suitable feed, pullets that begin to lay in the fall will continue to lay through the winter. It is mainly a question of feed. The staple feed is Indian corn, especially in the West, because it is the most plentiful and the most convenient. It furnishes plenty of fat and keeps up the heat of the body, but is poor in albumen and the phosphates. They want a variety of grains and vegetables, and, to do their best, one feed daily of warm cooked meal and vegetables. Most farmers have milk, and if this can be added it will be all they need. Butchers' scrap cake is good, and may safely be kept in the poultry yard, where the fowls can help themselves at pleasure. Boiled potatoes or turnips, mashed and mixed with Indian meal, make an excellent feed for laying hens. Fowls are particularly fond of cabbages and turnips at all stages of their growth, and eat them raw greedily every day if they can get them. We have found so good results from feeding cabbages to laying hens that we always lay in a good supply for the winter. Refuse from the butchers, and offal from the fish market, also furnish good material for making eggs. These are accessible to most villages, and can be had at a small cost. A hen is only a machine for producing eggs. If you want the finished product, you must put the raw material into the hopper. It should not be forgotten that there is a liberal grinding going on in the gizzard, and the laying bird should have free access to gravel, with sharp grit, broken oyster and clam shells, which assist in reducing the grain and forming egg shells. With a plentiful supply of egg-producing food, hens will lay well in winter, when eggs bring the highest price.

The Prince of Wales was this month to visit Sir Richard Wallace at his seat, Sudbrook, Suffolk, which was purchased by him from the present Marquis of Hertford, who inherited only a small part of the possessions of the late Marquis, the bulk devolving on the philanthropist Sir Richard. Sudbrook is famous for its cover shooting, and was the resort early in the century of the notorious circle of reprobates who surrounded George IV. in the days of the Regency. The present Lord Hartford, an exemplary nobleman, retains only the ancestral seat of the family in Warwickshire, with about a tenth of the income of his predecessor. Sir Richard Wallace is well on the way to a peerage.

At a recent marriage in a suburban town, the bridegroom, when asked the important question if he would take the lady for better or for worse, replied, in a hesitating manner: "Well, I think I will." Upon being told that he must be more positive in his declaration, he answered: "Well I don't care if I do."

North Hastings Iron Mines, and the Extension of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway.

For the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—In connection with the Iron Mines of North Hastings, two Railways are required—the one running from Ottawa to Toronto to not only open up the mineral resources of Marmora, Madoc and Elzevir, but also Townships to the east and west of our County; and we require a railway to run to the northern townships in order to develop the iron interests, as well as to facilitate the general trade of the country.

The Belleville and North Hastings Company have a charter for a Railway to be extended north, but the question is, are they going to extend their present line of road, and if so, how and where? No doubt the Ontario Government should come down liberally to both lines of road, inasmuch as they have derived large revenues from the timber lands in the various townships; and while they have given liberally to railway enterprises west of us, they have done next to nothing for our County. It is not therefore too much to expect that both roads should receive a liberal grant per mile.

I have heard it stated that the Government were willing to give to the North Hastings extension $8,000 per mile; if so, "so far, so good." I have also heard it mooted that the municipalities along the route would give $2,000 per mile bonus. This I fear cannot be obtained; if we allow the road to be but fifty miles long from Eldorado to York River mines, and it will probably be over that, where would $100,000 come from? Can Madoc Township sustain a point and give an extra $2,000 per mile until the road intersects the Tudor line? Can Tudor, Limerick, Wollaston and Cashel give for the united townships $2,000 per mile through the length of two townships, and can Dungannon and Faraday give the balance to make up the $100,000? I fear not; but the whole combined might give a bonus of $1,000 per mile. If we take it at $8,000 from Government and $1,000 from the Municipalities, we have but $9,000 per mile; and with the greatest degree of economy the road cannot be built under $13,000 to $14,000 per mile. Then where is the balance to come from? Or, supposing the municipalities gave $2,000 per mile, making $10,000, where is the rest to come from?

The question will naturally arise, will the speculators in iron ore aid and assist in building the road? Judging from Mr. Pusey's speech at Madoc in reference to the Toronto and Ottawa Road, and from other circumstances, he will not; and also judging from what I have heard, that the Government has been importuned to build or aid in building short lines of road to get to certain ore beds, it strikes me that nothing is to be expected from those who are seeking to get hold of all the ore beds in North Hastings, even back to the rear of Dungannon and Faraday. These men are only seeking for the Government and the people to build the Railways at their own expense in order to allow them to transport the ore from the mines they have obtained to the United States, where the iron masters will get the lion's share of the profits.

The next question is, Can the Belleville and North Hastings Company build the road or furnish the balance of the capital required to do so? I fear not. Could they but find another Mr. Pardee they might accomplish it, even without the help of a Mr. Lloyd, but the simple question for us to look at is, Where is the balance of capital to come from to complete the road? At the least supposing the utmost limit of bonus could be obtained from the Government and the people, there would be not less than $150,000 or $200,000 to provide for, without saying anything about rolling stock for the road, which may be put down at $50,000 more.

The question of an extension of railway to our most northern townships is one which should engage the minds of every well-wisher of our City's future prosperity; for if nothing is or can be done to bring the northern trade to the front we must soon expect to see it altogether. Already a charter is asked for an extension of road from Coboconk, to Snowdon iron mines, and thence easterly to Dungannon, and on to Ottawa; and I am informed that the parties seeking the charter are men of capital, and will push the enterprise. It will not hurt the back townships if both roads should be built. So far as I am concerned I would prefer the North Hastings to the other, yet if necessary will do all in my power to forward both roads, and I trust I may live to see both lines completed and in running order.

I would advise Belleville to look well to her own interest, and to go in for smelting works at once, or we may be too late.

Yours &c., &c.,
BILLA FLINT.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, DEC. 12.

Engine Building at Montreal.

From a lengthy notice of the Grand Trunk engine works at Point St. Charles, which appears in the Montreal Witness of the 10th inst., we learn that this department is turning out more work than it has ever done at any time before, over a thousand men being employed. Thirteen new locomotives are in course of construction and three hundred cars are on order. Of the four hundred and thirty-six locomotives now owned by the Company, thirty-five were built at Point St. Charles. Formerly they imported all from Great Britain and the United States, but a tariff of twenty-five per cent. is prohibitory and henceforth the Company will make their own engines. The last locomotive received across the Atlantic was in 1869 from Scotland, and for the last ten years the United States have monopolized the business. During the last two months the cost of almost every description of railway material has advanced fifty per cent. To the uninitiated observer it would appear that the Company could manufacture at their shops everything they require, but they still manage to spent $30,000 annually on machinery, principally at Dundas, Ont., and in England. The Canada Steel Company of Londonderry, Nova Scotia, supply about fifteen hundred tons of bar iron per year, and the car axles are made by the Nova Scotia Forge Company of New Glasgow, N. S., and the Hamilton Forge Company of Hamilton, Ont. The former company are now working night and day for the Grand Trunk Railway. The nails, of which an immense number are used, are all made by Montreal firms. On an average, one engine is turned out of the shop per diem, repaired. It takes about two months to build an engine, and the cost is somewhere about $8,000.

The character of the work done in the Company's establishment is first class, the engines which have been built there being, we are assured by competent mechanical authority, amongst the best in use on the line.

Trade of Trenton.

The trade of the village of Trenton is, we learn, rapidly increasing. The Customs returns show that the imports and exports for the year ending June 30th, 1879, were as follows :—Total importation for the year ending June 30th, 1879, $27,146. Total exports for year ending June 30, 1879 : Sawn lumber, 16,901 M., $159,160 ; lath, 1,767 M., $1,767 ; bass wood bolts, 143 cords, $429 ; barrel heading, 699 M., $2,284 ; hides and skins, $121 ; poplar wood, 321 cords, $962 ; cedar, 15,614 pieces, $1,561 ; barley, 98,690 bus., $93,480 ; peas 18,004 bus., $11,775 ; rye, 67,721 bus., $33,845 ; wheat, 9,795 bus., $9,083 ; eggs, 33,033 doz., $2,675 ; leached ashes 770 tons, $1,130 ; fresh fish, 34,918 lbs., $1,720. Total, $319,993. Also several cargoes of grain shipped to Montreal and other ports in the Dominion. The return applies only to the United States, and does not include what grain is sent to Montreal, Quebec and elsewhere.

The export of paper amounted to about 400 tons, and of apples there were shipped this season 4,000 bbls. The quantity of grain purchased at and shipped this season from Trenton is estimated at 410,000 bushels.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—A despatch from Montreal on the 10th says :—"The merits of the Trent Valley canal scheme were presented to the city council yesterday in a letter signed by J. J. Lundy, Mayor of Peterborough, chairman, and H. H. Smith, Secretary-Treasurer of a committee appointed for the purpose of urging upon the Government the advantages of the scheme. Ald. Nelson favoured the idea of such a canal, which would be a channel for conveying the immense produce of the West to the seaboard via the St. Lawrence. A motion for a delegation to St. Hawks to confer with the Government about the matter was voted down, and the letter was referred to the Finance Committee."

THE BANK OF OTTAWA.—An Ottawa report says :—" The total loss sustained by the Bank of Ottawa through the fraudulent operations of the late manager, P. Robertson, is $52,000, of this a line of credit for $9,000 was given to an irresponsible firm at Arnprior contrary to the advice of the Directors. He made a secret agreement with these parties, by which in the meantime the firm had dissolved partnership, one of the parties continuing. He took the promissory notes of one of the parties, and agreed to give them up at a certain period. These notes, it appears now, were given up without the knowledge or consent of the Directors, and in their place were substituted fictitious bills, that is remitted bills, entered in the bill book.

FROM MADOC.

THE GOLD INTEREST.

In company with Mr. John White, M.P., a representative of the INTELLIGENCER yesterday visited Dale's & Co.s. mine, as also other gold mines in the north part of the County, to examine into the reliability of the reports respecting the extreme richness of the late find at Dale & Co's. mine, and also to report on the state of development of the great gold interests of the north.

At the Dale & Co. mine, which is situated on Lot 17, 11th con. Marmora, (not Madoc, as erroneously stated in yesterday's issue), the miners were found actively engaged in the development of the recent find. As yet only some 12 or 15 feet in depth has been reached, and many deposits of black sand finely sprinkled with the precious metal have been found. The quartz now being mined is easily extracted with a pick and bar, and is certainly very rich in visible gold. A fine little five stamp mill is running on the premises, to which the ore is being carried, where the work of separating the gold from foreign substances is being carried on. The next clean up at the mill will determine the value to the ton of the new discovery, which cannot fail to be very satisfactory to the proprietors. The great richness of the ore is fully verified, and the only question remaining to be settled to prove the value of the find is, as we stated yesterday, the extent of the lead, which can only be determined by time. We found Messrs. Stanlick and Harrison at the mine, who took great pains to show us the works. Unexcited by the richness of their late discovery, they are energetically pushing forward their work, to find the extent of the workings.

TO BE CONTINUED.

AFFAIRS IN RUSSIA.—The situation at St. Petersburg is growing more alarming every hour, and there are great fears of a revolutionary outbreak. The Czar suspects the sincerity of the police.

PRISONERS REMOVED.—An Ottawa despatch says 69 prisoners are to be sent from the Maritime Provinces to the Kingston Penitentiary, owing to the crowded state of the penitentiaries in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

HEAVY DAMAGES.—Mr. Dewe, Chief Inspector of Post Offices, has been mulcted in $6,000 damages at St. John, N. B., for slandering a clerk in the post office there. There was no doubt of the innocence of the plaintiff of stealing letters from the post office.

THE CONSOLIDATED BANK.—A Montreal despatch says ;—The Directors of the Consolidated Bank says that there is every prospect of a sale of the assests being made to a financial institution, and thereby obviating the necessity of a call on the shareholders.

FIRST PRIZE.—A cable despatch says :—"At the Edinburgh Cattle Show yesterday a Durham heifer bred at Guelph, Ontario, was exhibited by Mr. Beattie, and took the first prize in her class, besides standing well for the cup offered for the best animal in the Show."

ONTARIO CENTRAL RAILWAY COMPANY.—Notice is given of an application for an Act incorporating the Grand Ontario Central Railway Company, with full power to construct, maintain and operate a railway from Goderich to Ottawa, with power to amalgamate with any other Company, excepting the Grand Trunk.

STILL BOOMING.—The extraordinary increase in the Grand Trunk receipts of late weeks as compared with the corresponding weeks last year has already been referred to many times. The week ending the 6th inst. is no exception. The receipts for that period were $190,381 as compared with $173,564 during the corresponding week last year—an increase of $16,817. The increase for twenty-three weeks from June 30th amounts to no less than $311,150. There are 1,271½ miles of road open.

AN INTRESTING RELIC.—On the 11th inst., at Coale's auction room, Toronto, the oldest Masonic relic in the world was sold to J. Ross Robertson, of the Evening Telegram. The relic is the Masonic certificate of Souter Johnny, of Burns' "Tam O'Shanter," and issued by St. James Lodge, Ayr, 1790 ; pinned to the corner of the diploma is a lock of Highland Mary's hair. The relic brought $178. It is the oldest known Masonic relic, and a large number of relic hunters went to Toronto to attend the sale to buy it.

A KIDNAPPING CASE.—On the night of the 10th inst., Mrs Deal, the mother of the Deal brothers, was kidnapped from her home by some unknown men and taken out to Yorkville, where a struggle took place between the captors and their captive, in which the latter managed to effect her escape but not without a very severe scrimmage in which all her clothes, except a petticoat, were torn off her person, and thus scantily attired she made her appearance at the house of John Macdonald, Esq., who resides up by the Catholic cemetery, and begged admittance, which he immediately extended to her.

England is not through with Captain Carey yet. He could find nobody to exchange with him from his regiment and goes back to Zululand December 13. When parliament meets several members intend to bring before the House a motion in connection with the "Carey court martial."

One of the latest Ritualist developments in England has been the formation of what is called the Guild of St. Luke. This society, which seeks to band together medical men of pronounced Anglican tendencies, recently held high festival in St. Paul's cathedral, and in various ways is thrusting itself upon the notice of the public. The London Lancet observes this movement, it says, with unfeigned apprehension.

A medical exchange says :—" Phare's method of treating colic consists in inversion—simply in turning the patient upside down. Colic of several days' duration has been relieved by this means in a few minutes." There is reason and economy in this method, and the man who will not stand on his head these hard times, when he can save doctor's bill by doing so, deserves to suffer from the true inwardness of a too dignified and selfish nature.

Madoc Notes.

NEW BUILDINGS.—The railway and mining interests have so developed the business of the village of Madoc that preparations are already being made for building the coming season. Mr. C. G. Wilson has advertised in the Review for tenders for a block of buildings.

TOWNSHIP COUNCILLORS.—All the old councillors of the township of Madoc express their intention of running again this year except Mr. W. J. Allan. The only new candidate announced as yet is Mr. Wm. Thompson. All the old council of the township of Huntingdon express their intention of running this year. Mr. James Foster and Mr. Francis Reynolds have also announced their intention of being candidates.

IRON NOTES.—Mr. Thomas McDonald has struck what is supposed to be a good iron mine in the vicinity of Queensboro. Five iron men from the States arrived in the village to-night.

SPECIAL TRAIN.—A special train this morning brought to the village Capt. Mitchell- Mr Luttrell, manager of the road, and Mr. Blackwell, Mr. Nunn, and Mr. Peak.

VISITORS.—The Dale & Co mine was visited yesterday by a large number of the curious from the village and elsewhere.

PLENTY OF CARS.—The Grand Trunk are now supplying plenty of cars for carrying ore.

NEW POST OFFICE WANTED.—A new post office is wanted in the vicinity of the Gatling mine. The mail could be carried by the Marmora stage and would be a great accommodation.

A RUMOR.—It is rumored that a stranger in the village was shown to his room in a hotel upon his arrival, becoming "muddled" he mistook his room upon retiring. He complained to the landlord in the morning that the pictures and furniture in the room were following him around the house all night. Upon examination the furniture did look somewhat mixed. Verdict—spirits alone to blame.

The following is a list of officers for the ensuing year for Rest's L. O. L. No. 517:—John Brown, W. M. ; L. Empey, D. M. ; O. Rapert, Secretary ; S. Fox, Treasurer ; W. J. Best, Chaplain ; T. M. Bateman, 1st Com. ; S. J. Fox, J. Standford, S. Empey, J. Bateman, Committee ; W. Robinson, D. of C.

The following are the officers elect for Allan Settlement L. O. L. No. 253, for the ensuing year :—Wm. Thompson, W. M. ; Hugh M. Blair, D. M. ; Harkles Rollins, Chaplain ; R. S. Allan, Secretary ; George Rollins, Treas ; Wm. J. Allan, D. of C. ; James Caskey, Alex. McCoy, Thomas Remington, R. A. Rollins, John A. McCoy, Committee.

Assessments.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

As a large tax-payer I wish to make some statements of facts which, although of a personal nature, may interest many of your subscribers. My impression is that over-assessment is the root of the City's burden. It has given extravagant Councils large sums to fritter away, and helped them to indulge in speculative visions by fostering all sorts of bonus applications to burthen a heavily taxed people with a large debt and without corresponding assets.

Regarding assessment the law states distinctly that it is not to be made on the cost of your property, nor on a basis of its rental, but upon its cash value. Now as the assessors, members of the court of revision, and judge, are sworn to do their duty, no one can think but what they intend to do it without the slightest personal basis to influence their decisions.

In the assessment for 1880 I appealed against the assessor's valuations, but as both the court of revision and Judge Lazier refused my appeal I either was in error or did not get justice.

To enable the City tax-payer to form an opinion on the matter I will give a few facts. The Consolidated Bank Block the assessors assessed at a cash valuation of $23,800. Now the Post-office Block and the Carman Block are exactly the same class of building and were built by the same party. These Blocks were sold during the last year at $12,500 and $13,000 respectively, and these figures were only obtained after advertising them through the Province and employing the very best talent in the City to effect a sale, and even then to obtain the price named one of the creditors took the P.O. Block on account. Does any citizen who has had any experience in building think that the Consolidated Bank Block is worth within $1,700 of as much as the two Blocks Combined.

The assessors, invariable reply is that all property is assessed equally high, and therefore no injustice is done. Let us see if this is a fact. The third story of the Consolidated Bank Block is assessed at $2,500, and Mr. Wills' property on the opposite corner, with a local greater frontage, is assessed at $3,500 for land, building and all. Again they assess the office of the Consolidated Bank at $9,000, and the Bank of Commerce with a larger and more expensively fitted premises, at $7,300.

There are other assessments that would bear a still stronger comparison, but as the owners are enjoying a low assessment I don't wish to disturb them, as the assessors will never find it out. The assessment on the Metropolitan Hall simply means conflagration by the City, as I cannot possibly look for a net rental to exceed the taxes, insurance, and repairs. Is this justice?

Possibly when I asked the judge to reduce the assessment and he refused, he anticipated I would get a petition signed by a number of property holders and a fair sprinkling of the property owners' association and present it to the Council, and they would show their sympathy by reducing my taxes one half, the same as they did one year with the owner of the Opera House. I would like to ask some of the poor people of the city, whose small homes are well taxed and who find their taxes a heavy burden through sickness or other causes, that if they were to get up a petition and ask these assessor citizens of the P. O. Association to sign it would they do it? and would the Council find their generosity rise to such a pitch as to reduce one-half?

I would suggest that the P. O. Association would kindly ask those of its members who signed the petition and those Aldermen who voted for it to pay that $100 out of their own pocket. I hardly think the people voted for these Aldermen to let their generous sympathies with the people's money carry them so far, but as the elections are now close to hand, it might be as well for the electors to look into these matters.

There must be a change in our civic affairs, unless the city wishes to drive away its very best citizens, the same as it did with Messrs. Rathbun & Sons a few years ago, by its suicidal and idotic policy.

Yours, &c.,
J. B. GRAHAM.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, DEC. 12.

City and Vicinity.

SHIPMENT BY RAIL.—Three car loads of whiskey were shipped from Corby's mills to-day, for St John's, N. B.

A DISAPPOINTMENT.—It was expected that Messrs. Ross and Daly would have shown up at the Mechanic's Institute gymnasium last night, but neither of those great athletes did so.

WHAT TO EXPECT.—Several weather prophets agree in predicting a mild winter. Their prognostications are to some extent based on the assertion that the muskrats have this year built their houses unusually small.

NEW STEAMER ROUTE.—It is probable that Captain Porte will place the Utica—which will next season be replaced on the Picton and Trenton route by a new and faster steamer—on the route between Wellington and the Sand Banks.

CHRISTMAS TREE.—The ladies of the congregation of St. Thomas' church will hold a Christmas tree and sale of useful and fancy articles in the Metropolitan Hall on Thursday, the 18th inst. During the afternoon admission will be free. Other particulars are contained in the advertisement.

ACCOMMODATING.—In order to suit the convenience of those passengers who wished to attend the matinee performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" yesterday afternoon, the Grand Junction and North Hastings trains were detained until 4 p. m. Mr. Luttrell, the Superintendent, is always willing to accommodate the public.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."—The performance of this popular drama by Anthony & Ellis' combination last night, attracted the largest audience of the season, the Opera House being crowded to the door. In all respects the performance was most satisfactory, and the audience filed out of the house highly pleased with the evening's entertainment.

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE RAILWAYS.—A letter from the Hon. Billa Flint on the subject of Government aid to railways in the County of Hastings and country eastward, appears on the first page of to-day's paper. The hon. gentleman urges our claims with vigor, and shows that the claim is an equitable one, because of the large revenue which the Provincial Government has derived from timber lands in this district and the little that our rulers have done for us hitherto.

TO-NIGHT.—Five events are set down for to-night in town, namely: The public meeting regarding the Grand Junction Railway; the lecture of Prof. Blankman in the Metropolitan Hall; the annual oyster supper of the employees of Messrs. J. M. Walker & Co; a parlor concert at Mrs. Goetzel's, Dundas Street, in aid of the Baptist Church; and a meeting of the members of No. 4 Company 40th Battalion, regarding the arrangements for ball. A tolerably busy night for reporters.

THE "HUM."—Instances are shown every day of the benefits that occur to trade by the existence of the N. P., which is now well proven to be advantageous to the general interests of the country. At this time last year several factories here were running on short time, whilst now a full day's work is done and a full complement of hands employed. Mills are also running briskly, and in the case of Harry Corby jr., his establishment is at work night and day, and as a result over four hundred barrels of flour are manufactured each week, a large quantity of which is shipped to the Maritime Provinces.

RACE.—A match race against time for $50 will come off on the trotting track to-morrow between one and two o'clock. Mr. J. S. Barnes has bet with Capt. Daly that he can run 100 yards in ten seconds. Mr. Barnes has the fastest record in the world for 75 yards, having run that distance in 7¼ seconds, as reported in the Clipper Almanac. Chief McKinnon is stake holder. Prof. Ross and Mr. McMahon of the Clipper are to be time keepers.

MURRAY CANAL.—The County Council of Lennox and Addington, at its late sitting in Napanee, resolved to memorialize the Dominion Government for the construction of this important work. Thus far the Councils of three of the Counties principally affected have united their efforts in support of the project, and the fourth will doubtless do likewise. It now remains for the minor municipalities to act similarly, and for the promoters to secure the support of the people by the circulation of petitions.

GOOD WORDS.—The Picton Times says of the Murray Canal:—"Though perhaps of no special advantage to Picton, the construction of the canal would benefit the county generally, and the scheme has our hearty endorsation." The canal would benefit Picton by making it a port of call for the mail steamers, and carrying to and fro many tourists, who would visit that town, the Lake on the Mountain, the Sand Banks and other points of interest in that vicinity. There can be no doubt that on the opening of the canal Picton would become a great resort for tourists.

CHAMPION WRESTLING MATCH. — The match for the heavy weight championship belt and medal, between Capt. J. C. Daly, of New York and Prof. Duncan C. Ross, which is to take place in the Opera House to-morrow night, promises to be of great interest. The men have met previously three times, namely at Hamilton and at Toronto (same match), where Ross won, and at Albany, when Daly proved the winner. Both are first class men, and a sharp struggle may be expected. The Mayor will present the belt and medal to the winner.

THE PRINCE EDWARD RAILWAY.—The annual meeting of the Prince Edward Railway Company was held at Picton on the 10th inst., when the number of Directors was reduced from nine to seven. The Directors elected were Messrs. Alex. Manning, John Bain, A. F. Manning, and Joseph Mead, of Toronto; Mr. Ross, M. D. Campbell and Mr. Niles of Prince Edward County. Mr. Alex. Manning was chosen President. Mr. Haney was appointed General Manager and Mr. E. Marrow was appointed Secretary Treasurer. During the five weeks from the opening of the road to the 29th November, the Railway carried over 835 tons of freight and 2873 passengers, and we are glad that the prospects of an increase of both freight and passenger traffic seem to be good.

THE INDIA WAREHOUSE.—This place of business on Bridge Street, which was established by Mr. George Wallbridge, the senior partner of the present firm, in 1871, is now second to no other similar house in this part of the country. Since the year named the business of this house steadily increased, and as time rolled on enlargement of the premises—necessitated by an increase in trade—became requisite, so that now two stores on the main floor of the Dominion Buildings and the rooms above them, as well as the large and commodious cellar beneath, are utilized for the purposes of this large and growing business. In 1877 Mr. Joseph Clarke, who had long been in the employ of Mr. Wallbridge, became a partner, and since that date the firm has been known as Wallbridge & Clarke. The extent of their business has enabled them to import direct from the leading houses in Great Britain, France, Spain, Portugal, Holland, &c., the several lines of goods which go to make up the stock of a first class grocery and liquor store. Occasional visits to the principal European markets have enabled this firm to make personal selections of goods as well as to make arrangements for direct importations. The premises have recently been enlarged and improved, plate glass windows now adorn the front, whilst all the modern conveniences and innovations necessary in such a store have been introduced on the store, which now contains a large variety of goods, the excellent quality and class of which this firm is noted for. They have made great preparations for the holiday trade and have an abundance of new fruits and Christmas groceries of all kinds, as well as a choice stock of everything in their line. This firm has had a large experience, and understanding their business thoroughly the public may rest assured of receiving at their hands a first-class class of goods and square legitimate dealing.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?—Your hair looks dry and dead, it breaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away these things go buy a bottle of Bearine which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better at once.

Hawesville, Ky., brags of a man who doesn't care for dogs at all when he's sober, but when he's drunk has a mania to own all the dogs in the country. He will ask a neighbor to give him his dog. If he won't give it, the man tries to buy it; if the other won't sell it, the first steals it. He has thus been known to collect 150 dogs in a week's spree and feed them liberally till he gets sober.

THE HANLAN-COURTNEY RACE.

SOULE'S OFFER.

WHAT HANLAN SAYS.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—A meeting of the Irish citizens was held last night for the purpose of raising funds for the suffering poor in Ireland. Two Irish societies donated $350.

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 12.—Judge Hall, in the noted divorce suit of Elizabeth Hill against Chas. E. Hill, finds the allegations of both parties unfounded. Mrs. Hill went from Syracuse to Shanghai to marry Hill.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The Times, Detroit, says Dr. McGregor Wilson, a physician of Detroit, formerly of Western New York, was arrested yesterday charged with conspiracy with Mrs. Hotchkiss to murder her husband Geo. E. and her son Giles Hotchkiss, who died suddenly in Niagara County 11 years ago. Mrs. Hotchkiss has gone to Buffalo, where she will be arrested.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Washington specials: The Times says that a very objectionable resolution, giving the Charleston arsenal property to the trustees of the Holy Communion Church, was passed very quietly in the Senate yesterday in the absence of Edmunds, Logan and McMillan, who had been prepared to oppose it. Leading Republicans in Charleston have opposed it on the grounds that the school is a sectarian, aristocratic and exclusive one, to which the children of no union man or Republican can gain admission.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—The American Union Telegraph Company yesterday completed the connection with the new French cable. A despatch was successfully sent from this city to Paris.

Gen. Eckert, who recently resigned the Presidency of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, will become President of the American Union, President Bates becoming Vice-President and General Manager.

John J. Astor has presented to the Astor Library a plot adjoining the building 16 by 100. It is proposed to build an extension.

Jacob Miller Brooklyn, recovered $1,000 yesterday in a suit against Anton Dryer for the seduction of the former's daughter.

Hanlan said yesterday that Soule offered in Toronto to give him the $6,000 purse if he would make affidavit not to give any of the money to Courtney, as the latter had said Hanlan had promised him a share of the stakes, win or lose. Soule made this offer in case Blaikie is unable to get up a race.

The will of Cynthia Hesdra, colored, is contested. She left $80,000, savings of herself and husband, and bequeathed the estate to him. Relatives claim that the will is bogus.

Haldah Zeibert, servant, supposed to be insane, was arrested in Jersey City yesterday for offering her mistress, Mrs. Wm. Both, a bottle of wine into which Hudiah had placed paris green. No reason for the crime is given.

Samuel Singleton, ticket taker at the Grand Opera House, was arrested for refusing admission to a colored man. The indictment is the first found under the civil rights act in this district.

The sale of Benjamin F. Carver's collection of pictures yesterday brought over $30,000 for 78 pictures.

Harry Lovitt, the well-known song and dance man, was arrested yesterday for enticing a young girl aged 17, into a disreputable house.

Arrived, Adriatic from Liverpool.

SUMMER HEAT.—This is the season for Bowel Complaints. Green apples and cucumbers produce them, and Perry Davis' PAIN-KILLER cures them. To the troubled stomach it comes like a balm, and says "Peace, be still," and the wind is assuaged, and the trouble ceases. Every druggist in the land keeps the PAIN-KILLER, and no other should be without it in his family.

ORANGE CERTIFICATES, handsomely got up, for sale at the INTELLIGENCER Office.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—An influential committee was formed to organize a system of relief for the famine stricken people of Silesia.

Schouvaloff yesterday had an audience with the Emperor on the rise in cereals throughout Germany necessitating corresponding increase in military estimates for 1880.

CADIZ, Dec. 12.—On Wednesday General Macpherson occupied Sarkh Kotal just in time to prevent a junction of the Kohistans with a force from Ghuznee. The Kohistans who occupied a position near Kotal were dislodged, leaving a standard. Our loss was a few slightly wounded.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—A Cabul despatch says that the combined movement of Massy and Macpherson miscarried. The cavalry arrived at the point of junction too early; it encountered large masses of the enemy and their guns fell into the enemy's hands, but were recovered. The insurgents, who are in considerable force about the city, are being attacked by Macpherson, who yesterday inflicted severe loss.

Gen. Baker was to move by way of the Char Asiab, to take them in the rear, while Massey was to join Macpherson by way of Char de valley for combined movement with the view to the object of driving the enemy on Baker's command. Massy encountered Mahomed Jened's force of 10,000 Afghan sepoys and a train of guns, and his cavalry made a brilliant charge, but without an apparent effort; the country is most difficult.

The enemy made for the Cabul Gorge, but they were checked and now occupy the heights south of Bakhshisar. They are admirably located two or three thousand are armed with the Snider rifles. They lost heavily by the cavalry charge and artillery fire, but never wavered. Our loss is believed to be 18 killed, including two Lieutenants, and 25 wounded, including one Colonel. Macpherson is now attacking the enemy.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 12.—On Friday at 6:30 p. m., Lord Lytton, Viceroy of India, on his arrival this evening from a tour of the Provinces, was twice fired at but escaped injury. The assassin was arrested.

MADRID, Dec. 12.—The Generals of the army high in command in Spain and Cuba, such as Captain General Blanco and Generals Prendergast Cussols, who tendered their resignations, did so on account of the fall of the Campos Ministry. Many leading newspapers deplore the resignation of Campos. They think that as the Conservatives were divided the King could have entrusted the Government to Sagasta and the Liberals, instead of to those who for nine months have opposed and defeated the abolition and free trade policy of Campos. The newspapers also express alarm concerning the effect in Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The House Committee of Commerce heard extended arguments this morning by the Thurber and Fraly Committee, and from the National Board of Trade. Both took strong grounds in favor of Congress regulating the charges for the transportation of freight by railway companys.

EXTER, N. H., Dec. 12.—Amos Tuck, exmember of Congress, died last evening after two days illness of apoplexy.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

Our business now is to follow Charlie to the Green, where, despite his hunger, his attention was soon fully absorbed by the thousand amusements which were there going forward. Familiar as he was with the Glasgow thoroughfares, he had seen nothing like the bewildering magnitude of the "Fair"—its immense assemblage of stands and booths and shows—the endless crowds of people—the grand and novel exhibitions, the bawling of those who were vending their wares—and the loud speeches of the finest dressed people glittering with spangles, who sought to induce the sightseers into the interior of their caravans.

Charlie was delighted with the brilliant and exciting spectacle, and wandered about with zest which he thought would never tire. Occasionally he did manage to pick up a piece of gingerbread or a stray nut which had found its way to the ground and in this way appeased the sharp cravings of hunger; but the truth was, he had no attention to spare on the emptiness of his belly—his whole interest was taken up by the wonderful things he saw. Particularly was he diverted by the performances which took place on the cages of the caravan—the dancing of the beautiful ladies, and the comic sayings of the funnily dressed clowns. A special attraction he found in gazing on the fairy like movements of a beautiful little girl, who was dancing on the tight rope on the elevated stage of a caravan which stood at a little distance from the rest. Charles thought he had never seen such a beautiful little girl, and though she was very smartly and nicely got up, her very neat dress did no more than show off to advantage her lovely face and graceful little form. More than Charles were attracted by the sylph-like movements of the little fairy, for quite a large crowd was gathered round the caravan, and as she tripped lightly and fearlessly along the rope, smiling so sweetly, and kissing her hand so gracefully, the shouts of applause were long and loud, and quite a shower of money flew towards her.

Charlie did not form such a high opinion of the man under whose guidance and directions the fair little creature was going through her captivating performances. He was a man of huge size all over—not particularly tall, but extraordinarily stout of limb. He would have looked taller had his neck been of common length, but it was peculiarly short, so much so as to make very little separation between his bullet shaped head and enormous, broad, square shoulders, and gave him a decidedly ugly look. It was his face, however, most of all which gave Charlie an ill opinion of him. There was something brutal and repulsive in that, and though he spoke quite pleasant to the little girl in the presence of the people, the little fellow, child though he was, had a notion that it was a constrained and not a natural pleasantness he was manifesting.

In the intervals, when the little girl rested at the end of the rope, the big man tumbled, and did various feats of strength and dexterity, tossing balls and knives, whirling plates on the end of sticks, and finishing off by fixing a leathern cup on his brow, throwing a heavy iron ball high into the air, and catching it in the cup when it fell.

Charlie spent so long a time in front of this caravan, that when he overcame his fascination, so far as to bethink himself, he noticed that it was now dusk, and concluded that it was time to be returning home. He, therefore, made his bounteous way through among the immense multitude of people, in the endeavor to get sight of an opening, and so reach the outside. Being a very little fellow he could worm his way about with wonderful rapidity, but go as he would he found himself always surrounded by shows and booths, and masses of people. Had he been tall enough to see over their heads, he could have got an idea of the direction in which to go, but overtopped as he was by everybody, he went quite at random, and spent more than an hour in finding the edge of the Green. And when he did get out of it, it was into a street which he did not know, so he went wandering on still, and did not find his way into Collin's Court till it was quite dark—as dark at least as that dusky summer night would be.

The lateness of the hour did not concern Charlie much, for he knew that Dick and Bet never went early to bed. Greatly, therefore, was his surprise to find the door locked, and no light visible through the keyhole. He knocked long enough to be convinced that neither of them were within, then he crouched down in the landing to wait their coming.

He waited and waited, but they came not. Hours passed and midnight came, but no appearance of Dick or Bet. Then Charlie grew tired of waiting there, and he went out again into the streets.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epelepic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your Compound. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery. Language must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only occasional and the action of the heart is less terrible; I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR,—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a man of me. I have been selling over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a number many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

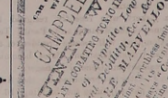

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and employing Patent Experts exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and our charges depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

A CAUTION!

THE GENUINE
MURRAY & LANMAN'S
FLORIDA WATER

Has a little pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, and the paper on which this pamphlet is printed has the words "MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER," "NEW YORK," blown in water mark, so that when a leaf is held up to the light, it shows these words in faint semi-transparent letters.

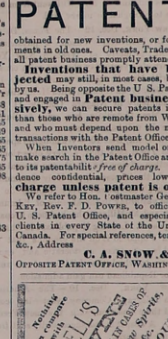

All buyers who care to enjoy the true Florida Water, and who wish to avoid being imposed upon, can, by the aid of the above direction, detect and reject the worthless counterfeits with which the market is flooded.

This Great Household Medicine ranks amongst the leading necessaries of Life.

These famous Pills purify the BLOOD, and act most powerfully, yet soothingly on the

and BOWELS, giving tone, energy, and vigor to these great MAIN SPRINGS OF LIFE. They are confidently recommended as never failing remedy in all cases where the constitution, from whatever cause, has become impaired or weakened. They are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females of all ages; and as a GENERAL FAMILY MEDICINE, are unsurpassed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Its searching and Healing Properties are known throughout the World.

For the cure of BAD LEGS, Bad Breasts, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, it is an infallible remedy. If effectually rubbed on the neck and chest, as salt into meat, it Cures SORE THROAT, Diphtheria, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and even ASTHMA. For Glandular Swellings, Abscesses, Piles, Fistulas,

Gout, Rheumatism,

And every kind of SKIN DISEASE, it has never been known to fail.

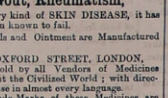

The Pills and Ointment are Manufactured only at

533, OXFORD STREET, LONDON,

And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World; with directions for use in almost every language.

The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence, any one throughout the British Possessions, who may keep the American Counterfeits for sale, will be prosecuted.

Purchasers should look to the Label on the Pots and Boxes. If the address is not 533, Oxford Street, London, they are spurious.

Notice is Hereby Given

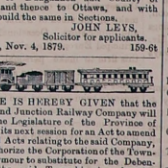

THAT an application will be made at the next Session of the Legislature of Ontario, for a charter for a Railway Company to construct a Railway to be called the

TWO WOMEN.

WILLIS.

The shadows lay along Broadway,
'Twas near the twilight tide,
And slowly there a lady fair
Was walking in her pride.
Alone walked she, but viewlessly
Walked spirits by her side.

Peace charmed the street beneath her feet,
And Honor charmed the air;
And all astir looked kind on her.
And called her good as fair—
For all God ever gave to her
She kept with chary care.

She kept with care her beauties rare,
From lovers warm and true,
For her heart was cold to all but gold,
And the rich came not to woo—
But honored well are the charms to sell
If prists the selling do.

Now, walking there was one more fair—
A slight girl, lily pure;
And she had unseen company
To make the spirits quail—
'Twixt Wealth and Sorrow she walked forlorn,
And nothing could avail.

No mercy now can clear her brow
For this world's peace to pray;
For as love's prayer dissolved in air,
Her woman's heart gave way!
But the sin forgiven by Christ in heaven
By man is cursed always.

AMARANTHS

BY BISHOP ARTHUR CLEVELAND COXE, D. D.

"We have forsaken all . . . . what shall we have therefore?"
"Shall He not, with Him, freely give us all things?"
"Ibi nulla herba aresci, totum viret, totum vigit." —ST. AUG.

Be still, my fluttering heart, nor dim
The flame of faith divine;
But say: All things are mine in Him
If only Christ be mine.

Nor sigh for amaranthine bowers,
If, loving and forgiven,
Thine yet shall be, for earthly flowers
Their antitypes in Heaven.

Not all unseen, not all unknown
All things within the veil;
There is a rainbow round the throne,
Whose hues our fade can fail.

Then look beyond, with sweet content,
When, o'er the April sky,
Is seen that arch of glory bent,
Which glitters but to die.

Not all to mock our waking sight
Fair forms in dreams we view;
But oft our visions of the night
Are figures of the true.

There's not a bliss we sigh for here
That is not kept, above,
Pure as the the heavenly atmosphere
For hearts that Jesus love.

There's not a joy that is cast down
By souls the cross that bear
That helps not the glittering crown
Reserved in glory there.

And if the restless heart we tame
Its idols to forego,
Treasures of love, in Christ's dear name,
The Father will bestow.

For, sure as in the soul are powers
Which here we must restrain,
There's something that shall yet be ours
To prove them not in vain.

Sunday Reading.

Value of Principle.

BY JAMES HAMILTON, D. D.

It was once a problem in mechanics to find a pendulum which should be equally long in all weathers—which should make the same number of vibrations in the summer's heat and the winter's cold. They have now found it out. By a process of compensation they make the rod lengthen one way as much as it contracts another; so that the centre of motion is always the same; the pendulum swings the same number of beats in a day of January as in a day of June; and the index travels over the dial plate with the same uniformity, whether the heat try to lengthen or the cold to shorten the driving power. Now the moving power in some men's minds is sadly susceptible of surrounding influences. It is not principle, but feeling, which forms their pendulum-rod, and it alters according. Of all principles, a high-principled affection to the Saviour is the steadiest and most secure.

The Power of Sympathy.

BY S. C. ROBINSON, D. D.

Once I knew a working man, a potter by business, who had a small invalid child at home. He wrought at his trade with exemplary fidelity, being always in the shop with the opening of day. He managed, however, to bear each evening to the bedside of the "wee lad," as he called him, a flower, or a bit of ribbon, a figment of crimson glass, indeed anything that would lie out on the white counterpane, and give a color in the room. He was a good, unsophisticated man; but never went he home at nightfall without some toy or trinket, showing he had remembered the way-faring babe that lay with he coming. I presume he never said to a living soul he loved that sick boy so much. Still he went on patiently loving him. And by-and-by he moved that whole shop into positively real but unconscious fellowship with him. The workmen made curious little jars and teacups upon their wheels, and painted diminutive pictures down the sides before they stuck them in the corners of the kiln at burning time. One brought some fruit in the bulge of his apron, and another some engravings in a rude scrap-book. Not one of them all whispered a word, for this solemn thing was not to be talked about. They put them in the old man's hat, where he found them; so he understood all about it. And I tell you seriously, that entire pottery full of men of rather coarse fibre by nature, grew quiet as the months drifted, became gentle and kind, and some of the ungoverned ones stopped swearing, as the weary look on their patient fellow-workman's face told them beyond any mistake that the inevitable shadow was drawing nearer. Every day now somebody did a piece of his work for him, and put it up on the sanded plank to dry; thus he could come later and go earlier. So, when the bell tolled, and the little coffin came out of the door of the lowly home, right around the corner out of sight, there stood a hundred stalwart workingmen from the pottery with their clean clothes on, most whom gave a half-day of time for the privilege of taking off their hats to the simple procession, filing in behind it, and following across the village green to its grave that small burden of a child, which probably not one of them had ever seen with his own eyes.—S. S. Times.

Man and the Bible.

Chiefly the Bible holds its power over men as the record, in quaint, simple and unconscious language of Life, and the vicissitudes of life. No literary conceit or pride of authorship, as we saw. No style, long syllables and short syllables, studied metaphor, or other critical or linguistic machinery. Rough style, indeed. You know the Roman Cardinal said he found it bad for his style, so he did not read it. Nay, no great logic nor system of metaphysics; no compact method of government; no treaties on natural history; no science of morals. Will it tell us whether there is an ocean at the North Pole? Will it tell us whether the soul of man existed before he was born into this world? No. Will it tell us whether the body of man is derived in direct descent from the inferior races? No.

Then what will it tell us? It will tell us of the power of life; of the power of God, the Life of the Universe, over all the things which He made and set in order; of the power of man, whom God set to subdue the world, to carry out that enterprise when he loyally engages in it; of the power of the soul, which is the life of man, to control supreme the mind of man, and his body. It tells how the Spirit of God moved on the face of the waters. It tells how the inspiration of God led Israel from bondage. It tells how the sense of God lifted Israel from barbarism to command and how, as Israel lost God, she sank back to vassalage. And such little history is accessory. So is the history of histories, the centre of history; when, in the middle of this book, for outsight men, in narration, whose quaint simplicity challenges criticism and the admiration of the world, describe some incidents in the life of God's own Son, who had no life but God's life, and obeyed no law save His. As these fragments are, there is the triumph of the great Personality of all time. Lord of Life. We call him wisely. Because the Bible encloses the four Gospels, explains, illustrates, leads down to them and leads back to them; because, so leading, it shows always that life is a power, matter, and that forms obey—forms, methods, law, fashion, and all the outside—that these obey and must obey; because the Bible is the Book of Life, and the book of the Lord of Life—because it keeps its hold upon the world.—Edward Everett Hale.

Nazareth.

"Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews," was the inscription placed by order of Pontius Pilate upon the head of the cross upon which our Saviour suffered, and He did not disown the appellation; for being asked, "Art thou Jesus of Nazareth?" He promptly replied, "I am He." Nazareth is inseparably associated with the memory of our Lord, since, although it was not his birthplace, it was his home during nearly all of the first thirty years of his earthly life. For, as we are told, after the flight into Egypt, he came and dwelt in a city called Nazareth; that that he fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets, "He shall be called a Nazarene"; and here it was that, being subject to his parents, the child "Jesus increased in wisdom and in favor with God and man."

Nazareth, now called En Nazareh, is about sixty-five miles north of Jerusalem, the present population being about four thousand, of whom about one-fourth belong to the Greek Church, and the remainder being Moslems, Greek Catholics, Latins, and Maronites; but at the periodical festivals there is an immense influx of pilgrims. The houses are mostly of stone, flat-roofed and well built. It is situated in the midst of mountains, on the side of a hill, commanding a picturesque valley. After the traveller leaves Mount Tabor, he soon begins to ascend towards Nazareth. When he has reached an elevation of several hundred feet he sees spread below him, on every side except the north, the great plain of Esdraelon, looking like a green carpet dotted and spangled with flowers of every hue, and blue, and gold dark stripes of ploughed land, while on all sides around stately mountains border the fringe of this magnificent divan. At a distance of six miles from Tabor are seen, lining the two sides and extremity of a hollow valley, like the basin of a small lake, a group of white houses, above which rise the flattened dome of the Greek Church, the long, massive walls of the Latin Convent, and the slender minaret of the Moslem mosque, with its lofty gallery from which the muezzin announces the hour of prayer. This is Nazareth. The whole scene is scattered over with clumps of high, thorny noples and fig trees, interspersed with the light-leaved pomegranate. "It seems," says one traveller, "as if fifteen mountains had met to form an enclosure for the delightful vale of Nazareth; they rise round it like the edge of a shell to guard it from intrusion. It is a rich and beautiful field in the midst of barren mountains, and abounds in fig trees, small gardens, and hedges of the prickly-pear, and the dense, rich grass affords an abundant pasture."—Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

How to be a Gentleman.

We want a few private words with the boys, says the "Parish Visitor." The truth is, we have a new idea of them. We begin to think now that those were old-fashioned notions, that they are all out of date. We see around, and see a great many persons grown up, with men's clothes on, who are called men. But they act and behave so that we feel certain they are not made out of boys. If they had been, they would have known how to behave better. Where they came from we do not know. But what we do wish to put into the ears of boys is this—be gentlemen. In this country every boy may grow up to be a gentleman. He will if it is not necessary that he should become rich—most boys think it is—nor is it necessary that he should become a great scholar, nor that he should become a distinguished man.

But some impatient ones are asking, "How can we become gentlemen?" How can a boy go about making himself one? can he work for it? Yes, he can. And the harder he works in the right way, the better. But he must study with his eyes and his ears. Reading books and newspapers is not enough. He must think and feel, as well as speak and act. Can he buy it? Yes, he can. Money will buy a good many things, but it will not buy what makes a gentleman. If you have money you can go to shops and buy clothes. But that coat, pants and boots do not make a gentleman. They make a fop, and sometimes some near making a fool. Money will buy good horses, but how many dogs and horses do you think it will take to make a gentleman?

Let me boy, therefore, think he is to be made a gentleman by the clothes he wears, the horse he rides, the stick he carries, the dog that trots after him, the house he lives in or the money he spends. Not one or all of these do it—and yet every boy may be a gentleman. He may wear an old hat, cheap clothes, have no horses, live in a poor house, and spend but little money, and still be a gentleman. But how? By being true, manly and honorable. By keeping himself neat and respectable. By being civil and courteous. By respecting himself and respecting others. By doing the best he knows how. And finally and above all by fearing God and keeping his commandments.

Reading Without Thinking.

We quite understand the ambition of men engaged in intellectual pursuits to "keep up with the world's thought." But if is this off ri that fills all the professions with cramped men, and leaves them scant of thinkers. Filling the ocean with a dipper is the work for those only who do not realize the shortness of time and the greatness of the task. There is so little ultimate truth in the world; science is pulling up her stakes and setting them forward so frequently; religion herself is changing her lines so much on everything save a few great facts, that one half so much would be lost as the average student, now pressed and puzzled on all sides, would think, if he should intermit his baffling pursuit of knowledge for a few years, and go to using what wisdom he has. The daily press will keep a man from getting rusty. A few of the old classics—including first the chief classic of all, the Bible—will give him food and stimulant enough; and nature and his own heart will give him the best themes and thoughts.—Golden Rule.

Number Seven in the Bible.

On the seventh day God ended his Work.

On the seventh day Noah's ark touched the ground.

In seven days a dove was sent.

Abraham pleaded seven times for Sodom.

Jacob mourned seven days for Joseph.

Jacob served seven years for Rachael.

And yet another seven years more.

Jacob was pursued a seven days journey by Laban.

A plenty of seven years and a famine of seven years were foretold in Pharaoh's dream by seven fat and seven lean beasts, and seven ears of full and seven ears of blasted corn.

On the seventh day of the seventh month the children of Israel fasted seven days in their tents.

Every seven days the land rested.

Every seventh year the law was read to the people.

In the destruction of Jericho, seven persons bore seven trumpets seven days; on the seventh day they marched around seven times, and at the end of the seventh round the walls fell.

Solomon was seven years building the temple, and feasted seven days at its dedication.

In the tabernacle were seven lamps.

The golden candlestick had seven branches.

Naaman washed seven times in the river Jordan.

Job's friends sat with him seven days and seven nights and offered seven bullocks and seven lambs as an atonement.

In the Revelations we read of seven churches, seven candlesticks, seven stars, seven trumpets, seven plagues, seven thunders, seven vials, seven angels and a seven-headed monster.

Gems of Thought.

We are led on, like the little children, by a way that we know not.

Our best learn to deal with odd and even in life as well as in figures.

We can hardly learn humility and tenderness enough except by suffering.

When what is good comes to our age and is likely to live, there is reason for rejoicing.

It is better sometimes not to follow great reforms of abuses beyond the threshold of their own homes.

There is no feeling, perhaps, except the extremes of fear and grief, that does not find relief in music.

The strongest heart will faint sometimes under the feeling that enemies are bitter and that friends only know half the sorrow.

In the conflict between vice and virtue in the heart of man, one side or the other must triumph; it is impossible for the result to be a drawn battle.

If we are ever caught in a shower of prosperity remember we can help each another with some poor neighbor, on whose threshold we might allow some of the superfluous drops to fall

As waste and worthless lands can be made to yield abundantly by proper care and cultivation, so can arid and barren hearts be reclaimed by kind and sympathetic endeavors.

No man can be thoroughly manly, nor carry the blossom, bloom and fruit, unless he has in a large measure what belongs to a good and well regulated mind. Asceticism never made a good man.

We have never seen a man bewailing his ill-fortune without something of contempt for his weakness. No individual or nation ever rose to eminence in any department which gave itself up to childish complaints.

When our indignation is borne in submissive silence, we are apt to feel twinges of conscience that the Spirit has bestowed upon his charity client a solid silver half-dollar.—Boston Courier.

A return to the Legislature in 1786 showed the income of English endowed schools to be £258,710. Reports made since show the income to be now over $6,000,000, and the officers known as "Official Trustees of charitable funds" hold stocks and securities which in 1872 amounted to nearly $27,000,000, divided into 6,610 separate accounts. The management and control of charities are vested, subject to considerable limitation, in Commissioners, and the Court of Chancery also has large powers in dealing with charitable trusts. A great many charities, which had in course of time become misapplied, have during the past fifteen years been rigorously overhauled and restored to usefulness.

THE GOLD INTEREST.

THE FEIGEL MINE.

On the next lot to the Dale mine is situated the Feigel mine, now run by Mr. David Stewart, who is always ready to give his friends a hearty welcome. Mr. Stewart employs about twenty-five men in and about the mine.

There is a ten stamp mill on this property, which is kept running night and day, hammering up the quartz and separating the gold from the dross—on this property there have been four shafts sunk, one to the depth of 80 feet, one to the xepth of 42 feet, and two 25 feet each. Mr. Stewart is now working the centre vein at a depth of twenty-five feet, in which several rich pockets have been found, sometimes about a potash kettle full.

It is said that $600 worth of gold has been taken from two waggon loads from the mine.

Mr. Stewart is also developing an iron mine near, which promises to be of great value.

THE DEAN & WILLIAMS MINE.

The above mine is situated on lot 7, 9th con. Marmora, and has been put in full blast lately by a firm from Wyandotte under the charge of Mr. Thos. McFarlane, who has the reputation of being a thoroughly competent manager.

This company have been to great expenses in fitting up the premises to mine in the most economical and thorough manner.

The ore is first run through the stamp mill, which consists of twenty stamps, ten of which were running at the time of our visit. After stamping, the ore is separated by a "Flues Fanning Machine," when the residue is washed away and the crushed ore of value is roasted and treated by a "muffle furnace," just errected, where the sulphates and arsenic are extracted and the substance remaining shipped to Wyandotte for treatment.

At this mine they are working at a depth of 100 feet in a vein from three to four feet in width and about sixty feet in length.

A new engine and hoisting works have been constructed, which are very handy for the purpose. The ore is brought up in an iron car, which holds about a ton, and dumped the whole time occupied in drawing up a car, dumping and returning a car is only a minute and a half. The engine used for hoisting ore is also used for keeping the mine free from water. At this mine there are about thirty men employed. The works at this mine are extensive.

DISASTROUS FLOOD.—A cable special from Vienna, Dec. 12th says:—"Nearly all the rivers in Transylvania have overflowed, destroying bridges and houses, interrupting communication and sweeping away farming utensils, cattle and grain. In some cases inhabitants were for days on trees and roofs."

HORRIBLE MURDERS.—A despatch from Victoria, British Columbia, says:—"A Chinawoman and man were chopped to pieces recently with an axe by another Chinaman, who set fire to the house to burn the bodies. John Usher, a Government agent, was murdered near Kamloops while with three deputies attempting to arrest three brothers named McLean, and Alex. Hare, one of the assistants of Usher, was seriously wounded. The murderers are at large, committing thefts, and threaten to burn Kamloops."

The Earl of Sefton would be to-day almost the wealthiest man in England if his ancestor had not sold, for a comparative trifle, his harbor rights, held under an ancient grant, to the town of Liverpool; and the Marquis of Donegal would to-day be thrice as rich as the richest man in Ireland had he not recklessly leased the town of Belfast on perpetual leases at nominal rents, receiving in so doing heavy "fines," or payments. About the whole town is nominally his property.

"I want to find out who is master of this house," said the man with a book under his arm to the vinegary-looking woman with a pointed nose and a very small top knot who opened the door for him. "Well, stranger," she said with arms akimbo, "you just walk around into the back-yard, and ask a little spindle-shanked deacon you'll find there fixin' up the grape-arbor, and he'll tell you if I don't boss this ranch he don't know who does. Now what do you want with me?"

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. The Grand Junction Railway.

Consideration of the Company's Petition.

PUBLIC MEETING ON THE SUBJECT.

THE REQUEST GRANTED ON CERTAIN CONDITIONS.

A public meeting for the consideration of the petition of the Grand Junction Railway Company, for the extension of time for the completion of the Railway to Peterborough to January 1st, 1881, was held in the City Hall last night.

The attendance was not large, numbering less than 200, nearly all of those in attendance, however, being representative ratepayers.

In the absence of the Mayor, Ald. Jellett took the platform and nominated the Hon. Robert Read as Chairman, which motion was unanimously agreed to, and Ald. Jellett by request acted as Secretary.

The CHAIRMAN asked Alderman Dickson to address the meeting, but that gentleman declined to open the discussion, on the ground that as a member of the Council he wished to hear the views of the ratepayers. On this the Chairman asked any opponent of the extension to speak on the subject.

Ald DICKSON thought some one of those who support the extension should first be heard.

The CHAIRMAN said he had no objection. Public discussion was what they had met for. He next suggested that Mr. John Bell should speak, but that gentleman said he came to hear.

Mr. MCARTHUR suggested that a resolution should be proposed for the extension of time, and that could be voted upon and carried or amended, or lost, as the meeting determined.

Mr. BICKFORD was also called on, but said there seemed to be no occasion to speak.

Mr. W. L. HYNES moved, seconded by Mr. A. L. SMITH, that as the Corporation has already contributed $160,000 principal and interest to the Railways, the ratepayers do not feel inclined to extend the time on any additional sum of money.

Mr. JAMES MEAGHER said it was very curious to see that so few of those present cared to express their views. Those who expected further benefits from the road should show to the audience their position before a vote was taken, otherwise they could not be in a position to give an intelligent vote.

Mr. E. B. FRALECK expressed a similar wish.

Ald. ROBERTSON spoke to the question. He said the enterprise had been unfortunate, but we had secured 46 miles of road for $125,000 principal and $36,000 interest from the Corporation. Three years ago the ratepayers gave an additional bonus of $50,000, by a majority of 237, on condition that the money should be payable when the road was finished to Peterborough. They had been unable to get a contractor on those terms, but on condition that the bonus was divided on completion to Hastings, Messrs. Bickford and McDougall and Cowan undertook the work. They had been unable to go beyond Hastings because they could not get the Peterborough County bonus and other bonuses promised. Hence they asked for a year's extension of time. The City Council, being unwilling to decide the subject, when asked, resolved to refer the matter to the ratepayers. He saw no reason why they should not now give the $25,000, as they had voted $50,000 in 1876, when the prospect was not so encouraging, and when they were sixteen miles further from Peterborough than now. He urged that we should use the advantages which nature has given us—as we are 200 miles nearer to the North west and Chicago than the route via Sarnia—as we are at the head of river navigation—and secure the construction of the road. It was also necessary to nip the Toronto and Ottawa in the bud, as it would destroy our trade in the Northern townships. That road would be built, but when he was a very old man, and by satisfying the requirements of Peterborough now, by giving them an eastern outlet, we would secure their adhesion to the Grand Junction. In answer to Mr. N. H. Peterson, Mr. Robertson said the Grand Junction brings to town now people who never dealt here before, and as to the Grand Trunk operating and controlling the Grand Junction, that was a great bugaboo, as all heavy freight would be taken by water down the river and to Oswego and other ports. The Grand Trunk is a good solvent company and he would be glad if they took hold of it.

Mr. PETERSON thought Mr. Robertson had failed to show that the Railway would be of sufficient benefit to compensate for the bonuses voted to it.

Ald. ROBERTSON moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. E. B. Fraleck, "That the City Council be instructed to grant the extension of time asked for by the Grand Junction Railway Company."

Mr. E. B. FRALECK said he had seconded the motion, desiring that the matter should be discussed. If the first By-law for $100,000 had been conditional on the payment of the money when the road was finished we would have had the road. He had voted for the $50,000 By-law in order to reap the advantage of the first sum given; but a crop of lawsuits had sprung up which had delayed the construction of the line. The present proposition seemed to him to be reasonable, as it was desirable to obtain the completion of the road to Peterborough. The contractors had only been at work for a year, and it seemed to him to be reasonable to grant the request, as the money had been fairly voted. If we assisted in completing the road, it would be more likely to remain independent than otherwise. In his opinion Belleville would lose nothing by granting the request of the Company.

Mr. JOHN BELL, Q. C., who was called upon, said that so far as the Grand Trunk were concerned, they were working the road and were willing to pay a fair compensation for its use, if they did not buy it. They would work it as efficiently as possible, which would be to the interest of all concerned. In his opinion the Grand Trunk do not damage Belleville very much, as they pay here $150,000 to $160,000 for wages and material annually. The Grand Trunk have secured a connection with Chicago, and the business likely to be done will inevitably necessitate the construction of a double line from Montreal to Toronto and perhaps west of there. The Toronto and Ottawa would be of great detriment to Belleville, but if the Grand Junction and Midland are united, we would have a junction here and a staff of large dimensions. Instead of 51 engines here, as now, we would have more than three times that number, and Belleville would become the most important Railway centre between Montreal and Stratford. That would not be of great injury to Belleville. The Grand Trunk were to-day the largest tax-payers in Belleville. (Here Mr. Bell appealed to the Collector, who said they pay about $1,700 taxes annually.) Therefore, their paying so much taxes and so much wages, he said, proved that they were not so much of a detriment after all. As a ratepayer he was strongly of opinion that the Grand Junction would benefit us largely, and he considered that nothing could be more unbusiness like than to refuse to aid the Company to extend their line to Peterborough, the portion completed being of comparatively little advantage to us. Were we to refuse to extend the time, embarrassment would result. So far as the Grand Trunk were concerned, they had plenty of employment for all their means, and could better fight the Toronto and Ottawa by doubling their track than by extending lines into the interior. Whilst anxious to get a connection with the Midland, that had its value, and they were not prepared to pay more than it was worth, and assistance was needed. By the Grand Junction and Midland, the best and shortest route to and from Chicago and the North West was secured, and it would be worked from Belleville. Therefore it was desirable to extend the time, and if we got the road for the $150,000 we would, he considered, have not made a bad bargain. All his property was in Belleville; he occupied a perfectly independent position towards the Grand Trunk, and he spoke in his capacity as a ratepayer. The Grand Trunk would do as whoever else worked the road would do, namely, carry the freight where directed. The Midland and Grand Junction would be united to a certainty, and if worked by the Grand Trunk it would worked from Belleville, whereas if operated by independent companies, the headquarters and workshops would be located at Peterborough or somewhere else, where the greatest bonus could be had, and Belleville would not reap a tithe of the benefit which it would if the line were worked by the Grand Trunk. He urged that the time be extended and that it was the interest of our people to do all that they could to assist the completion of the road.

Ald. HOLDEN repeated in effect his remarks as made in the Council last Monday night, and moved in amendment to the amendment the same resolution which he proposed in Council, namely that the whole of the $50,000 be paid when the road is completed to Peterborough, interest to be allowed on the $25,000 which was made payable by resolution of Council at Hastings, from the date of the report of Mr. Walter Shanly, the arbitrator under the By-law, certifying that the line had been completed to Hastings, as required by the By-law. This he proposed as a compromise which he believed it would be in the interest of both parties to accept. If the time were extended on this condition, he declared himself certain that it would be accepted.

Mr. THOS. WILLS, said he was one of those who opposed the first By-law, the second By-law and the granting of Pinnacle Street, but as the work is now a detriment but can be made advantageous by finishing it to Peterborough, he wished to see it carried out to its completion. The most satisfactory thing in connection with the matter was that the road was likely to pass into the hands of the Grand Trunk, which is a great and solvent corporation and will work it effectually. In his opinion if we did not make Belleville the junction and headquarters of the united Midland, Grand Junction and Belleville and North Hastings, the chances were that when the Grand Trunk doubled its track, that company would remove its workshops to Kingston, as longer runs can be made on a double track than on a single line. Believing it to the interests of the people to carry out Mr. Holden's proposition, he gave it his hearty support.

Mr. W. A. OSTROM asked Ald. Holden did he consider the City liable for the $25,000 payable at Hastings, and if he did not think the road would be built, irrespective of the city's bonus

Mr. HYNES withdrew the original motion, and Ald. Holden moved his amendment as the original motion.

Ald. ROBERSTON's amendment was put and was voted for by the mover alone. The original motion was carried.

The meeting then broke up.

ATTACKING A CHURCH.

ELOPEMENT.

NORWICH, Ct., Dec. 13.—While Father Quinn, a former priest, was speaking on Catholicism in the Methodist church last night, stones were thrown through the windows, one girl was cut about the face, but the meeting was not broken up.

HARTFORD, Ct., Dec. 13.—The elopement of Miss Kate Seymour Beckwith, daughter of a wealthy citizen, with W. G. Strickland, of St. Paul, Minn., occurred yesterday. Strickland's attention a few years ago, when he was a clerk here, was objected to by the young lady's parents, but she is now of age. Meanwhile Strickland has become properous.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 13.—Wm. D. Buck, a Virginian high in social connections, was found dead yesterday in a house of ill-repute kept by a negress. Cause, intemperance. He served in the Confederate army and was related to President Madison.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—It is stated that a bold attempt was discovered yesterday to liberate Johnny Hope, John Dobbs, Roundsman Nugent, Janitor Shevlin, and watchman Kelly, the alleged Manhattan Bank robbers from the tombs. Several prison officials are said to have been bribed. The keeper, John Morton, on Tuesday night was seen pass a letter to one of the prisoners. Thursday night a detective concealed himself in the prisoner's cell, and the same keeper signalled at the cell door and passed a large package to the prisoner. Morton was suspended and arrested yesterday.

A reduction of 75 cents per ton on coal is expected, and in view of the heavy stocks accumulating, a concession of 50 cts. additional will probably be offered wholesale dealers. All coal presidents acknowledge that prices are too high, and that some reduction will have to be made, even with a partial suspension in mining.

BROOKLYN, Dec. 13.—A deficiency of $75,000 in the accounts of the Board of Education this year. The controller has been requested to pay over that amount out of the appropriation for next year.

City and Vicinity

POLICE.—Two tramps were the sole tenants of the cells last night.

CITY COUNCIL.—A regular meeting of Council will be held on Monday night.

PERSONAL.—Col. McPherson is in the city to attend the wrestling match.

NO BOXING.—There will be no boxing in connection with the wrestling match.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—This body will hold an adjourned meeting on Tuesday night.

BUTCHERS' STALLS.—The sale of stalls in the butcher market will take place at 2 p. m. on Monday.

SKATING.—Numbers of boys were to-day enjoying this winter sport in sheltered places on the river and along the shores of the bay.

CHEAP FARES.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company offer cheap fares for the holidays, as to which the advertisement in another column contains particulars.

MASONIC CONVERSAZIONE.—The Masonic fraternity of this city will on the 30th inst. celebrate St. John's day by a conversazione in the Masonic buildings, commencing at 8 p. m.

ELECTION TRIAL.—The trial of the petition against the return of Alexander Robertson, Esq., as member in the Ontario Legislature for West Hastings, will be resumed on Tuesday.

THE ORPHAN'S FRIEND. — The Rev. George Muller, founder of the Bristol Orphanage, will deliver addresses in the Bridge Street Methodist Church on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings next.

THE BAY.—Although the bay was frozen completely across last night, the ferry steamers were able to force their way through the thin ice. The schooner Ontario, which was on her way up from Mill Point, is frozen in at the Narrows.

LOCAL CHANCERY CASE.—In the Court of Chancery, Toronto, on the 11th:—"Darling v. Price.—Judgment. A suit by an official assignee to set aside a conveyance by an insolvent to his wife as fraudulent. Deceased vacated and bill dismissed with costs without prejudice to plaintiff filing a new bill on payment of costs."

THE WRESTLING MATCH.—On the fourth page of to-day's paper will be found the articles of agreement which are to govern the wrestling match between Messrs. Ross and Daly in the Opera House to-night for the champion belt and medal. Mr. R. M. Roy has been chosen Referee, and the Mayor will present the belt to the winner. Both men are in fine condition, and as their powers are considered to be very nearly equal, a struggle of more than ordinary interest is expected.

Rev. Mr. Armstrong, of Ottawa, will preach (D. V.) in John Street Presbyterian church to-morrow.

ALBERT COLLEGE. — The Michaelmas term of Albert College will close on Wednesday evening next with the vocal exhibition.

SPECIAL TRAIN.—The Oddfellows of this city will proceed to Madoc to-morrow with their band, to attend the funeral of a deceased brother in that village. The train will leave here at 8.30 a. m.

PARLOR CONCERT.—The parlor concert at Mrs. Goetzel's residence last night, in aid of the funds of the Baptist Church, secured but a small attendance. The programme was a choice one and the various numbers were ably rendered.

SPRINT RACING.—The match against time made by Captain Daly with Mr. J. S. Barnes, that the latter could not cover 100 yards within 10 seconds for $50, came off on the Bay Side Track this afternoon and was won by the latter; time 9¾ sec.

SHIPMENTS FROM REDNERVILLE.—The shipments from the village of Redneville for the summer season of 1879 were as follows:—24 tubs of butter, 2,322 boxes cheese, 48,150 doz. eggs, 23 bbls. dried apples, 1,602 bbls. of apples, 50 crates plums, 16 bbls. old iron, 15 bbls. pears, 3 horse rakes, 50 cang p oughs, 2 buggies, 9,000 bush. rye, 5,200 bush. barley.

THE FISH TRADE.—A large and constantly increasing trade is being done in fish in this city. A considerable part of the bay catch passes through the hands of Mr. H. H. Leavens, who ships to prominent dealers in Montreal, Toronto, Buffalo, Cape Vincent, and Albany, N. Y. His shipments comprise pickerel, bass and other first-class fish taken in this district and go to make up a growing and lucrative trade.

GOLD IN CAMDEN.—The Kingston News says:—"Mr. Mills, mineral agent, showed us to-day a specimen of quartz, taken off Lot 13, 7th concession, Camden, which appears impregnated with gold. Several specimens of quartz off the same property have been assayed, and yielded from $16 to $20 per ton. It is to be hoped that some parties possessing experience and the necessary capital will get hold of the property and make a fortune out of it."

KNIGHTS OF MACCABEES. — Knights of Maccabees, Prince Albert Tent No. 117 of this city. The election of officers took place last night. The following officers were elected:—Rev. Dr. Clarke, Ex. Sir Knight General Commander; G Flower, Sir Knight General Commander; Dr. Eakins, Sir Knight Deputy Commander; Thos. Linklater, Sir Knight Finance Keeper, and a number of other officers. The above tent was instituted in August, and is well under way with a membership of about forty with fine prospects of being one of the largest in Canada or the United States. The tent now numbers 175 per report. Institution incorporated August 8th, 1878.

MINING NEWS. — Mr. W. K. Muir, General Manager of the Canada Southern Railway, and two gentlemen representing the Wyandotte, (Michigan) mining company visited Madoc and Marmora yesterday and, we are informed, purchased the Dean and Williams gold mine and have re-christened it the "Wyandotte" mine. The iron ore trade also continues to "hum," there being yesterday in Madoc township capitalists representing between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, prospecting. These gentlemen were to-day joined by a number of others, who arrived from the west on the noon express. Evidently there is a bright prospect in store for North Hastings, now that the richness of its mineral resources is becoming known.

HYMENEAL FESTIVITIES.—The occasion of the wedding of Miss Ida Sills, the adopted daughter of Mr. John R. Sills, of Huntingdon, and Mr. Wm. Hawkins, of the same township, which took place at Mr. Sills' residence on the 10th inst., was one of general rejoicing in the neighborhood. The guests, who numbered about one hundred and fifty, from country and town, enjoyed themselves thoroughly, and the esteem in which the bride is held was evidenced by the presentation to her of presents aggregating in value upwards of $150. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Mr. Savage, Methodist Minister. On the following day the festivities were renewed at the residence of the bridegroom's father, and everything passed off most agreeably.

Facts that We Know.

If you are suffering with a severe cough, cold, asthma, bronchitis, consumption, loss of voice, tickling in the throat, or any affection of throat or lungs, we know that DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY will give you immediate relief. We know of hundreds of cases it has completely cured, and that where all other medicines had failed. No other remedy can show one half as many permanent cures. Now to give you satisfactory proof that DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY will cure you of Asthma, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, Consumption, severe Coughs and Colds, Hoarseness, or any Throat or Lung disease, if you will call at James Clarke & Co's drug store and we will give you a trial bottle free of cost or a regular size bottle for $1.00.

WHAT IS THE MATTER!—Your hair looks dry and dead, it breaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away these things, go buy a bottle of Searle's which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better at once.

SUMMER HEAT.—This is the season for Bowel Complaints. Green apples and cucumbers produce them, and Perry Davis' PAIN KILLER cures them. To the troubled stomach it carries like a balm, and says "peace, be still," and the wind is assuaged, and the trouble ceases. Every druggist in the land keeps the PAIN KILLER, and no other should be without it in his family.

Speaking of hair Pliny tells us that the heart of Aristomenes, the Messenian, was hairy, and the same story is told of Hormegenes, the rhetorician, and Leonidas, king of Sparta.

Annual Supper and Reunion.

Thirty employees of Walker & Co., founders and agricultural implement manufacturers, attended the annual reunion and soiree d'oubliable which took place last evening at eight o'clock, at J. & A. Wallace's restaurant. All enjoyed themselves in feasting over the succulent oysters, and listening to the flow of soul which made itself manifest on the occasion.

The chair was occupied by Mr. O. C. Greenleaf, and the vice chair by Mr. W. Gibberson. The vari us seats around the long tables were filled by the employees of the firm, four of the members of which, Messrs. Walker, Macoun, Keith and Van Allan, were present. The caterers, Messrs. Wallace, presented an excellent spread, which was heartily enjoyed; all present appearing to be well pleased with the bill of fare provided for the occasion.

The wants of the inner man having received due attention, the Chairman called the assemblage to order and read an address in which he invited his fellow workmen to choose "perseverance" as their motto. There was little to be expected if they waited for luck: it had not assisted the firm in their business, as their success was due to the perseverance which characterized their mode of business. Attention sometimes won the day and genius plods along, but perseverance by outwalking them passes on the way and achieves success. There is a proper qualification for every calling in life, and he who does not properly prepare himself must lag in the race of life. The example of the firm taught the employees a lesson; all should press onward, for it was a trying ordeal to fight the battle of life with a sore heart. All professions have their places; as workmen we should have ours and claim a share of respect in the calling in which we are engaged. In conclusion he asked the workmen to forge a link together and make themselves as comfortable as they could, for the hereafter we know not of whilst of the present we do.

The Chairman gave the "Queen," which was duly honored by singing "God Save the Queen."

Then followed the usual loyal and patriotic toasts' which received a fitting reception.

"The firm" was given next, the employees favoring their employers with "For they are jolly Good Fellows."

Mr. Walker regretted his inability to make a speech, and asked the other members of the firm to respond.

Mr. Macoun remarked that the firm was organized fifteen years ago, and consisted of five members. It remained so yet. The best of good feeling had always prevailed amongst them, and though their beginning was small, they had now achieved a fair measure of success.

Mr. Keith spoke of the good feeling which existed among the partners, and trusted they would continue to yet enjoy many happy days together.

Mr. Vanallen spoke in a similar strain

In behalf of "the employees" Mr. Feeney made a vigorous speech, which was well received. He spoke of the kindness that was always shown by the firm to the men and the good feeling that existed. It had enabled the firm to achieve prosperity and he trusted it would always favor them. He regretted that the Daily Ontario had seen fit to make representations regarding this firm which had not the slightest foundation for now all hands were working on full time and this had not occurred during the past four winters. He was pleased with the good feeling shown and trusted that success would still further be achieved by this firm.

A number of volunteer toasts interspersed with songs, readings and recitations by Messrs. Wonsley, Good, Feeney, Fraser and Sargent, were given and replied to, after which the company separated well pleased with their evening's enjoyment.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The Times says that the circumstances of the attempt upon the life of the Viceroy of India seems to divest the deed of any political significance.

According to telegrams from St. Petersburg, Gortschakoff has presented the Czar with the programme of his future policy. Its basis is peace. Friendly relations with Austaria, Hungary and Germany are recognized as indispensible. The programme is said to have met the approval of the Czar.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The case of Killen was yesterday taken from Connaught Rea's hands and his bail arranged by a Dublin solicitor.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—A despatch from Cabul on Friday evening says that Macpherson at tacked the enemy on the ridge above Salla His. ear at noon that day, and captured the lower part of the ridge. Baker had arrived from Maidan; had some sharp fighting on Wednesday and Thursday. The crest of the hill is to be stormed on Saturday. Cabul quiet.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—A Dublin correspondent says the trials of Davitt, Daley and Killen, have been abandoned. Davitt and Daley are practically at large without bail. Placards are posted throughout the County of Kerry. It is believed at the instance of O'Donogh, who has been heretofore opposed to the Nationalists, calling for a monster meeting at Killarney on the 16th inst. The language of the placards is violent, but advises agitation withinthe law.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The bank statement of loans shows an increase of $2,949,00; specie shows a decrease of $701,600; legal tenders show a decrease of $1,209,300; deposits show an increase of $259,100; circulation shows an increase of $208,700; reserve shows a decrease of $2,103,175.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 13.—The city appears in holiday attire. The dingy colors peculiar to the buildings of a smoky city are hidden by graceful garlands, evergreens, flags, and banners. Grant arrived shortly after nine. A committee from the State Legislature and citizens' committee met the train at Mansfield and welcomed the General to the State.

PITTSTON, Pa., Dec. 13.—Zibar Mayor a well-known farmer of Luzerne Co., was found crushed to death under a large tree which had fallen upon him yesterday.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 13. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk to westerly southerly winds, partly cloudy, warmer weather.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Indications: For lower lakes, warmer, partly cloudy.

Whooping Cough is successfully treated by separating the patients beyond hearing distance of each other, and by the employment of Fellows' Hypophosphites. Whooping Cough is a nervous disease of so sympathetic a nature, that a paroxysma may be produced in one susceptable by simply hearing the cough of another person. The above named treatment has been found singularly effective.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

MY DEAR SIR,

Last evening I had the very great pleasure of attending a concert given by Mrs. Goetzel at her residence for the benefit of the mission of the Baptist Church.

A most delightful entertainment was presented.

Knowing how cheerfully Mrs. Goetzel has always given her valuable services at socials and charitable concerts at a great lap of time and very considerable inconvenience to herself, I felt that she was quite right in expressing her keen disappointment that those who have so largely benefited by her kindness did not respond to her invitation to attend her concert, given as it was in aid of church purposes. People who are so willing to make demands upon the time and kindness of others, particularly professionals, ought at least to show their sense of favors rendered by a generous response. F.

EMMELINE.

CHAPTER XIII.

LORD AVENLEE "DECLARES HIS LOVE."—THE STRANGER.

Six years have fled since Emmeline was installed in her new home, or rather six years and six months, for it was winter when she was placed in Cawderwood. And now it is midsummer, and we behold the forest wearing a mantle of loveliest green. The ground is no longer bare, but is carpeted with moss, dotted with wild flowers of every hue, groups of beautiful ferns, and all the sweets and beauties of a little frequented forest. The river was shallow and clear, but not too shallow for a boat to be rowed about by two young gentlemen, evidently of superior station. One of them was evidently watching the gate which led from the haugh to a road through the wood.

"I am afraid this wood sylph of yours is not going to favor us with her presence," said his companion. "Hist, hark! there is singing—let us listen." The words were simple enough, and had the good luck of being set to a beautiful air. The singing was endowed with a clear, full toned voice, which rang through the forest; and as the echoes of the song were dying away the thrilling notes of a thousand feathered songsters took their place.

"That's her," said one who had been watching the gate, "but not where I expected to find her. Let us row farther down."

The fair singer was none other than our Emmeline, grown to womanhood. She was taller than when we left her, but slight in figure. Her face had still the same girlish sweetness. Her companion was Annabell. They were dressed alike in blue dresses, tucked over a black and white skirt. Both wore their hair in ringlets. A small wreath of white heath adorned Annabell's, while Emmeline wore a beautiful water lily on the one side of her regal head. They were gathering flowers, laughing at some new tanglement in the briar bushes, now startling some wood fowls, which screamed and flapped their wings fiercely as they soared upwards.

"You must sing me that song again," said Annabell, "I wish to learn it."

Emmeline accordingly sang the following, which we will name "The Forest Maiden's Song":—

"My home is a lowly cot,
In a pretty forest glade—
Ye who repine at your lot,
May envy the forest maid.

No wealth or jewels have I,
But a heart that's lithe and gay;
I watch the lark soar high,
And join in its tra la lay.

I cull the pretty flowers
That deck my forest home
And 'mong the woody bowers,
From morn till night I roam.

Oh, who so happy as I,
From care and sorrow I'm free;
I pe'er was known to sigh—
I'm gay as the sportive bee.

They say the cup of sorrow
I'm sure to sup some day;
I'll hope for joy to morrow,
And be happy while I may.

"Bravo, Bravo! It's not every day one hears such singing," said the gentleman who had so long watched the gate, and who was none other than Lord Avenlee, who had brought a stranger with him to see his inamorata. When the young girls saw them, they turned and fled.

"Follow, Ormado, we will overtake them," said Lord Avenlee. But that gentleman was so delighted with the appearance of the two wood nymphs—clad as they were with flowers—that he did not hear his friend. On the girls sped like wild deer. Emmeline taking the lead, her friend being close behind her. Annabell's dress caught in a bramble bush, and she could not extricate herself. Young Avenlee, pointing to her said to his friend—"Assist her, while he dashed after Emmeline, calling on her by name. But she heeded not. At length the stile leading to the haugh was reached, and foiled in her attempt to cross it—for he was close behind her—she turned fiercely to Lord Avenlee, saying—"This is cowardly to come so suddenly near to unprotected girls. You promised to give up seeking me, and now you come on us unawares. You are cruel, very cruel,' and she turned her back upon him and looked to the river—a vexed look on her fair face.

"I did not promise to avoid seeing you, Emmeline; I never can and never will do that, and this change of late in your conduct must be caused by some tale or other against me."

"It is caused by this simple circumstance—that you are nobly born, while I know not who or what I am. All I know is, that I am the object of the benevolence of a gentleman to whom I owe all, and having told him of your attention, he was going to remove me to his house in Glasgow, but the Ross's got him persuaded to allow me to stay this summer, and after that my home will be in the city, with few of the beauties of nature which surround my present home."

"Only consent to be my wife, Emmeline, and in a few years I will be my own master, and then before the world you will be proclaimed 'Lady Avenlee,' which you are more fit to be than many high-born ladies with sounding titles."

"No, oh no, do not tempt me, knowing as you do the hurt you will do to your father's name. Oh, were I in your place, with parents to love and honor, their wish would be my law. Do not ask me to be your wife. Forget that there is such a person, and by doing this I will look upon you as an honorable man. Allow me to pass to Annabell."

Lord Avenlee stepped to one side, his proud spirit chafed the rebuke of the beautiful girl he loved so devotedly, and would have risked much to call her his own.

Emmeline came to Annabell, as she managed to extricate herself, for she refused the stranger's assistance in so peremptory a manner that, unaccustomed as he was to be so spoken to in that way he looked rather foolish as Emmeline came up with a nervous air and took the trembling hands of Annabell in her own, and asked if they would go home. Annabell assented, and they took a scarcely perceptible path through the wood to the house. They marveled much who the stranger was. At length Annabel asked Emmeline if Lord Avenlee and she had been quarrelling again."

"We never quarrelled, but I am too old now to be trifled with, or to be made a fool of, though he be a great man and I a dependant on the bounty of one who has not even the tie of blood to give me a claim on him. Oh, Annabell, you are indeed happy to have this quiet home you can call your own."

"And its yours too, Emmeline. See how happy we were until we were disturbed by those fellows—for I will not call them gentlemen—to come near us without giving warning of their presence."

They had now reached the house, where we will leave them, and return to the stranger, who walked up to Avenlee.

"So, my friend," said he, "this is a fool's errand you have brought me on. But what ails you, you are as pale as death."

Lord Avenlee asked to be left to himself a little, and with folded arms and knit brow he passed up and down.

"This beats my patience," said his friend. "What is gone wrong to ruffle your usual good temper."

"All that is worth living for is slipping from my fingers."

"In the shape of what—surely not money and land!"

"No, but a lovely, honorable girl whom I love—oh, so strongly, though she is cold and unconscious. She used to meet me with smiles, and seemed pleased to see me, but now she spurns my very touch."

"And all this about a girl so far beneath you in station, while the handsome Lady Emmeline Chestil is neglected."

"I tell you I detest her very name, and to be tied to her for life would break both heart and spirit."

"And what will your father say. Think of your infatuation for a girl belonging to his servant."

"You lie, Ormado. She is pure in blood as ourselves, but neglected by heartless parents, who loved their position better than their child."

"Had you been any other than my friend," said Ormado, "you would have lain there (and he pointed to the ground) instead of standing as you do now. Retract your words Avenlee."

"Forgive me, I know not what I say or do; but, there, I will tell you all I know of Emmeline, as she told me herself, and be guided by your counsel as to my future conduct." So they took their seat on the mossy-covered stump of a tree, and he told all we already know of Emmeline, even to the locket and ring, which she was to receive from her generous friend, Mr. Steven, on her seventeenth birthday.

"Well," said Ormado, "it is strange, but do as she desires, and all may yet be well."

"I will be guided by you, but being the younger son, my father won't feel so much. If I make what he calls a mesalliance. He has planned a match for me with Earl Chestil's daughter."

"And a bright girl she is; I wish she was my luck," said the gay Ormado, and he began to whistle an operatic air.

They had now regained the boat, and there we will leave them.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Wrestling Match.

The following are the rules which govern the wrestling match between Messrs. Daly and Ross:—

RULES GOVERNING THE CHAMPIONSHIP BELT.

Entered into this day of December, 1879, by the Cook Manufacturing Company, of New York City, donors of the said Belt.

1st. Said Belt shall be known as the Cook Manufacturing Company's Championship Belt of 83 Nassau St., New York City, and shall be emblematic of the heavy weight championship of the United States and British Provinces.

2nd. The value of said Belt is five hundred dollars ($500), which sum the winner will have to deposit with the said Company, or find sureties to that amount until the Belt becomes his own property.

3rd. The Belt must be held for three years against all comers, before it is finally won and becomes the personal property of the holder.

4th. To prevent any improper use being made of said Belt, the following Athletes, who are selected by the best sporting authorities, will only be eligible to contest for said Belt, namely:—Prof. Duncan C. Ross, Toronto, Canada. Prof. William Miller, Melbourne, Australia. Cpt. James C. Daly, Cork, Ireland. Col. J. H. McLaughlin, Detroit, Michigan. Fhebaud Bauer, of France. Donald Dinnie, Stonehaven, Scotland. Thomas Lynch, New York City. James Fleming, Glenlair Athol, Scotland.

5th. The proceeds or admission of any contest said Belt is contested for shall be divided in the following manner:—Two-thirds (⅔) after expenses shall be given to the winner, and (⅓) one-third to the loser; subject, however, that the championship shall be contested for; and should at any time any improper use be made of said Belt, the said Company reserve to themselves the right to withdraw the same from the party using it for gambling purposes, and have his name struck off the list of competitors; and he will not be allowed to compete in any future contests.

The following feats shall form the contest, and be governed by the existing rules, a copy of which shall accompany this document. Wrestling Five Falls, best Three the Winner.

FIRST FALL—"Catch as Catch can." Both contestants to be attired in full athletic costume, finger nails to be cut short; any attempt to grasp the body will be accorded a foul; the contestants can use their feet for the purpose of tripping, but any attempt to kick will be recorded a foul; both shoulders and one hip must touch the carpet at one time to constitute a fall.

SECOND FALL—"Graeco Roman." No grip to be taken below the waist except at the wrist and hands; both shoulders to touch the carpet at one time to constitute a fall. No tripping with the feet allowed. The referee can allow a fall on a foul after the first caution; should other contestant gain a fall or any advantage by fouling, the same shall not count.

THIRD FALL—"Back Hold," Cumberland style. Both contestants must toe a line, and no attempt to throw must be made until the referee says Go! Any part of the body other than the feet touching the carpet will be a fall; either contestant breaking his hold will be awarded a fall against the contestant so breaking his hold.

FOURTH FALL AND FIFTH FALL—Scotch Style. Both contestants must get their hold before any attempt is made to throw, in the following manner: both hands be clasped, one arm over the right shoulder and one under the left; the contestant winning the fall must hold his opponent on his back for not less than thirty seconds at one time without a break.

Four inches of sawdust, covered with carpet, shall be provided for the stage, so as neither contestant can be injured by a fall. The contest to be finished in three hours, and the contestant having the most falls to his credit to be declared the Champion, and winner of the match.

Bilious Complaints

Arise from a morbid or unhealthy condition of the liver. This unhealthy action goes on slowly two, three, or may be four weeks, the morbid deposit gradually increasing and accumulating until the crisis arrives, the overcharged liver, which contains no longer, and a discharge of vicious bile takes place into the stomach, which produces a sickness, attended with headache and more or less unpleasant symptoms. The liver thus becomes purged of its unhealthy matter, the system suffers for a few days, then finally reacts, recovers, an I goes on for another period. Hence the importance of using DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which are composed entirely of medicines calculated to produce this proper discharge, and thus save the unpleasant weeks illness which must else be borne. It is the most certain way to obtain relief. Beginning always in the cases of those who are constitutionally bilious, on the appearance of the first symptoms of an attack, the attacks will be lighter every time, until they succeed only in breaking in on that morbid condition which gives rise to the disease.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION.

WE invite the attention of every person wanting to purchase Dry Goods to the following "FACTS, which we think will be of service to them in aiding them to decide where to make their purchases:

1st. Our Stock is the Largest in the City.

2nd. Our British Goods are Imported direct, and are all selected in that market by a member of the firm.

3rd. We claim to have the Choicest and most attractive Stock of Dry Goods between Toronto and Montreal.

4th. We challenge a comparison of the qualities and prices of our goods with those of any other Dry Goods House in the country, believing "A comparison" to be the most convincing argument that could be used in our favor.

REMEMBER, WE HAVE THE

Most Convenient and Best Lighted Shop in the City,

And our Stock is as reliable and cheap as any Retail Stock in the Dominion.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are given to those who become paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Fee.	Death of Member
From 18 to 20 yrs.	$4.40	$2.20	$0.38
" 21 to 25 "	5.00	2.80	41

The Sun for 1880.

THE Sun will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be conducted with the purpose, written in the English language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is, the law controling its daily make-up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction if what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save which may be had by any purchaser for two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores mincompoops of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration intrenched at Washington. The Sun did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to those momentous questions. The Sun will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily SUN, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS

have received the greatest number of unquestionably reliable endorsements that any external remedy ever received from physicians, druggists, the press and the public. All praise them as a great improvement on the ordinary porous plasters and all other external remedies. For LAME AND WEAK BACK, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO, RHEUMATISM, KIDNEY DISEASE, NEGLECTED COUGHS, AND ALL LOCAL ACHES AND PAINS, they are the best known remedy. Ask any one who has used them, or any good physician, and he will confirm the above statements.

Building Operations.

Manifestations of Progressiveness.

THIS SEASON'S RECORD.

Notwithstanding the monetary depression which made itself so apparent for several years past, the hope if good times coming again and the favorable prospects for business which have exhibited themselves in so many various ways of late, and the general encouraging tendencies of progress that have made themselves apparent, many persons in this city have this year embarked in building enterprises and have erected premises which in style and character are not all inferior to the principal fine residences and business places of other cities.

The amount expended on new structures will compare very favorably with that of last year and probably exceed it, whilst the character of the erections will compare with the best in the city.

THE NEW ROBERTSON BLOCK.

This structure forms the principal feature of all erections on the west side of Front Street, being larger, more nicely adapted for business occupation and more handsomely gotten up, both as regards interior and exterior appointments, than any other on the same side of the street. In fact its appearance makes it a sister building to the one on the opposite side of the street, erected by our worthy Mayor last year. Its clean, neat looking front, its height, finish and massiveness make it the feature of its locality, and give ample evidence of the enterprise, push and go-ahead-ativeness of its owner. A collection of frame buildings stood on the site of the present erection until March last. They were inferior looking for such a business place, they were old and well marked by the hand of time, signs of decay showed themselves in and about their jointures and eaves, and though they had well withstood the ravages of the fire fiend having on many occasions been set fire to by accidental or unknown means, it was at last determined by their owner to replace them with something more substantial and permanent. They were torn down and the work of building the present block inaugurated in the month above noted.

The size of the main building is 105 ft. front by 90 in depth, with three additions extending 68 feet in the rear, and three of the stores in the block extend that distance. The building is three stories high, and is covered with a mansard roof. The style, fittings and adornments of the interior are in accordance with the suggestions of Mr. J. D. Evans, of Evans & Bolger, architects. The ceilings on the first floor—differing from the greater number of business places on the street—are 15 feet high, and are corniced and supplied with attractive centre-pieces, from which depend chandeliers of neat design.

The store in the southern portion of the building is intended for the use of Messrs. Dickens & Sons. The front portion of this, which is 50 feet long, will be utilized as a confectionery establishment; in the rear of that and extending 40 feet, the restaurant will be located, and behind that are the premises for a bakery and bake ovens. This store will be frescoed and ornamented, and finished off in a manner second to none in the city.

One door to the north is the establishment occupied by Barber, Brignall & Co. as a dry goods, millinery and mantle store. This department in dimensions is the largest of its class between Toronto and Montreal, and being well lighted is a decided acquisition to the trade and the business houses of the city as well. The first apartment attains a depth of ninety feet, and from thence by an easy flight of stairs the ascent is made to the apartment occupied for the manufacture of mantles and millinery, which is 68 feet long. Underneath the main portion of the front is a commodious cellar, in which is located a large furnace, which heats the store above. Behind this and underneath the millinery apartment is a large floored space, supplied with shelves and intended for the display of oil cloths, mattings and carpets. In the centre of the front store is a large and neatly arranged office, which is surrounded with a brass wire screen. On the north side of the door two vaults are located, one of which is used for storing the papers and accounts of the firm and the other for the safety of silks. This class of goods is shown on a car which, on the opening of the store, is run to its place by means of a stationary car wheels, which run over a permanent track, and at the close of business hours is pushed back into the vault. This receptacle, which is of iron, cost alone $150.

F. H. Ross & Co. will occupy the next store to the north. It is 90 feet deep with a frontage of 68 feet. In the rear is an elevator which will be used for the purpose of hoisting crates, &c. The cellar in this building, like that in the next, is floored and otherwise fitted up for the reception of goods.

Price & Co., hardware merchants, will also occupy one of the stores—the smaller one of the quartette, which is, however, 90 feet long. It is fitted up expressly for this firm, and will be supplied with all the necessary appointments requisite for their business.

The fronts of the stores are supplied with plate glass windows, and the pillars supporting the front are embellished with the neat handiwork of the carpenter and the glowing colors of the painter.

On the second flight, which is reached by the ascent of a spacious hall entrance and wide stairway, is a collection of large ordinary and convenient rooms, all of which are, like those of the first and third flats, supplied with handsome cornices and neatly designed centre pieces. The Mechanics' Institute and Library Association occupy the front rooms on this floor, one of which is used as a chess and card room, another as the library, another as the reading room, whilst the fourth is now occupied by the Secretary. The same Association also use a large room above, which has a ceiling of 25 feet in height and is devoted to gymnasium purposes and health exercises.

M. D. Ward will tenant an apartment on the second floor: Evans & Bolger have locat-edtheir offices there. J. Cooper has already opened a tailoring shop there, and the Workingmen's Temperance Association have removed to the hall in the third flat, which is 22 x 57 feet, with a ceiling 18 feet high.

The architects were Messrs. Evans & Bolger; John Fahey had the stone laying contract, the Johnston Bros. the brick work, Northcott & Alford the carpentering, Frank Dolan the plastering, Wm. Wensley the painting, W. & J. Taylor, of Toronto, supplied the vaults, of which there are a number. The cost was $25,000.

TICKELL'S FURNITURE FACTORY.

This place of business is located on the corner of Great St. James and Pinnacle Streets, and was erected by Mr. Alex'r Brown, the owner, for the present lessee. It is a substantial structure, and admirably adapted for the purposes intended. The western and northern sides are of brick, and the southern and eastern stone. The building is three stories high, with a cellar running the entire extent of the building, and is 75 by 35. In addition there is a kiln 20 x 15 feet, which is supplied with a boiler. In the rear is a large shed built of wood, 18 x 26 ft. The business office is located near the Pinnacle Street entrance; and the remainder of the building is devoted to the manufacture of furniture and chair making. The contractor for the mason work was Peter Carey; the carpenter work was done by Francis McKay. Cost, $4,500.

S. S. LAZIER'S HOUSE.

Prominent stands the residence of Mr. S. S. Lazier, as one of the finest dwellings put up this season. The location (the south-west corner of John and Hotel Streets) is a beautiful one, whilst there is sufficiency of land to show off the house to advantage. The building is of brick, two stories and a mansared high, 56 x 56 feet, with an addition in the rear of 42 x 16. The cellar runs underneath the entire house. It has double bay windows and a tower which rises above the main building. The main entrance is on Hotel Street and is spacious and showy. Within the outer doors is a vestibule 11 x 4½ feet. Then follows the hall, which is 11 x 28 feet. The height of the ceilings on this floor is 11 feet 4 inches in the clear. The first room on the right of the hall is the drawing room, which is 21 x 24 feet. On the left is the sitting room, which is 16 feet square, dependent of a portion of the tower. In rear of this is the library, 12 x 16 feet and a dining room 15 x 24 feet. A hall from the drawing room connects with a hall running to the kitchen verandah. The rooms are all cornieed and supplied with handsome centre pieces and panelled ceilings and will be lighted by gas and heated with hot water. Leading from the library to the dining room is a conservatory 11x24 feet. The kitchen is 16 feet square, with a scullery 6x11 feet, and a wood house 8x16 feet. Over the kitchen are two rooms to be used by the servants, a storeroom and closets. A staircase 5 feet 6 inches wide leads to the second floor. The rail is of the best black walnut and is highly finished. The ceilings on this story are 11½ feet high; the landing is eleven feet wide and runs to the front of the building. On the west side of the hall is a bed room 24x21, which is lighted by six windows. In rear of this is another bedroom 16x12 feet with a clothes closet. A sliding door connects these two rooms, adjacent to which is an arched niche which will be supplied with a wash stand on either side. On the east side of the hall is a bedroom 16 feet square and running into the tower. To this a dressing room is attached. Over the dining room are a store room and bath room, the fittings of which are of a superior character. On the top floor are four large rooms, block and the business houses of the city as block and the business houses of the city as well. Bilious Complaints

Arise from a morbid or unhealthy condition of the liver. This unhealthy action goes on slowly two, three, or may be four weeks, the morbid deposits gradually increasing and accumulating until the crisis arrives, the overcharged liver can contain it no longer, and a discharge of vicious bile takes place into the stomach, which produces a sickness, attended with headache and more or less unpleasant symptoms. The liver thus becomes purged of its unhealthy matter, the system suffers for a few days, then finally reacts, recovers, and goes on for another period. Hence the importance of using the best means to assist NATURE'S GREAT CURATIVE AGENT, the Liver. Ayer's Cathartic Pills, which are composed entirely of medicines calculated to produce this proper discharge, and thus save the unpleasant week's illness which must else be borne. It is the most certain way to obtain relief. Beginning always, in the cases of those who are constitutionally bilious, on the appearance of the first symptoms of an attack, the attacks will be lighter every time, until they succeed finally in breaking up that morbid condition which gives rise to the disease.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 15.

FROM MADOC.

THE GOLD INTEREST.

THE CRAIG MINE.

About five miles from the Village of Bannockburn is situated the Craig mine, which is being worked by Messrs. Vankleek, Duff and Armstrong. Time did not permit of a personal visit to this mine, but we were informed that a shaft is sunk to a depth of twenty-five feet in a rich vein of quartz.

Mr. Brown is pushing forward his crusher in the vicinity of the mine, to which the ore will be drawn and crushed.

THE GATLING MINE.

This mine, which is well known by reputation in Belleville, is situated on lot 9, 8th con. Marmora, a couple of miles from Dean and Williams' mine.

A large amount of money has been expended in developing this property, but for some time work was suspended for lack of sufficient capital to complete the work already begun.

On the east vein there has been sunk four shafts, one to the depth of 88 feet, one 54, one 24, and one 17 feet.

On the centre vein there has been sunk two shafts, one 24 feet and one 20 feet in depth, and on the western vein two shafts, one to the depth of 50 feet and one 45 feet.

Lately sufficient new capital has been secured to complete the works, and the work of completing the crusher was being vigorously pushed forward at the time of our visit. At the mine we found General Tuttle, the Managing Director, and Mr. H. T. Strickland, Vice-President of the Company, also Capt. John O'Neil, the general superintendent, and Mr. John Taylor, builder, who has had large experience in the construction of crushers both in Virginia City and in this county. The main building for the crusher in which the machinery is being placed is 40x98 feet and stands upon a solid stone foundation. Upon one side is a large low building where is situated the drying pan and roasting furnace, which is built of brick 34x12 feet. On the other side of the main building is the engine room, where a seventy-four, four inch flue boiler is already in place, and two 35 H.P. engines are in position. Every thing about the premises is being constructed on a gigantic scale and in the most thorough manner. The ore as delivered to the crusher from the pit will first be passed through a Blake Rock crusher, which will break it small enough to be fit for the twenty stamp mill which pulverizes it, when it passes to the Buddles, where the useless rock is got rid of. The ore remaining is then carried to the drier, where it is dried, from thence to the furnaces where it is roasted, and then taken out and cooled, it then passes to a tank from which it passes through upper and lower grinders, thence into leaches or washers, which are charged within ten inches of the bottom, thence into amalgamators which are similarly charged, thence to shaking tables, thence over a copper straight with copper pins and rake working in sink.

By the above short and imperfect description of the stages through which the ore passes, it will be seen that a large amount of machinery is necessary to separate the gold from foreign substances.

The mine is a short distance from the crusher, where an engine will be at once erected for elevating the ore and freeing the mine from water. This engine will be also attached to a car that will deliver the ore to the crusher, thereby saving the expense of teaming the ore.

As many men as can be economically used are engaged completing the works, which will be soon in operation, when a large force of men will be employed in mining. Already a large quantity of ore is mined ready for crushing when the mill is completed.

The ore at this mine is of a superior quality, and as the quantity is almost inexhaustible great results are expected from the working of the mine. The samples of gold bearing quartz shown are very fine, and we were shown a saucer of black dirt filled with particles of gold, some of which were as large as peas, which was dug up near the dwelling by a little boy, the son of Capt. O'Neil.

The shipments from Port Hope this season were as follows:—Wheat, 296,522 bushels ; barley, 475,477 do ; rye, 17,790 do ; peas, 38,288 do; 50,005,000 feet of lumber and 13,311,000 shingles and laths.

G. W. RAILWAY.—The traffic returns of the Great Western Railway, for the week ending December the 5th 1879, were $90,-154.84, compared with $73,406.86 for the corresponding week ending December the 6th 1878, being an increase this year of $21,747.98.

The City and the Grand Junction.

The determination arrived at by the public meeting of ratepayers on Friday night anent the extension of time asked for by the Grand Junction Railway Company for the completion of their line to Peterborough has been generally received with approbation. It is manifestly fair that the City should grant the favor asked by the Company, and that in return the Company should abate some of their contentions because of the extension of time being granted, therefore the compromise hit upon by Ald. Holden ought to be acceptable to all concerned. That the Council will adopt the resolution there can be no doubt, and we believe the Company will do so, as the best that can be done under the circumstances. We therefore hope to see the railway pushed through to completion next year, in which case the prosperity of the City will be largely increased.

Where the Barley Came From.

The Oswego Palladium of Thursday last says :—The following table will show the receipts of new crop of Canada barley at Oswego as reported from different ports :

Kingston	132,121
Collins Bay	11,200
Bath	55,780
Adolphustown	14,096
Picton	145,480
Napanee	300,492
Northport	13,300
Shannonville	47,705
Belleville	313,237
Trenton	208,220
Mill Point	38,811
Consecon	65,619
Ferry Point	14,564
South Bay	6,700
Wellington	64,189
Amherst Island	24,515
Milford	22,260
Cressey	19,653
Total Bay	1,515,837
Gananoque	38,230
Brighton	73,60
Colborne	63,279
Grafton	21,537
Cobourg	196,508
Port Hope	402,333
New Castle	100,047
Darlington	161,393
Oshawa	115,957
Whitby	259,612
Frenchman's Bay	39,628
Toronto	596,106
Port Credit	14,000
Oshawa	67,173
Wellington Square	10,000
Hamilton	18,878
Total other ports	2,318,241
	1,515,337
New crop receipts 1879	3,834,178
" " " 1878	2,846,097
" " " 1877	3,915,477
" " " 1876	3,014,722
" " " 1875	3,005,835

From the above statement it will be seen that more barley was shipped from Belleville than from any other port on the Bay, and that but two of the Lake ports, namely Toronto and Port Hope, shipped more largely. It is quite safe to assume that so soon as our railway connections with Peterborough and the Midland are completed, there will be more barley shipped from Belleville than from any other port in Canada.

County Court.

SPRY vs. MOODIE.—Action on promises on account for board furnished to deft's wife for three years, at $1.50 per week. Court refused to try cause, the amount claimed being beyond jurisdiction.—Dougall & Falkiner for plt'ff; Bleecker for deft.

HOLDEN vs. BRICKLAND.—Action on account; parties settled.—Dougall & Falkiner for plt'ff; Britton for deft.

SAYER vs. BURKE.—Action for negligence : plaintiff is a farmer living in Thurlow ; deft. lives in Huntingdon ; was formerly in blacksmith business, is now a farmer ; does blacksmith work occasionally. Deft. on 5th June last brought his horses to deft. and requested him to shoe them ; deft. complied with the request ; while the horses were in the shop, one of them got hold of a paper containing Paris green, from the effects of which he died. Plaintiff brings this action for damages to recover value of horse. A hard case for parties concerned. Plaintiff lost his horse from some cause ; deft was doing work for plaintiff by special request, and if the horse got the Paris green in his shop, he cannot account for it ; a good number of witnesses were examined, and as usual in horse cases, conflicting. Jury out all night, could not agree ; discharged this morning.—Hon. L. Wallbridge, Fraleck & Blair for plt'ffs ; Clute for deft.

MILLIONS IN IT.—The Ottawa Citizen says :—"Some time ago, our readers will remember, we announced that a Quebec firm had taken a contract to supply 1,000,000 pairs of boots for the French army. It astonished us a little, we must confess, but it appears from late despatches that the statement was quite correct, and that Fortin, Contant & Co., of Quebec, are the parties who are in possession of the order. We can congratulate them on their success. An order like that must be worth something. There is a good deal of 'Hum' in a million pairs of boots."

When potatoes were first introduced at Moscow, eighty or ninty years ago, there was great prejudice against them, and they were called the devil's fruit. It was a long time before they came into general use.

A member of a church being particular about the new minister, is said to have prayed aloud at the late meeting of the Kirk elders, "Send us not an old man in his dotage, nor a young man in his goslinhood, but a man with all the modern improvements."

Two sisters conversing about a concert which had taken place, the younger of the two, who had been present, was asked if Miss X——, one of the singers, was encored. Her useful fancy must have been drawn in another direction, for she replied, "O, no ; she was in velvet."

A St. Louis boy was delighted when a fine six-bladed knife dropped down to him apparently from the sky. Wrapped around it was a paper on which was written, "We are fastened in the dome ; for heaven's sake help us out." Two girls had ascended to the top of the court house, and closed a self-locking door.

Whooping Cough is successfully treated by separating the patients beyond hearing distance of each other, and by the employment of Follows' Hypophosphites. Whooping Cough is a nervous disease of so sympathetic a nature, that a paroxysms may be produced in one susceptable by simply hearing the cough of another person. The above named treatment has been found singularly effective.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

NARROW ESCAPE OF MISS ANDERSON.

LOST IN A SNOW STORM.

RESCUED HALF-DEAD.

A FORTHCOMING REPORT.

ANOTHER WALKING MATCH.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Arrived, Anchoria from Glasgow.

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 15.—Last evening while Miss Mary Anderson, actress, was being transferred to the train in a carriage the horses ran away. She jumped and landed on the brink of an opening in the back river bridge. She would have fallen into the water below but for the presence of mind of Henry Shallcross, of the transfer company, who caught her.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 15. — Governor Emery's term of office expired yesterday. He is a candidate for the reappointment. Mr. Neil, of the Register's Office, formerly Private Secretary for President Hayes, is recommended for appointment by some citizens.

OMAHA, Dec. 15.—While hunting with two friends in Plate Valley recently, General Crook was caught in a snow storm and lost his way. His friends happened to find him almost chilled to death and assisted him to farmer's house, where he remained two days.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The Times Syracuse special reports an interview with assembly man Duguid, foreshadowing the forthcoming report of the Hepburn Commission Committee, concludes that the terminal facilities of New York are inferior to those of other cities. The report will probably recommend a law, making it a penal offence for any Railway Company to charge higher rates for freight from any point of New York State to New York City than is charged for carrying the same commodity from any city in any other state to New York City. The Committee has been unable to solve satisfactorily the question of special rates. It is not unlikely the report will recommend the appointment of a commission to settle this and other vexatious questions. The report will probably recommend a complete balance sheet of the various roads to be published with their annual reports to the state engineer, from which some idea of the actual financial condition of the roads can be obtained.

The Sun's special says that private advices from Augusta, apparently authentic, are to the effect that the Governor and Council have found a large number of fatal and gross errors, the result being that a majority of those who will be summoned for both branches of the Legislature to-day will be of the opposition or fusion party.

The Tribune's Cincinnati special says that Grant's recent visit there did not evoke so much enthusiasm as was expected, as it developed what is regarded by some as absolute proof that Grant is determined to be again President.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Wm. Fredericks, Jno. Tobin and Jno. Sawyer, on trial for masked burglary at the residence of Samuel Hough on Nov, 22nd, all pleaded guilty on Saturday.

The women's six days walking match, a speculative affair, opened at midnight with 26 entries, a thousand spectators present and no enthusiasm.

The opening of a sea route from Athens to Corinth and to the Adriatic, which M. De Lesseps contemplates, is a matter of extreme importance. It may alter the direction of much English traffic. One of the first results anticipated is a great increase in the importance of Corinth. "It is not allotted to every man to go to Corinth," was Horace's reflection, but M. Lesseps's passage through the Isthmus will make the way easy.

Nitro-Glycerine Explosion.

FELT FORTY MILES OFF.

AMHERSTBURG, Ont., Dec. 13.—The magazine of nitro-glycerine and mica powder on Fox Island, opposite here, exploded last night about 8:30 with a terrific report, shaking the ground like an earthquake, breaking many plate glass windows in the town and frightening the people generally. The explosion was felt forty miles away in Leamington and Ruthven, shaking every house in both towns, and startling the inhabitants. It was also felt forty miles along the C. S. R. line. An immense blaze lit up the whole heavens, the earth rocked, and a tremendous report followed. There were about three tons of nitro-glycerine besides mica powder in the magazine at the time of the explosion. Mr. Dunbar, contractor for the lime kiln crossing work, with his tug explored the scene of the explosion this morning. Nothing whatever was found of the magazine. Where it stood is now a hole 60 feet in diameter and 15 feet deep made by the explosion. The shock was felt so much at Fletcher on the Canada Southern Railroad forty-four miles from here, that the people ran out of their houses in fear. Mr. Dunbar estimates his loss at $4,000. It is the opinion now of many that it was the work of an incendiary.

A GREAT CITY.—London covers 700 square miles, and has 4,000,000 of inhabitants. It contains more Jews than the whole of Palestine, more Roman Catholics than Rome itself, more Irish than Dublin, and more Scotchmen than Edinburgh. Upwards of 300 persons are daily added to the population, a birth taking place every five minutes and a death every eight minutes. Of streets 28 miles are opened every year, and 9,000 new houses are built each year. The port has every day 1,000 ships on its waters, and 9,000 sailors. In its postal district there is a yearly delivery of 238,000,000. On the police register there are the names of 120,000 habitual criminals, and 35,000 drunkards are annually brought before magistrates. About 1,000,000 of the people are practically heathen, wholly neglecting the ordinances of religion.

—Three hundred mounted men rode through Elliott County, Ky., whipping all the reputed thieves and hanging two confessed highwaymen.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 15.

City and Vicinity.

CITY COUNCIL.—The Council will hold a regular meeting to-night.

OUTWARD.—The Allan Steamship Circassian arrived out on the 14th inst.

INWARD.—The Allan Steamship Manitoban arrived at Halifax on Sunday afternoon.

POLICE.—Business was rather brisker with the force during the last forty eight hours, four arrests having been made.

SLEIGHING.—The snow storm which commenced about 1 p. m. yesterday has made good sleighing, there being about four inches of snow on the ground.

FIRST IN THE FIELD.—Mr. W. P. Niles is the first Aldermanic candidate to announce himself through our columns. Mr. Niles seeks election for Ketcheson Ward.

FOR THE NORTH.—A load of material, consisting of blocks and pulleys, which are to be used in operating the gold mine at Bannockburn, was shipped this morning from G. & J. Brown's foundry.

THE WRESTLING MATCH.—The champion wrestling match between Messrs. Ross and Daly will be concluded to-night. Prices of admission have been reduced to 25c for general admission and 35c for reserved seats.

MEMORANDA.—City Council meeting to-night.—Conclusion of the great wrestling match to-night.—Resumption of the election trial to-morrow.—Meeting of the Board of Education at the Council Chamber, and address by Rev. Geo. Muller, in the Bridge Street Church to-morrow night.

NEW STATION MASTER.—Mr. W. H. Butcher, of this city, an old employee of the Grand Trunk, has, we learn from the News-Argus, been appointed station-master at Stirling, to fill the vacancy made by death of Mr. Wm. Mills. He assumed the duties on Monday last.

PERSONAL.—The Stirling News-Argus says:—"Mr. J. W. Rodgers, for the past eight years head master of the Stirling public school, has been appointed to the position of head master of the Trenton public school. His many friends in Stirling and vicinity wish him a continuance of that success which has hitherto distinguished him as a teacher."

ALBERT COLLEGE.—The Michaelmas term of this institution, which will close on Wednesday next, with the usual exhibition in the evening of that day, has been one of the most prosperous which the College has ever experienced. It affords us much pleasure to be able to state that the Governor General has signified his intention of presenting a silver medal for competition amongst the students of Albert College, and that Mr. Alfred Selwyn F. R. S., Director of the Geological Survey, has presented to the College Museum a number of valuable geological specimens.

AN ILLUSTRATION OF THE NEW POSTAL RULES.—The Oswego Times of Thursday last says:—"This morning a copy of the Times addressed "Intelligencer, Belleville," was returned from the post office, with the following endorsement: 'For N. Y. State or Prov. Ontario.' We have exchanged with the Belleville, (Ont.) Intelligencer, for many years, and every clerk in the post office knows that the paper should go to Belleville, Ont., but in obedience to the new rules for the annoyance of the public adopted by the post office department, the clerks here are obliged to send the paper back for better direction, just as they must do if a letter is addressed to New York City without the addition of 'N. Y.' The order in question is a very stupid and unnecessary one, and the Post Office clerks in Oswego must be as stupid as the order, else they could not but know that Belleville, N. Y., has no newspaper called the Intelligencer.

THE FERRIES.—The bay is now frozen so hard that the lower ferry has been obliged to stop, one day earlier than last year. The upper ferry is still running, making her trips slowly.

BEST TIME ON RECORD.—The time (9¾ seconds) made by Mr. John S. Barnes, in his 100 yards race against time on Saturday was the best on record in America, the best previous being 10 seconds. The course was carefully measured and the time taken with chronometers by totally disinterested parties; so that there cannot be a doubt of the genuineness of the performance. Messrs. W. P. McMahon, R. M. Roy, James Jenkins and Prof. D. C. Ross, certify to the correctness of time and track.

COMMITTED FOR PERJURY.—A man named Orser, who sued the Grand Trunk Railway Company in the York County Court for $178, the value of a trunk and the contents which he alleged was lost on the road between Belleville and Stratford, has found the tables turned on him most effectually. The Company's officers showed that the trunk could not have been sent as the plaintiff alleged, and the Judge, in discharge, denounced the claim as an imposture and the man Orser as a perjurer. A verdict was given for the defendants and the plaintiff was committed for trial for perjury.

WEST BELLEVILLE FLOURING MILLS.—It will be seen by advertisement that Mr. R. B. Cooper, who has recently come into possession of these mills, has entirely refitted the same, and added many improvements, and is now prepared to do all kind of flouring and gristing in a manner that will give entire satisfaction. He also keeps on hand all kinds of flour, meal, feed &c. Mr. Cooper is a miller of very large experience, and is noted for his fair and square dealing. Those who do business with him may be certain of obtaining every satisfaction.

FIRE.—At 9.30 on Sunday evening fire was discovered in the second story of the large frame tenement on Pinnacle Street opposite Drewry's Warehouse. From some cause a bed, the property of Mrs. O'Rourke, who occupies a portion of the second floor of the building, took fire. Some young men went to the rescue and took the bed tick from the house and carried it across the street, where it was allowed to consume. The bed covering was entirely destroyed. The bed clothing was burned. Both engines were brought out, but fortunately their services were not required. The loss, though trifling, is a serious one to the old lady, who can ill-afford it.

ODDFELLOW'S FUNERAL.—About one hundred of the Belleville Oddfellows, including their band, proceeded yesterday morning by special train to Madoc, to attend the funeral of Mr. A. Mackley, a member of Madoc Lodge. On arriving at Madoc, they were met by the brethren there and driven to the residence of deceased, which is about a mile and a half from the village. Thence they returned to the M. E. Church, where an appropriate sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Martin, the pastor. The procession was thence re formed and proceeded to the cemetery—the band playing solemn dirges by the way—where the remains were interred with the solemnities peculiar to the order. The funeral procession was the largest and most imposing ever held in Madoc. At 5 p. m. the Belleville brethren reached home.

New Book.

THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF METHODISM, FROM THE DAYS OF WESLEY TO THE PRESENT TIME. By the Rev. W. H. Daniels, M. A., containing over 250 engravings, maps and charts.

The Methodist Book Room of Toronto is sending out this last and best volume of Methodist history. The Rev. Mr. Briggs, the newly appointed Book Steward, gives this book his most hearty commendation. It ought to be in every Methodist family. The Rev. Dr. Wedon of New York says it is "an admirable volume, written with an accuracy, a life and freshness which will insure it a deserved and wide-spread popularity." Bishop Harris says "the author has done his work well, faithfully, loyally, wisely, lovingly." Rev. Dr. Fowler says "I believe in this book. It is good reading for our people, especially for our young people. Historically it is accurate, spirited and full of life; artistically attractive and authentic, and mechanically as nearly perfect as human productions can well be made. In order that this volume may have a place in every Methodist family, the price has been fixed far below the usual figures for such elaborate works. The book is beautifully printed and handsomely bound in one Royal Octavo volume of 768 pages, and is sold only by Methodist Ministers and other authorized agents.

The Rev. O. Lambly, M. A. has been appointed agent for Belleville, and will immediately introduce the book to the Methodist and general public of this city, confident that all who see this beautifully bound volume will desire to possess a copy of the same. The following is the endorsation of the popular pastor of the Bridge Street Church:

"The Illustrated History of Methodism," by the Rev. W. H. Daniels, M.A., will fill a very important place in the history of Methodism, as well as of Protestant Christendom. Being much more concise than Mr. Abel Stevens' extensive work, it is of a compass and at a price to suit the mass of readers. Then the very numerous illustrations are both rare and rich, and I believe as accurate as possible, enabling the reader to form clear conceptions of persons and objects hitherto comparatively hidden. I hope the volume may have a wide circulation, as it is designed to enrich both heart and mind, and to arrest the attention of the young.

N. R. WILLOUGHBY.

SUMMER HEAT.—This is the season for Bowel Complaints. Green apples and cucumbers produce them, and Perry Davis' PAIN-KILLER cures them. To the troubled stomach it comes like a balm, and says "peace, be still," and the wind is assuaged, and the trouble ceases. Every druggist in the land keeps the PAIN-KILLER, and no other should be without it in his family.

The Struggle of The Giants.

ROSS vs. DALY.

AN EXCITING CONTEST IN THE OPERA HOUSE.

The Event Unfinished.

The contest for the champion gold medal and champion belt, typical of the heavy weight championship, took place in the Opera House on Saturday evening, the contestants being Duncan C. Ross, of Toronto, Ont., and Captain J. C. Daly of the 69th regiment, New York. There was a very fair attendance, and the audience at times manifested unbounded delight with what was presented before them. The struggle was for supremacy in five styles of wrestling (as noted in Saturday's issue of this paper) the winner of three events to be proclaimed the victor. The hour of commencement was fixed for eight o'clock, but it was upwards of half an hour later before the contest opened.

Ross, who is but 23 years of age, and is a native of Scotland, is well known in the world of athletics, having on many occasions shown himself well versed in sports of the field. He has had two contests with his present antagonist, one at Hamilton, which was undecided, but renewed at Toronto and decided in favor of Ross. The second took place at Albany N. Y., and resulted in the success of Daly. This was the third contest between these athletes and its result was looked forward to with considerable interest, here and elsewhere.

Daly, who was born at Shanballymore, County of Cork, Ireland, is 29 years old, and though new to the people of this locality is yet not unknown in the athletic arena, as he has several times figured in contests similar to this on many occasions during the past few years, having defeated DeLeon, Treher, Bauer, Carteron, Vanderveeken, D. C. Ross and Michael Hennessy for the Championship of Ireland, June 16th, '71, at Dublin. He is a genuine Irishman, as his brogue attests, and at the same time he is an athlete of more than ordinary calibre. He won the first contest for the belt against Ross at Albany. N. Y., recently and the present is the second strife for this emblem, which must be retained by the winner for three consecutive years be'ore it can become his personal property.

PRELIMINARIES.

Ross was the first to put in an appearance on the stage. He was attired in a white sleeveless shirt and white drawers and scarlet trunks, Daly dressed in white tights and a pink trunk bordered with blue, put in an appearance shortly after. Both seemed to be in excellent condition, each showed a clear, bright intelligent eye indicative of business. During their struggle the muscles of their bodies would stand out in bold relief and gave thorough evidence of the strength of these giants. Ross was evidently the heaviest man, carrying most flesh, but his antagonist appeared as wiry as blue beech.

Walter Alford was selected as judge for Ross, whilst Capt. Power acted in the same capacity for Daly. R. M. Roy was referee.

CATCH AS CATCH CAN (IRISH STYLE).

The contestants, on the call for this event came to the front and met with a good reception. The judges tossed for choice of locality on the stage, which was won by Capt. Power for Daly. On the call of time they grasped hands; then followed a hip-lock by Daly on Ross, which resulted in both going to the floor; a struggle followed, in which Ross tried to turn Daly, but without avail, and both rose to their feet. They closed and Ross began to force Daly, who got a hip-lock on the former, but Ross broke it, and in trying to throw Daly over his head, both went to the floor. Daly tried another hip-lock, when both came to the carpet. Ross next essayed a neck-lock, when both came to the floor, Daly underneath. Daly soon freed himself from Ross's embrace, and obtained the upper position. Daly twice endeavored to turn Ross, and in his second effort narrowly escaped being turned himself. Daly threw Ross, who squirmed, and thus avoided touching the carpet in the manner necessary to constitute a fall, as provided by the rules for this fall.

After a lengthy and most interesting struggle, in which much science and a great deal of main strength was exhibited, but the main phases of which space will not permit us to describe in detail, Daly claimed a fall, but his appeal was disallowed. (The time thus far consumed was twenty minutes) After a breathing spell of five minutes they again closed, Ross got a neck-lock when both went on their knees. Rises and falls, trips, neck-locks, back twists and attempts to turn each other ensued, but all to no avail, the Irishman several times saving himself by wonderful agility, and the Scotchman by main strength and at times by science.

At last, after a severe struggle, Ross threw Daly over his head, and each man went on his back. Both claimed the fall. The spectators who were close by, were all of opinion that Ross won the fall at this time, but the referee was not near enough to determine, and disallowed the claim. After a brief space the struggle was renewed and an almost endless series of useless attempt to fell his opponent by each of the warriors filled up the time, and during which each was credited with several narrow escapes. A foul called for Daly varied the monotony of matters at this stage. Ross tore a strip from Daly's shirt and a claim was put in but denied. Daly soon after returned the compliment, and relieved Ross of his upper garment. Throws, turns, arches, trips, severe struggles and narrow escapes constituted the bill of fare for another brief space. They kissed the carpet floor many times and got up as often only to return to its embrace once more. The monotony was varied by Ross occasionally throwing Daly on his head, and once he rolled him over the floor like a barrel. Daly spread cagled himself, when Ross would try to get a hold so as to turn him over, and it is safe to say that this precaution on the part of the Irishman disgusted his fellow gladiator as he several times moved off from him when such situations arose. Two hours had now been consumed without advantage to either. The contest went on with unabated ardor. Each made several efforts to turn his opponent and once the shoulders of each was on the floor with their legs bridged. Then followed an exciting struggle which culminated in Daly's turning Ross and securing a fall amidst uproarious applause. Time 2 hours 27 minutes.

SCOTCH STYLE.

After a rest of fifteen minutes the gladiators came to the front for this event, both in the costume having provided themselves with new shirts. This was a no less desparate contest than its predecessor, although far less time was used in its completion. The bout opened by Ross throwing Daly on his knees, but the latter soon got on his feet. Then followed the usual manouvering, their results being throws, falls, tripping and turns to an almost endless degree. Daly had Ross under several times, but could not hold him for the required space (thirty seconds). Ross also had Daly on his back several times, but the Irishman's agility enabled him to free himself. A fall was claimed for Ross but was not allowed. On one occasion Ross held his antagonist for 25 seconds and on another Daly treated Ross to a prostration of 22 seconds and during the occurrence the partisans of each would lustily yell "Hold him down Ross" or "Keep him Daly" as either would have the advantage over the other. But the end came at last, as Ross throwing Daly over his head rolled him over and held him on the carpet on his back despite his most strenuous efforts to release himself. The fall was accorded to Ross amidst the wildest applause.

COLLAR AND ELBOW.

This was the third event on the programme, and no time was lost in resuming the attack. After coming together, Ross treated Daly to a series of attempted trips. Another essay by the Scotchman followed, and resulted in Daly's being thrown, after a contest of only a few minutes' duration.

SCOTCH STYLE.

The fourth item on the bill of fare was the second fall of the above. Their meeting resulted in a struggle which culminated in both going down. Ross underneath. Daly turned Ross several times, but could not hold him. Again and again was this repeated by Daly, when Ross took up the offensive and gave his adversary an equivalent for what had been bestowed on him. The hour of twelve had now arrived and the contest then came to a close to be resumed this evening at eight o'clock in the Opera House.

MURNEY WARD.

Your Vote and Influence

ARE RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED FOR

JAMES H. SIMPSON.

As ALDERMAN for 1880.

To the Electors of Ketcheson Ward.

GENTLEMEN:—Having been requested by a large number of the Electors of the above mentioned Ward to offer myself as a candidate for Alderman for 1880, I hereby have pleasure in complying, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.

Very respectfully,
RICHARD COSTELLO,

Dec. 15, 1879.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 13.—The Pioneer asserts that an immense mass of correspondence has been found and laid before the Government, including instructions from the Russian Government to its agents in Central Asia, marking out the courses they were to follow with the ex-Ameer. The papers are said to show that Russian intrigues against Afghanistan were active as far back as 1873, and to afford conclusive proof of the falsity of the excuse given for the Russian mission to Cabul last year.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—An appeal reached London from American missionaries at Oroomeeyah, Persia, in behalf of the population in that district and Turkish Khurdistan, who are starving. There is already a partial failure of the wheat and raisin crops, owing to poverty only about a tenth part of the usual import food has been made, and importations are now entirely ceased. The Government is doing little or nothing. Winter will intensify the distress.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Patrick McCann was arrested for cutting the telegraph wires which stretch over his roof. When arraigned he held that the wires were trespassing on his premises. The charges were immediately withdrawn. This leads to the belief that the telegraph companies concede that they have no right to trespass on private property.

Total imports at New York during Nov'r, reached nearly $53,000,000, the largest ever landed in one month and $28,700,000 larger than the total for the preceding November. Specie imports reached nearly $50,000,000. Exports for November show a gain of more than a million over preceding November. Shipments are restricted by rampant speculation and consequent high prices.

The exports for the past eleven months reach $336,500,000. This carries the total for the last eleven months, a little above the figures for last year, so that this likely to be the banner year of this decade.

LONG BRANCH, Dec. 15.—The schr. Artis Garwood, wrecked yesterday, has been broken to atoms by a heavy sea last night, a piece of the wreck struck the Long Branch pier, breaking in two one of the massive iron piles.

CLIFTON SPRINGS, N. Y., Dec. 15.—The new building for the Young Men's Christian Association was dedicated last night. It was erected by the munificence of Dr. Foster, proprietor of the Sanitarium, at a cost of over $10,000. Last night he formally presented the deed.

SOUTH AMBOY, N. J. Dec., 15th.—Two bodies were washed ashore at Seaside Park, they are thought to be victims of the late storm.

GENERAL DEBILITY
Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of Fellows & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anæmia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh fast, we are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.
MARTIN OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are ing put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

EMMELINE.

CHAPTER XIV.

AN EXPLANATION.—AN ADVENTURE ON THE ICE.—NO RECOGNITION.

Lady Emmeline Chestil was on a visit to her father at Stanhope Hall, which is a few miles from Glasgow. She was seated in the handsome drawing room. Reclining on a couch near her is an elderly lady, evidently in delicate health.

"Why Emmaline," said she to Lady Chestil (whom we recognize as our old acquaintance in Clyde Street), "could you not rely on my affection, that you hid all about your marriage and the birth of your child."

"No, mamma, it was not that I doubted your affection; but my father and Ronald's were at enmity, and when Ronald asked his father's consent to our union, he was told never to breathe my name, or he would disinherit him, and my own father caught us together, and said to Roland he would call a keeper and take him up for trespassing on his property. High words passed between them, and the consequence was, I was locked up for some time, and nurse kindly undertook all correspondence between Ronald and myself. At length my father, as you know, relented a little, and allowed me some exercise; on one of those occasions, attended by nurse, I met Ronald, who brought with him an old servant of his father's. We went to the chapel on their estate, which lies so close to our own. Earl Chestil was confined to bed, and knew nothing of what was going on. And there, in that old chapel, the heiress of Sir Simon Stanhope was married to the heir of the Chestil estates, humble dependents being the only witnesses."

"How ridiculous," said her mamma.

"Hush, don't interrupt me," said Lady Chestil, now excited. "We were married by a young minister now very popular, and contrived to meet oftener than you would have thought possible. In November, business called my father to London. You accompanied him, but I feigned indisposition and was left in charge of nurse, who, to save a stranger being about me, promised to watch my movements. She, good soul, had promised this, as it enabled her to prove a yet truer friend to me. You, mamma, stood too much in awe of my stern father, and was too nervous to be told aught of our marriage. While you were in London I was confined of a little daughter in an humble house in Glasgow. My husband pursuaded me to consent to leave her for a little while, thinking all would soon be well. Our child was accordingly left, and shortly after my husband was ordered to India with his regiment, and while there he wrote to Earl Chestil, his father, telling him of his wife and child, but the stern old man would not relent. So time wore on, and I mourned and yearned for my child, not daring to seek her for fear of my father's anger; and as my husband wished me to wait his coming home, telling me in his letters that he had given proper instructions to the doctor who was present at her birth regarding her education. I waited till ten years had passed away, and my husband returned from India. He got Huntly Lodge prepared for the reception of me, his wife, and our child."

"Ah!" said the invalid, "well I remember the shock I received when I saw Ranold ride up the avenue in front of the hall, dismount, and heard him demand an audience of your father and claim you as his wife. 'Twas a fearful day that. How your father stormed and raged, and you flew into Lord Ranold's arms. From that day dates the helpless condition I am now in."

"Poor mamma, I have caused all this suffering to you, said Lady Chestil, and she smoothed back the tresses now sprinkled with threads of silver off the fevered head her own so much resembled, and kissing her, she resumed her story."

"Yes mamma, my craving to see my child became insupportable; but when I saw her, I felt sure she was not my own, and Ronald made inquiries of the doctor, who assured him that she was our daughter. But, regarding a locket and ring which you gave me, mamma, and I had left with the woman whose house I was confined in, there was no trace of them. Emmeline is a kind and tries to be affectionate, poor thing, but perhaps the discontent I feel is caused by knowing so long of her existence and never seeing her—I cannot love her as I ought."

"My child," said the invalid, "I too have my doubts. She is not like the Chestils. I have known them long, for the cause of your father's enmity to Earl Chestil was jealousy—they were rivals for my hand when young. I loved Earl Chestil best (and the invalid lowered her voice to a whisper), but Sir Simon had more money, and my parents forced me to marry him; and she is not like our race in form or feature; but the poor girl is not to blame, and your father-in-law has written so kindly to your husband to come to him at Avonmore, which, by the way, is a new title as well as a new estate to him. You must not tell him you have a doubt of her propinquity."

"I will try, mamma, but it will soon be seven years since she was brought to me, and each year I have been more convinced she is not mine own; but I must go and prepare for our visit to Avonmore."

Summer has fled, 'tis again December, and the Aven is frozen over. Curlers, skates, and parties bent on pleasure thronged the now frozen river. That part of the Aven most frequented by pleasure-seekers on this 2nd December, was in all other seasons quiet enough. Rocks rose to a good height, and Avonmore mansion house was visible from the rocky nook which overhung the Aven. Many of the surrounding gentry were present enjoying the scene. The curlers shouted, the skaters glided here, there, and every where. Among the latter we observed Emmeline and Annabell, attended by the Messrs. Steven. Emmeline was in an unusual flow of spirits. She had received the ring and locket that morning from her benefactor before leaving Glasgow, where she now usually resided. She had come to the Caledonian Lodge to spend her birthday, and this was how she chose to enjoy herself. Many an eye followed the movements of this graceful girl, skating being then confined to a very few ladies. A flush rose to her usually pale cheek, as cheer after cheer broke forth from those on the ice when Earl Chestil, of Chestil and Avonmore, made his appearance, accompanied by his handsome son, Lord Ronald, his lady, and daughter, who leant on the arm of Lord Avenlee. His friend Count Ormade was also with them. When Emmeline saw her old admirer she felt giddy in spite of herself, and in looking at Lady Chestil she saw what seemed her own face and form matured. She turned to the Messrs. Steven and saw that they too noticed the resemblance.

"Marvellous likeness," said the minister.

Mr. Charles remarked that that was assuredly the officer whose portrait was in the locket, and he wondered if the mystery was to be cleared up now.

Lady Chestil had noticed Lord Avenlee turn pale, and following his glance she clutched her husband's arm, whispering, "See, see!"

He looked in the direction pointed out by her, and there, in fact stood the image of what his wife had been eighteen years before.

"Strange," he muttered, "I'll find out who she is. By the way, my lord," said he to young Avenlee, "do you know who that young lady is with the dark ringlets?" and was answered in a husky voice—

"Miss Charlon."

And Emmeline, hearing the folk about her taking notice of the attention she was drawing, started off to a dangerous part of the river where the water was deep, and the rocks towards their tops came close together.

"Come back!" shouted some of the bystanders. "Shall be drowned!" shouted others, "for the ice is like a wafer there."

"Make way, young Avenlee is coming!" A shout of encouragement was given to the young nobleman as he dashed furiously past the crowds. The minister had made an attempt to follow Emmeline, but stumbled and fell. His brother, not to see when we saw him last. was standing motionless as a statue.

"Hurrah, hurrah!" burst from the crowds as Avenlee, caught our heroine by the skirts.

"In God's name Emmeline," said he, "where are you going?"

TO BE CONTINUED.

PATENTS

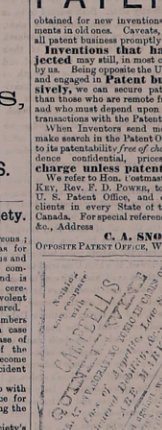

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and employing Patent Solicitors exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to the patentability, free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and at much less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examinations and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide to Obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. The Sun for 1880.

THE Sun will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well ahead of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is, the law controlling its daily make-up.

The Gentlemen's apartment is an entirely new addition to the business, and will be found large, lofty and clean. Every effort will be made to please.

For those who like it, I am drawing a splendid article of two year-old ALE,—exceedingly fine and sound.

I have also a splendid stock of Havana Cigars, consisting of First Partagas and real Henry Clays, as also the leading Domestics, including "TOM'S" SPECIALS.

St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal.

THIS Hotel has been recently re-taken by Mr. HENRY HOGAN, the former proprietor, who has handsomely and appropriately decorated and renovated the interior, and completely refitted the whole of the apartments with new furniture. The Hotel is admirably situated, being in the very heart of the city, and contiguous to the General Post Office, the principal Banks, public buildings, law courts, commercial exchanges, railway and telegraph offices. Manifestations of Progressiveness.

THIS SEASON'S RECORD.

JOHN FORIN'S WORK.

The contributions of the above named gentleman to the buildings in this city this year may be enumerated as follows: an addition to Haines & Lockett's store, cost $1,200; additions and improvements to the house on William street owned by him, and now occupied by Eugene McMahon, cost $1,600; a house on the corner of Ridley and North Front Streets at a cost of $250 and a grapery for T. S. Carman at a cost of $800.

THE ASHLEY BLOCK.

The second story of this block, the main portion of which has been previously described in these columns, has been finished this season, as also has the upper floor. The Biggar Brothers now occupy two sets of offices on the second flat, and No. 1 Company of the 49th Battalion, which has recently been resuscitated, occupy a hall on the third flat for their armory. These improvements cost $1,100.

In the rear of Frost's furniture store next door, a stone building 28 x 45 feet, two stories high, has been put by Mr. Ashley at a cost of $500, whilst a like sum was expended in altering the front of Mr. Frost's.

CHARLES P. HOLTON'S HOUSE.

This building is located on Charles St., and its dimensions are 40 x 24 feet, with a wing 16 x 20 feet. It is two stories high, with a mansard, and there is a cellar underneath the whole house. The building is of frame, is double sheeted, clapboarded, and covered with paper beneath the clapboards. The style is American, and is very neat, and highly ornamented. The height is 33 feet. There are two verandahs, one on the front of the building, and one on the south side of the kitchen. On the first floor in the main building is a hall, a parlor, sitting room and dining room, with sliding doors dividing them. There is a square bay window in front, which continues to the roof. Cornices and centre pieces adorn the rooms on this floor. The kitchen and out rooms are fitted up with all the necessary conveniences. There are four bedrooms, a bath room and a closet on the second floor, whilst on the third are two bedrooms and a hall. A continuous rail running two flights, protects the staircases. Lewis Grills was the contractor. Jas. Wickett put up the foundation and chimneys. The plastering and slating was done by Thos. Gardner, and the plumbing and tinning by C. F. Smith. Thos. Hanley was the architect. Cost $3,500.

W. R. MCRAE'S HOUSE.

On the north side of Hotel Street, between Bleecker and Foster avenues, the above is situated. It is of brick, 44x32 feet with an extension of 32x32 feet, and is two stories high with a basement underneath. A wide entrance leads into a vestibule 4½x9 feet, and opens into a hall 9 feet wide and leading to the rear of the main building. A parlor, drawing room and library form the front rooms and in the rear of these are a dining, wash and coat room and the kitchen. The front rooms are fitted with cornices and centre pieces and are supplied with marble mantel pieces. On the second floor are seven bedrooms, a bath room and closets. Hot air will heat the house and it will be lighted with gas. There are three verandahs, one on the front of the main building and one on each side of the extension. The newel post at the foot of the stair case is of black walnut and adorned with panels of bird's-eye maple. The rail and banister will be of walnut. The pantry is shelved and large drawers underneath run on wheels. A handsome fence surrounds the entire premises. Thos. Hanley was the architect and builder; Woodley & Co. were the bricklayers; Thos. Gardner did the plastering and slating, and Stocker & Co. the plumbing and gas fitting. The cost was $5,000.

Angus McKeown has erected a two story brick dwelling on Albert Street, size 23 by 28 feet with an addition 16x16 feet. There are two double bay windows, one on the east and one on the south side of the house. A hall, two rooms and a kitchen fill the first floor, and five bedrooms and closets on the upper floor. The brick work was done by Woodley & Co., the carpentering by J. Pepper and the plastering by Frank Dolan. Cost $1,200.

JACOB CRONK'S BUILDINGS.

Four additions to the number of buildings in this collection have been made this season whilst the owner of the same block has put up two buildings in the near vicinity. The two latter are frame structures and are situated on the west side of Fort Lane. These buildings will be covered with plaster in imitation of granite. The northern one is 20x30 feet and contains a hall and three rooms on the first floor, whilst there are four bed rooms and a sitting room on the upper floor. The next one to the south is 20x36 feet and has an addition in the rear which will be used for the purposes of a kitchen. On the ground flat are a hall and and three rooms and on the upper one three bed rooms and a sitting room. At the northern extremity of the terrace is a two story brick 32x34 feet with double bay windows. In this there are four rooms on the first flat, and four on the second. There is an attic above which can be used as a storeroom. Another erection is a two story brick 32x36 with an addition 18x12 feet. There is a hall, a parlor and a dining room, connected by folding doors, in the main building whilst the kitchen is in the rear of these. There are four bed rooms with closets on the second floor. Next to this is a double house of brick 46x35 feet. There are three rooms and a hall on the first floor of each house and four rooms above. Woodley & Co. put up the brick work; Charles Doran was the carpenter; I. Johnson was the plasterer, and G. Tuite painter. The cost of these buildings was $4,000.

Improvements are being made in St. Thomas' Church which will cost $10,000. The ceiling is pannelled instead of plastered, the walls are stained, the pews will be more convenient than formerly and will be without doors. The repairs are not all finished, and when they are made the organ, which is now being manufactured, will be put in its place in the gallery the front of which will be pillared.

A brick building two stories high comprising two single stores has been erected on Front Street, opposite the Farmers' Hotel. It is 39 x 50 with a hall entrance to the upper flight. Mr. M. A Buell, of Toronto, is the owner. Francis McKay the contractor for the work. Wickett & Co. were the masons and bricklayers, and Frank Dolan did the plastering. Cost $1,300.

Alterations and improvements to the amount of $800 were made by Mr. F. McKay in the present residence of Mr. Henry Corby, Jr., on George Street.

A brick building two stories high 40 x 32 has been erected by Mr. Wm. Bleecker at the western entrance to the upper bridge. It is to be used as a carriage repository and sale room by Mr. G. A. Brown. Burns and O'Neil were the masons and bricklayers, and George White the carpenter. Cost $1.500.

A two story stone building, to be used as a store house, has been put up in the rear of the office of the axe factory by Mr. E. Burrell. John Robinson did the masonry and J. Reddick the carpenter work. Cost $1,200.

Adjoining the Toronto House, opposite the Grand Trunk depot, Mrs. Griffin has erected a frame building, which is used as an office for railway shippers. Northcott & Alford were the contractors and Frank Dolan did the plastering. Cost $210.

THE DAFOE HOUSE.

This building has during the past season undergone a variety of pleasing and useful [illegible] other story and twenty-four rooms to the already large accommodating capacity of the house. At either end of the mansard are towers, which are surmounted with neat iron railings. These towers are of pleasing design and add greatly to the general appearance of the building. A number of improvements have been made on the third floor as well as on the second. These flights have all been newly painted and papered, and the bedrooms therein enlarged to double their former size by the doing away of partitions. A variety of alterations and changes have been made on the ground floor, all of which will greatly add to the convenience and comfort of travellers. The office has been materially enlarged and in addition to being supplied with electric bells, a telegraph office will be located there. On the walls and ceilings is an abundance of new paper, fresh paint and frescoing, all of which adds very much to the general tone of the establishment. In the rear of the office is a baggage room and hoist for elevating the heavier trunks of commercial men to the sample rooms on the second flight. North of the hall on the Pinnacle Street side, is a large room which has been converted into a barber shop and wash and bath rooms, which will be supplied with hot and cold water—and in the rear of these is the billiard and bar rooms. The large room formerly used for billiard playing purposes has been partitioned off and converted into sample rooms, which will be provided with such needed conveniences as occasion will demand.

A new dining room 70x32 feet has been erected on the Bridge Street side of the building and in the rear of this are the carving room and kitchen all being appropriately fitted up.

The entire building has been renovated throughout and is now in its air of comfort and general appointments second to none in this part of the country.

Mr. W. Harris was the architect, George White was the carpenter, Wickett & Co., the masons and L. Ockerman the painter for the part of the work contracted for by Mr. Wm. Dafoe, the owner of the house. For Mr. John Henderson the proprietor, John Wellbanks was the carpenter, Wm. Malcolm did the plumbing and fitting and D. Ockerman the painting. Total cost $7,700.

MR. DUNNET'S RESIDENCE.

Mr. James W. Dunnet has erected a dwelling on the corner of Commercial Road and Bridge street, which for nicety of architecture and general appearance compares very favorably with any of the principal residences of the city. The building is of brick, two stories high with a mansard and is fitted in a costly and attractive manner. The size of the main structure is 36x48 feet with an addition to furnish a kitchen of 18x24 feet to which is joined a summer kitchen and a woodshed 18x30 feet.

The entrance to the main building—reached by a short flight of steps—leads to a vestibule 8x8 feet and thence to a hall 1.5x26 feet. On the first floor of the main part are the parlor, sitting room, dining room and library. The ceiling of the first of these is handsomely pannelled and exhabits ample evidence of the handiwork of the first class plasterer. The other rooms are supplied with neat centre pieces and border mouldings of neat design. On the second floor are four bed rooms with closets. These rooms, as also those on the ground floor, are provided with fire places, which are supplied with marble mantel pieces. Over the kitchen are two bed rooms and a bath room, the latter of which apartments is furnished with hot and cold water. The ascent from the ground floor to the top flight is made by a spiral staircase of easy inclination and neat finish. Double bay windows and a tower 15 feet higher than the main building add much to the appearance of the structure. To give additional light to the second story, as well as to the first floor, an octagonal light supplied with colored glass surmounts it. The top of the tower, as well as the eaves of the building, are bordered with handsome iron railings. The house is to be lighted with gas and fitted up in the most improved style. Wesley Harris was the architect; H. A. Thompson the contractor; Geo. Smith was the carpenter; Woodley & Co. did the bricklaying; R. Warham the painting; T. Linklater the plumbing; and Edward Lyall the plastering. Cost $6,000.

MISCELLANEOUS.

On the corner of Jane and Everett Streets Mr. Wm. Boswell has erected two two story brick dwellings, each of which is supplied with a double bay window. Each building is 20 x 28 feet with an addition of 14 x 14 for a kitchen. There are three rooms on the first floor of the main building and five on the second floor. Wm. Nicholson was the mason, John Laing the bricklayer, Geo. Smith the carpenter and Dolan the plasterer. Cost $2,000—$1,000 each.

On William Street, near Bridge Street, Mr. Fred Lingham has erected a two story brick residence, which will be finished during the winter, and which will be furnished with all the modern innovations and improvements. Thos. Hanley supervises the erection of the structure, which will cost $3,500.

Messrs. Northcott & Alford have added an additional story to their premises on Pinnacle Street, as well as added 20 feet to the rear and 11 feet to the front. The work was done by the firm named, at a cost of $1,000.

Mr. Edwin Taylor has put up a two story brick dwelling on Emily Street 22 x 27 feet, with an addition for a kitchen of 16 x 16 feet. Northcott & Alford were the bricklayers, Dolan the plasterer, and R. H. Toy the painter. Cost $1,000.

The stone building on Brassey Street owned by C. J. Starling, Esq., has been converted into a dwelling by Messrs. Northcott & Alford at a cost of $800.

The same firm erected a stable for Henry Corby, Sr., at a cost of $120 and a brick kitchen for Mr. Charles Gillen on George Street at a cost of $400, also a one story brick store house in rear of McRae & Co.'s 28 x 70 feet at a cost of $250.

The conversion of the larger part of Flint & Holton's mill into an elevator, for Messrs. Brennan & Vandevoort—as already described in these columns—cost $3,500.

Repairs, alterations and improvements in Campbell & Co.'s elevator cost $500.

Mr. J. B. Drewry changed his coal storehouse into a grain warehouse at a cost of $300.

Mr. Downey & Co. have rebuilt the north wall of their elevator, which caved out last fall, and otherwise repaired their premises at a cost of $800.

Alderman Doyle has erected a two story building on Front Street below his hotel. The structure is intended for a store, has a frontage of 26 feet, a depth of 42 feet and a heighth of 30 feet. Peter Carey was the bricklayer and James Reddick the carpenter. Cost $1,200.

The repairs and improvements made in the Belleville pottery cost $300.

Mr. E. Burrell made an addition to his axe factory sufficient in size for the working of four new fires. The cost was trifling as the building is of the primitive frame order, but the enlargement became necessary by the increased demands for the goods manufactured at this establishment, the effect being attributable to the N. P.

In the way of rebuilding properties recently destroyed by fire, Hambly's bakery has cost $2,500; Thompson's bath factory $1,200; and James Cummins' dwellings $1,200.

A stable and wall have been erected in rear of No. 2 engine shed at a cost of $400.

The total cost of new buildings, rebuilding and repairs, as above specified, mounts to the large sum of $104,310.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 16.

THE DOMINION ELECTION LAW.—The appeal of Mr. Valin, the respondent in the Montmorenci election case, against the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada, which affirmed the validity of the Dominion election law, has been rejected by the final court of resort, the Imperial Privy Council.

CANCELLED.—The permission given by the Deputy Postmaster-General, which, during last week, merchants mailed their invoices at the one cent rate, has been cancelled. The Mail explains that it was only through misapprehension, of a letter from the department that the Postmaster in Toronto allowed the privilege.

THE EXTERMINATION OF THE BUFFALO.—The returns of the exports of the buffalo robes from the North-West show how rapid the extermination of the buffalo has been. In 1878, 16,897 robes were sent out from Fort Walsh. This year but 8,277. In 1877 the Fort Macleod figures were 30,000; in 1878, 12,797; in 1879 only 5,764.

STOCKS OF GRAIN IN CHICAGO.—The following were the stocks of grain in store in Chicago on the dates named, as reported by the State Registrar of Grain :—

	Dec. 8, 1879.	Dec. 9, 1879.
Wheat, bush.....	6,019,672	4,836,429
Corn, bush.....	2,031,235	1,296,927
Oats, bush.....	1,094,637	358,105
Rye, bush.....	277,991	172,858
Barley, bush.....	651,917	1,240,531
Total of all kinds.....	10,125,452	7,901,850

A SERIOUS CASE.—The Ottawa Citizen says: "The case of Mr. Waterbury of the St. John Post Office, has reached another legal stage. The Superior Court of New Brunswick has sustained the finding of the jury which gave him $6,000 damages. This young man was charged with dis- was afterwards clearly proven. He was refused reinstatement. And the late Government determined that nothing should done in his case. Now, two courts have awarded him damages. It remains to be seen if this Government will not be more generous, more just."

ELEVATED RAILWAYS.—The advantage of elevated railroads as a method of rapid transit in cities has been generally recognized in the United States, and the system is soon to have a considerable extension. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company have begun to prolong their line by this means. The Reading Railroad is about to follow the example, and people of Pittsburg have applied to their Council for permission to construct an elevated track in their city. Other charters have been applied for in the same State. Boston also intends making application to the Massachusetts Legislature for a charter for an elevated railroad which will connect the Highlands and other outlying points with the city.

TRADE IN MONTREAL.—The Montreal Herald of Friday, says: Wholesale trade during the past week has been quiet in all branches; still there is more doing than at the corresponding period of last year, and the prospects of the spring trade are regarded as favourable. Good features are the almost general report that payments are being met with punctuality, while the prices of staples continue steady at the recent advances, though a few articles in the grocery trade which are subject to fluctuations, such as sugar and fruit, show some decline from the figures reached during the recent period of activity. Manufactured goods have still an upward tendency, and must have while raw materials, wool, leather, iron, ect., are still advancing.

OVERDOING IT.—The Montreal Gazette says:—It is often complained of Ministers that they delay making appointments when vacancies occur, and we are inclined to think that, as a rule, the complaint is well founded. As a mere matter of policy, this delay is a mistake, for every hour that a vacancy is left open, new applicants spring into the field, and new complications, therefore arise, all of which would be avoided if the appointment were made at once. But there is such a thing as overdoing this promptness, and the Ontario Government has recently afforded an example of it. The County Attorney of the County of Peel died on Thursday last, and was not buried until Monday, and yet his successor was gazetted in Saturday's Gazette—almost before the body of the former occupant was cold. The gentleman who was appointed, Mr. Fleming, had certainly strong claims upon the Government, and we fancy no objections could be made to the appointment itself. He was probably the ablest local platform man in that district, and was always ready to go wherever the party sent him to help in their work. But it does seem as if ordinary decency should have induced Mr. Mowat to wait until the former occupant was buried before gazetting his successor.

CITY COUNCIL.

MONDAY, Dec. 15th.

Council met at 8 o'clock.

PRESENT.—His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Bronsdn, Patterson, St. Charles, Proctor, Lingham, McInnich, Dickson, Panter, Geen, Petrie, Wallbridge, Hulme, Jellett, Holden, Hambly, Doyle, Farley, Robertson, Vandusen.

Minutes of last meeting were read.

Ald. St. Charles said he thought that part of the minutes regarding printing given by the Mayor and charged to him should be rescinded, as he thought the Mayor should have a little privilege. He intended speaking of it at the last meeting but did not care to do so on account of some of the fair sex being present.

Ald. Geen, as chairman of the Printing Committee, raised a point of order. He said it was utterly impossible and absurd to think of rescinding anything that had been done at a former meeting.

Ald. Brennan said he thought the minutes of the Council were read so that if anything was wrong it could be amended.

Ald. Holden said he did not think it would be wise to strike out anything which had been recorded in the minute book, unless some one could prove that the Clerk's minutes were incorrect.

Ald. Dickson agreed with Ald. Holden regarding the erasing of anything on the minutes.

The matter then dropped.

PETITIONS.

From Geo. Boulter regarding the remission of taxes from his property destroyed by fire.

From Jas. Shelton regarding the position of Returning Officer for Coleman Ward.

From Capt. Power regarding the remission of taxes from the Queen's Hotel, on account of his not being granted a license.

From John Cook for remission of taxes.

Several accounts were read and presented.

REPORTS

The Public Works Committee's report was read, recommending that several accounts be paid.

The Finance Committee's report was read and presented.

The report of the Committee appointed to wait on the Women's Christian Association, regarding the establishment of a home for the poor and aged was read, and recommended that a certain sum be expended for that purpose.

NOTICES.

Ald. Dickson gave notice of a resolution to the effect that this Council memorialize the Ontario Legislature in favor of the continuance of the B. & N. H. R. as a colonization railway.

BY-LAWS.

Ald. Petrie asked that his notice of a By-law stand over till the next meeting.

Ald. Robertson moved the first reading of the By-law granting the extension of time to the Grand Junction Railway.

Ald. Jellett, as Secretary of the Committee regarding the public meeting for the extension of time to the G. J. R., handed in his report.

It was moved that the report of the Finance Public Works and Printing Committees be received.—Carried,

Council went into committee on Ways and and Means, Ald. Proctor in the chair.

The report of the Finance Committee was presented.

The several accounts were read and carried.

The recommendation that the grant of the be not adopted.

That the petision of the Woman's Christian be adopted —Carried.

Ald. Holden objected to that part of the report regarding the purchasing of 50,000 feet of lumber at $8 a thousand now, as the lumber might be cheaper in the spring.

Ald. Lingham, Chairman of the Public Works Committee, thought it would be wise to lay the lumber in now, as he believed it would be dearer before the logs came down in the spring.

Ald. Patterson said he agreed with the chairman of Public Works regarding the purchasing of the lumber, as he had had some experience in the business, and he thought it was prudent on behalf of the committee to purchase it.

Ald. Holden said the only objection to the passing of this was that there had been no tender for it, and he thought Mr. Sutherland would not sell it so cheap if he had prospects of a larger price in the spring.

Ald. Doyle said he thought it was economical on the part of the committee.

Ald. McInnich said as Mr. Sutherland had tendered lower than any one else, he was bound to give it, no matter whether he had prospects of a higher price or not.

Ald. Patterson moved, seconded by Ald. Lingham, that the Street Surveyor be heard regarding the quantity used and the price usually paid for it.

Ald Hambly said he thought there was no necessity for 50,000 feet of lumber. He had nothing to say regarding the price.

Mr. Taylor, Street Surveyor, stated that he paid last spring $10 to $11 and the quantity used was between 20,000 and 30,000 feet.

The motion was carried.

Ald. Lingham moved, seconded by Ald. Proctor that the usual grant of $25 be paid Michael O'Malyes.

The motion was referred to the Finance Committee.

Ald. Robertson moved, seconded by Ald. Brennan, that $135 be deducted from George Boulter's assessment as there had been some misunderstanding.—Carried.

Ald. Robertson moved that the Clerk be ordered to have a footpath built connecting the new ferry slip to Hill Island.

Ald. Dickson said he did not know whether the Local or Dominion Governments had to deal with the matter.

Ald. Patterson thought there would be nothing wrong in passing this resolution, as he had written to different parties to try and get some manufacturing or other industry established thereon, so that it would bring some revenue to the city, and he thought there should be a footpath so that they could show any one the island.

The motion was lost.

A good deal of discussion arose out of the report regarding the Mayor having spent a certain sum on printing, without being authorized by the Printing Committee, for the printing of his proclamations at different times.

Ald. St. Charles and Patterson thought that the Mayor should have a little privilege.

Ald. Farley moved, seconded by Ald. Hayne that the printing ordered by the Mayor be paid for by this Council.

Ald. Geen said as Chairman of the Printing Committee, he had only handed in his report.

Ald. Holden said he did not see why Ald. St. Charles should use those remarks. He said that Ald. Geen had been requested to make a report and he did so. It had been read and passed unanimously. He said they were just as much bound to consult the feelings of the Chairman of the Printing Committee as the Mayor. He thought the Mayor would be the last man to do so if he thought it was against the wish of the Council. He would like to know why the motion to strike out the report regarding the printing ordered by the Mayor should be made.

Moved by Ald. Jellett seconded by Ald. Hulme that the report of the Printing Committee be referred back to such committee for the purpose of the consideration of the phraseology of the same, and report again at the next meeting of the Council.—Carried.

His Worship said he did not think that he had exceeded the bounds of his office, as it had generally been the custom to allow the Mayor a little privelege in that respect.

Committee rose and reported.

Ald. Brennan moved, seconded by Ald. Patterson, that the report of the Finance Committee be referred back for the purpose of granting the sum of $50 to the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

The yeas and nays were then taken.

YEAS—Brennan, Doyle, Farley, Hayne, Holden, Hulme, Panter, Patterson, Robertson, St. Charles.—10.

NAYS—Lingham, McInnich, Dickson, Geen, Petrie, Wallbridge, Jellett, Hambly, Vandusen.—9.

Ald. Dickson read a clause of the By-law which stated that a two-thirds vote of the Council had to be taken before such a grant could be made, and he would not object to the granting of such a sum if it had been provided for above the surplus.

The report was referred back to Committee of the Whole, Ald. Vandusen in the chair.

Ald. Dickson believed this St. Vincent de Paul Society was doing a good to the City of Belleville, and he was in sympathy with it. He said they had been visited by a Committee lately who appealed for the aid of the Council in establishing a home for all creeds and classes. He would like to know what sanction the St. Vincent de Paul Society had on the City any more than any others. He said we had home societies who were doing good in a quiet way and he thought they were deserving of our support.

Ald. Doyle said Ald. Dickson was in error in part of his remarks, as the St. Vincent de Paul Society was not asking anything from the Council. We had three paupers in that Home and each one was entitled to $1.50 a week. All they asked was the amount coming due, and if the Council did not want to pay it any more let it be understood.

The report was carried.

It was moved that the Council go back into committee to amend the report that the amount of lumber be 15,000 feet instead of 50,000 feet and it was again moved in amendment that the amount be 25,000 feet.

The amendment was carried.

Ald. Holden introduced a By-law appointing Returning Officers and polling places in the several Wards for the municipal elections of 1880.

It was moved that the Council go into Committee on By-laws, Ald. Farley in the chair.

The By-law appointing Returning Officers and polling places was carried.

The Council adjourned.

It is feared Currie will be ultimately acquitted as none of the witnesses to the homicide appear willing to testify.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 16.—The mystery of the loss of the schooner Henderson off Kitty Hawk deepens. Some believe the vessel not lost, and that part of the crew were induced to tell the shipwreck story so as to let the captain retain the schooner, and also pocket $15,000 insurance.

FRANKFORT, Ky., December 16.—Governor Blackburn declares he has refused the offer of all presents, including the tender of horses and carriage by Louisville persons.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The coal companies yesterday refused to attend a meeting called to advance prices. The president of one of the companies said no change of prices could be made at present—if any, it would be a reduction. It is generally conceded that the October agreement has been broken, and that from January 1st all companies would work independently, and auction sales be resumed.

Elizabeth McCauley yesterday recovered $1,000 damages in a suit against Lewis F. Booth, whose son aged 14, while playing with a bow and arrow, shot out plaintiff's eye.

Webb, a Hoboken Councilman, Wm. D. Knapp and Jos. Emerscon, convicted of sending lottery circulars through the mails, were yesterday fined $400 and costs in the United States court.

John H. Dean yesterday presented a second Baptist Church in Harlem a plot of ground worth $15,000, for a new edifice.

The Tribune publishes a letter from Hugh McCulloch advocating his withdrawal of all small notes under danomination of ten dollars. He thinks this is the only way to secure the circulation in silver dollars.

John McEvay Paterson, a boy whose head was almost cut in two by a buzz saw a week ago, died yesterday. His case is regarded as very remarkable.

The Sun says the report from St. Louis that the sale of the Kansas Pacific Railway to Gould has been set aside, proves to have reference only to a mortgage sale of some outlying lands, which once belonged to the railway.

Cimbria from Havre.

The Times says that the Spanish House in the rubber trade has manipulated the market so as to cause a heavy rise in rubber within a few days, through fear of a short crop, which fear is really unfounded.

The Tribune announces that the contract for building the extension of the Texas and Pacific Railway from Fort Worth to El-Paso, 640 miles, has been approved by the Company, but there is some delay in the execution of the contract. Thos. A. Scott, President of the Railway, Jay Gould, Russell Sage, Geo. M. Pullman, Chas. Worrishoffer and Wm. L. Scott have undertaken to build the proposed road, receiving in payment $20,000 in bonds and $20,000 in stock per mile, which will give them absolute control of the road. The new road is expected to be in operation within two years. The connection with the Southern Pacific would give another route to the Pacific coast. At Texarkana, its eastern terminus, the Texas and Pacific Road connects with the St Louis Iron Mountain and Southern, which affords an outlet to the north and east. At Sherman it connects with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, which would give it a direct line to Wabash system.

The Sun attributes the transfer of the Texas and Pacific Railway to Colonel Scott's illness, which made it absolutely necessary to look elsewhere than to the Pennsylvania Railway syndicate for financial assistance. The Gould-Sage combination aims at the control of trans continental traffic. It is also stated that the syndicate now represented by Vanderbilt in connection with Gould, said Morton was to have an interest in the Pennsylvania railway combination and control of its western trunk lines. The object is to leave it without eastern connections with the St. Louis and San Francisco, a rival line controlled by capitalists who left Gould and his crowd out.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 16.

City and Vicinity.

KETCHESON WARD.—Mr. Richard Costello is again a candidate for a seat in the Council for this Ward. His card appears in another column.

MURNEY WARD.—M. James H. Simpson seeks election as one of the Aldermen for this ward. His card will be found in another column.

STILL RUNNING.—The upper ferry is still making regular trips, and Mr. Anderson expects to run his boat until teams can cross the ice.

GYMNASTICS.—Mr. John S. Barnes, who went to Toronto, this morning, will return early in January to start a class in gymnastics.

For Weakness of the Stomach and Bowels, SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

LIVELY BUSINESS.—An increasing freight business is now being done at this point as the earnings of the railways in the northern part of this county greatly add to it. Thirteen cars of iron ore were shipped from the depot here yesterday, for Buffalo.

L. O. L. No. 251.—The annual meeting of L. O. L. No. 241 was held at Holloway, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Robert Juby, W. M.; John Townsend, D. M.; Thomas Kelly, Chap.; W. A. Beckwith, Sec.; John Carvin, Treas.; David Corgall, D. of C.—Committee, James Bushell, Daniel Cook, George Conly, John Juby, L. Turner.

ALBERT COLLEGE.—The Michaelmas Exhibition of the Grammar School of Albert College, will be held to-morrow (Wednesday) evening in the college chapel. The attractive programme will amply repay the nominal fee for admission, which has been fixed at 10 cents. With this exhibition, the present term closes, and closes too, with auspicious signs for the next term, which begins Jan. 1.

GOOD.—The sporting editor of the Mail calls Belleville an "out of the way Canadian town." Tenacious, how small other places look in the eyes of the average Torontonian, especially when he looks through the big end of the telescope. We had imagined Belleville to be a lively and wide-awake city of 11,000 inhabitants, on the line of the great Canadian thoroughfare; but that idea has been dissipated by the pronunciamento of a resident of the "mighty metropolis."

THE WRESTLING CHAMPIONSHIP.—Regarding a rumor that Messrs Ross and Daly are to wrestle again in Montreal for the champion belt and medal, Mr. Ross states that such is not the case. He says that he and Daly have met three times, in which contests he has twice beaten the New Yorker. Having thus established his superiority, he feels that he is not bound to meet his defeated antagonist again for these trophies, although willing to meet Daly for a stake, before he leaves this city in the presence of six gentlemen, three picked by each of the contestants.

COW RESCUED.—Shortly before twelve o'clock on Sunday a cow was discovered in the river below Bleecker's dam. (It is said that the animal came over the dam, but a doubt has been expressed that this is the case). Information was conveyed to Mr. J. H. Robinson, one of the city's foremen employes, who with some of his assistants went to the rescue of the poor beast and by cutting away a portion of the sidewalk opposite Brown's Foundry were enabled to haul the cow out of her position with pulleys and ropes. Had any more time been consumed in the rescue the cow would doubtless have perished.

ILLness OF MR. MULLER.—Miss Billborough, of Marchmont, has received a telegram stating that Mr. Geo. Muller, who was announced to deliver a lecture in Bridge Street Church this week, owing to illness will not be able to fulfil his engagement.

FOR THE CENTRAL.—Edward Clancy and James Macfarlane, sentenced by the Police Magistrate on Monday last, the former to 21 months and the latter to 6 months in the Central Prison at Toronto, left here last evening for Toronto. Both were heavily ironed and were in charge of Deputy Sheriff Taylor.

HOLIDAY EXCURSIONS.—The management of the Grand Junction and North Hastings Railway, with the liberality which has always characterized it, will issue special excursion tickets at all booking stations, on December 26th and 27th, good to return on the 28th inst., and also on Dec. 31st and January 1st, good to return on the 2nd of January, at one fare for the double journey. This arrangement is a very liberal one, and we have no doubt will be largely taken advantage of.

Police Court.

TUESDAY, Dec. 16.

ASSAULT.

John O'Malyea, charged with assaulting Mrs. Fairman, was remanded until to-morrow.

THE DOG BY-LAW.

Mary Wilson, George Detlor, P Fitzpatrick, Wm. Dascon and Archie Wallace charged with not complying with the provisions of the dog by-law had their cases enlarged until to-morrow.

County Court.

MARTIN vs. BRINTNELL.—Feigned lease to try the right to certain property sigaed by the Sheriff of the County of Hastings under an execution in favor of deft against one W. H Flake, of Hungerford. Plff. claimed the property, having purchased part of it at a Sheriff's sale. The case occupied nearly three days. Verdict for plff.—Dickson for plff; Clute & Flint for deft.

New Book.

THE ILLUSTRATED HISTORY OF METHODISM, FROM THE DAYS OF WESLEY TO THE PRESENT TIME. By the Rev. W. H. Daniels, M. A., containing over 250 engravings, maps and charts.

The Methodist Book Room of Toronto is sending out this last and best volume of Methodist history. The Rev. Mr. Briggs, the newly appointed Book Steward, gives this book his most hearty commendation. It ought to be in every Methodist family. The Rev. Dr. Wedon of New York says it is "an admirable volume, written with an accuracy, a life and freshness which will insure it a deserved and wide-spread popularity." Bishop Harris says "the author has done his work well, faithfully, loyally, wisely, lovingly." Rev. Dr. Fowler says "I believe in this book. It is good reading for our people, especially for our young people. Historically it is accurate, spirited and full of life; artistically attractive and authentic, and mechanically as nearly perfect as human providence can well be." In order that this volume may have a place in every Methodist family, the price has been fixed far below the usual figures for such elaborate works. The book is beautifully printed and handsomely bound in one Royal Octavo volume of 768 pages, and is sold only by Methodist Ministers and other authorized agents.

The Rev. O. Lambly, M. A. has been appointed agent for Belleville, and will immediately introduce the book to the Methodists and general public of this city, confident that all who see this beautifully bound volume will desire to possess a copy of the same. The following is the endorsation of the popular pastor of the Bridge Street Church:

"The Illustrated History of Methodism," by the Rev. W. H. Daniels, M.A., will fill a very important place in the history of Methodism, as well as of Protestant Christendom. Being much more concise than Mr. Abel Stevens' extensive work, it is of a compass and at a price to suit the mass of readers. Then the very numerous illustrations are both rare and rich, and I believe as accurate as possible, enabling the reader to form clear conceptions of persons and objects hitherto comparatively hidden. I hope the volume may have a wide circulation, as it is designed to enrich both heart and mind, and to arrest the attention of the young.

N. R. WILLOUGHBY.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—Will you kindly allow me space in your columns to call the attention of the Street Surveyor to a very exposed place or drain which he caused to be opened at the well in Foster Ward, and which still remains open? This drain is considered to be very dangerous, as if man or beast should fall into it they might not come out alive. Then, sir, who would be in fault? I have understood that Alderman Petrie has had several promises that it should be attended to by the Street Surveyor, I would like to ask where the other Aldermen are, as we are supposed to have three for Foster Ward.

CITIZEN.

Belleville, Dec. 15, 1879.

Dairy Products.

At the International Dairy Fair, the first and second prizes for Canadian cheese were taken by Messrs. Hodgson & Sons, and the third prize by Harlow Chandler.

MR. X. A. Willard is reported to have said: "Dairying has been very profitable for twenty years. We have a foreign market for all our surplus, especially in England. England imports annually butter and cheese valued at $75,000,000. For the year ending Dec. 31, 1878, our cheese exports—the largest ever made—amounted to 134,000,000 pounds, and Canada's exports during the same time were 42,000,000. Canada is becoming our dangerous rival for England's cheese trade."

In Montreal cheese is quoted quiet and steady at 12c to 13c.

SEVERE STORM.—There has been a severe storm in the Red River country for two days. The thermometer is falling very low. Reports from different points indicate from 25° to 40° below zero. At Brecbridge special says that two children were frozen to death and two men are missing—supposed to be lost in a storm.

WHAT IS THE MATTER!—Your hair looks dry and dead, it freaks off, and is falling out. You dress it with an alcohol and oil mixture or some well advertised Hair Restorer. The hair is poisoned, it is killed. If you would restore it, cast away these things, go buy a bottle of Bearine which can be had of any Druggist, and we will guarantee a change for the better at once.

Whooping Cough is successfully treated by separating the patients beyond hearing distance of each other, and by the employment of Fellows' Hypophosphites. Whooping Cough is a nervous disease of so sympathetic a nature, that a paroxysms may be produced in one susceptable by simply hearing the cough of another person. The above named treatment has been found singularly effective.

The Struggle of The Giants.

THE CONTEST FINISHED.

ROSS THE VICTOR.

The contest reopened last night with the competition for the Graeco Roman style.

In the absence of Capt. Powers Mr. James Chevers acted in that capacity for Daly.

Time was called at 8:34, both competitors being attired as on the opening bout on Saturday evening. But little time was lost in getting together. A great deal of preliminary struggling took place in which Ross came to the correct undermost position. Both set to their feet blowing and puffing like locomotives, Daly uppermost, Daly got a powerful neck lock and essayed to turn his antagonist but Ross succeeded in breaking it and made a sharp attempt to throw Daly over his shoulders without success. Daly retaliated with like effect and both came to the carpet. A succession of struggles brought Ross to the floor several times, he on each occasion managing to avoid the tripping of his opponent.

After long struggling Daly threw Ross, and tried to turn him repeatedly, amid the clapping of hands and cheers of the audience. Daly threw the Scotchman again and again, but the latter seemed to be too agile for the wily Irishman. Five more attempts by the wily Irishman were unproductive of results for the Irishman, but at last after a brief separation they again clasped; a brief and decisive struggle ensued, which resulted in Daly's throwing Ross, amid the applause of the audience.

SCOTCH STYLE.

The continuation of this event was the last contest and was resumed it having been unfinished on Saturday evening. The contestants grasped hands and made no progress towards a clinch when Mr. Chewers for Daly, objected that as the rules stated they must clinch. The desired for wish was at once attained, and the result was Daly went down.

Some desperate struggling ensued for many moments, which resulted in both getting pretty well fagged out, Ross forcing the pace the greater part of the time, Daly threw Ross amidst the wildest excitement and the tables were soon turned on him. as Ross turned him over and held him for the required space of time amid unbounded excitement. The fall was accorded to Ross, who thus won the match.

After the belt had been presented by the Police Magistrate, in the absence of the Mayor, and the Referee and the judges had made a few remarks, the proceedings were brought to a close.

WEST HASTINGS ELECTION CASE.

Trial of the Petition Resumed

TUESDAY, Dec. 16.

Trial of the petition against Alex. Robertson, Esq., as member for West Hastings, was resumed this morning, before Chief Justice Moss and Mr. Justice Galt. The Counsel were the same as before.

JOHN JOHNSTON, mason, was the first witness sworn. He said that on the day of election he was working for Mr. Robertson, chiefly in Murney Ward; he asked Peter Morgan and John Daly to vote; spent some money that day; spent on election day $200—nearly $150 on the election; some was given to voters, and some to treating himself and friends; paid others; paid for probably fifty treats; treated only one man that he knew to be a voter, that was P. M. Daly; had treated as frequently on election day before; most of the treating was on the night after the election; did not remember all the persons he gave money to, but thought he gave as much as $75 to one man, and from that down to $1; the average paid would be about $2.50; the money which he spent was his own; had received it either from Mr. Robertson or Mr. Ashley on contract; got $50 from Mr. Robertson, which he sent for on account, on the morning of election; got $350 from Mr. Robertson on the Saturday before the election. Witness said this was not enough to pay his men, and that Robertson promised him some more on the Monday; there was a large amount due him on the building; get a cheque on the Monday for the $50; it happened there was nothing for the men to do on the day of the election nor the following day; only one man was allowed pay for election day—one McHugh, whom he paid rather than lose his service; did not remember asking one Gallagher to take McHugh to Sidney to vote; did not remember arranging to have Samuel Clarke, a laborer working on the Robertson block, to go to Sidney to vote; received $125 from Mr. Ashley shortly before the election; had borrowed $125 from Mr. McMahon about three or four weeks before the election; had since paid it back; neither gave Mr. McMahon money to spend in the election nor received any from him; got no money from any person to spend on the election, and never made any claim on him for that purpose, never expected to get back the money which he spent in that election; got the contract for Mr. Robertson's building about a month before the election; Robertson was the candidate at that time; there was the usual competition for the contract; got the job because he put in the lowest tender; was at Colonel Ward poll for a short time, but did not go into McNulty's or Walsh's; there was some talk at Sarsfield's in the evening; Mr. Falkiner was there and said something about himself; did not keep a memorandum of what money he spent on the election; charged the money to himself; on the night before the election gave money to some voters but could not remember to how many or to whom; think to three or four; they were friends of Mr. Robertson; they said they wanted to spend sums money the next day; loaned Richard Burke, plasterer, $7.00; he said he had lost some money; gave James Hughes $1.00; could not remember whether on the night before or on day of election; gave James Shevlin $7; Burke asked for a loan of $14, saying he had lost his money the day before, and lent him $7, knowing that he had not a vote; no one said that the money was to be used to influence the election; was at a gathering at Sarsfield's the night before election; asked some parties to go there; some of the Committee went over the voters' lists; did not remember any conversation; somebody said something; remember only two treats; called on one himself; it was in front of Sarsfield's where he gave the money; recollected no others to whom he gave money; gave no money to Thomas Downs nor to Thomas Cheeves; did not give to Barrows or Blythman at the polls; did not know of any man going to Murney Ward to vote in the name of Robert R. Johnson, nor heard that any one was personating him at the poll; did not know that Burrows was personating voters that day; did not hear that it was arranged for him to do so; first he had heard of it was yesterday; knew Peter Matthews; gave him $2 5c to pay his expenses in coming to vote; gave no money to Charles Hodgson; saw no money given to him; gave no money to any one to give him; on his asking, told him he had no vote; did not remember giving money to Michael Cullen; was at a meeting at R. S. Youngs; there were some there opposed to Mr. Robertson; did not remember a show of hands there; but there was some drinking; was at the convention when Mr. Robertson was nominated; was not at the meeting at which the Committees were struck; was at Mr. Robertson's office a few minutes one evening.

TO Mr. Cameron—Had not spoken to Mr. Robertson about canvassing; his money transactions with Mr. Robertson were ordinary business transactions; there was no understanding expressed or implied that any of the money was to be used for election purposes; the money which he got on the Saturday before election was due him on contract; on the day of election and the day after the carpenters were waiting for the large timbers, till which were put in, but little could be done; it is a common thing to be so stopped; McHugh was not paid to influence his vote, but to retain his services, he being a valuable man; frequently borrowed money from McMahon, irrespective of the election; treated no one with the view of influencing his vote; did not lend Shevlin the money to influence his vote; had no conversation with Matthewson until after he voted, and then gave him $2.50 to pay his expenses from Mill Point; parties to the number of from twenty to thirty, told him that they were going to vote or had voted for Mr. Robertson and he gave them money; probably ten of those had voted; had not arranged with these parties to pay them for their votes; was present only one morning of Mr. Robertson's Committee's; stayed 20 minutes and went away without taking any active part in the work.

Re-examined by Mr. Kerr—Was in two saloons during polling hours, namely Sterling's and Twinham's.

To Judge Galt—The money loaned to Burke and Shevlin was included in the amount spent on the election.

Judge Galt said Mr. Johnston would be entitled to a certificate of protection under the statute, but that he must not pursue a similar course at another election.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The Times says that the news from Afghanistan indicates beyond a doubt that a crisis has been reached in our military operations more important than any through which we have yet passed since the commencement of the war. Happily the position we occupy and the resources at our disposal appear to render us better able to meet this emergency than any that have yet preceded it, but our strength is being tested more severely than hitherto.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 16.—Orange Noble, while fox hunting in the woods in the south part of the Co. this morning, slipped on a log, the gun being half cocked went off, the charge entering his hand neck and face.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 16.—One Mountain gun was lost during Monday's engagement. Reports estimates the number of the enemy at 30,000 and their fire severe. He is confident that his ability to restore the British authority in Afghanistan, but says reinforcements are necessary.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—A correspondent writes from Afghanistan that the temporary success of Mahomed Jan over General Massy coupled with the evacuation of a position won at such a cost on the 13th inst., has evidently given the rising impetus, which it will need all our strength to overcome. Shirbur cantonments, two miles north of Cabul, are entrenched. They contain several month's supplies, though it is humiliating to feel that at the moment the Afghans have the upper hand that our only occupation is besieged. Cabul passed from our hands and its Government transferred to Mahomed in January, yet there is no cause for alarm. Though the Afghans hate us now with undying hatred, as they exhibited in 1842, there is no reason to feel apprehension of repetition of disgrace, which overtook us then.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The Viceroy of India has telegraphed that he has ample forces.

The Atty.-Gen. granted a fiat for the writ of error in the case of the Tichborne. The claimant, on the ground that matters has been put before him, justifying the discussion of the point whether two sentences of 7 years of penal servitude, one of which has just expired should not have been concurrent instead of successive.

An accidental explosion of blasting material occurred in the Wilhelmsluck salt mine at Schwabischhall, Wurtemburg. 12 miners were killed and 6 fatally injured. The miners in a panic endeavored to open the door outwards instead of inwards, thus preventing aid from reaching them before they had fallen unconscious from the effects of the fumes.

The Gold Yield.

A BRICK OF GOLD.

$40 TO THE TON.

MADOC, Dec. 16.—Mr. Powell, one of the owners of the Gladstone mine, was in this office to-day and weighed a brick of gold. This brick turned the scales at three pounds and a half, valued at $880. Mr. Powell informs us that this is the result of 143 hours crushing. The average yield to the ton was forty dollars.

WEATHER REPORTS

TORONTO, Dec. 15 — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, To brisk winds, mostly south westerly to south easterly partly cloudy to cloudy weather, with snow areas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16— Indications; For lower lakes, colder, warmer threatening snow partly as rain in southern portions.

SUMMER HEAT.—This is the season for Bowel Complaints. Green apples and cucumbers produce them, and Perry Davis' PAIN KILLER cures them. To the troubled stomach it comforts like a friend and says "peace, be still," and the wind is assuaged, and the trouble ceases. Every druggist in the land keeps the PAIN KILLER, and no other should be taken without it in his family.

MONTREAL MARKET.

MONTREAL, Dec. 16.—Flour, receipts 1,400 brls; sales none reported; market quiet and steady. The easier tone of the English and Western markets causes buyers to hold off, and the demand which is always limited at this season, is thus further curtailed. Nominal Quotations; Superiors, $6.30 to $6 35; extras, $6.15 to $6 20; fancy, $6.00 to $6.10; spring extra $5.95 to $6.00; superfine, $5.65 to $5.70; strong bakers, $6 25 to $6.50; fine, $5.25 to $5.35; middlings, $4.00 to $4 75; pollards, $3.50 to $3.60; Ontario bags, $2.90 to $3.00; city do. $3.25 to $3 30.

Grain—Wheat, U. C. spring, nominal, at $1.45. Corn retailing at 65c to 70c duty paid. Peas about 80c. Oats at 31 to 32c. Barley 60c to 70c. Rye about 75c.

Meal—Oatmeal, $4.65 to $4.75. Cornmeal $2.90.

Provisions—Butter, the market is quiet and there are but few transactions to note. A shipping lot of good medium is said to have changed hands at about 18 to 20c, as to quality. Quotations: Western 17c to 19c; Brockville and Morrisburg, 20c to 22c; Eastern Townships 21c to 23c; creameries and selections, 25c to 28c. Cheese 12 to 13½c. Pork, $17 00 to $17.50. GENERAL DEBILITY
Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written sideways in black across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague, Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I have tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully,

D. WALTER OAKES.
Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR:—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

WEST BELLEVILLE
GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT,
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of RINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers may have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are long put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has induced us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞ This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

Bilious Complaints

Arise from a morbid or unhealthy condition of the liver. This unhealthy action goes on slowly two, three, or may be four weeks, the morbid deposits gradually increasing and accumulating until the crisis arrives, the overcharged liver can contain it no longer, and a discharge of vicious bile takes place into the stomach, which produces a sickness, attended with headache and more or less unpleasant symptoms. The liver thus becomes purged of its unhealthy matter, the system suffers for a few days, then finally recats, recovers, and goes on for another period. Hence the importance of using DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which are composed entirely of medicines calculated to produce this proper discharge, and thus save the unpleasant week's illness which must else be borne. It is the most certain way to obtain relief. Beginning always, in the cases of those who are constitutionally bilious, on the appearance of the first symptoms of an attack, the attacks will be lighter every time, until they succeed finally in breaking up that morbid condition which gives rise to the disease.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily obtained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

Sold by all druggists. Send for pamphlet.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $3 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Ages on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Death of Member.	Total.
From 16 to 20 yrs.	$4.40	$2.50	$0.38

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to.

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

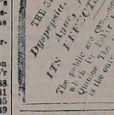

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every part of the United States and Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

The Sun for 1880.

THE SUN will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to be well abreast of the age with the least unprofitable expenditure of time. The greatest, the best-to the greatest number—that is the law controling its daily make up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking read and study and like THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction of some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party politics, faction, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, for all the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save which may be had by any purchaser for two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors fraud, sham, and deplores no nonsense of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is imp sible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the prom ters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and imsolent Administration intrenched at Washington. The Sun did something toward disl dging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. The Sun will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

THE SUN, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

WEST HASTINGS ELECTION CASE.

Trial of the Petition Resumed

TUESDAY, Dec. 16.

The following appeared in yesterday's 2nd edition :—

Trial of the petition against Alex. Robertson, Esq., as member for West Hastings, was resumed this morning, before Chief Justice Moss and Mr. Justice Galt. The Counsel were the same as before.

JOHN JOHNSTON, mason, was the first witness sworn. He said that on the day of election he was employed for Mr. Robertson, chiefly in Marney Ward; he asked Peter Morgan and John Daly to vote; spent some money that day; spent about a dollar; gave Daly $150 on the election; some was given to voters, could not say how much; treated himself and others; paid probably fifty treats; treated only one man that he knew to be a voter, that was P. M. Nulty; had treated as frequently on election day before; most of the treating was on the night after the election; did not remember all the persons he gave money to, but thought he gave as much as $7 to one man, and from that down to $1 in the evening; would be about $2 50; the money which he spent was his own; had received it either from Mr. Robertson or Ashley a month ago, go $50 from Mr. Robertson, which he sent for on account, on the morning of election; got $350 from Mr. Robertson on the day before the election. Witness said this was not enough to pay his men, and that Robertson promised him more on the Monday; there was a large amount due him on the building; got a cheque on the Monday for the $50; it happened there was nothing for the man to do on the day of election, nor the following day; only one man was allowed pay for election day—one McHugh, whom he paid rather than lose his services; did not remember asking one Gallagher to take McHugh to Sidney to vote; did not remember arranging to have Samuel Clarke, a laborer working on the Robertson block, to go to Sidney to vote; received $125 from Mr. Ashley shortly after the election; had borrowed $125 from Mr. McMahon about three or four weeks before the election; had since paid it back; neither gave Mr. McMahon money to spend in the election nor received any from him; got no money from any person to spend on the election, and never made any claim on him for that purpose; never expected to get back the money which he spent in that election; got the contract for Mr. Robertson's building about a month before the election; Robertson was the candidate at that time; there was the usual competition for the contract; got the job because he put in the lowest tender; was at Coleman Ward poll for a short time, but did not go into McNulty's or Walsh's; there was some drinking at Sarsfield's in the evening; Mr. Falkner was there and said something about himself; did not keep a memorandum of what money he spent on election day; charged the money to himself; on the night before the election gave money to some voters but could not remember to how many or whom; think to five or six four; they were friends of Mr. Robertson; they said they wanted to spend some money the next day; James Richard Burke got from him $7 00; he said he had lost some money; gave James Hughes $1 00; could not remember whether on the night before or on day of election gave James Shevlin $7; Burke asked for a loan of $14, saying he had lost his money the day before, and lent him $7, knowing that he had not a vote; no one gave him the money was to be used to influence the election; was at a gathering at Sarsfield's the night before the election; was not present when go there; some of the Committee went over the voters' lists; did not remember any specific instance of giving money to voters; remember only two treats; called on one himself; it was in front of Sarsfield's where he gave the money; recollected no others to whom he gave money; gave no money to Thomas Downs nor to Thomas Cheeves; did not see Burrows or Blythman at the polls; did not know of any man going to Marney Ward to vote in the name of Robert R. Johnson, nor heard that any one was personating him at the poll; did not know that any one was personating voters that day; did not hear that it was arranged for him to do so; first he had heard of it was yesterday; knew Peter Matthews; gave him $2 50 to pay his expenses in coming to vote; gave no money to Charles Sturgeon; saw no money given to him; gave no money to any one to give him; on his asking, told him he had no vote; did not remember giving money to Michael Collins; was at a meeting at Tom Youngs; there were some there opposed to Mr. Robertson; did not remember a show of hands there; but there were some parties in favor of the convention when Mr. Robertson was nominated; was not at the meeting at which the Committees were struck; was at Mr. Robertson's office a few minutes one evening.

To Mr. Cameron—Had not spoken to Mr. Robertson about canvassing; his money transactions with Mr. Robertson were ordinary business transactions; there was no understanding expressed or implied that any of the money was to be spent for election purposes; the money which he got on the Saturday before election was due him on the building; the money was not paid him day after the carpenters were waiting for the large timbers, till which were up, but little could be done; it is a common thing to be so stopped; McHugh was not paid to influence his vote, but to remain away; he being a Roman Catholic man; frequently borrowed money from Mc Mahon, irrespective of the election; treated no one with the view of influencing his vote; did not lend Shevlin the money to influence his vote; had no conversation with Mr. Robertson after he was elected, and from the time he got the contract for Mr. Robertson and he gave them money; probably ten of these had voted; had not arranged with a large number of parties for their votes; was present at only one meeting of Mr. Robertson's Committee; stayed 20 minutes and went away without taking any active part in the work.

Re-examined by Mr. Kerr—Was in two saloons during polling hours, namely Sterling's and Wilkinson's.

To Judge Galt—The money loaned to Burke and Shevlin was included in the amount spent on the election.

Judge Galt said Mr. Johnston would be entitled to a certificate of protection under the Statute, but that he must not pursue a similar course at another election.

SUMMER HEAT.—This is the season for Bowel Complaints. Green apples and cucumbers produce them, and Perry Davis' PAIN KILLER cures them. To the troubled stomach it comes like a balm, and says "peace, be still," and the wind is assuaged, and the trouble ceases. Every druggist in the land keeps the PAIN-KILLER, and no other should be without it in his family.

William Harrold was called, and Mr. Cameron objected that there was no specific charge regarding Harrold in the proposed additional particulars.

The Chief Justice advised Mr. Kerr that he had better see whether or not the Court would allow additional particulars to be added.

Mr. Kerr then proceeded to state the application.

Mr. Cameron objected to new particulars being added, the adjournment not having been made for the purpose of allowing them to fish for evidence. The final proposed addition he objected to as a vague and general charge, which would not have been sufficient in the original particulars. He had no objections to the railway charges, and to the substitution of one person for another in the original particulars. He offered affidavits from all the persons charged denying them.

Mr. Kerr contended that the petitioner was entitled under the statute to show that there was general corruption, without the necessity of specifying particular persons.

The Court ruled that they must be confined to the evidence of Burke and Harrold on this particular charge.

WILLIAM HARROLD then testified that he had worked on the Robertson block for Mr. Robertson; he tried on election day to induce voters to support Mr. Robertson; had always money with him; spent none that day on election purposes; might have bought a drink in the morning; neither offered nor promised money to any one; did not offer or show any money to Patrick Weyms; did not tell him or any other person that his side had all the money; did not offer any money to any elector; did not take any one to the polls to vote; might have spent 15 cents on the day of election; no one's money but his own passed through his hands that day; got no money from Johnston.

To Mr. Cameron.—Am not a voter.

RICHARD BURKE, sworn.—Supported Mr. Robertson in the election; asked two persons to vote on election day—John Shea and his father; gave no money and held out no inducements; asked two or three persons to use their teams, namely, Slaven, Kehoe, and he thought Cullen; might have asked others; could not say whether or not he promised them pay; got no money from Johnston for election purposes; James Shevlin got $14, he thought from Johnston, and he got half of it; could not tell what Shevlin got the money for; think Shevlin said when giving him the money, "here's a whack"; did not give the money to influence votes, before or after voting; had no vote and did not vote; the money was not given him to pass to some one else; gave Sarsfield $3 the next day; got $5 from Eugene McMahon on election day; he did not say what it was for; supposed it was to be used in the election; borrowed $15 from McMahon two weeks before the election; gave him an I. O. U. for it; had not yet paid it; did not borrow it to use in the election; the $5 was given him on the afternoon of election day; was for a few minutes at one meeting in Mr. Robertson's office, listening to what was going on.

To Mr. Cameron.—John Shea said he did not vote; did not see Johnston give Shevlin the money; had spoken to Johnston about money; had borrowed from him at different times, also from McMahon; never had any conversation with Mr. Robertson about the election, further than general conversation; did not arrange to canvass or work for him.

SAMUEL MACONNELL, sworn.—I live in town and am a voter; at the time of the election I was working on the Grand Junction Railway and came in on a van to vote; others came in with me, about six or seven from the work and in stopping at the gravel pit, two or more were added to the party. David Robertson and some one else came after us. They said they wanted us to come into the city and vote, and we would get our pay for the day; the foreman and Mr. Fauquier said this; Mr. Robertson gave me to understand it would be all right; I would not have come to town if I were to lose my day's pay; I understood the whole of us men to be paid for the day; while coming in on the van there was drinking going on from a bottle; I understood that Mr. D. B. Robertson was acting for Mr. A. Robertson; I spoke to the latter afterwards on the street about my pay; he said he could not help it.

To Mr. Cameron—Mr. Fauquier said if we came back on the same day we would get a full day; I was not induced to vote for Mr. Robertson nor was I influenced to do so; nothing was said as to whom I would vote for; Mr. D. Robertson did not induce me to vote; I returned the same day to work, but a half day was taken from me.

TIMOTHY HOGAN, sworn.—I was working on the G. J. R. at the time of the last election and I came in to vote from where I was working in a van; I don't know who came for me; it was a sandy complexioned man I think who came for me; there was a bottle in the van; it laid near the stove; Mr. Fauquier said we could go to vote if we desired; he also said could go to vote if we desired; he also said could get back the same day we would get our day's pay; I do not know whom I was wanted to vote for; I did not hear the stranger man say for whom I should vote.

JOHN STINSON, sworn—I was working on the G. J. R. beyond Sarsfield's on the day of the election; a van was brought out to bring us in and we went in that; I was asked for whom I was going to vote and I replied for Mr. Robertson; it was generally discussed in the van that we would get our day's pay; I expect the van was brought out especially to bring us in and it took us from our work away without taking any active part in the work.

Re-examined by Mr. Kerr—Was in two saloons during polling hours, namely Sterling's and Wilkinson's.

To Judge Galt—The money loaned to Burke and Shevlin was included in the amount spent on the election.

Judge Galt said Mr. Johnston would be entitled to a certificate of protection under the Statute, but that he must not pursue a similar course at another election.

Court resumed at a few minutes before two o'clock.

GEORGE HUMPHRIES testified that he saw Mr. D. B. Robertson a few days before the election at Kyle's hotel early in the morning; there had been a fire; considerable treating took place; D. B. Robertson asked him his reasons why he did not support Mr. Alex. Robertson, he gave his reasons, and he said witness was quite right; there were 14 or 15 persons there, and several treats were called; did not hear him urge Mr. Robertson's claims; told the boys they should not go back on Robertson.

WILLIAM HALL deposed to being at Kyle's tavern on the occasion spoken of by last witness; D. B. Robertson treated several times, he said "thurah, burah, for Alex"; he said he hoped they would not go back on Alex.; there was nothing said about witness or his team; he took Humphries aside and spoke to him, and witness shortly after left the room; there was no talk then or ever about witness or his team.

WILLIAM LOTT was sworn and said he was at the poll in Bleecker ward for half an hour or three quarters of an hour; received no money from any one; there were three bottles of ale at the rear part of the polling place, in the cellar; went down with John Lafontaine, who said there was some ale there which had been brought there for his dinner; drank once; he did not speak to witness about his vote, because he didn't; Lafontaine was scrutineer for Robertson.

To Mr. Cameron.—The glass of beer had no effect on his vote; had not worked in the election.

D. B. ROBERTSON was sworn, and stated that he was a member of Mr. Robertson's Baldwin Ward Committee; was appointed incidentally; attended a committee meetings on one or two occasions; looked after voters working on the Grand Junction Railway, being Secretary to the Company; it was thought the vote of the men was largely in favor of Robertson; this was not discussed at the Ward Committee meeting, but with other supporters of Mr. Robertson, who might have spoken of it to him, but not specially; at his request and that of Mr. Rickford sent in a train to bring in all the Belleville voters who wished to vote; said he would take the men to vote and bring him to the train and asked for Belleville voters; did not ask how they would vote; did not know of any who said they were not; of Robertson men, they all seemed favorable to Mr. Robertson; had a little bottle or two; we seldom travel in the train of the company without these safeguards against accidents; gave the men nothing to drink before they started; told the men to have a drink after they got to the stove, where the whiskey was; the trouble was that the fire soon went out, and a new supply could not be got; a conveyance was waiting at the train and the men were driven to the polls; nothing was said about the expense; suppose Mr. Rickford paid the cost.

To Mr. Cameron—Made no agreement as to paying for the train.

Re-examined—Had no conversation with Wm. Hale about his teams; asked Mr. Nicholson to use his horses, and told him he could not pay him; knew of no money being spent.

THOMAS WALSH was sworn, and testified that there was liquor in his house on election day as was pretty well on others, and did not remember who he treated; asked men on both sides to go in; did not canvass votes.

To Mr. Cameron—Wilkinson was Wilkieson who gave him the whiskey; Wilkinson is a brother-in-law of Mr. Meagher, who was a Holden man.

Mr. Kerr asked to add the case of Peter Arkles as one of personal bribery, of which notice was given on Saturday last, when the petitioner first heard of it.

Mr. Cameron objected, as Mr. Robertson had made an affidavit totally denying the charge, and more over Mr. Robertson when ill had received a threatening letter from Arkles, stating that if money was not given him, he would appear and swear against him.

Justic Galt expressed himself strongly against allowing such an application, which was not even made on affidavit, on a postponement which was granted simply for the purpose of hearing the witnesses in question.

The Chief Justice said there was not a bit of use in going into this particular in view of Mr. Robertson's affidavit.

Mr. Cameron asked was there any evidence beside that of Arkles, who had written a blackmailing letter in support of it?

Mr. Kerr urged that it was not proven that Arkles had written the letter produced Mr. Robertson might not deny such statement as Mr. Arkles would make.

The Court overruled the application, the Judge considering the attempt to put in such evidence in severe terms.

Henry Bleecker was called and testified that he did not ask any one to drink at Walsh's on the day of election; was spoken to by Sarsfield's partner, who said he had pledged himself to Holden; went up stairs where there were a number of friends, said good bye and left; was not there after any drinking going on.

To Mr. Kerr—There was quite a number in the room at Sarsfield's, probably 25 or 30; when I went there those present were sitting about chatting; I was told on the street that a meeting of my friends was being held at Sarsfield's; I saw Sarsfield at the Coleman Ward poll on the day of election; I asked him then to vote for me, but had not done so before; I think Sarsfield took me by chance to see one Taugher; there was no account rendered to me for any entertainment furnished at Sarsfield's; Johnston did not appear from his evidence—was a very active supporter of mine; I spoke to him about voters and had particulars as to their names; I asked Johnston as well as many others to do what he could for me; I don't think Johnston was present at the meeting of the campaign organization committee; I never canvassed John Osborn for his vote; I canvassed part of Coleman ward with W. Ash Osborn; I looked after my own canvassing myself; I selected the persons who were to act as my agents at the polls.

E. D. SHERWOOD, sworn—At the last election I was a supporter of Mr. Roberts—both the men whose votes are questioned at the Ketchesoe Ward poll were brought there; I do not know either of them. Lawrie or Blythman; I did not say that a man named Burrows had no vote after he had voted; I never threatened Thomas Nicholson, although I had canvassed him; I never attempted to intimidate him in any way.

By Mr. Kerr—I never saw Lawrie, and do not know him now; I had no conversation with John Johnston about persons coming forward to put in absent votes; I did not know that money was wanted to get votes, nor did I talk about it; when Burrows came up, I went in to the poll with him; the man said his name was Lawrie, as did also the teamster; I did not have any idea that man was personating any one; I remember a man going in to vote as John McLaren, who refused to take the oath; I never spoke to Nicholson about corporation work, and I did not give him to understand that if he did not vote as I wanted him to, he would get no work on the corporation.

This closed the defence.

Mr. Kerr offered the examination of the respondent, to which Mr. Cameron demurred.

The Chief Justice said it could not now be put in, and after further discussion the application was refused.

In opening the argument for the petitioner, Mr. Kerr submitted that the election should be voided on account of the bribery committed by Johnston and Sarsfield. In the case of the latter Maloney, Harris and Cahill were paid, and four others whose names were not noted. With regard to Johnston, it was proved that Daly and McHugh's votes were bought and that Wickett and three others in his employ had their wages paid for the election day. A man named Weyms was also interested pay for driving his team on election day. Johnston had also given money to others on this day, and in view of his having $200 on the day of the election and having disposed of all, he contended that at least 60 persons had been tampered with. Burke was also guilty of bribery and received pay therefor. Kehoe had also been asked to bring out his team for the purposes of the election and he was promised pay therefor, which also was a corrupt act. He also submitted that the petitioner was entitled to rely on the bribing of Bartholemew Shipp of Hungerford have long felt, that if they wished to retain their most industrious and capable farmers, and to entice men of enterprise and thrift to locate in their midst, a railway for the carrying of the products of the farm was a necessity.

That end can now be attained by the small outlay of $1.44 on the $1,000 of assessment of every ratepayer in the Township, and it remains with them to say by their votes on the 23rd, if for so small an outlay they will let the present chance slip.

There may be a few ratepayers living in the front of the Township and along the gravel road who might think the railway would be of no use to them personally, but they should remember that the great advantage they have long enjoyed in being situated in close proximity to a gravel road is not shared in by the greater part of the ratepayers of the Township, and that the gravel road, which is of so much benefit to them, is kept up, not by themselves alone, but by a direct tax upon every ratepayer in the Township, no matter how far distant his location may be from that road, or how little he may use it. Therefore a feeling of fair play should influence the ratepayers who enjoy the advantage of a nearness to the gravel road to help their neighbors who may not be so fortunately situated, and who have paid in equal pre. portion for the maintainance of the gravel road.

The siding at the junction with the County road running north from the village of Thomasburg, will make that place the shipping point for the entire southern part of the Township, so that a grain market will at once be established in that village, or we much mistake the enterprise of its inhabitants. With grain markets at Thomasburg and at Tweed, the want so long felt of a home market will be supplied to almost the entire Township.

The farmers of Madoc have this year been reaping the benefits of their liberal support to the North Hastings Railway, to which they gave three times the amount asked of the township of Hungerford by shipping their entire year's crop over that Road. The taxpayers of the Township of Hungerford, if they can thus secure equal advantages at less than one third of the cost to each individual—an expenditure which would be much more than repaid to them in due season — will be sadly neglectful of their own interests if they do not pass the By-law by a very large majority.

FRAUDS AT THE DOMINION EXHIBITION.—The Ottawa Chief of Police has published particulars connected with the gate frauds at the late Dominion Exhibition. It appears there was no check kept. He knows from personal experience that more people paid the entrance fee than the sum returned represented. Men took the money at the gates contrary to orders. He produces a lot of evidence in favor of his representations. There can be no doubt about it but that extensive frauds were practised.

THE NORTH-WEST.—Mr. G. Hepple Hall, of England, is in Ottawa looking up data to aid him in prosecuting his further journalistic work, the subject of which is Canada. Manitoba, Peace River, Winnipeg and the Assiniboine are, he says, household words in Great Britain, and a flood of emigration may be expected to the North-west in the summer. He expects to bring out a colony of Devon farmers next season, and should his researches prove successful, these desirable immigrants will have arrived by this time next year, and will have been successfully located. Mr. Hall's book is entirely a personal venture, and for its successful sale he relies upon the growing desire of Englishmen to know something of the new country. He speaks of the York River route as really the natural outlet to the North-West trade, and points to the Hudson Bay Company's vessels, which visit York River and other stations in the North, to show that the route can be navigated easily during three or four months of the year. Fast-sailing steamers could supply the service, and the shortest route for grain to England is at once accomplished.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—The employees at the packing houses decided to strike this afternoon. The packers will remove their business from Chicago rather than submit.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 17.—Dr. Chas. A. Smith was arrested, charged with producing abortion on a servant girl, Ellen Singer, on the confession of the girl. The girl's statement also designates a well known lawyer, holding high position and married, as the father of the child.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 17.—Thomas Martin, a wealthy widower, has been summoned before the independent Methodist Church Commission, of which he is a member, to answer to the charge of breaking an engagement to marry Miss Hattie Frazer on Dec. 4. The wedding party gathered but Martin failed to appear. Miss Frazer's mother fell ill from the shock caused by the affair and died on Saturday.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 17. — Wm. G Strickland, who eloped last week with Miss Kitty Seymour Beckwith, returned with his bride yesterday and called at the Beckwith Mansion to ask for forgiveness. Beckwith refused his daughter admission.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17. —The Times' Augusta, Me., says the plan is to make Smith the Greenback candidate for Governor. It is said to be the purpose of fusion leaders, and then to undertake partisan bribery. Investigation on the strength of bribes, which they expect to seat fusion candidates for representatives from Portland, Lewiston, Augusta, Rockland, Bath, Saco and Hallowell. The scheme is to gerrymander the state after the Ohio plan in the interest of Pillsbury, who aims to be Hamlin's successor.

MARSHALL, Tex., Dec. 17.—The hearing of the Currie habeas corpus was postpond on application of the attorney Spiery, until Dec. 31. He states the only hope is in attendance of Marion Barrymore or Miss Cummings, both of whom were witness of the murder of the actor Porter by Currie.

PRESCOTT, Arizona, Dec. 17.—The Chihuahua Indians who fled at the time of the removal of the tribe to San Carlos reservation have surrendered, and say they want to be friendly.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Samuel Johnson, Court Stenographer at Newark, yesterday became insane, it is said from religious excitement. It is stated that Johnson's two sons also show signs of insanity.

John Casey, carpenter, of this city, yesterday showed insanity owing to religious excitement. He rushed into the street in his night garments and fought three policemen, seriously injuring one.

The Herald says that Edison states that he intends to exhibit his electric light on New Year's if the Company controlling it will permit.

The World says editorially that Gov. Garcelon and his advisors have made a serious political and moral mistake. They have nullified the will of the people of Maine, as expressed at the latest election on account of the technical errors and oversights committed not by the electors, but by the local canvassers.

County Court.

ELLIOTT vs. LEAVENS.—Action for distraining property off premises for which rent was due. Plff. loaned one W. B. Wemp $100 and took a chattel mortgage to secure repayment of the money. Wemp rented a building from deft. known as the "Grand Central Hotel." The rent was not paid up and Wemp removed the property off the premises to prevent distress. Deft., pursuing what he thought his rights, issued a landlord's warrant and had the property which had been removed seized, among which was the property covered by the chattel mortgage. The case occupied the attention of the Court nearly three days. Verdict for .—Holden, Burdett & Anderson for plff; Clute for deft.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 17.

The North-West.

A telegram from Ottawa on the 13th inst. conveys the following important information:—"Mr. L. Tupper, of the Canada Pacific Survey, who was sent out by the Government in May last to make an exploratory survey of the North-West, between Edmonton and the Rocky Mountains, has returned to the city. He speaks in the most glowing terms of the fertility of the soil and the salubrity of the climate. In his opinion there is no part of Manitoba that can compare with it in the production of wheat. There is considerable timber and an abundant supply of running water, and grasshoppers have never been known to exist there. Gold is found on the Saskatchewan in paying quantities for 100 miles above, and the same distance below Edmonton. Referring to the Indian who murdered his wife and four children near Fort Saskatchewan, and then ate them, he says: "On the way home Dr. Dawson, of the Geological Survey, called at Fort Saskatchewan, where the Indian is incarcerated. He took a photograph of the cannibal and also of the bones of his victims. The Indian was captured by Col. Jarvis, of the Mounted Police, who, on shaking hands with him, slipped the handcuffs on him before he had time to offer any resistance. He is described as a powerful Indian, with a face bearing a maniacal expression. When the remains of the murdered family were found by Captain Gagnon, it was discovered that the savage brute, not content with devouring the flesh, had actually gone as far as to break up the bones and make soup out of them, using the skull of one of the children to sup it up with. The cannibal has been sentenced to be hanged, but has asked to be shot instead. Several cases of cannibalism are on record in that district, but none of them of recent date."

The Hungerford Bonus.

On the 23rd inst., the qualified electors of the Township of Hungerford will be asked to decide by their votes if they are willing to aid by way of bonus a line of Railway from that Township to the front.

The Township has many natural advantages, such as good soil and fine water power, which with the benefits to be derived from railway communication to the front would make it one of the most flourishing townships in the county. It is now within the power of the ratepayers to determine by their votes if they will encourage the scheme to build a railway into their Township, or remain as now, with land at half the value for want of railway communication to the front, as the day is past when land can be sold to advantage if situated at a long distance from market. It is within the memory of many residents of the township when the scheme for building gravel roads throughout the county was inaugurated, it was with great exertion and at a heavy cost that that project was carried to a successful conclusion. With gravel roads came the dawning of prosperity to the county, and particularly to the northern townships.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 17.

City and Vicinity.

LATE.—The mail from the west was two hours late to-day.

IRON ORE.—Seventeen cars of iron ore from Madoc went west yesterday.

POLICE.—There were one prisoner and four tramps in the cells last night.

MORE SNOW.—There was a further fall of two inches of snow last night, and the sleighing is now good.

ALBERT COLLEGE.—The Michaelmas term of Albert College closes this evening with the usual exhibition at 7.30 o'clock.

OYSTER SUPPER.—The workmen employed at Tickell's furniture manufactory will have an oyster supper at Hambly's on Friday night.

FOR MADOC.—Messrs. A. E. Fish & Co., of Belleville, have opened a branch of their store at Madoc. Mr. Estes Thompson has been appointed manager.

MEETING.—A meeting of the St. George's Society, to which all Englishmen are invited, is to be held at Ald. Hulme's office, Campbell Street, at 8 p. m. on Monday.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL.—A Christmas festival is to be held in the Methodist Church, Roslin, on the evening of Christmas day. There will be addresses and vocal and instrumental music.

CHRISTMAS TREE.—The ladies of the St. Thomas' Church congregation will have a Christmas tree and sale of useful and fancy articles in the Metropolitan Hall to-morrow afternoon and evening. Particulars can be learned from the advertisement.

IMPORTANT TO MARINERS.—On and after the opening of navigation, in the spring of 1880, a fixed red light will be exhibited from the beacon on the West pier at the entrance to Charlotte harbor, mouth of the Genesee river, New York, instead of the fixed white light heretofore shown.

SEPARATE SCHOOL EXAMINATION.—An examination of the pupils of the 1st Division of the Separate School, which is under the care of Mr. T. O'Hagan, will take place to-morrow afternoon commencing at half past one o'clock. The examination of the 2nd Division will commence on Friday morning.

FURTHER DISCOVERIES.—Another extensive bed of iron ore has been discovered only two and a half miles from the village of Madoc. Mr. Adam Airbart has discovered a large deposit of asbestos on lot 9 in the 5th concession of Lake. These discoveries are both of an important character.

CONVERSAZIONE.—It will be seen by advertisement that a conversazione will be held in the rooms of the Workingmen's Temperance Association on Thursday evening, Dec. 18th. The Mechanics' Institute, under whose auspices the conversazione is held, offer a select musical and literary programme for the evening's entertainment. No doubt the rooms of both associations will be filled on the occasion.

TEA MEETING.—A tea meeting is to be held in the Methodist Church at Moira on the evening of Tuesday, the 30th inst. Tea will be served at 6 p. m., after which there will be addresses and music.

ERRATUM.—In our issue of the 13th inst. the amount of barley shipped from Rednerville during the past season was stated at 5,200 bushels. It should have been 52,000 bushels.

THE THURLOW REEVESHIP.—We are authorized to state that Mr. J. H. Peck has determined to remain in Thurlow, and has consented to become a candidate for Reeve for the Township of Thurlow at the approaching municipal election of 1880.

SURPRISE PARTY IN THE R. C. PARSONAGE.—On Monday evening last the congregation and friends of the R. Christian congregation presented Mrs. William Gordon, their organist, with a set of china. An address was read by the Pastor of the church, to which Mrs. Gordon made a very touching and feeling reply.

HOLIDAY EXCURSIONS.—In our local notice of the holiday excursions via the Grand Junction and North Hastings Railway, the date was wrongly stated. Special excursion tickets will be issued at all booking stations on December 24th and 25th, good to return on the 26th inst.; and also on the 31st December, and January 1st, good to return on the 2nd of January at one fare for the double journey. For full particulars see advertisement.

For Weakness of the Stomach and Bowels, SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

TO BE AGAIN CONTESTED.—The heavy weight championship, though accorded to Ross on Monday evening by his victory over Daly, is once again in question, an order by telegraph having been received by the former to day that he should again contest with the Hibernian for the champion belt at Montreal or proceedings would be instituted in the Canadian Courts for the recovery of the same. Another despatch announces the headquarters of Mr. Wardrope—one of the company who are the donors of the belt—in Montreal. The present champion considers that he is the subject of unjust treatment, as having now defeated Daly—as he states three times—the latter should be debarred from entering into any more contests with him. Ross stated before Daly's departure, that if the latter was dissatisfied with the treatment accorded him in the recent match, he (Daly) could select another referee, and have another contest in private—a proposition to which the latter would not accede. However, Ross is determined to hold the belt, and will proceed to the commercial metropolis on the midnight train, and again try conclusions with this son of the Emerald Isle. Ross complains—and we think justly so—that challenges should come to him, and he should name the place of meeting, but his right—if such he has—is not regarded. He states that he will insist on the contest coming off in private.

Board of Education.

TUESDAY, Dec. 14.

The Board met at the usual hour.

PRESENT.—Messrs. W. A. Shepard, Chairman, McGinnis, Dr. Wilson, Dr. Tracy, A. Diamond, Peck, Newbery, Vandelan, Tennant, Northcott, Docter and Rev. J. W. Burke.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mr. Diamond presented the report of the Committee on School Management as follows:—

Your committee have had under consideration the circular of the Minister of Education in reference to the formation of companies or associations for military drill in connection with the Universities, Colleges, Normal and High Schools of the Provinces. We approve of the formation of a company for drill in connection with the High School of this city, and recommend that the Principal of the High School be instructed to take the names of the pupils of his school who will be willing to enroll themselves as members of this company.

Your Committee approve of the petition of the Clinton High School Board and recommend that said petition be signed for and on behalf of this Board by the Chairman and Secretary-Treasurer thereof, sealed with the Corporation seal and forwarded—one copy to the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario and the other to the member of the Local House, by him to be presented to the Legislature of Ontario.

Signed on behalf of the Committee,
W. JOHNSON,
Chairman.

Belleville, 16th Dec. 1879.

The report was considered in Committee —Dr. Tracy in the chair—and adopted.

Mr. Peck moved, seconded by Mr. Newbery, that the following persons be and are hereby appointed Returning Officers for holding the school elections for 1880:

FOSTER WARD.—John Covert, in a building known as Covert's shop.

ALBERT COLLEGE WARD.—Frank Clarke, in the Police Court room.

KETCHESON WARD.—George Adams, at the first shop east of Dr. Allen's office, Campbell Street.

BALDWIN WARD.—Richard Taylor, at No. 2 fire station.

BLEECKER WARD.—John Northcott, in Mrs. Eaves' shop, Mill Street.

COLEMAN WARD.—D. C. Curtis, in the building owned by him on North Front Street.

MURNEY WARD, No. 1.—John Bell, at the house of Edward Devine, Murney Street, for receiving notes.

MURNEY WARD, No. 2.—Peter Maybee, in the building known as Spong's new store, south Bridge Street, for nomination and reviewing notes.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. A. Diamond, seconded by Dr. Tracy, that the Secretary-Treasurer of this Board be and is hereby instructed to provide and furnish a list of voters' poll books to the several Returning Officers at the ensuing election of School Trustees for the year 1880.—Carried.

The Board adjourned.

THE WINCHESTER MURDER.—Mrs. Brown of West Winchester, was arrested on the 16th charged as an accomplice and a participant in the murder of her husband and daughter. In the examination before the bench of magistrates some startling evidence, bearing strongly against the prisoner, was given by a young woman who had for a number of years been a servant of the family.

Police Court.

(Before A. DIAMOND, P. M.)

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 17.

THE DOG BY-LAW.

Peter Maybee for non-compliance with the provisions of the dog by-law, had his case laid over.

LARCENY.

The adjourned case of horse stealing preferred by J. T. Lattimer against James Vandervoort was resumed.

C. L. Coleman, Esq., County Attorney, appeared for the Crown, and Henry Bleecker for the defence. Several witnesses were examined and the case was continued till 2.30 p. m.

FROM MADOC.

A Brick of Gold.

MADOC, Dec. 17.—The statement yesterday as to the value of the brick of gold shown here was slightly wrong. It should have read—value seven hundred and seventy dollars, instead of eight hundred and eighty.

FROM LIMA.

GREAT BATTLE.

Defeat of Allied Army.

PANAMA, Dec. 6.—Advices from Lima to November 25 bring intelligence of an important battle at a place called San Francisco on November 18th. The allied Peruvians and Bolivians under Buendia, numbering about 12,000, attacked the invading army. The Chilians were in strongly entrenched positions. The allies were defeated with a loss of 3,000. The ardor of the Bolivians is said to be cooling since the loss of the Huascar. Discontent is rapidly spreading in the Bolivian army. The Chilian frigate Blanco Esmeralda on the 18th captured the Peruvian gunboat Pilcomay. The outlook for the Peruvians, both on land and water, is anything but favorable. The Government has issued a decree ordering that all silver mined in the country shall be subject to purchase by the Government at a fixed rate in paper. An export duty on sugar has also been decreed.

The battle at San Francisco must have been disastrous in the extreme. Part of the allied army is reported at Tarapaca on the 22nd, and the whereabouts of the remainder is a mystery. Before the battle Gen. Daza, with 4,000 Bolivians left Tacua to join Bueda, but after a two days march the troops refused to advance and returned to Arica.

Trouble is anticipated between the Peruvian forces and their singular allies, as suspicions of treachery are strong, the Prefect of Iquique, General Lavalle, having sent all his men to Gen. Buendia and turned the town over to the foreign Consuls even before a demand for it surrender by Chilians had been made, and took the first steamer for Arica. He will be punished for his cowardly action.

At Lima the outlook is decidedly unsatisfactory. Dictatorship is spoken of freely. Efforts are being made to again build up the strength of military organization. The leading journals appeal to the patriotism of the people, who are still enthusiastic for war.

The latest advices from Arica give fuller particulars of the battle of Sanfrancisco. Buendia, after a combat of three hours, ended-several to take heights where the Chilians were entrenched, well protected by artillery and mitrailleuse, but was obliged to retire at nightfall. General Lapuerta has issued an inspiriting proclamation announcing that steps have been taken to repair the recent disaster. There are plenty of troops and arms at hand and other war material is expected shortly.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—Daoud Shah, formerly Commander in Chief of the Afghan army, has been pressing to co-operate with the British. His arrest would seem to indicate the discovery of proof of his perfidy in the massacre of the British embassy, on which occasion he was sent by the Ameer to quell the revolt and publicly received the thanks of the British officers for his pretended efforts to assist Cavagnari.

PARIS, Dec. 17.—Last night's vote in the Chamber of Deputies on the order of the day accepted by the Cabinet was 255 to 57, thus showing that Government was not supported by a majority in a full house; hence the vote does not strengthen the position of the Cabinet. A hundred more Communists have been pardoned.

A London despatch says that news from Afghanistan grows hourly more serious. It is feared the tragedy of 1842 may be repeated, and the entire British force now in Afghanistan be annihilated. Private advices from Calcutta give a view of the situation far more alarming than the authorities permitted to be made public.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 17.—A London correspondent states that the decision of the Attorney-General to reopen the case of the Tichborne claimant was influenced by the citation in the decision in the case of Wm. M. Tweed, on the question of cumulative or concurrent sentences.

CLARKSVILLE, Ja., Dec. 17.—The business portion of this place was burned on Sunday morning. Loss $40,000. The fire originated in the store which is supposed to have been first robbed and then fired.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The liabilities of Dr. Wm. K. White, who recently failed, reach $108 000. He was trustee of the Evening Mail newspaper, and it was claimed that he was liable for its debts. He made an assignment of the claims against him on account of the Evening Mail which aggregate to nearly $60,000.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. Dec. 17th.—Information from Yokohama states that the son of the late Capt. Nathaniel Weeks of this city was washed overboard from the ship Grandee during a gale off Vandieman's Land and was drowned, the ship's carpenter was also lost at the same time.

PHILADELPHIA Dec. 17.—General Grant arrived at Carpenter's Hall about 10.45; the hall was handsomely decorated; the General was briefly welcomed by ex-minister Welsh, who presented an engrossed address from the Carpenters Company. After accepting it the members of the Carpenters Company and families were presented and a general hand shaking took place.

ALTOONA, PA., Dec. 17.—The Altoona City brewery, owned by Martin Halls, was burned this morning. Loss $40,000. Several men who were sleeping in the building escaped by jumping from the windows.

The War in Afghanistan

A Crisis Reached in British Military Operations.

The Losses of the Past Week.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The Times says: The news from Afghanistan indicates beyond a doubt that a crisis has been reached in our military operations more important than any through which we have yet passed since the commencement of the invasion. Happily the position we occupy and the resources at our disposal, appear to render us better able to meet this emergency than any which have yet preceded it. But our strength is being taxed more severely than hitherto.

The Viceroy of India telegraphed yesterday that he had ample forces.

A Chatham despatch says that in view of the serious nature of the late intelligence from Afghanistan, troops are now under orders for India, to be despatched earlier than was originally intended. The grave nature of the situation will delay the departure from India of some regiments which were about to return after a long service in India.

A most difficult position of the enemy was gallantly carried yesterday. Later in the day our troops lost the position which they had before taken.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 16.—One mountain gun was lost during Sunday's engagement. Gen. Roberts estimates the number of the enemy at 20,000. Their fire was severe. He is confident of his ability to restore British authority in Afghanistan, but says reinforcements are necessary.

A correspondent writes from Afghanistan that the temporary success of Mahomed Jan over General Massey, coupled with the evacuation of the position won at such cost on the 13th inst., has evidently given the rising an impetus which will need all our strength to overcome. The Shirpur cantonments, two miles north of Cabul, are entrenched. They contain several months' supplies. Though it is humiliating to feel that at the moment the Afghans have the upper hand, and that our army of occupation is besieged, yet there is no cause for alarm. Though the Afghans hate us now with the undying hatred they exhibited in 1842, there is no reason to feel apprehensive of a repetition of the disgrace which overtook us then.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

In such a position as this most children of his age would have cried with terror. But these are children who know what love and care are, who have been accustomed to be watched over and protected, who have always had kind friends to lean upon and trust to. Charlie had no past experience of this kind to form a great contrast to his present untoward condition, and cause him to feel afraid and helpless. Never through the whole of his little life had he known what watchful love or tender nursing were, but had been left very much to himself. Before they went to reside in Gallina Court —when Bet had her shop in Brown Street —the children he associated with there had friends to love and care for them, and when they were at play they would be called in by kindly voices, while Charlie had to go solitarily home, and after eating his supper in silence, go as solitarily and neglected to bed. Not having known anything different from this the little fellow did not feel it, nor greatly envy those whose lot was so much happier than his own, and for this same reason he could better bear the isolation of his present position. Poor thing, he did not know the cruel wrong that had been done him, almost in the very hour of his birth, when, by the authors of his being, he was consigned to strangers, and inquired no more after—when the voice of nature was not allowed to assert itself concerning him, but when with most unnatural callousness, he was sent away as a rejected thing, and willingly lost to all further knowledge. Charlie knew nothing of this, and just as little did he know that those with whom he had hitherto lived had deserted him, and that now he was wholly and utterly cast on the world—left to the fitful chance of a cold charity, no one caring whether he lived or died. Had he been capable of knowing and estimating this hard fate at that moment his little heart would have been crushed with despair, but the very incapacity of childhood kept him from this, and his former joyless experience made his present desertion less bitter to bear.

So he went on from street to street, tired, hungry, and footsore, but quite calm and collected. It was now the small hours of the Sabbath morning, and the thoroughfares were silent and forsaken. Still more so were the by-streets, into which he occasionally strayed. The sleeping city was around him, and he seemed wandering through it alone. Had the chill night wind blown as ofttimes it does blow, his scanty garments would have been a poor protection against its severity, but a sultry warmth hung in the air, and the pale stars that kept watch in the sky sent down the soft radiance.

Charlie was a little impressed by the loneliness of the streets, which hitherto he had never seen except in day time, and then, of course, full of people and vehicles. It was somewhat wonderful, if not awful, to look on the dim, thinly-scattered lamps, and the houses standing like tall shadows, most of the windows unlighted, though here and there a gleam did shoot itself, and far up above the tall roofs and chimneys the soft azure sky through which the dawn was struggling fast. The child cast a strange, wondering eye over the novel sight and went gliding on, his small bare feet making not the slightest noise upon the dirty pavement.

In his aimless wanderings Charlie turned into a street quieter even than any he had yet traversed, for it contained almost no houses. Stone walls bounded it, and beyond the walls there was nothing but open space, covered all over with the sky. He crept along on one side close by the wall till he came to a high building with a portico and steps leading up to a great door. Thoroughly tired now, and feeling much as if he would like to rest, he thought he would climb up the steps and lay himself down in the shadow, where he would rest and perhaps sleep. Acting at once on the thought, he drew his weary limbs up to the great door and crouched down close against it, when to his surprise he found that it was not even close shut, and when he pushed against it it opened still further—opened far enough to allow his small form to pass through.

'Here's a go,' said Charlie to himself, 'The people of this house have forgot to lock their door.'

This surmise was not altogether accurate. The door was not unfastened through forgetfulness, but evidently from haste. One of the ponderous bolts was shot out, but when this was done, the door had not been sufficiently closed and it had failed to go into its socket; this fact had not been observed by the person inside, who had no doubt gone into the interior, under the impression that the great door was quite sufficiently fastened.

The true state of the case, however, didn't make itself apparent to Charlie, who, with a child's curiosity, went inside, and passed forward into the great vault of gloom.

Having stood looking for a few moments, the faint light penetrating through the windows showed him a passage stretching inward, and, influenced by the same curiosity he advanced over the thick soft matting, and glided silently forward till other passages yawned in the distance.

Nothing daunted, Charlie kept wandering on till a ray of lamp-light, seemingly far away, met his eye, and towards it he crept slowly and silently made his way. As he advanced he saw that it came through an open door, and he thought he might as well go forward and have a peep into the room. So he did go on till he came to the threshold, and had a view of the interior. What he saw there brought him to a standstill, and caused him to gaze in childish wonder.

Inside the room were three men emptying the contents of three big iron presses, tying up in handkerchiefs piles of silver and gold, and stuffing them into the carpet bags which stood on the floor. There were also bundles of folded-up paper, which they took out likewise, and hastily tossed into the same receptacles.

Charlie wondered very much what they could be doing that for, and doing it with such haste and eagerness, whispering all the while to each other, and looking so glad and pleased. He stood staring at their proceedings with open mouth till the iron presses were quite emptied of their contents. Then the men shut the ponderous doors and locked them, and proceeded with the same breathless haste to fasten up the mouths of the carpet bags, one of them holding a dark lantern to light the other two in their operations.

The door was dusty, and as they continued their quick movements, the dust rose and floated in the air till it tickled Charlie's nose and suddenly made him sneeze.

The men sprang to their feet in consternation, and the light of the lantern was instantly flashed round to where Charlie stood. He was revealed at once, and, with a frightful oath, one of the men sprang forward and seized him in his powerful grasp.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Bilious Complaints

Arise from a morbid or unhealthy condition of the liver. This unhealthy action goes on slowly two, three, or may be four weeks, the morbid deposits gradually increasing and accumulating until the crisis arrives, the overcharged liver can contain it no longer, and a discharge of vicious bile takes place into the stomach, which produces a sickness, attended with headache and more or less unpleasant symptoms. The liver thus becomes purged of its unhealthy matter, the system suffers for a few days, then finally reacts, recovers, and goes on for another period. Hence the importance of using Dr. HENRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which are composed entirely of medicines calculated to produce this proper discharge, and thus save the unpleasant week's illness which must else be borne. It is the most certain way to obtain relief. Beginning always, in the cases of those who are constitutionally bilious, on the appearance of the first symptoms of an attack, the attacks will be lighter ones, until they succeed finally in breaking up that morbid condition which gives rise to the disease.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained, Brodrick & Germain's Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boalon's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $7 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Ages on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment.	Death of Member's Family.
From 16 to 20 yrs.	$4.40	$2.50	$0.38

The Sun for 1880.

THE Sun will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be conducted as a newspaper, written in the English language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is, the law controlling its daily make-up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction of some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose For this reason it is and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all of, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, which can be had by any purchaser for two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores humbugs of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN always has been, and always will be, true to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration intrenched at Washington. The Sun did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. The Sun will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily SUN, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

EMMELINE.

CONTINUED.

She answered not. Her faculties seemed benumbed by the cold. The ice yielded beneath their united weight—she fainted and sank. Still he held on, shouting for help. A large dog named "Hector" belonging to the Rose's now appeared on the scene, and seized the jetty ringlets of Emmeline as they floated on the surface. The excitement became intense. The young nobleman immersed in the water, held on to Emmeline with the able assistance of "Hector." Suddenly a shout from above them made him look up, and there stood Lord Ronald Chestel on a narrow ledge of rock, rope in hand, an end of which he swung to Emmeline, whose strength was fast giving way, and clutching desperately at it with one hand, Lord Chestil, who had now plenty of assistance, pulled him up a little bit. Our hero caught Emmeline in his right arm and held firmly by the rock with his left, and getting the tips of his feet on the ice close to the rock, found it much firmer, and managed in this way to place her in the arms of Annabell, who had ventured as far as was deemed safe.

Earl Chestil desired the senseless form to be taken to his mansion-house, which was not fifty yards away, so Mr. Charles Steven took the helpless girl from Annabell and not knowing well what to do, he was thankful of some place to lay her. Arriving there they placed her on a bed and the doctor was sent for. Lady Chestil, her daughter and Annabell, who would not leave her unconscious friend, were present. They used restoratives and while so doing Lady Chestil noticed a ring on Emmeline's finger, and seizing her hand she exclaimed

"Yes, it is the same" and glancing at a small chain around Emmeline's neck, from which hung an elegant locket, she touched a spring, it flew open and then she gave an hysteric scream which caused a rush into the room. Lord Avenlee was first—he feared the fate of Emmeline so dear to him—he kind him was Lord Chestil, the Messrs. Steven, and numerous comestics.

"My wife!" said his lordship. "What is wrong!" and taking his wife's hand, for she had given no explanation sat staring at our young heroine. The doctor now arrived. His arrival roused her ladyship from her stupor. Rising, she pointed to the bed where the inanimate form of her child lay.

"There, doctor, bring to life my own beautiful child. I have found her at last —but how!—in the grasp of death!"

Lord Chestil took both his wife's hands in his own, and they gazed on the still form of our heroine with a yearning gaze. Lord Avenlee gave a deep groan, and knelt by the bed where the doctor and Annabell were using restoratives to bring to consciousness her, on whose recovery the future happiness of so many present depended. The young lady known as Lady Emmeline stood in the window recess, with her back turned to those in the room. Tear drops fell on her large but shapely hands—the school daddihy, Count Ormando was the only one in the room who seemed to remember such a person, and he drew nearer her gradually. At last he took courage—for he seemed dreadful what course to pursue—taking her hand in his he kissed it respectfully. She cast a grateful look on the kind hearted Count, and even allowed him to retain her hand. Mr. Charles Steven was pacing up and down the room impatiently.

At length a low plaintive moan proclaimed the life of our heroine not extinct. Young Avenlee sprang to her feet, and in spite of the Doctor's remonstrance, kissed the pure forehead of her he loved. Lord and Lady Chestil moved mechanically to the bed, but were bluntly told by the doctor that excitement on her returning to consciousness was very dangerous, and he told them all to leave the room except Annabell, who had been so useful to him. Reluctantly they obeyed. The last to leave the room was Lady Chestil, who cast a yearning look of affection on the now restless form. Her husband took the Messrs. Steven into the library and asked them to tell him all they knew of the young lady who had been so near drowned. The minister answered—

"She is no relation to us, but finding her destitute of friends, my brother undertook her upbringing."

"Destitute of friends, did you say! Tell me all you know of her previous history. You cannot guess how much I am interested."

He was accordingly told what we already know, and opening the door in an excited manner, Lord Chestil disappeared, but re entered almost immediately, followed by his wife. She asked minutely about the locket and ring. Mr. Charles Steven happened to have the case in his pocket, which he at once handed to her ladyship. who claimed it as her own property, and suggested that Dr. Lorimer should be sent for at once, which suggestion was acted upon by the minister, who, after ascertaining that Emmeline was likely to recover, started for Rolla.

CHAPTER XV.

THE END.

The following morning, Dr. Lorimer and Mrs. Dick arrived at Avenmore. The doctor seemed to feel his position keenly. He said he had been persuaded by his wife to give the eldest daughter a superior education and help the household expenses with the largest part of the money he received quarterly from Chestil's agent. He said he did not expect they would ever claim the child they had left so long in the care of strangers, and when she was sent for, the eldest daughter was sent instead, and from the day his daughter departed from Rollo he had lost all peace of mind. Mrs. Dick was then called in, and looked rather crestfallen when standing face to face with the presents of Emmeline. She could not say to them that she had been kind to their child—for Emmeline running away told a different tale. But Lord and Lady Chestil were not disposed to be angry with anyone, now that they had found one they felt that their own child, so they gave Mrs. Dick a handsome present of money, and, on the recommendation of the Rev. Mr. Steven, Andrew Dick was engaged as secretary to Earl Chestil of Chestil and Avenmore, who was delighted at the turn of events. He had taken a fancy to Emmeline before he knew she was his grandchild.

Doctor Lorimer asked to see his daughter, remarking as he did so that she could do nothing but despise him for his wicked conduct. She was accordingly called in.

"Catherine," he exclaimed, as she entered the room, "forgive your parents. We have sinned, but it was for your sake. Will you go home with me to night?"

"I forgive you, sir; but the parents who would send away a child when only ten years old to usurp the place of another, will not be vexed if she avoids them in after years."

"O, heaven," said the father, "this is a just retribution."

"If your father has erred, it was for your sake," said Lord Chestil. "I have called you daughter for seven years. You have given me all the respect due to a parent. Surely you will not refuse to go with your own natural parent, who, if he has erred, erred for your sake."

"My lord," said Catherine, "you cannot expect me to respect those who place their souls in jeopardy for the welfare of even a child;" and turning to Lady Chestil, she said, "You, my lady, have tried hard to love me, but, young as I was when brought to you as your child, I felt you did not love me. You seemed disappointed at my appearance. I know I am not like you or your lovely daughter; but I thank my Heavenly Father, if He has not given me that refined appearance, that He has given me a good pure heart; and I appreciated your efforts to love me, though I knew not of my not being your daughter."

"You are a noble girl," said Lady Chestil, "and I feel more affection for you now, that I see you bearing this trial so well. You must stay with my Emmeline till such time as you can bring your mind to go home to your parents. We were selfish enough to leave our child—when only an infant,—in the care of strangers, but the wrong your parents have done us was not so selfish. It was for their child's sake, not their own, and you must forgive them."

Catherine held out her hand to her father, who kissed her affectionately.

It was three days after the accident ere our heroine could leave her bed. Doctor KNOX, who attended her, forbade excitement of any kind; but Lord Avenlee could not be kept from sending a note of congratulation to his first love. The bright flush which suffused her cheeks when she read his note, told a tale he would have been only too glad to hear, namely, that he was still dear to her.

There is little more to tell. Suffice it to say—that a year after the accident on the ice (which so nearly cost our heroine her life but which proved the means of bringing together the parents and child so long severed) there was a treble marriage in the same old chapel which Lord Chestil and Lady Stanhope were united in, nearly nineteen years before. The happy parties were Lord Charles Avenlee, second son of the Duke of Avenlee, to Emmeline Frederica Charles Chestil, (for she still retained the name given her by her tried friends) and Count Ormado to Catherine Lorimer; and, wonderful to relate, the Rev. Frederick Steven to Annabell Rose, the fair and amiable daughter of Andrew Ross.

We observed among those present Earl Chestil of Chestil and Avonmore; Lord and Lady Chestil, who seemed proud and happy to see their daughter who had been for such a length of time with people so far beneath them in station, but now the happy and beloved bride of one whose name was even more ancient than their own; our old friend Charles Steven was there, he looked both well and happy, seated beside him was Andrew Dick, who was from time to time taking sly glances at one of the Misses Ross, whom, rumor said, he was soon to be married to. Old Robecca sat in the same seat as Mr. Charles Steven, and we doubt if there was present one who rejoiced more to see Emmeline the happy bride of Lord Avenlee, whose station she was so well fitted to adorn.

We now say farewell to those whose names we have grown so familiar with, and wish that time and place so suitable as the present, when hearts and hands are joined in holy unity.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the care of headache. It is not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know these symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow it for one moment. But cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Croup, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

Whooping Cough is successfully treated by separating the patients beyond hearing distance of each other, and by the employment of Fellows' Hypophosphites. Whooping Cough is a nervous disease of so sympathetic a nature, that a paroxysms may be produced in one susceptable by simply hearing the cough of another person. The above named treatment has been found singularly effective.

The man who helps to circulate a piece of gossip is as bad as the one who originated it. To put your fist into a bar barrel and then go round shaking hands with everybody is what some people like to do.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, DEC. 18.

A Silly Story Contradicted.

The Guelph Herald, in its issue of the 15th inst., gives the following emphatic contradiction to a silly story which has of late been circulated by the free trade organs :—"Our Grit contemporaries are gleefully quoting the following from the Journal of Commerce :

"A good joke was played on Sir Samuel Leonard Tilley during his recent visit to Guelph. The only agricultural implement factory of any extent there was closed, but on a promise from the reception committee that the expenses would be reimbursed him, the kind and enthusiastic proprietor opened his shops, filled them with men for the day, and made things lively all around on the Finance Minister's visit, the "hum" sounding as sweet music in his ears. The same sound would be gladly heard by citizens six days in the week ; but, alas ! the sound ceased with the visit, the "hum" no longer heard, and worse still, the proprietor is without compensation for his day's expenses !"

"We do not know where the Journal of Commerce got its information. We do not believe that it would deliberately publish a false statement, but at the same time we must say that a more unmitigated falsehood never appeared in print. It is not an exaggeration, it is simply an out and out lie. There is not the faintest trace of truth in it, from the first "a" to the last "expense." Why, to suppose that manufacturers would deliberately attempt to deceive the Finance Minister into believing that they are prosperous when they are not, and thus induce him to continue a tariff policy which is injuring them, is to suppose them fit candidates for Bedlam."

There may be persons so credulous and so ignorant that they can be induced to believe such absurd stories as the above, but it is to be hoped that they are few in number. The free-traders are driven to desperation for lack of ground for argument in favor of their ideas, hence their grasping at the bait for gudgeons which the Journal of Commerce dangled before them. If our Grit contemporaries must romance on this as on other questions, let them give their readers something more ingenious and plausible than the fiction which they have hitherto served up as truth.

New Provincial Parliament Buildings.

The press generally have of late been discussing the proposal of the Provincial Government to erect new Parliament buildings in the city of Toronto, and with one or two exceptions the idea has been generally approved of. That a necessity does exist for the erection of more suitable premises for a safe depository for the Parliamentary records does not admit of a doubt. The drainage of the present structure is such as to make it most unhealthy, and besides it is of so inflammable a character that the records of the Province, which are stored within its walls, are in constant danger of destruction by fire. In addition to all these objections is the further one that the present House of Assembly is situated in a locality where noises of railroad and steamboat whistles and other nuisances of such character abound—which sums up a catalogue of objections the great weight of which cannot be ignored.

The necessity for new Parliamentary buildings being thus conceded, the question of site naturally arose, and this has been satisfactorily settled by the City Council of Toronto granting to the Government their rights in a portion of the University park, which the Attorney General indicated to that body would prove acceptable. Therefore it may be accepted as beyond doubt that at the coming session of the Legislature the House will be asked for the necessary appropriation.

And here arises a most important question, namely as to what amount of public money shall be expended for that purpose. It is generally understood that the Government propose to expend one million of dollars on the new buildings ; but as the estimate is always largely exceeded in works of that kind, it may be taken as a certainty that the expenditure will be at least twenty-five per cent in excess of the estimate. Deducting from this gross amount the quarter of a million dollars which it is estimated the present buildings and their site will yield, the net sum required will be one million of dollars.

Taking into account the financial condition of the Province, we consider that the proposed expenditure is much too great for such a purpose. The cash surplus has either been dissipated entirely or has been heavily mortgaged to Railway Companies, whilst the trust funds—which have under Grit rule figured as forming part of the surplus—cannot be drawn upon ; therefore, as the ordinary expenditures of the Province at least equal the revenue, the entire sum in excess of the amount realized by the sale of the present buildings must necessarily be borrowed, and the interest will form a tax upon the people. True, another portion of the public domain may be sacrificed to meet present wants ; but large as is Mr. Mowat's majority in the present Legislature, it is to be doubted if his followers will permit any further resort to the practice of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

What we hope to see done in this matter, then, is the erection of buildings at a cost of not to exceed $500,000, including all the et ceteras. For such a sum a structure could be erected, furnished, fenced and completed, which would meet all the requirements, and without seeking to rival the Dominion buildings at Ottawa, would be a credit to the Province, and serve for at least as long a period as its predecessor.

To expend one million of dollars in this wise would be utterly unjustifiable, because in the first place to do so would be to create a debt to that amount, and next were the money in bank to the credit of the Province it would be sheer waste, as the extra half million could be much more profitably and advantageously applied to other public services, which at present are systematically starved. We hope that the Government do not really entertain the intentions expressed on their behalf by their organs, but that if they do there will be so powerful a protest from the people and through the press that they will be obliged to modify their ideas on the subject, to an extent at least as considerable as we have suggested.

Political Notes.

Sir Richard Cartwright showed the brazen side of the shield to the people of Canada, when discussing the financial administration of his predecessors in office, but when seeking to borrow money in England he turned his shield around and exhibited its silver side. So with the Picton Times—a rabid opponent of the National Policy, which for months has told its readers that the country was going to the dogs, because of the change in the tariff effected by the present Government. This was the brazen side of the shield, exhibited for political effect ; but now that the Times wants money from its subscribers, it does as the "heaven born" financier did—tells the truth, because it is compelled to do so. Thus impelled by its necessities, the Times says in the course of a long "dun" contained in its last issue : "We are glad to know that times are beginning to improve. Confidence is being restored, money is more plentiful, and there is a more hopeful feeling pervading the country than has been manifested for some time." It would be a good joke on this Grit publisher were his subscribers to profess to believe his teachings—to protest their inability to pay, because of the alleged stagnation of industry, the lowering of wages, decrease in the price of grain, increase in the cost of living, &c., as alleged by the Times and its confreres for months past. Such a proceeding might bring the Times man to his senses ; it would certainly make him "hum" for a while.

Our neighbors of the United States, in their comments on the circular of the late Government of Canada prohibiting wrecking operations by United States tugs in Canadian waters, have always asserted that there were no restrictions placed upon Canadian tugs aiding vessels in distress in United States waters, and that wrecking outfits were not to be had in Canada. In contradiction to such assertions we have the following from the Lake Shore News :—"A few days ago a powerful Canadian tug came over to haul off the schooner Marquis, now ashore near Lake Bluff. The captain of the tug must have been ignorant of the law that allows no foreign tug to work in American waters, except under certain circumstances. He claimed that he could haul off the Marquis with perfect ease, but he was not allowed to make the attempt. It is doubtful if a dozen tugs could haul her off now." This is a fair illustration of the selfish policy of our neighbors, who fairly howl for perfect freedom of action for their tugs in Canadian waters, whilst refusing to allow Canadians an equal privilege in their own.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.—It is pretty well settled now that the Republican National Convention will be held next year in Chicago. The members of the National Convention are said to be nearly unanimous in favor of Grant's nomination.

FATAL FIRE.—On the 7th inst. the Court House at St. Jean, Port Joli, Quebec, was destroyed by fire. Three girls, daughters of the jailor, aged 18,15 and 10 were burned to death and the father and mother injured.

THE "CLAIMANT."—A trial for a writ of error in the case of the Tichborne claimant has been granted for the consideration of the question whether the two terms of seven years to which he was sentenced and one of which has expired—should not be made concurrent.

PACIFIC RAILWAY.—A RUMOR is current in Ottawa that a gentleman from the Pacific slope, now in this city, is engaged in buying out the several contractors for the British Colombia section of the Pacific Railway. It is further asserted that he has succeeded in every instance but one, and in that has made satisfactory progress towards his object, which is to secure entire control of the whole railway work in British Columbia.

DEATH OF MR. GALBRAITH.—Mr. Daniel Galbraith, M. P. for North Lanark, died at his residence, Almonte, on the 17th inst. Mr. Galbraith was born in the year 1813, in Glasgow, and came to Canada in 1821. He was Warden of the united Counties of Lanark and Renfrew, and was a member of the Ontario Legislature from 1867 to July 1872, when he resigned to contest the seat for the Commons, and was elected ; was re-elected by acclamation at the last general election. He was a strong supporter of the late McKenzie Government.

A FAMILY FRIEND.—No family should be without Perry Davis' Vegetable PAIN-KILLER. It can be given to the infant for the Colic, and to the adult for Rheumatism. There is scarcely a disease to which it may not be beneficially applied. It contains no deleterious drug, but may be used for the various ailments of mankind.

Disreputable Tactics.

We are informed that Mr. Patterson, in his canvass for the Mayoralty is resorting to some rather disreputable tactics in trying to influence voters in his favor. With those of his own political stripe, of course he is all right and urges them to support him on political grounds, but with Conservatives he pursues an entirely different course, professing to throw politics to the winds, and claim their support on the ground that he has been brought out by Conservatives. While we deprecate the introduction of politics into municipal matters, Mr. Patterson will find that his little game won't work. It is one that two can play at, as he will find out before many days.

The Orangemen who have charge of the case of David Grant against Mayor Beardry, which was thrown out by Judge Mac-Kay on technical grounds, are to appeal to the next court.

A DOLEFUL STATE OF THINGS.—A writer in the Atlantic Monthly for December has been on a visit to Kansas, and gives a very doleful account of the farmers in that State. The date of the writer's visit was in June. He found the people living in shanties discouraged and suffering many privations ; those who bought land of the railroads were hopelessly in debt, while those who took up homesteads were equally miserable. He found crops uncertain, the prices unremunerative, and the farmers only staying because they lacked the means to leave the country.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY. — The announcement that Grand Trunk Railway, between Toronto and Detroit, is shortly to be provided with a double track, is being received with great favor throughout the country. It is a movement is the right direction, and reflects the greatest credit on the present management, through whose influence the decision has been arrived at. With a double track and steel rails, the Grand Trunk will be the finest, longest, and most complete road on the continent; and thanks to its present policy of acquiring western connections, it promises to do the largest trade. Every Canadian must feel a glow of satisfaction that, after all its difficulties, the Grand Trunk promises to be a great pecuniary success.

SOME OF THE MOST HORRIBLE CASES OF ULCEROUS Scrofula that ever existed have been cured by BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS, which, penetrating to the bone, neutralizes every atom of poisonous virus, and restores the organs to a sound state.

MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER is one of the surest and speediest of cures for every form of nervousness. It relieves headache when other applications completely fail. It reinvigorates the fatigued and overtaxed body, and it imparts force and buoyancy to the mental powers.

UNEQUALLED.—Delightful to use, clean and healthful upon the hair, there is nothing that can compare with it. Try Burnett.

City and Vicinity.

CONVERSAZIONE.—Remember the Mechanic's Institute Conversazione to-night,

TAX SALE.—The County Treasurer's adjourned sale of lands for taxes will take place at the Court House on Wednesday, January 7th, at 10 a. m.

MARINE.—Navigation on the lakes is now closed. The schooner Magdala arrived at Oswego on Sunday morning with barley from Whitby, being probably the last arrival for the season at that port.

TO SETTLE HERE.—D. C. Ross, the famous athlete, is so well pleased with Belleville and its people that he will settle in this city for a time, at last. He will engage in teaching gymnastics.

KETCHESON WARD.—Mr. J. W. Johnson offers his services to the people of Ketcheson Ward as one of their representatives in the City Council, and Ald. Jellett seeks re-election.

COLDEST YET.—Last night was decidedly the coldest of the season. That cold wave which passed over Manitoba a few days ago is evidently on the march, and to its presence the prevailing "cold dip" is due.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—It is probable that T. P. Pearce, Esq., Warden, will accompany the deputation who are to have an audience with Sir Charles Tupper at Ottawa on the 23rd inst., in relation to the Trent Valley Canal project.

THE MARKET.—This morning's attendance on the market was very large, such in fact is usually the case during the anteholiday season. The roads are in excellent condition, and trade seems likely to be brisk for some time to come.

HYMENEAL.—Mayor Henry, of Brantford, was married in that city on the 16th inst. to Miss Caroline Philip, youngest surviving daughter of the late Anthony Philip, Esq., of Brantford. Mr. Henry is nearly related to Donald Anderson, Esq., Deputy Reeve of Tyendinaga.

THE HOLIDAYS.—The merchants who advertise will monopolize the holiday trade. The evening papers are eagerly scanned for the latest novelties in holiday goods and where to buy them. A reference to our advertising colums will serve as a guide to intending purchasers.

L. O. L. No. 747, TWEED.—The following brethren were duly installed officers for the year 1880:—Wm. Hicks, W. M.; John Countryman, D. M.; Wm. Wray, Sec.; James Bird, Treas.; Wm. White, Chap.; Adam McGowan, D. of C. Committee—Wm. White, Rob't McGowan, John Alexander, Wm. Brown, Sr., Wm. Trumpour.

THE PULPIT AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM.—The St Lawrence Times says:—The Rev. Manly Benson stated on Sunday last, in the Methodist Church, that some one asked him to announce an entertainment which was to come off, but he declined doing so. The pulpit was no doubt a first-class advertising medium, but he did not intend to utilize it for that purpose—the newspapers were the proper place to make known such undertakings. In future, no announcements would be made except those having a direct connection with the Church and of necessity required to be spoken of.

A CALL.—The congregation of the John Street Presbyterian Church—the pastorate of which has been vacant for some weeks—have unanimously extended a call to the Rev. David Mitchell, of Toronto.

THE FERRY.—The ferry steamer Mary Ethel has proved a good ice breaker. She was still running to day, though the ice was very heavy—sufficiently strong to bear men with perfect safety.

BARLEY SHIPMENTS.—Mr. Squier has during the last two weeks shipped 25 cars of barley from Wellington direct to Chicago. Seven additional cars were being loaded to-day.

COLLEGE EXHIBITION.—Owing to the extreme cold last night, the attendance of residents of the city at the College exhibition was much smaller than it would otherwise have been. The entertainment was, however, very pleasing and fittingly closed a highly successful term.

200 TONS A DAY.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company have had 75 new cars specially made for the iron ore trade, at their works at Montreal, which are expected to arrive here to-night. This will give the iron men ample accommodation, and there will be no more complaint for lack of cars. At present the shipments of ore average 200 tons per day.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—A despatch from Montreal on the 17th says:—"The Trent Valley Canal promoters will arrive in Montreal on Thursday forenoon to discuss the project and give reasons for asking Montreal to contribute to their scheme. On the following day they will meet the Board of Trade. A meeting of the City Council will be held to meet the delegates."

AN UNJUST REFLECTION.—Capt. J. C. Daly, who unsuccessfully contested in the late wrestling match in this city for the Cook Champion belt, does a gross and unmerited injustice to Mr. R. M. Roy, the Referee in that match, by writing to the Montreal Star as follows:—"Prof. D. C. Ross failed to meet my representatives in Montreal on Tuesday at the Albion Hotel, to make arrangements for the wrestling match for the champion belt and medal which he holds. I claim to have thrown him three times out of five in the last contest at Belleville, where I did not get fair play." Those who know Mr. Roy—and he is widely known in this city and elsewhere as a man incapable of dishonesty—will regard Capt. Daly's insinuation as the outcome of disappointed ambition. Mr. Daly told quite a different story here immediately after the match, when he said that he had no fault to find with the Referee, but did object to the evident bias of the audience in favor of his opponent on Monday night. So far from Daly's not having had fair play here, it was Ross who suffered by the only incorrect decision given, namely, on the first appeal made in his behalf in the catch as catch can style on Saturday night. Ross on that occasion threw Daly over his head and the latter, who alighted within a few feet of the writer, really touched all the points of his person required by the rules to constitute a fall. The Referee, who was on the opposite side of the stage, did not see the fall while, however, was observed by all the representatives of the press and a number of other respectable persons—and very properly decided "no fall." Daly's "kicking" will not enhance his reputation, either here or elsewhere.

County Court.

FLINT vs. BROOKS.—Action of trover to recover value of a yoke of oxen deft, purchased from one John Coulson at Madoc, in Sept. last. Plt'ff was owner of the oxen, and employed Coulson to drive them from York River to Belleville. On his way, while at Madoc, he got on a spree, and sold the oxen to defend't. Defence: Coulson was plt'ffs agent, and acting as such had a right to dispose of the oxen. Jury out all night, could not agree, and were discharged.—Flint & Jellett for plt'ff; Burdett for deft.

CRAIG vs. GAREY.—Action on pro. note.—Verdict for plaintiff for $268.87.—Flint & Jellett for plt'ff: Burdett for deft.

WEATHER REPORTS

TORONTO, Dec. 18.—Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, moderate to fresh winds, partly cloudy, cold weather with light snow in some localities.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Indications: For lower lakes, partly cloudy, occasional snow.

A large proportion of children who die early are those whose brain development is unusually large in comparison with the body. Why is this? Simply because the functions of the body are too frail to supply the waste going on in the brain consequent upon active intelligence. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is so prepared that it imparts the vital principal directly to the brain, while it assists in developing a vigorous and robust body.

CATTLE DISEASE PREVAILING.

DENVER, Dec. 18.—Advices from Santa Fe indicate the possibility of a repetition of the struggle between the Denver and Rio Grande Co, and the Atcheson Topeka and Santa Fe Co., in the Valley of Rio Grand, between Santa Fe and El Paso, over the right of way. Both parties have located their lines over practically the same ground. The Rio Grande Company under the decision of the Supreme Court, claims that it has prior right over the Atcheson Co. claiming the right under the general act of 1875, and has put men to work. A conflict seems unavoidable.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 18. Bob Pharr, negro, probably the greatest desperado in North Carolina, was shot and instantly killed by a policeman yesterday while resisting arrest. Pharr killed a man in Cabarrics seven years ago and fled to South Carolina, where he married. Last Christmas he killed his wife and returned to North Carolina. His last crime was the killing of Kerr, a negro, a month ago.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 18.—The body cremated on Tuesday is now known to have been that of a young merchant from New York city.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 18. — Anderson Jones, colored, who was gaoled for the murder of Wm. Harrison at McBean, is strongly guarded to prevent lynching.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—A large number of representatives of railroads having connections with Chicago have arrived here. Passenger agents of trunk lines have adopted resolutions looking to future pooling passenger rates. About thirty roads which cross Illinois have formed a Central Railway rate Association to protect their roads from unfair advantages which connecting trunk lines take. Rates will be equalized so that local rates will be demanded of trunk lines, and these roads will refuse pro-rate with trunk lines.

SANTA FE, Dec. 18.—Lieut. Morritt's suicide seems to have been premeditated. He had been informed on the previous day of his dismissal from the army, for conduct unbecoming an officer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The World's Philadelphia says that Grant dined with Admiral Ammen yesterday, and distinctly said that he would accept the Presidency of the Nicaraguan Canal Company and devote himself to it just so soon as he could be satisfied that the necessary capital was secured, and with it the necessary concessions from the Nicaraguan Govern. ment. Ammen says these conditions are already as good as filled.

Washington specials:

The Tribune says that Platt, of the National Republican Committee, said that Senator Cameron, the new Chairman of the Committee, expressed himself yesterday as being a Grant man first, last and all the time. It is reported that the Pennsylvania convention is to be called right away and the delegates instructed for Grant.

The Herald says that Martin's bill introduced yesterday for the establishment of steamship lines from the principal ports in the United States to all important commercial ports in the world, is in the nature of a big subsidy. Seventeen distinct lines are to be established and the amount to be paid as compensation for each line is left blank.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Asa R. Cassidyy formerly bookkeeper for Chas. A. Eaton & Co., cotton brokers, was arrested yesterday, on a civil suit, charging him with embezzlement from that firm of over $4,000.

Pleurs pneumonia has broken out among the cattle in West Chester County. 18 cattle died last week. Vigorous measures for the suppression of the disease are prevented by the exhaustion of the legislative appropriation for that purpose.

Louis Kulke, saloon keeper, who was recently convicted of a criminal assault upon a young girl, was pardoned by the Governor and released yesterday. Pardon was obtained at the instance of friends of the girl, whom Kulke promised to marry.

Agnes Nelson, a prepossessing young lady in Paterson, disappeared last week. She was recently engaged to marry a young man whom she had for six years repeatedly refused, and it is believed the distaste for the marriage led her to flee. She left a note saying that she had gone to parts unknown.

Communication with General Roberts Interrupted.

CABUL AND THE BALA HISSAR IN THE HANDS OF THE ENEMY.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—A Kohat despatch announces that General Tytler has captured Zema, stored with the grain of all the Zaimakhat tribes. The enemy left a large number of dead on the field. The British loss was four wounded.

The Viceroy of India telegraphs: "Communication with General Roberts is now interrupted."

CANDAHAR, Dec. 17.—A conflict occurred near Herat between the Herati and Cabuli troops. It is uncertain which party were victorious, but Ayoob Khan has been imprisoned by the Cabulists, who hold the citadel under the leadership of Lowe, an adventurer, who has been proclaimed Governor in Ayoob Khan's place.

CALCUTA, Dec. 17th.—The interruption of telegraphic communication with Roberts is near Jagdallak. General Gough telegraphs that the tribes beyond Gundamuk are obstructing his advance.

BOMBAY, Dec. 17.—The Afghans hold the Bala Hissar and the city of Cabul.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The Standard says:—The cantonments of Shirpur are surrounded by high brick walls, loopholed, with an outer ditch. Behind the walls earth works are thrown up, and a raking platform for the defenders to fire from. At intervals are bastions for guns. Against such a position held by five thousand British troops, with abundance of artillery, the rush of a savage mob could do nothing, and their numbers, however large, would add little to their aggressive force. The troops now on their way number two regiments of cavalry, seven regiments of infantry, and two batteries of artillery. Such a force as this, once free from the defiles, should be able to make its way forward, however large a force Mohammed Jan may detach from Cabul to arrest its advance.

The Viceroy of India telegraphs that Roberts has 7,000 effective troops who have been withdrawn into the Shirpur cantonment with the slight losses already reported. The enemy must suffer very severely if they make any attempt upon Shirpur. I consider Roberts' position perfectly safe. He contemplates resuming the offensive as soon as he is settled in Shirpur, but as he says there is nothing to be gained in capturing difficult defiles and hills whilst the enemy is out in such numbers. The enemy will shortly disperse for food, but meanwhile our evacuation of Cabul will encourage the Cabulis and enable them to keep together longer than they otherwise would, and tend to raise the tribes upon our lines of communication. The Governor of Jellalabad died from his post, but has been satisfactorily replaced.

Letters from Afghan Sirdars have been intercepted, detailing the arrangements for an attack on Cabul and inciting the Khyberanias to rise. Similar letters have been sent to the Shinavaris, Mohmunds and Afreedis. Gen. Gough reports from Jugdalak that all the tribes in his front have risen, and his further advance is consequently impracticable without reinforcements. Gen Bright is sending what reinforcements he can, but does not like to weaken the Khyber line.

One and a half regiments of infantry, one regiment of cavalry, and a battery of artillery left Peshawur for the front. A reserve division, composed of one British and three native cavalry regiments, three British and seven native infantry regiments, and three batteries of artillery, are forming at Peshawur. If the tribes do not disperse on finding they can make no impression on Roberts at Cabul, a strong force will be pushed up to re-open the lines of communication.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

ROME, Dec. 18.—It is announced that an international exhibition will be held in 1882.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—In consequence of a revival of the cotton trade, Lancashire, Cheshire and Derbyshire weavers will apply for immediate increase in wages.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Details of the last Chilian victory state that the allied force of Peruvians, and Bolivians, 11,000 strong, are marching northwards from Nonas to effect a junction with the re-inforcement. 5,000, under command of the President of the Bolivia, attacked on the 21st of November the Chilian advanced corps, 6,000 men, who occupied the entrenched position of Dolores near Agua Santa. The Chilian heavy cannon committed great ravages among the enemy, whose cavalry charged three times and attempted to carry the guns off, but unsuccessfully.

In the evening the rear of the Chilian force came up. The allied forces were driven back, their camp taken with thirteen cannon. Many wounded officers, including the Bolivian General Villegas, were taken prisoners, and also her of the allied General's killed. The losses of the Chilians were heavy.

The Duchess of Marlborough, wife of the Lord Lieut. of Ireland, intends to start a relief for the suffers in Ireland and appeals for contributions. She says while the present distress is not for a moment comparable to that of 1847, still undoubtedly in parts of Kerry, Clare, Galway, Sligo, Mayo, Roscommon, Donegal and Cork there will be extreme misery and suffering among the poor.

WHITEHALL, N. Y., Dec. 18.—George Irish, a school teacher at North Jay, near Sable forks, was found hanging in his bedroom; aged 22. He made several attempts before to kill himself. Cause supposed to have been ill health.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 18.—George W. Boomedon, was arrested at West Haven for the alleged fraudulent use of mails. He manufactures photograph albums and visiting cards, sells cheap, and advertises in sensational ways under aliases, including Fay Bros. and the Franklin Printing Co.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Col. Latham Cornell Strong, the well known poet, formerly of Troy, died at Ferrytown yesterday after a brief illness. He left heir to a large estate in Troy a few years ago and he was formerly associate editor of the Troy Whig and was widely known.

It is stated that Dwyer, the pugilist, refuses to fight Ryan of Troy, at present, because Dwyer is a candidate for Clerk of Justice of the County Court in Brooklyn, and wishes to retire from the ring.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CHAPTER IV.

LITTLE CHARLIE IS DISPOSED OF, AND THE READER IS INTRODUCED INTO THE INTERIOR OF SILAS MORGAN'S CARAVAN.

Charlie uttered a loud scream of terror when he found himself in the fearful gripe of the man who had clutched him, and saw the glaring look which all three cast upon him.

'Who are you? How did you get in here?' was asked of him, in a tone of dreadful ferocity.

'Oh don't hurt me,' replied the child. 'I wasn't doing any ill.'

'How came you here, I ask you?' was repeated, in the same hissing tone of rage.

'The outer door was open,' faltered Charlie, 'and I thought the people inside wouldn't know, and I wanted to see——'

'Curses on it, we are discovered!' said the tallest of the men, drawing a pistol from his bosom, and, snatching the dark lantern from the hand of him who held it, he rushed into the passage.

The other two also drew forth weapons of some kind, and followed him towards the main entrance, all three looking as if the yexpected to encounter a foe. No foe, however, was there, and they reached the great door unmolested.

It stood open just as Charlie had left it, and one glance at the shot-bolt revealed to them the mistake that had just been committed.

'Come you, White, that was your doing,' said the tall man as he closed the door, and put in the bolt, all right this time.

'I could have sworn the door was closed when I shut the bolt,' muttered White.

'Well, your bungling has nearly ruined us. Where is that child?'

Charlie had followed the men to the door, hoping to make his escape unobserved, but as he saw the door closed by them and fastened, he crept back and tried to hide himself. It was quite dark and he did not know where he was going, but, unwittingly, he had entered the telling room, and finding his way beneath one of the mahogany counters he crawled into the furthest corner and lay quite still, hardly daring to breathe. Young as he was, he was sharp enough to know that the three men were robbers, that they were stealing the things out of the big iron presses, and that he having discovered them, had thereby endangered himself. So he saw the necessity of getting into concealment.

But, alas! his concealment was of short duration. They made instant search for him, and the very first place they sought in was in the telling room, where the bright light from the lantern very quickly revealed his hiding-place.

The same man who had caught him before, pounced on him again, and dragging him roughly out by the collar of his very ragged jacket, he was pulled into the strong-room, and held there as in an iron vise.

'He must be despatched,' said the tallest man, who was, of course, M'Koul. 'Our safety requires it.'

'It's almost a pity to murder such a little thing as that,' said White, who had been gazing at the child's upturned imploring face, and been touched by the beauty of his blue eyes.

'Can't be helped,' returned M'Koul. 'Little as he is, he could do for us. And shall we run the risk when a turn of the hand on his neck will rid us of the danger.'

'Of course not,' said French, very decidedly.

'Lock him up in one of the safes,' suggested White. 'He'll not be found till Monday morning, and by that time we shall be far enough from Glasgow.'

'But he could tell us much as enable them to trace us. I tell you White, such weakness would be folly. A venture like this must not be ruined for the sake of a brat like that, and by him it shall not. If you are squeamish about the business, let me do it. So saying M'Koul took a step forward, and stretched his hand out towards the boy's throat, when White again interposed.

'Stay a moment,' he said. 'I know it is of the utmost importance to get rid of him, but curse me if I can see him murdered. When it comes to the scratch, a man is nothing: but a'child like that! No hang it, M'Koul, he must be disposed of in another way.'

'There is no other way,' returned M'Koul doggedly. 'Are you mad?' he angrily added. 'If we stay longer here daylight will be in, and we'll be seen.'

'I have it,' cried White with some animation; 'Morgan will take him. You heard him say he was to leave to-morrow afternoon, and with him he would be as much out of the way as if you squeezed his wizard.'

'But who is to take him to Morgan?' demanded M'Koul.

'I will; French and you can make off to the coach-hirer's with the plank, and I will join you there within the hour. Have everything ready to start and no time will be lost.'

'Well if you answer for Morgan keeping him out of the way.'

'Never fear but Morgan will do it. He don't look like a kid that much need be made about. Some beggar's brat I daresay. Morgan will make him of use to him.'

'I don't care what he makes of him if he keeps him out of the way till all danger is over,' said M'Koul with the air of one who had got rid of a difficulty. 'Now, then, lads, let's finish the work and be off.'

'Stand you there, and don't move, if you would not have your neck wrung,' said White to Charlie, as he pushed him into the corner furthest from the door. The little fellow had sense enough to do as he was bid, and stood there as silent as a stone, gazing as the three men as they fastened up their well-stuffed carpet bags, and locked the safes with their false keys. It took them but a few moments to do this, and having lifted the bags from the floor, they took care to obliterate all marks of their presence. Not a scrap of paper was allowed to remain on the carpet, and one or two wrinkles they had made with their feet were smoothed out. Next they gathered together all their keys, and were then ready to go.

The door of the strong room was locked behind them, and so were the doors leading to the street entrance, just the same as if old John Robertson, the Bank porter, had locked them himself with the legitimate keys of the establishment.

In the lobby they paused for a few moments before opening the great door, to make sure that no one was stirring in the street outside. Not a sound disturbed the stillness of the early Sabbath morn, and they prepared to leave the Bank with their immense booty.

The dark lantern being extinguished and thrust by Harry French into his bosom, M'Koul with stealthy, noiseless hand drew back the bolt which fastened the door, and the door itself was opened very slowly, inch by inch—M'Koul's keen eye peering forth the while, and every ear being on the stretch to detect the sound of a passing footstep.

All was still as death; and finding that no human presence was at hand, they glided out one by one, and the great door was locked as carefully as the others had been. Not a moment now did they linger in the neighborhood of the Bank, but M'Koul and French with the heavy bags crossed to the shadow of the dead wall on the other side, while Huffey White, keeping Charlie in a firm grip, walked rapidly forward by the side of the garden, and at the first opening they turned south, while the others went north, towards the upper part of the city.

'Now, little one,' said Charlie's captor in a low voice, 'if you value your life don't you speak a word if we should meet any one. You hear that?'

'Yes,' replied Charlie, quite readily.

'And do you promise not to do it?'

'Yes,' answered the little fellow again. 'I'll do as you tell me, for you would not allow that man to kill me.'

'Ah, you noticed that, did you? By Jove, you are sharper than any of us thought; and if by any chance you were to give Morgan the slip——But bah—that's impossible. Morgan will keep you close enough.'

Not another word was said as they threaded the streets towards the river. The soft grey light of dawn was now unmistakably spread over the city, but still silence and solitude held their reign. Not a human form was to be seen on the streets; a night watchman did not even cross their path.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Bilious Complaints

Arise from a morbid or unhealthy condition of the liver. This unhealthy action goes on slowly two, three, or may be four weeks, the morbid deposits gradually increasing and accumulating until the crisis arrives, the overcharged liver can contain it no longer, and a discharge of vicious bile takes place into the stomach, which produces a sickness, attended with headache and more or less unpleasant symptoms. The liver thus becomes purged of its unhealthy matter, the system suffers for a few days, then finally reacts, recovers, and goes on for another period. Hence the importance of using Dr. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which are composed entirely of medicines calculated to produce this proper discharge, and thus save the unpleasant week's illness which must else be borne. It is the most certain way to obtain relief. Beginning always, in the cases of those who are constitutionally bilious, on the appearance of the first symptoms of an attack, the attacks will be lighter every time, until they succeed finally in breaking up that morbid condition which gives rise to the disease.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus encourage more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has gained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest child, as per directions. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an early period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Law it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

GENERAL DEBILITY.

Dyspepsia. Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite. Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is on a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that I would be dead to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and of light character, her heart is less forcible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, WIS., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR:—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me. I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growling worse. I was induced accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of RINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, dealers need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are in good condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the particular knowledge placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer those facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust that old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

The Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

His conductor walked at a very rapid pace, and Charlie had to keep his little bare feet trotting to keep up with him. The boy had not the slightest idea of where he was being taken to. The man who had him in charge was a rough fearsome-looking man, with a broken nose, a squinting eye, and a countenance whose feature he would never forget. Still, the boy had received a proof of his kind intentions towards him, and he kept trotting by his side, wondering very much where they could be going, but on the whole not especially frightened as might have been expected.

They entered the Green into the now sleeping and silent wilderness of the Fair. There was no crowd there now. The booths and tents were many of them removed, and the show's shut up. It was towards one of the latter—towards a caravan standing a little apart—that Huffey White made his way with the same unflagging haste, and Charlie recognized it as the one before which he had stood so long in the afternoon seeing the pretty little girl dancing on the tight rope. The stage on which the performance had taken place was removed, and the fine red curtain hanging behind, and it seemed as if there was no way of getting inside.

His conductor still dragging Charlie by the hand, went round to the other end, and gave a low tap on the boards. But of this no heed was taken and he tapped again louder.

'Who's that?' growled a gruff, sleepy voice within.

'Hi, Morgan, a word with you,' answered White, in tones of suggressed eagerness.

'Who wants Morgan at this hour of the night?' was the next growling demand.

'Bah, man, don't you know me?'

'No, you are drunk, I suppose. Be off, and don't disturb me. I'm tired.'

White drew himself up to a small aperture in the side of the caravan, and laying his lips close to it whispered 'Festa.'

'Ah, that's a different thing,' was answered from within, and immediately there was the sound of some one moving, followed in a few moments by the aperture being enlarged, and a hideous head passed through.

'What's up?' asked the showman.

'I have come to see you on business—private business. Let us in at once. I have not a moment to lose.'

A narrow door was opened, and some steps let down, by which White mounted into the caravan, pulling Charlie with him.

The interior was quite dark, and it was rendered more so by the narrow door being closed the moment they had entered.

Charlie was left by himself, while White and Morgan went to the other end, and talked to each other in whispers.

When they returned to where he stood, the narrow door was again opened, and the big hand of the showman pulled the boy forward till the morning light fell upon him.

Morgan eyed him for a few moments all over, then he felt his limbs, separately, and twisted his arms and legs about.

'Yes, he'll do,' he grunted. 'He's just the sort of thing I've been waiting for some time. He's just old enough to begin training, but I think I'll manage to make something of him.'

'Thought you would,' observed White. 'Then I'm off. Mum's the word of course.'

'Mum it is,' responded Morgan.

'And you are going to England, you say?'

'Going to York direct. We start in the afternoon. I mean to take Berwick, Alnwick, Newcastle, and one or two places in the way, but York where I mean to make for, and I've no chance of being in Scotland for years to come.'

'All right: you'll keep him safe enough, I hope?'

'Safe?' repeated Morgan, with a harsh laugh. 'I should think so. Catch Silas Morgan's youngsters making off. Did you ever hear of such a thing, Huffey White?'

'Well, no, I can't say as ever I did, but you see in this case I have a particular interest.'

'And so will I, by-and-bye.'

'Ta, ta,' cried White, as he waved his hand and sprang down the steps.

'The top of the morning to ye,' responded Morgan, a parting salutation which Huffey would barely hear, for no sooner had he reached the ground than he darted away on a run, never slacked his speed till he had left the Green and was once more among the silent streets, his mind already quit of the errand on which he had been—quit for good and aye it might be of the child he had thus consigned to bondage. What a leap the heart of Huffey White would have given had some presiding angel of human destiny revealed to him the identity of the boy he had thus disposed of. It never entered the man's mind as a possible thing that the child he had thus strangely come in contact with, was a human form with which he once before had very close connection. Little did he dream that the infant he had carried across the hills on a stormy December night eight years before, and that little ragged, blue-eyed boy were one and the same. Had he known it the knowledge would probably have prompted him to deal in a different way with Charlie, but he knew it not; and utterly careless of what might come of the little urchin, his mind was wholly engrossed with the stupendous robbery which he and his accomplices had that night effected, and his chief anxiety was to reach the place where he was to join them, and from whence all three would decamp at the earliest possible moment with their ill-got wealth. We leave them to make good their flight, and return to Charlie.

The moment Huffey White quitted the caravan Morgan fastened up the narrow door, Charlie standing the while in perfect silence by his side, his little heart being anything but well assured, for he remembered the bad opinion he had formed of the showman when he stood so long in front of the caravan in the afternoon. His quick shrewd mind came to the conclusion that he had been brought to live in that caravan, and with a child's instinctive feeling he had a dread of the big man who had taken charge of him. But he could not help himself, and as his past experience had made him anything but soft-hearted, he demeaned himself with a quietness apparently amounting to apathy, and did not even start when the showman's big hand was in the darkness laid on his arm.

'Now, youngster, you come here,' said the gruff voice of Morgan, and he felt himself pulled somewhat roughly to another part of the caravan, till his feet struck against a heap of something soft lying on the floor.

'There is your bed; get into it and sleep till morning.'

TO BE CONTINUED.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

Whooping Cough is successfully treated by separating the patients beyond hearing distance of each other, and by the employment of Fellows' Hypophosphites. Whooping Cough is a nervous disease of so sympathetic a nature, that a paroxysms may be produced in one susceptable by simply hearing the cough of another person. The above named treatment has been found singularly effective.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, DEC. 18.

The Manitoba Election.

The result of the election for the Local Assembly in the Province of Manitoba, which took place on the 16th inst., was, we learn from a Winnipeg telegram to the Mail, a complete triumph for the Conservative party. The Grit organ—the Free Press—admits that its party has been beaten, whilst the Times, which has ably championed the Conservative cause, claims that the result is due to the introduction of Dominion issues. Of the 24 members, 10 only have been returned as supporters of the Coalition Government, which it is believed will be succeeded by a Conservative administration. The result is thus summarized by the despatch :—"There was an exciting contest in Winnipeg, where Captain Thomas Scott, Conservative, was elected over Captain McMillan, a Reformer, by 66 votes. Hon. John Taylor, Minister of Agriculture, has been beaten in Assiniboine by 80 votes. Mr. Brown, Minister of Public Works, has been returned by acclamation. No word has been received from the constituency of Mr. Walker, the Attorney-General. Mr. Speaker Sifton has been defeated in St. Clements by Mr. Hay, Conservative. Mr. Nash, Conservative, has been elected at Emerson over Mr. Burnham, Reformer, by 86 majority. Mr. Lipset, Conservative, has been elected by acclamation from Woodland. Mr. John Sakins, Conservative, has been elected for Rockwood. Mr. McMicken, Conservative, has been returned for Cartier. Mr. Thomas Greenway, Conservative, has been elected by acclamation for Mountain. Mr. Winen, Reformer, has been elected by acclamation for South Dufferin. Mr. Larivierc, Conservative, has been elected for St. Boniface. Mr. Ross, Reformer, has been elected for Springfield. Mr. Patrice Breland, Conservative, has been elected by acclamation for St. Francois Xavier."

Since the above was written, later returns state that the Norquay Coalition has been sustained by a large majority.

WRESTLING MATCH.—The Montreal Star says : "Prof. D. C. Ross has made arrangements to wrestle for the championship of America and the $500 belt on Saturday night next in the Theatre Royal. His opponent will be Capt. Daley, a noted American athlete.

LARGE DEFICIENCY.—The Commissioners appointed by the Government to examine the County of Lennox Treasurer's books and the financial affairs of the county closed the examination yesterday. The books of the county will be forwarded to the Government with the Commissioner's report. It is reported there is a deficit of $29,000.

FIRE IN MORRISBURG.—We regret to learn by the following despatch from Morrisburg that Mr. Hugh C. Kennedy, formerly of Belleville, has met with a serious loss by fire :—"Early this morning a fire occurred in the house occupied by H. C. Kennedy as a dwelling and publication office of the Courier, of which he is proprietor. The fire originated from the furnace in the cellar. The alarm was given about five o'clock, and when the firemen turned out the weather was so bitterly cold that the engine would not work effectively. Mr. Kennedy and his family escaped uninjured through an upper window. When the fire was subdued, it was found that the damage in the lower rooms was very serious, but the plant in the printing office which had not been removed was not seriously damaged. Mr. Kennedy had been attending the trial of Mrs. Brown at West Winchester, and had retired only a couple of hours before the fire was discovered. Loss about $1,000, covered by a policy for $2,500 in the Western Insurance Company.

NORWEGIAN SKATERS.—The corps of skaters, a force peculiar to the Norwegian army, has latterly been reorganized, and consists now of five companies, each of 110 men, which, in time of war, can be reinforced by calling in 270 skaters belonging to the landwehr. The men of this corps are armed with rifles, and can be manœuvred upon ice, or over the snow fields of the mountains, with a rapidity equal to that of the best trained cavalry. The skates they use are admirably adapted for travelling over rough and broken ice, or frozen snow, being 6 inches broad, and between 9 and 10 inches long. In ascending steep slopes the men take a zigzag course, tacking up the mountain side as a ship does against a head wind. As an instance of the speed at which they can go, it is mentioned that last winter a messenger despatched from Rosrass at 9 o'clock in the morning, arrived at Dronthoim at 9:30 in the evening of the same day, having consequently accomplished 120 miles in 18h. 30m.

The Afghan War.

The treacherous Afghans, whose turbulence seems irrepressible, have for the second time risen against their British conquerors ; and no secret has been their movements and so well concerted their arrangements, that they have been able to place a force of 30,000 men in the field, and to cut off communication with the forces of General Roberts, whom they have forced to abandon Cabul and shut himself up in Shirpur, where they are now besieging him. Fears of a repetition of the horrible massacre of 1842 have been given expression to, but in those fears we do not, according to the most recent reports, see good reason for sharing. Gen.' Roberts' position is so strong that it cannot be successfully assailed, whilst reinforcements are being pushed forward to his aid. The only good ground for fear appears to be that the natives may be able to prevent the progress of these reinforcements ; but the breech-loading rifles and light mountain guns are weapons so efficient that there is the best of ground for hoping that the relieving army will win its way to a speedy junction with Roberts' force. In such case the Afghans will be speedily dispersed, as the British will then be too powerful to be successfully resisted.

Treachery and cunning have given the enemy a brief advantage. That it will be only temporary and that Roberts and his gallant comrades in arms have a speedy triumph in store for them is what every Britain heartily desires.

News Condensed.

—The Customs investigation at Toronto is still in progress.

—A Victoria, British Columbia, firm are shipping corned beef to England.

—Thermometer at Ottawa on the night of the 17th inst. was 22 below zero.

—The elections in Manitoba have resulted in a Conservative triumph.

—The Dominion Exhibition at Ottawa was a financial failure, being $600 short.

—Wm. Morrow was drowned at Amherstburg on the 18th.

—James Leith, of Caledonia, was drowned in the Grand River on the 18th.

—The next Provincial Exhibition is to be held in Hamilton, commencing 20th Sept. and will last two weeks.

—A Kingston man on the 18th inst. sold the body of his wife to the Royal College for $4.

—Sophie Leduc, Montreal, was burned to death on the 17th inst., having let fall a coal oil lamp, which set fire to her clothes.

—The U. S. Consul at Belfast reports that the exports of the year show an increase of over one million dollars.

—Twelve cars of poultry passed over the Canada Central on Tuesday for Boston and New York.

—The first shipment of iron ore from the Baldwin mines, near Ottawa, was made on the 18th inst.

—Mr. John Horsman, of Guelph, wholesale hardware, has suspended. Liabilities $50,000.

—An attempt was made on the 18th to murder Dr. Mewburn, of Clifton. He was struck on the head with an axe, and lies in a critical condition.

—Dr. Richmond, who was arrested at Napanee last week for practicing medicine without a license, has been sent to gaol, not being able to pay his fine.

—The experiment of heating houses by steam in London has thus far proved an entire success. The new process can be used for cooking as well as heating purposes.

—London Truth says there is no foundation for recent rumors about H. R. H. the Princess Louise, and that she returns to Canada in January by the Sarmatian, as originally announced.

—In the case of Mrs Brown, West Winchester, the decision is two magistrates for committing her, and two against. The matter has been submitted to the County Crown Attorney at Cornwall, and it is expected he will make as early a decision as possible. It is believed he will commit her.

A VERY LARGE INCREASE.—The Grand Trunk receipts for the week ending Dec. 13th were $189,269 as compared with $158,942 the corresponding period last year—an increase of $30,327. The increase in twenty-four weeks has been $341,477.

HEATING CITIES BY STEAM.—Heating cities by steam on the same principle as gas and water is supplied, has proved an entire success at Detroit and other cities in the United States. London, Ont., has also embarked in the same enterprise with equal satisfaction, and no doubt the idea will be adopted in all cities on the continent that aspire to modern comfort. At Detroit, besides heating public buildings and private dwellings, engines are used for manufacturing purposes. The advantages of the system may be summed up in a few words. It is more economical, saves dirt and infinite trouble, the expense of a fireman in many cases, and by greatly reducing the risk of fire, lessens the rates of insurance. This verdict would seem to be conclusive.

SHORT DAYS.—We are now on the eve of the shortest days of the year, the sun yielding light only about ten hours out of the twenty-four. Sunday next and the three following days will be the shortest, there being little difference in the length of the three preceding and the three following Christmas day. After that date, the days will begin to rally in their strength, and a few weeks hence the laborer will be enabled to put in better ten hours' work, and not wonder where the time has gone to. Short days and cold weather retard business and all will be pleased with the increased length of days and light which a month hence will bring them.

A large proportion of children who die early are those whose brain development is unusually large in comparison with the body. Why is this ? Simply because the functions of the body are too frail to supply the waste going on in the brain consequent upon active intelligence. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is so prepared that it imparts the vital principal directly to the brain, while it assists in developing a vigorous and robust body.

USEFULNESS.—Delightful to use, clean and healthful upon the hair, there is nothing that can compare with it. Try Hearine.

HAGERSTOWN, Ind., Dec. 19.—The excitement at Lasantville over the supposed murder of a Jewish peddler by John Caraday, who proposed to give him a mortgage on a farm for a loan of $2,000 a short time ago. The peddler visited Caraday and has not been seen since. His waggon was sold by Caraday's son and his horse found buried on Caraday's farm. Caraday was arrested and his son has disappeared.

OWENTOWN, Ky., Dec. 19.—Jno. Hailman, Jno. Davis and Jno. Roberts undertook to cross the Kentucky River at Gratz in a small flat boat last night and shortly afterwards cries were heard. The boat was subsequently found bottom upwards. All are supposed to be drowned.

ELKHART, Ind., Dec. 19.—Wm. Young, an old man living a short distance from Edwards, burg, was found murdered in his house yesterday. The body had been placed across the stove to give an impression of accidental death. It is supposed he was murdered for his money.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—The President of the pork packers' union claims that the 10,000 members now on strike are well organized and have plenty of money. They intend to do no work in any house employing non-union men. They will attempt no violence.

NEW CANTON, Ill., Dec. 19.—A house recently occupied by a man and wife has been found entirely deserted, with the furniture intact and blood on various articles. Cries of murder were heard on Thursday, but no investigation was made until yesterday. A neighbor who had threatened their lives shipped his goods recently to Lorraine, and it is suspected that he packed the bodies of his victims in a case and took them along.

OMAHA, Dec. 19.—Kearney, the California agitator, passed through here in a second class car of the east bound train last night. He says he goes east to attend a conference in Washington on January 8th of all the labor organizations and the Greenback Congressmen. He advocates the combination of all parties against the republican nominee. He favors Thurman, but would accept any candidate "sound" on finance and the Chinese questions.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Joseph Carroll suicided by cutting his throat with a razor on Wednesday. It is believed his mind became effected through the loss of $500 which he loaned to St Anthony's church, which recently became bankrupt.

Francis Fitch, a boy, was run over and killed by an express waggon in September. When the boy was knocked down, Charles Kirchdorfer the driver, whipped the horses and drove rapidly away. Kirchdorfer yesterday was convicted of manslaughter in the fourth degree.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—The Times Philadelphia specials says many cases containing gifts for General Grant have been received at Childs' residence. None have yet been opened. Grant will remain in Philadelphia about a fortnight, nearly the whole time will be taken up in receptions, public and private. On Sunday he attends the Methodist Church and in the evening dines with Adolph Borie. From here, he intends to go to Jersey City to visit his mother. There is the highest authority for saying that Grant has no present intention of ever accepting the Presidency of the Canal Company. Those who are in position to speak authoritatively say that while Grant will individually do nothing to bring about such a result, should the Republican nomination for the Presidency be tendered him he will accept it.

The Herald's Utica special says the impression prevails in Utica that Horatio Seymour would not decline the unanimous nomination by the Democrats for the Presidency, but he would not become a candidate in the ordinary acceptance of the term.

SPRINGVILLE, Ind., Dec. 19.—A mob gathered at the depot last night intending violence to negroes from North Carolina, whose arrival was expected, but they did not alight and the train moved on to Indianapolis.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 19.—Governor Simpson was yesterday elected Chief Justice by the Legislature. There is a constitutional question concerning the existence of a vacancy and Simpson will be obliged to resign the governorship in order to test the matter.

A gossip from the African camp says Sir Evelyn Wood did not get on very well with his chaplain, and on one occasion the following conversation took place, in the course of which I think you will agree with me that the reverend gentleman had the best of it. "When are you going to leave us, Mr.—" asked the General. "Oh, about the same time that you do yourself, I suppose," meekly answered the parson. "Oh, I don't know so much about that," said Sir Evelyn, "for I want your tent and I can't spare rations much longer." "Ah ! but I want my tent myself, General, though I don't want spare rations." "Yes, but you know mine is the 'flying column,' and I can't be expected to fly with a lot of parsons hanging on to my coat-tails." "Well, General all that I can say is that if you call seven miles and a half a day flying, I think I shall be able to keep up with you"—this was a facer. "That's all very well," said the General, a little nettled, "but I hear now that there's a Roman Catholic chaplain about to join us, and if he does I declare I'll put him in your tent." "If you do I daresay I shall have sufficient strength to put him out again," meekly observed the parson, and so the interview ended.

A FAMILY FRIEND.—No family should be without Perry Davis' Vegetable PAIN-KILLER. It can be given to the infant for the Colic, and to the adult for Rheumatism. There is scarcely a disease to which it may not be beneficially applied. It contains no deleterious drug, but may be used for the various ailments of mankind.

AID FOR SPANISH SUFFERERS.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The Vega, Professor Nordenskjold's vessel, arrived at Point DeGalle on on the 16th inst. with all well.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The Afghan excitement is at fever heat. It is roundly declared that the relations between the English Generals are anything but harmonious, and that the infantry are still sore with the cavalry for having allowed the enemy to escape after Chara Siab, and the troopers are still jealous of the praise which Roberts lavished on the foot regiments.

PARIS, Dec. 19.—At a Journalist fete last night for the benefit of the sufferers by Spanish floods the attendance was very large, including Spanish visitors headed by ex-Queen Isabella, Waddington and Cabinet, Gambetta, and nearly all the leading actors, actresses and artists. M'me Neiolan Carbalho sold music, Theo cried violets, Judic told fortunes, Sarah Bernhardt wrote autographs, Croizette sold Lecarnivals of the journal of the fete. The cover of the latter was designed by Dore & Groivin, and was a caricature. On the cover pages were signatures of famous people, including King Alfonso and Queen Christine. The articles were written by Dumas, Angier, Sardeau and Feuillet. Rothschild contributed the financial article, and the illustrations were by Meissonier, Detaille, de Neville, Nibert, Carolus, Duran and J. P. Laurens. The price of a journal was a franc. The musical part of the programme began at 9 o'clock with 800 performers.

CONSTERNATION IN ENGLAND.

Apprehensions of an Indian Mutiny—Lord Napier summoned from Gibraltar—A Call for Volunteer Officers—Scant News from the Seat of War.

[BY CABLE TO THE MAIL]

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The state of feeling at the War and Foreign Offices to-day is one of almost utter consternation. Lord Napier has been summoned from Gibraltar by telegraph to consult with the War Office. The opinion prevails that not only is General Roberts in danger of destruction with his whole army, but that a general mutiny may be expected in India.

A Calcutta despatch says that in consequence of the exceptionally heavy loss of superior officers in the recent conflicts in Afghanistan, the Indian Government has asked for volunteers, and a despatch goes forward to England to-day, making this known. The Government more especially desires good staff officers, and those skilled in transportation and commissary service. Preference will be given to young and smart officers, and tempting offers of promotion will be held out to them.

Gen. Bright reports that the hill tribes attacked Gen. Gough on the 16th inst. Gen. Bright is sending forward reinforcements. Gen. Baker telegraphed from Cabul on the 15th that his troops were in excellent spirits, but gave no other news.

Details of the fighting at Cabul show the people of the city and the villagers vied with each other in murdering and mutilating the stragglers and wounded men of the British army, some being actually murdered within 200 yards of the wall of Shirpur.

The Lahore Gazette asserts that General Gough's brigade has taken refuge in the fort at Jugdullak. Several thousand Ghilzais are threatening it, and throwing up defences on the hills. General Gough has only six days' provisions.

The Pall Mall Gazette asserts that Yakoob Khan's buried treasure, recently recovered at Cabul, was all in Russian gold ; and some Afghan regulars were dressed in Russian uniforms, which in many cases had the Russian eagle on the buttons.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, THURSDAY, DEC. 18.

City and Vicinity.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—A special meeting of this Board is to be held to-night.

MURNEY WARD.—Alderman Vandusen is a candidate for re-election in this Ward.

COLEMAN WARD.—Mr. Robert Gordon is once more a candidate for a seat in the Council for this Ward.

POLICE.—The inmates of the cells last night numbered eight; namely three prisoners and five tramps.

CLOSING OF THE GATES.—Yesterday was the anniversary of the closing of the gates of Derry. There was no celebration of the event in town.

DAIRY PRODUCE.—At the recent International Dairy fair in New York, Canadian cheese took the first prize in the contest open to the world, and Canadian butter secured premier awards in other classes.

HOLIDAY PRESENTS.—Now, before the stocks have been depleted, is the time for making the selection of holiday presents. The advertising columns of the INTELLIGENCER form as good a directory as could be had. In them all the principal establishments are represented and announce their specialities.

ELEVATOR AT CAMPBELLFORD.—The Herald states that a gentleman who lives in this city will shortly commence the erection of a grain elevator at Campbellford. Our contemporary anticipates that Campbellford will become an important grain market, which it certainly ought to do, as if is the centre of one of the best agricultural districts in Canada.

A CHANCE FOR BARNES.—The Mail of yesterday says, "If John S. Barnes really ran a hundred yards in 9⅔ seconds at Belleville, the other day, he has an excellent opportunity for making money. A gentleman, whom Barnes will probably recognize by his name, Charles Clark, has authorized intimation to be made to the Toronto sprinter that he is prepared to make a match with him, conceding him five yards start in a hundred, for no less than five hundred dollars a side. If Barnes is willing to accept, a notification to this office will lead to arrangements being made for the contest."

A YOUTHFUL FORGER.—A newsboy about 12 years of age attempted a sharp trick yesterday. Some months ago he engaged in selling the INTELLIGENCER on the streets, but owing to dishonesty, was refused papers when he again applied for them. Yesterday afternoon he entered the business office shortly after the paper went to press, and applied for some papers. The book-keeper referred him to Mr. London, who has charge of the city circulation, but the boy said he would be refused papers up stairs, so he suggested paying for six copies and taking an order for the same, which was done. When the order was presented to Mr. London it asked for 16 papers, and knowing the boy's previous record he was suspicious, especially as the 1 was badly formed, but the youth was served. Becoming again suspicious, however, Mr. London took the order to the book-keeper, and found that the boy had forged the 1, thus procuring 10 papers for which he had not paid. He was followed to the Pinnacle St. Station, the stolen papers recovered, and the youthful forger given fair warning what to expect if caught in any further delinquency. There seems to be a perfect mania for crime amongst the boys of the city at the present time, and the youth in question is not one of the best of those so inclined. His offence was a very serious one, and but for his tender years he would have been prosecuted. Unless he mends his ways very shortly, he will find himself in the Reformatory.

BALDWIN WARD.—Alderman D. B. Robertson offers himself for re-election for a third term for Baldwin Ward.

THE ELECTION CASE.—Argument in the West Hastings election case was heard yesterday in Toronto. The judges reserved decision until the 29th inst.

PROMOTION EXAMINATION.—A written examination for promotion to the fourth class, will be held in the Central School, on Monday Dec. 22nd, at 9 a. m.

BAZAAR.—The bazaar held in the Metropolitan Hall yesterday afternoon and evening was successful. There was a good attendance and numerous sales were made.

CORRECTION.—In our notice of the building operations it was erroneously stated that Mr. James Smith was the architect of Mr. S. S. Lazier's new residence. The pleas were drawn by Mr. J. D. Evans.

ALEXANDRA COLLEGE.—As will be seen by advertisement, an important reduction has been made in the price of tuition in this institution for the higher education of young ladies.

THE BAY.—We are informed that the ferry steamer Mary Ethel stopped running to-day. It was reported that some teams crossed on the ice in the vicinity of the upper ferry.

PERSONAL.—Dr. Bucke, Medical Superintendent of the Asylum for the Insane, London, and author of "Man's Moral Nature," is at present visiting the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, the guest of the Superintendent, Mr. Matheson.

THE ISLAND.—The City Clerk gives notice of application to the Dominion Parliament for power to construct a foot walk from the ferry dock at the foot of Dundas Street, to the northern point of the island in the mouth of the harbor.

THE DAIRY FAIR.—Messrs. Hodgson & Sons of this city, Montreal and Brockville, took not only the first and second prizes for the Canadas at the New York International Dairy Fair, but also first prize in the sweepstake class for the best cheese made on either continent.

HANDSOME RETURN.—The ladies of St. George's Church, Trenton, held a bazaar last week, and realized the handsome sum of $125. The proceeds will be devoted towards the erection of "Canterbury Hall," west side of the river, adjoining the parsonage, for the purpose of tea-meetings, lectures, Sunday School, &c.

VACATIONS.—United Public and High Schools and Public Schools in Cities, Towns and incorporated Villages in which High Schools are situate, close Monday, Dec. 22nd, at 4 p. m., and reopen on Wednesday, January 27th, at 9 a. m. Schools in rural sections close on Tuesday, Dec. 23rd at 4 p.m., and re-open on Monday, January 5th, at 9 a. m.

PRINCE EDWARD RAILWAY.—To better accommodate the public, another change in the time table of this road will come into effect on Monday next. The morning trains will leave Trenton and Picton fifteen minutes sooner, and arrive corresponding-ly earlier at the respective termini. The hours of departure for the afternoon trains remain unchanged.

GOT A DUCKING.—Mr. George Robbins who lives in Prince Edward, made an unsuccessful attempt this morning to cross the bay with a pony and cutter. He drove on the ice between the Grand Junction and light house wharves, but had not proceeded further than the tank house on the railway dock, when the ice gave way beneath the pony, which was rescued with some difficulty.

CONVERSAZIONE.—The Conversazione held last night under the auspices of the Mechanics' Institute proved to be a most pleasing affair. There were music by the Oddfellows' band, also vocal and instrumental solos and concerted pieces, readings and recitations, and a fine exhibition of skill in the gymnasium by local amateurs. Mr. Thos. Ritchie offers prizes of $10 and $5 respectively to the best general gymnasts in a competition which will take place on the 24th of May next year.

BRENTANO'S MONTHLY.—The December issue of this sporting magazine is the best yet issued. It appears in a new and very neatly designed cover, and contains as a frontispiece, representations of the famous schooner yacht Madeline, the equally famous sloop White Wing, and that of a new craft. It has also illustrations of a new man power propeller for small boats, and several billiard diagrams of interest. The literary contents treat ably and fully of every branch of legitimate sport, and some interesting stories are added. The price—$5 per year or 25cts. per copy—is very reasonable. Published by Brentano & Co., Union Square, New York.

THE COMPLETE HOME.—We have just received the "Complete Home" a new and interesting work by Mrs. Julia McNair Wright, published by Bradley, Garretson & Co., Brantford, Ont. We have no hesitation in giving it a most hearty unqualified recommendation. Its author as a well-known writer and contributor to many of our leading newspapers and periodicals is a guarantee for its excellence. We have never read a book from which, with its beauty and simplicity of language more pleasure could be gathered. It neglects no part of social economy. Its chapters on domestic duties are replete with information for everybody, while as a literary work it is equally pleasing. We bespeak for it a large circulation, and as it is only sold by subscription would advise any who wish to add a good book to their libraries to avail themselves of the opportunity to give an order when it is presented.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—The escape of 700 people during the fire at the Park theatre last night without a panic, is dwelt upon by the morning papers as an evidence of what presence of mind will accomplish. The fire was discovered while Emmett was acting. The manager, Abbey, and treasurer, Edwards, at once stationed policemen at the Broadway vestibule, where the fire was burning, and opened two other exits on 22nd Street. Emmett bade the audience disperse quietly, and a gentleman in the audience made the same request. In four minutes the theatre was quietly emptied. BALTIMORE, Dec. 19.—A suit was brought up yesterday by Miss Mary Murray against General Tyler, Postmaster, for $20,000 damages for assault. Miss Murray, who is a clerk in the post office, was the principal witness against P. M. Tyler in the recent investigation of charges against him. It is understood that she testified as to improper conduct towards herself by Tyler in his private apartments, and on the Monday following the decision by the President that the charges against Tyler had not been maintained, Miss Murray was removed from her post.

The Trent Valley Canal.

INTERVIEW OF THE PROMOTERS WITH THE MONTREAL CITY COUNCIL.

A Delegation to Proceed to Ottawa in the Interests of the Scheme.

MONTREAL, Dec. 18.—The City Council met this afternoon for the purpose of hearing a deputation appointed to explain the project of the promoters of the new Trent Valley Canal. Mayor Rivard occupied the chair, and introduced Mr. Joseph Keeler, M. P. for East Northumberland, and Mr. John Carnegie, Peterboro', the gentlemen forming the deputation.

Mr. Keeler, M.P., thanked the Council for granting them that audience, and gave a history of previous schemes which had not been carried out. Notably, he called attention to the proposed Huron and Ontario canal, which in consequence of the great excavations would be impracticable, whilst its cost would be forty millions, instead of, as in the case of the canal under consideration, being only three millions. It was intended to explain by maps how by making two inland cuts at the comparatively small cost of three millions of dollars, they would be able to make a barge canal, which would put the port of Montreal in direct communication with the Georgian Bay and the Manitoulin Islands, and bring this port 450 miles nearer to the Western States and Manitoba than New York. He contended that Canada was able to produce all the breadstuff wanted by England, and if the cost of transit was thus cheapened, the market must be hers. He asked that after the Council had given its consideration to the matter they should appoint the Mayor to proceed to Ottawa on Tuesday next, and meet the gentlemen who would be there to ask the Government to give assistance to the scheme.

Mr. Carnegie also addressed the Council on the importance of the scheme, after which the Mayor and Ald. Nelson were appointed to proceed to Ottawa on Tuesday to urge upon the Government to undertake the work.

MARRIED,

On the 18th inst., at the residence of the bride's father, West Belleville, by the Rev. N. R. Willoughby, M. A., Miss SARAH JANE REEVES to REV. JAMES CULLOM, all of Belleville.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

DEAR SIR,—I regret to see the statement in your last evening's issue that I was in any way conducting my canvass upon political grounds for the mayoralty.

I assert that I have in no instance solicited a vote from any man of either political party upon party grounds;—neither have I stated that I was brought out by Conservatives; what I have stated and still maintain, is that I was more strongly solicited to become a candidate by Conservatives than Reformers if there was any difference politically.

I certainly deprecate as much as you possibly can, that anything of a political nature should be brought into this contest, and I appeal to my record as an old Councillor and citizen, in proof of the fact that my votes in and out of the Council will show that I have never been governed from political motives in municipal matters.

Thanking you for your valuable space in making this correction,

I remain, yours truly,
R. S. PATTERSON.

Selection of Dairy Cows.

Dairymen everywhere feel that their prospects are brightening, and their industry is quite otherwise than hopeless. And now that they have felt the discouragement of very low prices for several years, and have been crushed between the upper and the nether millstones—between low prices and short crops—let them put their "houses in order," in that over which they have control, and eliminate the short product from the case. They are in the condition of the grain raiser who cultivates two acres to get the product of one—have the labor and nearly all the expense with only half a crop; they pay rent for their own land by doing half the labor for nothing. So, many a dairyman feeds and milks 20 cows, and gets only the profit of 10. When prices are unusually high, they are cheerful under this management, as they can save something; but the present low prices fall they are in distress; but they lay it all to the low markets, when that is only half the trouble. So far as profit is concerned, the man with ten good cows can save more money, with half the price for the product, than the man with 20 cows and a high price for a small product; because the latter expends twice the labor, and nearly twice the food for the same product. The manufacturer of cotton or woollen goods pays the greatest attention to the machinery with which he carries on business. He knows that he cannot compete in the market with those whose machinery can produce cotton fabrics for one quarter cent per yard less than his. And even a less fraction than this of saving would make all the difference between success and failure.

With the dairyman the cow is the machine that manufactures the staple of his dairy goods. Why should he not be as particular and cautious in selecting his herd of cows as is the cotton manufacturer in the machinery to work out his fabrics? How long do dairymen think that any class of manufacturers could continue in business if no greater attention were paid to the details than dairymen give to theirs!

One third of all the cows kept by dairymen in the United States produce less milk than will pay their keep. These are simply a clog upon the business, and were better given away than kept. Does not this most important matter appeal to dairymen everywhere, that they should at once set about weeding out their poor cows, so that they may be able to reap a harvest with a good market, and protect themselves against loss with low prices? One-half the cows kept produce not over 3,000 pounds of milk per year, while selected cows will produce 6,000 pounds, on an average.

The value of a cow, measured for factory cheese production, is determined by the pounds of milk she yields, and may be looked at wholly from this standpoint; in which case nothing less than 6,000 pounds should be astrafactory. The cheese dairyman has then a simple standard of selection —merely the yield of milk—and the sale milk dairyman has the same standard. This is very easily determined with a pair of spring scales hung in a stable, with a book having a name or number for each cow; and by weighing and entering the milk of each cow in the book one day in a week, the average of these weighings will give the average yield per day, none enough for all purposes. Can't a dairyman afford to take this small trouble to learn the individual character of his cows, when profit or loss depend upon it? A cow that yields only 3,000 pounds, at five or six years old, should be got rid of as a pauper that lives on your charity and refuses to work. Only heifers with the first calf can be tolerated with so low a yield; and the prospect is not favorable even with the heifer. She should yield 4,000 pounds the first season to offer much encouragement to keep her. A heifer whose udder does not reach back and well up had better be discarded at once. If the udder is round and hangs down in front of her legs, like a four quart pail, she is not worth an experiment. It becomes necessary for dairymen to study all the substantial points of a good cow, that they may avoid throwing away food upon an animal not designed to yield milk in paying quantity.

FOR A BUTTER DAIRY.

If the object of the dairy is to produce butter, then each cow must be tested for yield and quality of butter. This can only be done to any proper effect by churning each cow's cream for at least one week, keeping also the weight of her milk. The percentage of cream is not a reliable test; as from the same cows, at one time 2½ lbs. of cream will produce a pound of butter, and at another 4 lbs of cream are required. Only actual churning of cream can determine the yield of butter. In selecting a herd wholly for butter, it is hardly worth while to keep a cow of whose milk it requires more than 25 lbs. for one of butter. It is also objectionable if the butter should be light colored; but if the quantity and quality are otherwise satisfactory, it is better to retain her, for the color is easily remedied. These individual tests for butter are as well made during the first month after coming in; for as the season is then usually cool, the milk of each cow can more easily be handled separately.

In testing for butter, a cow that ought to be discarded in a cheese dairy, might be quite worthy of being retained in a butter dairy. One cow may produce more butter from 4,000 lbs. of milk than another from 6,000 lbs., and each of these cows should be put in her proper place. A cow is not worthy of a place in a butter dairy that does not yield 200 lbs. of butter per year; and the aim should be to reach 300 lbs. per cow. One had much better keep 10 cows that produce 300 lbs. of butter than keep 15 cows to reach the same amount. Almost every dairyman, by proper tests made this fall, will find some of his cows that ought to be disposed of as unprofitable for one branch or the other of dairying. There should be no hesitation when he learns the facts; for an unprofitable cow only adds to the labor and products from the profits.—National Live Stock Journal.

Bilious Complaints

Arise from a morbid or unhealthy condition of the liver. This unhealthy action goes on slowly two, three, or may be four weeks, the morbid deposits gradually increasing and accumulating until the crisis arrives, the over-charged liver can contain it no longer, and a discharge of vicious bile takes place into the stomach, which produces a sickness, attended with headache and more or less unpleasant symptoms. The liver thus becomes purged of its unhealthy matter, the system suffers for a few days, then finally reacts, recovers, and goes on for another period. Hence the importance of using DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS, which are composed entirely of medicines calculated to produce this proper discharge, and thus save the unpleasant week's illness which must else be borne. It is the most certain way to obtain relief. Beginning always, in the cases of those who are constitutionally bilious, on the appearance of the first symptoms of an attack, the attack will be lighter every time, until they succeed finally in breaking up that morbid condition which gives rise to the disease.

Why Will You

Allow a cold to advance in your system and thus engender more maladies, such as Pneumonia, Hemorrhages and Lung troubles when an immediate relief can be so readily attained. Boschee's German Syrup has obtained the largest sale in the world for the cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung Diseases. It is Dr. Boschee's famous German prescription, and is prepared with the greatest care, and no fear need be entertained in administering it to the youngest infant, or the most delicate. The sale of this medicine is unprecedented. Since first introduced there has been a constant increasing demand and without a single report of a failure to do its work in any case. Ask your Druggist as to the truth of these remarks. Large size 75 cents. Try it and be convinced.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of having him killed before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly call and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

The Sun for 1880.

THE SUN will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 will be considered as a newspaper, written in the English language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, THE SUN believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast of the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is, the last controlling principle by which we have been a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read THE SUN; and they all derive satisfaction if some event from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, THE SUN believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party, class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good, and condemn what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not govern all the rest of the world; has no opinions to sell, save which may be had by any purchaser for two cents. It hates injustice and rascality more than it does unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores unsympooths of every species. It will continue to denounce and ridicule and chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And THE SUN makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which THE SUN will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, the necessity of constant vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the prime-movers and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years has been with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration intrenched at Washington. The Sun did something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answers to these momentous questions. The Sun will be found in the thick of the fight as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the constitution against all aggressors, THE SUN is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and at the same time entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily Sun, a four page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post-paid, is 55 cents a month, or $9.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of THE SUN is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

SYR. FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES COMP. FELLOWS

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia. Bronchitis. Loss of Appetite. Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James L. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Acute Anemia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epileptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, and there can no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that if you had not come to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.
WALTER OAKES.
Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of several Kansas City Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker, until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT,
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

Having a number of BINS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railway and Steamboat wharves we need have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are in a good state of repair.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from wagons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the knowledge therefore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate what is now offered.

PATENTS

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

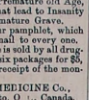

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, late official in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Its searching and Healing Properties are known throughout the World.

For the cure of BAD LEGS, Bad Breasts, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, it is an infallible remedy. If effectually rubbed on the neck and chest, as well into the throat, it Cures SORE THROAT, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and even ASTHMA. For Glandular Swellings, Abscesses, Piles, Fistulas, Gout, Rheumatism,

And every kind of SKIN DISEASE, it has never been known to fail.

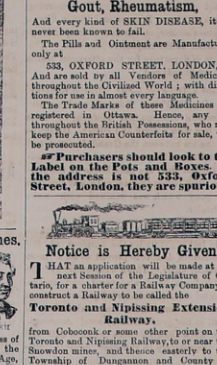

The Pills and Ointment are Manufactured only at

533, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World; with directions for use in almost every language.

The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence, any one throughout the British Possessions, who may keep the American Counterfeits for sale, will be prosecuted.

☞ Purchasers should look to the Label on the Pots and Boxes. If the address is not 533, Oxford Street, London, they are spurious.

This Great Household Medicine ranks amongst the leading necessaries of Life.

These famous Pills purify the BLOOD, and act most powerfully yet soothingly on the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys,

and BOWELS, giving tone, energy, and vigor to these great MAIN SPRINGS OF LIFE. They are confidently recommended as a never failing remedy in all cases where the constitution, from whatever cause, has become impaired or weakened. They are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females of all ages; and as a GENERAL FAMILY MEDICINE, are unsurpassed.

LEAVING THE OLD HOUSE.

There's sunshine on the meadows,
And sunshine on the road,
And through the brightness toills the horse
Beneath a weary load.
And as I stand beside the door, with hand before my eyes,
I hear the chil dren laugh to see the household goods I prize.

There was a time when this old home
Was full of mirth and glee,
But one by one the household went
And left it all to me—
A quiet house and quiet rooms, each made a sacred place
By echo of a missing voice, a dream of vanished face.

My new room is a pleasant place,
But it grieves me now;
Its small completeness seems to say
My world is narrow now.
'Tis far too small for any one to keep,
But for my funeral large enough, for few will come to weep.

Good bye, old house—a long good bye!
My hand is on your gate;
Though faint my courage, burning in my eyes,
I must no longer wait.
Good bye, old house! and, after all the love which makes you dear,
Awaits me in the heavenly home to which I'm drawing near.

MORE OF THYSELF,

O ever blessed Master,
Thou bearest my sin,
Whose free and full forgiveness
Is quiet joy and peace within;
With thy richer blessing,
Thou standest self-denial,
They bear on things above.

Give me thy tender sorrow
Over a brother's fall,
Thy joy at other's gladness,
Thy sympathy with all.
Give me to bear the burdens
Of other hearts than mine,
And in it find close fellowship,
With Thee, O Christ divine.

O true and faithful witness
Fulfil thy word to me,
Thou saynst "As the Master,
So shall the servant be."
Let me of self be emptied,
And crucified to pride,
Do with me as Thou will, Lord,
But make me pure within!

Not I, but Thou, Lord Jesus,
Must live my life again;
Not mine, but thine the warfare
That gains the victory;
Not mine, lest bide the burden
Of suffering save in thee—
I cannot feel the weight, Lord,
When Thou dost bear my cross!

O love that passeth knowledge!
O grace divinely free!
That Thou should'st seek my heart, Lord,
And give Thyself to me!
Not mine, but Thine the glory,
My thankful heart shall sing:
All Thine and Thine forever,
My glorious LORD and KING!—S.R.B.

The Cost of Carelessness.

How often do we hear of an excuse for some harm done or wrong committed, "I did not mean to do it, I had no thought of causing any such trouble." Certainly, "want of thought" draws after it a great train of evil and leaves behind it a broad trail of cost and sorrow. We see the result of carelessness in all departments of life, and in all degrees, from the most trivial, causing only inconvenience and confusion, to the most far reaching, casting a shadow into eternity.

A nurse fell down the stairs with an infant in her arms, and fifty years afterward there was a humpbacked man creeping about the streets. A child threw a piece of lemonpeel on the sidewalk, and there was an accident an hour after, in which an old lady was severely injured, so severely that she will never be able to walk again. A switch-tender opened the wrong switch and a heavy train dashed into a great building that stood at the end of the short side track; and lives were lost amid the wreck. An operator gave a careless touch to his instrument, and there was a terrible collision on the rail. A boy shot an arrow from his bow; it went whizzing away from the string, and a comrade is blind for the rest of his life. A woman poured oil from a can into her stove to freshen the fire, and there was an explosion and an outburst of flame which burned down the building about her. A young man pointed his gun in sport at his best friend, playfully saying that he would shoot him, and one noble youth was carried to his grave, and another goes through life in the awful shadow of memory hanging over him, which quenches all his joy, and makes all his life dark to him. A druggist's clerk compounded the prescription in haste, and in an hour a sick girl was dying in terrible pain and convulsions, from the poison in the prescription. A beautiful young lady danced at a party one chill midnight, and then raised a window in a side room to let the fresh air in for her cheeks, and in a little while they followed her to an untimely grave. What long chapters of incidents are every year recorded, all of which result from carelessness! A little careful thought on the part of the responsible persons would have prevented all of them, with their attendant horrors and their long train of suffering and sorrow.—S. S. Times

Money and Matrimony.

It has become a prevalent sentiment that a man must acquire his fortune before he marries; that the wife must have no sympathy nor share with him in the pursuit of it—in which most of the pleasure truly consists; and that the young married people must set out with as large and expensive an establishment as is becoming to those who have been wedded for twenty years. This is very unwise; it fills the community with bachelors, who are waiting to make fortunes, endangering virtue and promoting vice; it destroys the true economy and design of the domestic institution, and it promotes idleness and inefficiency among females, who are expecting to be taken up by fortune, and passively sustained without any care or concern on their part. It is thus many a wife becomes not a "helpmate," but a "help cat."

There are few persons to be found, who are not more concerned for the reputation of wit and sense than for honesty and virtue.

Money, Selfishness and the Church.

It is often said that the church is losing its power, that it exists now-a-days more as a fashionable club to entertain people and make them laugh rather than to alarm them and make them weep. It is pretty clear that from the way the question is asked and discussed in papers, magazines and church conventions that there is something wrong, that the Gospel powder has become wet and non-explosive. The increasing haunts of sin is proof that the enemy does not fear our operations, present or remote. Here is the sin of selfishness. Let us strike a pin there and inquire how far it is responsible for the deadness of the churches. The Scriptures tells of a lost soul who on earth enlarged his barns, and then at the rap of death descended into hell—rich, but poor. The doctrine of love, as falsely held up by eloquent doctors of divinity, has obscured this lesson. "Sin, sin," said the devil to Eve. "Do not fear; you will not die." The enemy of souls has pleaded long, loud and successfully on that string. There are so-called successors of the apostles in England, and some in America, whose yearly income is immense. And those in the ministry who would like well to succeed to these fat and dangerous places may be counted by the thousands. We were told the other day of a pious soul who had out of his income built churches on the frontiers and supported ministers to preach the Gospel in them. One listens with profit to the prayers and remarks of that man. His words and petitions tend to edification. We were told not long ago of a pious fraud who employed one to make a purchase for him. [illegible] the note of purchase the agent made the [illegible] in the price, putting it lower [illegible] at the mistaken price. The [illegible] prayer and speech drag [illegible] he attends, and [illegible] tolerates him, down into the valley of [illegible] dry bones. The world long ago [illegible] church actions on the part of [illegible] than words. A members speak much [illegible] with the effigious professed disciple [illegible] in an iceberg, and an eye-and-ear [illegible] him in search of the [illegible] sore. These are the men and [illegible] the question and whether [illegible] fainting state or whether [illegible] opportunities. Every [illegible] throwing away [illegible] talents, and [illegible] talents, and [illegible] the Apostolic period—and [illegible] more than any preceding—has [illegible] still more of the same. The world is not going to sleep, they are too cowardly to open their mouths or to stand between the living and the dead. Uncertain sound is not pleasing to the powers of kindness. Bad acting neutralizes all fine speech. The world looks deep into things and soon weighs a hypocrite who thinks there is anything of selfishness about Christianity. The churches of America will rise out of the dust and be blessed when they give [illegible] hundred and fifty millions of dollars a year to the spread of the Gospel. Millions upon millions are [illegible] hundreds to the Lord. And we are discouraged because the windows of heaven are not opened.

The Reason Why,

"Women grow old so much faster than men."

Every day, almost, somebody says this in our hearing.

We are not going to dispute it; perhaps they do. There are many reasons why they should, but we are not going over them at present. We have only one reason to present.

And it is this:

Women do not wear whiskers!

Whiskers cover a multitude of imperfections. A man of forty-five or fifty, without whiskers, always looks old enough to be the father of the man with whiskers, even though that man may be his twin brother.

Age shows itself around the corners of the month, in little wrinkles and pouches, and in the front part of the neck, which wizens up, and seems as if it were not altogether too much skin for what it has to envelope.

Beard covers all this up. Nobody can tell what mysteries are hidden under a full beard. A man can have wen and mouth at all. Nobody can discover it from the looks.

Women's faces lie open to view. When wrinkles come round their eyes they can put hid from them under beards and mustaches. When their necks get skinny they cannot call a "full set" to their aid, under the false plea that wearing all the beard is a preventive of throat complaints.

"How old poor Mrs. Jones looks!" say the critics—"full ten years older than her husband."

Maybe she does; but strip off Mr. Jones' beard, and you would see a difference—a vast difference. "Poor Mrs. Jones" would not look so terribly ancient beside him, after all.

Yes, there is no doubt but that beard is a great institution for the male persuasion. We don't wonder they cherish it from the cradle to the grave. We don't wonder that the schoolboy begins to feel his upper lip to see if there is anything growing there, before he gets out of the rule of decimal fractions.

No doubt he is looking forward to the time when he will be a man, and have wrinkles to cover up.

Let no member of the beard-wearing community fancy that we laugh at their foibles. Not at all. We had rather the wrinkles would show, and the skinny neck be patent to all observers, in due season; for a woman with a beard is a monstrosity, and she feels herself so, and fortunes are made out of depistories in consequence.

The standard of male and female beauty is different. A woman cannot be beautiful without a fair, unwrinkled skin, say the critics; but we have seen many a handsome men with skins quite the contrary.

Good looks are but skin deep, and it is no wonder that every body seeks to keep this necessity to beauty as much concealed as may be possible. But it will pucker up, and get wrinkled, and lose its rosiness, if we live long enough, and we may as well all be ready for the second coming at once! So we must grow old faster than our husbands, and be reconciled to it; and be happy that one of us can look young to represent the family beauty.

We must be resigned to hea one's self called "poor old Mrs. Jones!" and to hear our husband spoken of as "young-looking, and about forty-five," when we are sixty, and he is two years older!

Women have one recompense, one advantage over the other sex in this matter of hair. They never have the barber's itch, and they don't have to use whisker dye, and tell people who see the marks of it on their thumb nails, "that they guess it is nitrate of silver that they were doctoring a wart with the other day!"

Love, if you would be loved; serve, if you would be served; and humble yourself if you would be exalted.

Words of Courage.

A great deal of talent is lost to the world for the want of a little courage. Every day sends to the grave a number of obscure men, who have only remained in obscurity because their humility has prevented them making the first effort, and who, if they could have been induced to begin, would in all probability have gone great lengths in the career of fame. The fact is, in order to do anything in this world that is worth doing, we must not stand shivering on the brink, and think of the cold and danger, but jump in, and something out as we can. It will not do to be perpetually calculating risks and adjusting nice chances. It did very well before the flood, when a man could consult his friends upon a publication for 150 years, and then live to see its success six or seven centuries afterwards but at present a man waits, and doubts, and hesitates, and consults his mother, and his uncle, and his particular friends, till one day he finds that he is 60 years of age; that he has lost so much time in consulting first cousins and particular friends that he has no time left to follow their advice. There is so little time for over-anxious spirits in America, the opportunity so easily slips away, the very period of life at which a man chooses to venture, if ever, is so confined, that we say the safest rule to preach up the necessity, in such instances, of a little violence done to feelings, and of efforts made in defiance of strict and sober calculations.—Sydney Smith.

Waste of Life.

No man [illegible] of muscle or [illegible] in the day that he can perfectly [illegible] cover in a good night's rest [illegible] waste of life. A man should [illegible] when hunger calls [illegible] exhaustion, and fatigue demands [illegible] for food and order, and keep the balance of life. Then we take stimulants to spur our jaded nerves or excite an appetite, we are wasting life. There are wrong and mischief in all waste of life. A man should live so as to keep himself at his best, and with a true economy to eat [illegible] to [illegible] money into the sea. It is a waste of labor and a waste of life.

Miscellaneous

Never deceive for the sake of a foolish jest, or to excite the laughter of a few companions at the expense of a stranger. Be anxious when you relate anything to tell it just as it occurred. Never vary in the least degree. The reason why our ears are so often satisfied by false reports, is because people in telling real things add a little to them, and as they pass through a dozen mouths the original stories are turned into something entirely different. So when you attempt to tell anything that you have seen with your own eyes, relate it correctly in every particular, and as you grow older you will reap the advantage of this course.

Nothing is more odious than pretence. One can respect simple and unpretending ignorance; but there is little that more deserves contempt than the pretence of knowledge. The curse and the peril of language in this day is, that it is at the mercy of men who, instead of being content to use it for the purposes of their honest ignorance, use it ill, according to their affected knowledge; who, being vulgar, would seem elegant; who, being empty, would seem full; who, having little thoughts, let off in enormous phrases, sound like firecrackers in an empty barrel.

Compared with the malicious person who never commits himself by a positive statement, but who simply insinuates evil against his neighbor, the open slanderer is an admirable person. You know with what you have to deal. A direct falsehood can be met by a direct denial, and statement committed to dates is liable to destruction through counter proof; but the insinuation has no tangible basis for a struggle, just as no one can catch and pinion Proteus. We are all subjected to this kind of persecution and some seem to be fatally open to the insinuation of this deadly character. If scoundrels who stab in the dark had a visible mark like the snake's hood and rattle, so that there could be no mistaking the genus, what a blessing it would bring to the community, if but a sorry kind of mark for the individual himself! Perhaps, though, if sure of detection, it would be better and take to truth and honesty of speech by way of pleasant change from his present crooked modes of living. He would be welcomed if he did, and would receive more love more valuable than abhorrence, sympathy and companionship sweeter than estrangement and enmity. For such people are rarely beloved; man instinctively shrinks from them.

Gems of Thought.

Judge not from appearances, lest you might err in, judgment.

Gratitude is a duty none can be excused from, because it is always at our disposal.

Friendship is the medicine for all misfortune; but ingratitude dries up the fountain of all goodness.

Kind words are better than gold, and the voice of a friend has saved many a man from ruin.

Some of the grandest things which have been achieved were by those we thought our inferiors.

Narrow not your mind to your own selfishness, but give it a broad field for your fellowman to work in.

Certain thoughts are prayers. There are moments when, whatever be the attitude of the body, the soul is on its knees.

You may never have thought of it, but it is utterly impossible to get downright angry without raising the voice. Control your voice and you are sure to control your temper.

Where mortal eyes, looking at the outward appearance, contemplate only the frail child of earth, the divine vision may distinguish an heir of eternal glory, a son of God, yet unrevealed.

Men in former ages, though simple and plain, were great in themselves, and independent of a few comforts which we have since been invented, to supply, perhaps, the true greatness which is now extinct.

The Spirit of God will not dwell in the divided heart. Reserves feel the pleasures of devotion while the world is our delight. Not that all pleasures are criminal, but the closer union we have with the world the less is our union with God.

We all have to go through a great deal in our lifetime, if we would do any good or be in any way worthy. This is as true in many other things, fear of encountering; and those who are bravest in bearing are for the most part the least troubled in the end by the bother of minor things.

Whatever your sex or position, life is a battle in which you are to show your pluck, and woe be to the coward. Whether passed on a bed of sickness or in a tented field, it is ever the same fair flag, and admits of no distinction. Despair and postponement are cowardice and defeat. Men were born to succeed, not to fail.

The Carrying Trade.

One of the prophecies of the "woe and lamentation" most persistently made by the Globe as to the direct results which were certain to flow from the N. P., was that the carrying trade would be ruined because the two Canadian railway companies and steamboat and tug owners could not pay the coal duty and successfully compete with the lower rates which United States. We have previously shown that this imagury was as incorrect as ill-meaned, but even the most thorough refutation of the organ's prognostications is contained in its own columns, in the issue of the 19th inst. This complete contradiction is supplied by the Globe's Montreal correspondent, who further-

18th :—

"From the opening to the close of navigation at the port of Montreal the shipments of produce via the River of St. Lawrence show totals for 1879 of 9,417,051 bushels of wheat against 5,557,743 bushels in 1878, an increase of 3,859,303 ; corn, 4,017,986 bushels against 5,396,906 bushels, a decrease of 1,-534,920 bushels ; peas, 2,366,606 bushels against 1,894,240, an increase of 482,366 bushels ; oats, 601,299 bushels against 904,-475 bushels, a decrease of 303,176 bushels ; barley, 378,646 bushels against 91,564 bushels, an increase of 297,082 bushels ; rye, 321,890 bushels against 38,222 bushels, an increase of 283,668 bushels ; flour, 351,067 barrels against 316,569 barrels, an increase of 34,498 barrels ; meal, 31,760 bushels against 76,643 bushels ; ashes, 8,873 brls. against 8,130 brls., an increase of 743 brls. ; butter, 192,041 kegs, against 119,-283 kegs ; an increase of 72,758 kegs ; cheese, 516,063 boxes against 464,416 boxes, an increase of 51,647 boxes ; pork, 3,289 brls. against 6,218 brls, a decrease of 2,929 brls. ; lard, 7,223 brls. against 489 brls., an increase of 6,734 brls. ; meat, 9,980 packages against 2,381 packages, an increase of 7,599 packages.

More perfect evidence of the failure of the Globe's conjectures—for they were nothing better—as to the effect of the National Policy in regard to the carrying trade could not be desired. Fact has in this case been opposed to supposition, and the latter has proved to be so incorrect as to be absurd. It is thus made more clear than ever that the Globe's presages were manufactured for political effect, so the discredited seer, whose predictions are as valuable and as correct as those of some "fortune-teller," had better turn his attention to something which he understands. Prophecy as to the result of his opponent's policy has proved a failure; perhaps in commenting on the internal workings of own party organization—upon the position of Mr. Blake towards the Grit "machine"—he might meet with more success.

AMALGAMTION.—An Ottawa despatch says the amalgamation of the Canada Central with the Kingston and Pembroke Railway is spoken of.

NORTH LANARK.—It is said that the Conservative standard bearer in North Lanark will be Mr. Rosamond of the Rosamond Woollen Company, and the Reform nominee his son-in-law, Mr. McDonald.

DESTRUCTION BY WOLVES.—In the district of Waldai, in Russia, wolves are making great ravages this year, and it is feared that the losses of the peasants will surpass those of 1878. The bill of slaughter for this year alone in the above district includes 276 horses, 854 colts, 1,653 sheep, 257 cows, 740 calves, and 295 goats and pigs.

MINISTERS' SALARIES.—A comparison has been made between the salaries of the Presbyterian and Methodist ministers, and the result is in favor of the former. The average salary paid the Presbyterian clergy is $850, while that of the Methodist ministerial body is $550. Ninety one Methodist ministers in the Montreal Conference receive less than $500 per year.

A HORSE DYING FROM FRIGHT.—The Brockville Monitor says that on Saturday last "a farmer coming into town had to cross the Grand Trunk Railway at Perth Street. But the gate was closed, as a train chanced to be in motion at the time. When the poor horse saw an engine (probably for the first time) and heard the terrible scream of the steam, he became completly paralyzed with terror, and dropped down dead. This is the second case of the kind which has occurred at Brockville."

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO CHURCHES.—An Ottawa despatch says : A "very nice legal question was settled here on Tuesday. The Master in Chancery has been winding up the affairs of the Titus estate, and a claim of some $400 was presented against it by the trustees of the Dominion Methodist Church, being the amount of a subscription made to the building fund of the Church by the late Mr. Titus. The claim was opposed on the ground that there was no consideration shown, and that it was only a voluntary promise. The Master allowed the claim."

Political Notes.

The following mendacious statement appears in that unscrupulous journal the London Advertiser of the 17th inst. :

DEAR PRICES AND THE N. P.—A citizen went into a boot and shoe store yesterday to buy a pair of overshoes. The price was $1.75. Last year the price of the same overshoes was only $1.25. Such are the blessings of the N. P.

Considering that the same "authority" recently explained that rubber goods had advanced largely in all markets, and that such articles were selling more cheaply in Canada than elsewhere, this latest statement—taking into account the further fact that there has been no additional rise in price since that time—is of the coolest description and palpably untrue. The Advertiser belongs to a class who should have long memories. In this instance it has convicted itself.

The Government have called Mr. J. S. Carvell, of Prince Edward Island, to the Senate, vice Hon. Mr. Haviland, who was appointed Lieutenant Governor of the Province.

Although Mr. R. M. Wells was, as he said, Mr. Blake's "dry-nurse" in matters political, he is not to have a third term as Speaker of the Legislature. That honor is reserved for Col. Clarke, of Wellington, who has to be placated because he was passed over in certain lucrative appointments made in his constituency, and became angry thereat.

Two seats are now vacant in the Commons, the seat of Mr. Galbraith (Liberal) having been vacated by death, and the seat of Dr. Bergin, in Cornwall, by legal judgment. No doubt contests may be expected in both.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—A lamentable accident occurred at a wedding festivity in Lobo on the 19th inst. Robt. Campbell, on the occasion of the marriage of his brother, took a gun to fire a salute. The gun burst, shattering his arms into fragments, and sending a piece of metal through his head. He died instantly.

SCIENTISTS AT FAULT.—Over a year ago the question whether or not an ice boat would go faster than the wind that propelled it was discussed and divided attention with the momentous problem, "Does the top of a wheel go faster than the bottom ?" The New York Evening Post referred the matter to Professor Loomis of Yale and President Barnard of Columbia. These grave gentlemen both agreed that the ice-boats could not go faster than the wind. The Scientific American here dipped in it, oar, and remarked : "In thus putting themselves squarely on record in opposition to a fact of common experience in ice-boat sailing, these learned gentlemen furnish one more instance to the long list of mistakes by eminent scholars, who have declared results to be impossible after they have been practically achieved." It then showed plainly how the yacht could exceed the speed of the wind, and the Learned Professors at once came down and acknowledged themselves mistaken. This overthrow of science has not been equalled since the Scientific American itself, in 1876, demonstrated conclusively that a pitcher cannot curve a base ball.

UNEQUALLED.—Delightful to use, clean and healthful upon the hair, there is nothing that can compare with it. Try Bearine.

They also expect to arrange with the Government to grant any depreciation in their invested funds, to fix the status of colored people in the nation, and to expel intruders. Owing to drought last summer every people will have to arrange for a loan from the Government for the purchase of breadstuffs. The establishment of a territorial government over the Indian Territory will be opposed by all the civilized tribes, even to the employment of physcial force. They can raise 15,000 good fighting soldiers. Adair doubts the ability of the army to subdue the Indians.

Dan Rice, the famous circus man, announces that he has been converted and will at once enter the field as an Evangelist. He had an interview with Moody and will probably begin his new career by speaking at Moody's meeting.

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 20.—The liabilities of the absconding Thomas Neil, cattle dealer, is now believed to be $400,000. Desectives are on his track.

TOPEKA, Ks., Dec. 20.—D. A. Rudolph, real estate dealer, was arrested yesterday on a charge of forgery. Being allowed to consult an attorney he went into his office, procured a pistol and shot himself in the head.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The Tribune states that $10,000, purporting to be signed by Vice President Westervelt, of Hackensack, and endorsed by Congressman Voorhees, have been presented for collection. Westervelt denies the signature, and Voorhees' friends hesitate to believe he is the forger.

A small dwelling at Astanamanque, near Green Point, L. I., was burned early yesterday morning. Edward King, aged 77, and Mrs. Johnathan Miller, his sister, aged 80, were burned to death. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp.

At the close of the Plymouth prayer meeting last evening, Beecher, speaking of the American Bible Society, said, "For one I won't give a dollar to a Society which prints a Bible notoriously false in some parts, and which the Society knows is false."

John Wheelock, an American interested in the South American mines, writes to the Herald from Bolivia, Venezuela, giving details of excruciating physical tortures to which he was subjected by the negro officials, who arrested him on a false charge of having stolen $1,200. Local newspapers express indignation at the outrage. The complaint has been forwarded to Washington. Wheelock claims $50,000 damages.

Pedestrianism.

Mr. John S. Barnes replies thus to the challenge of Charles Clark, which we responded from the Mail yesterday :—

To the Editor of The Mail.

SIR,—In reply to the challenge of Mr. Chas. Clark, I beg to state that it is not necessary for him to offer me any stake. I have always run on even terms with the best men in this country, and I do not want any odds of any one. I have a race to run on Christmas Day in the East, and I hope to leave here for York State in the morning. I shall be back right after Christmas ; then, if Mr. Clark is anxious to run me 75 yards for $500, on even terms I shall be happy to accommodate him. Or, if any one doubts that the time that I made in Belleville was correct, I am willing to put up the same amount that I can, on a good track, do it over again. Hoping that this will suit Mr. Clark,

I am, yours, &c.,
JOHN S. BARNES.

A FAMILY FRIEND.—No family should be without Perry Davis' Vegetable PAIN-KILLER. It can be given to the infant for the Colic, and to the adult for Rheumatism. There is scarcely a disease to which it may not be beneficially applied. It contains no deleterious drug, but may be used for the various ailments of mankind.

A large proportion of children who die early are those whose brain development is unusually large in comparison with the body. Why is this? Simply because the functions of the body are too frail to supply the waste going on in the brain consequent upon active intelligence. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is so prepared that it imparts the vital principal directly to the brain, while it assists in developing a vigorous and robust body.

THE ELECTION CASE.—On the fourth page of this day's issue will be found the Mail's report of the closing argument of counsel in the West Hastings election case.

COLLEGE CALENDAR.—The Albert College Calendar for 1880 has been issued. It contains a large amount of interesting information in relation to the Institution.

MEETING.—Members of the St. George's Society and Englishmen generally are reminded of the meeting at Alderman Hulme's office on Monday night at 8 o'clock.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The only business done at the Board last night was the passage of a resolution authorizing the securing of a temporary bank loan to pay the salaries now due.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS IN TRENTON.—Messrs. G. H. Gordon and J. N. Lee announce themselves as candidates for the Reeveship of Trenton, whilst Messrs. G. W. Ostrom, W. M. Ireland and Wm. Shea seek election as Deputy Reeve.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—At the regular meeting of the Pleasant Valley Lodge, No. 27, O. Y. B., Foxboro, held on the 16th inst., the following officers were duly elected and installed for the ensuing year:—Alva E. Ross, W. M.; Ferguson York, D. M.; Willas Vandervoort, Secretary; George Wickett, Treasurer; Lewis Eggleston, Chaplain; Thomas Maney, D. of C.; Thomas Rowen, Inside Tyler; William Clarke, Thomas Ramsey, Edward Clapp, Samuel Pope and Welzer Wickett, Committee.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—St. Ola L. O. L., No. 1389, met on the first Monday in December, and appointed the following brethren as officers for the current year:—Peter Wright, W. M.; P. P. Clark, W. D. M.; James Moore, Treas.; Timothy Solmes, Sec.; John Fair, 1st Committee man; Albert Embury, 2nd Committee man; Gilbert Solmes, 3rd Committee man; Abram Gunter, 4th Committee man; Joseph Baker, 5th Committee man; Frederick Baker, Chap.; Sidney Smith, D. of C.; Wm. Morton, Marshal.

CATHOLIC LITERARY ASSOCIATION.—This Society held another very interesting meeting yesterday evening. There was a goodly attendance of ladies and gentlemen present. The subject of debate was entitled "Resolved that women should be allowed to vote." The affirmative was sustained by Messrs. O'Hagan and Lynch, the negative by Messrs. Costello and O'Rourke. The Chairman Dr. Murphy appealed to the meeting for a decision, which was given in favor of the negative. In consequence of the Christmas holidays the Society will not convene again until the second Thursday in January, 1880.

COWS DROWNED.—On Thursday after, noon two cows belonging to Mr. James Ponton, went on the ice to drink, but broke through and were drowned.

THE ICE BRIDGE.—A number of cutters crossed the bay to-day, in the vicinity of the upper ferry. With a day or two more hard freezing the ice will be sufficiently strong to allow crossing from Ferry Point.

THE SKATING RINK.—Mr. Loynes, the manager of the Lorne Skating Rink, announces that he will open the rink for the season (weather permitting) on Monday night, when the Oddfellows' band will be in attendance.

CONCERT.—The first grand concert of the Belleville Philharmonic Society will take place on Tuesday evening in the Opera House. The Society, which numbers nearly sixty voices, will render a choice programme of solos, concerted pieces and choruses, together with instrumental solos and selections. The whole performance promises to be of great merit.

ST. THOMAS' DAY.—Next Sunday will be the festival of St. Thomas, instituted in the twelfth century, and as an old author says, assigned an early place in the ecclesiastical calendar from this apostle having been vouchsafed the most indisputable evidence of the resurrection. St. Thomas' Day falls on the winter solstice, the shortest day in the year, as expressed in the following couplet:

"St. Thomas gray, St. Thomas gray,
The longest night and the shortest day."

The seven days preceding and the seven days following the shortest day are called the Halcyon Days.

THE COMING SCRIBNER.—The advance announcement of the January "Scribner Magazine" shows increasingly the desire to get hold of valuable and unhackneyed material, lying within the range of popular interest. Among the subjects to be treated are: American Arms and Ammunition, the United States Life Saving Service, Young Artists' Life in New York, Practical Strawberry Culture, The Burnside Campaign before Fredericksburg, The Acadians of Louisana, British and American Farming, A Revolutionary Congressman on Horseback, The Letters of Charles Dickens, Fiat Money, The Prospects for a Young Man in New York, Two Kinds of Household decoration, General Principles of Cookery, New Inventions and Processes, Spelling Reform, Recent Literature, etc.

MURNEY WARD—J. H. Simpson and J. G. Vandusen.

KETCHESON WARD—Morgan Jellett, J. W. Johnson, Richard Costello, W. P. Niles, and D. E. Burdett, M. D.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—In John Johnston's evidence at the West Hastings election trial, he stated that on the night previous to the election he had loaned me $7, on my saying that I had lost some money and wanted $14, as I needed money to spend in the election. This statement I have already denied under oath, and repeat the contradiction. I got no money from Johnston, and consequently could not have been bribed by him, nor was I bribed by anybody else, nor did I bribe anybody.

Yours truly,
RICHARD BURKE,
Plasterer.

Belleville, Dec. 19, 1879.

Presentation.

On Thursday night the pupils of Prof. Dawson's division of the High School, quite surprised their teacher by presenting him with a beautiful morocco covered platform rocking-chair. It was the work of Mr. Tickell, and reflects considerable credit on his warerooms. The following is a copy of the address which accompanied the chair, and to which Mr. Dawson replied in very touching terms:

Belleville, Dec. 18, 1879.

DEAR TEABHER:

As the holiday season is approaching, permit us to express to you in some way our appreciation of you as our teacher, and our esteem for you as a friend.

Since entering your room we have felt that all your efforts have been for our advancement, to fit us for the various duties which may devolve upon us in after life. We know the duties of a teacher are very onerous, and if we have in any way incurred your displeasure, we trust you will forget our wrong doings during the approaching vacation; and at the close of which we hope to meet you again, quite recovered from the serious accident which so lately befell you.

We ask you to accept this Chair as an earnest of our regard for you. We hope you will enjoy good holidays. Wishing you and Mrs. Dawson a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, we are,

YOUR AFFECTIONATE PUPILS.

To Professor DAWSON, B.A., T.C.D.

Oyster Supper.

The annual gathering and reunion of the employees of Mr. G. S. Tickell took place last evening at Hamby's restaurant, and proved to be a very sociable and enjoyable affair. The guests and visitors numbered over thirty, and all present appeared to enjoy themselves thoroughly. The chair was occupied by Mr. G. S. Tickell, who was supported on his right by Mr. Jas. Brown, and on his left by Mr. James Edgar. Mr. Lewis Pascoe occupied the Vice Chair. The usual loyal toasts were given.

In proposing the next toast the Chairman said we should make this a manufacturing country, and to do this we should foster our industries. He gave: "The Dominion of Canada and her manufacturing interests and our own (cabinet making) in particular."

Mr. Blackburn followed in a fitting answer, as did also Mr. Dafoe, who in the course of a few remarks stated that all the employees in the factories of this city were working full time, and in addition Mr. Tickell was turning out as good work as any establishment in the west.

The vice Chairman gave "Our employer and his family."

In the course of his answer Mr. Tickell returned his hearty thanks for the reception accorded the toast. His meed of success was attributed to the good hands whom fortune had caused him to employ. He began business in this city twenty-two years ago and had stuck to the place since. He had been blessed by those whom he employed as was instanced by the presence of the Chairman, who had been in his employ over 20 years, and he was thankful for the measure of success accorded him. The industries of this country in their present state should be fostered for, if we want to build up our industries they should be protected and fostered. He hoped the wares of this country would be accepted by the people of Manitoba, who would send their produce in exchange for what we manufacture here. In conclusion he proposed the toast of "Alex Brown, the builder of our factory."

Jas. Brown Esq., returned thanks on behalf of his brother. He remarked that it was the endeavor of himself and Mr. Tickell to save themselves from the work of those manufactured on the other side. We have the material, the brains and ability equally as well as they have in the States and we can utilize them just as well. He urged that all should work in the interest of their employers.

The proceedings closed shortly after midnight, all going home well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 20th.—It is understood that steps for a writ of error in the Tichborne case were taken under advice. Dr. Kenealy stated that the case would be taken to the House of Lords for final decision, and that he (Kenealey) will exercise his right as a member of the Irish bar to appear for Orton before that tribunal.

The Russian press is very violent in its criticisms on the affairs in Afghanistan. The Gazette de St. Petersburgh says: We must candidly confess Russia would not break her heart in the probable event of Gen. Roberts' columns sharing the fate of Cavagnari's embassy.

VIENNA, Dec. 20.—The Presse was confiscated yesterday for reproducing an article of the Paris Figaro insulting Gambetta.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—An official despatch from Gen. Bright, Dec. 18th, informed the Viceroy that if Gough was unable to force his way to Cabul with his brigade Bright proposed to hold the posts from India to Gundamuk and advance on Cabul with 8,000 men. A telegram from Feizeran to-day says:—"No serious fighting; all well."

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 20.—Courtney writes to Blaikie that he will row Hanlan under the present terms in April, either at Washington or Saratoga.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The women's walking match closes to-night. It is considered certain that Miss Howard, of this city, will win the first prize. The second and third prizes lie between Miss Massicat, Boston, and Tobias.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 20. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, fresh to brisk westerly to northerly winds, cloudy to fair colder weather with areas of light snow.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.— Indications: For lower lakes, slightly colder, cloudy, with rain or snow.

HAWESVILLE, Ky., brags of a man who doesn't care for dogs at all when he's sober, but when he's drunk has a mania to own all the dogs in the country. He will ask a neighbor to give him his dog. If he won't give it, the man tries to buy it; if the other won't sell it, the first steals it. He has thus been known to collect 150 dogs in a week's spree and feed them liberally till he gets sober.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

Some of the Hill Tribes Still Quiet —Advance of General Gough— General Roberts able to Hold Out.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 19.—Gen. Gough left Jalalak on the 12th for Cabul. Col. Norman, with two native infantry regiments, left Jellalabad with Gough's command, which, up to yesterday, had encountered no serious opposition. A despatch from Gen. Roberts on Dec. 14 says he is at Shirpur, able to hold his own.

A telegram from Gandamuk says the Mohamands and Afreedis are still quiet, despite the efforts of emissaries from Cabul. A telegram from the British Commissioner at Peshawur reports that the Afreedis and Shinwaris are quiet, with every hope of their remaining so. Telegraphic communication is still open to Peiperan.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—After the Cabinet Council to-day the authorities of the War Office held a meeting lasting several hours, considering the advisability of sending reinforcements to Afghanistan.

WEST HASTINGS.

Conclusion of the Controverted Election Trial.

JUDGMENT RESERVED TILL THE 29TH.

(From the Mail, Dec. 19.)

The West Hastings Election trial was resumed yesterday in the Court of Appeal, Osgoode Hall, before Chief Justice Moss and Mr. Justice Galt. Mr. J. K. Kerr, Q. C., for the petitioner and Mr. Hector Cameron, Q. C., for the respondent.

Mr. Cameron on behalf of the respondent conceded that a recent judicial interpretation of Sec. 159 of the Act by Judge Patterson and V. C. Blake limited its action to cases of direct bribery and intentional violation of the Act. He argued that the Court must be satisfied that the words of the illegal practices which had been proved could not reasonably be supposed to affect the validity of the election. The majority of votes for the respondent was so large that the few cases of corrupt practice proved would not have affected the result. As to the cases of corrupt practice, it was only necessary to deal with those of Sarsfield and Johnston, which were the only ones proved. He could not say that the respondent was not answerable for the acts of Sarsfield, but he denied responsibility attached to him for Johnston's acts. Johnston was no agent of the respondent, who was not aware that he was even working in his behalf, and did not axe me to pay two dollars and fifty cents a quarter fur a pos-offus box not half as big as one end of a manger ! I wasn't bo'n in de woods, aah—no, aah—an you kin keep dat box, aah and dis ignoble guv'ment kin pass my letters frew de winder sah !"—Detroit Free Press.

Wit and Humor.

Important if true—A wife.

To make an ox lie down—Axe him.

The most ancient of trees is supposed to be the elder. .

The first daughter of a family was named Kate. The second was named Duplicate.

Why should a man who goes fishing take a luncheon along? Because he may get no other bite.

Advice to musicians—C sharp and B natural, and don't try to clear your voice by straining it.

"That puts a different face on it," said the swindler, when he raised a check from $20 to $200.

Those blatant people who are willing "to die for an idea," would be much better employed in living for a reality.

What's the use of a captain's weighing his anchor every time he goes to sea? Why not "chalk it down" once for all?

Augustus told Eveline he wanted her for a helpmeet, and she responded that she could never be more than assister to him,

"Money will do almost everything for a man," said one neighbor to another. "Yes," was the reply; "but many a man will do more for money than money will do for any man."

"That friend of yours is rather a disagreeable person, isn't he?" asked a gentleman of a humorist, who replied: "Well I must say that he is usually as disagreeable as the circumstances will permit."

"Why didn't you get some eggs from the hens' nests this morning?" asked a farmer of his son, who answered, "Because there weren't any. If the hens laid any they mislaid 'em so't they can't be found."

An experienced matron says: "A man will eat soggy biscuit twice a week without complaint when his best girl invites him out to tea. But after the girl becomes his wife, if there is the faintest indication of a touch of saleratus in them, the neighbors will think there is a district school out for a recess by the racket he makes."

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles' Lotion likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate that he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

TAKE NOTICE.

APPLICATION will be made at the next Session of the Dominion Parliament for an Act to authorize and empower the Corporation of the City of Belleville to build and construct a Roadway and footpath across part of the mouth of the River Moira, extending from the new Ferry Slip at the junction of Dundas and Front Streets, to the north-east corner of the Island in the mouth of the Harbor, lately occupied by H. B. Rathbun & Son, and for other pur poses in connection with the same.

By order,
R. NEWBERY,
Clerk of Municipality.
City of Belleville.

Dated at the City of Belleville this 18th day of December, A.D. 1879.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $3 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society :—

Ages on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Fee.	Death of Memb'r

JOHNSTON'S FLUID BEEF

is now extensively used in British and Continental Institutions, Hospitals and Asylums, and is prescribed by the medical faculty wherever it has been introduced.

Its adaptability is general to the invalid, the convalescent and the vigorous. To children it secures a strong muscular development, and for maternal nursing, imperfect mastication, athletic training, physical exhaustion, indigestion or mental overstrain, it is the perfection of known food.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS AND LEADING GROCERS.
Price 35c, 60c and $1.

Manufactured by JOHN L. JOHNSON,
dly Montreal, Canada.

PATENTS

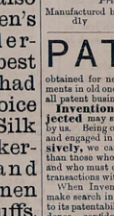

obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend upon the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to its patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address

A CAUTION!

THE GENUINE
MURRAY & LANMAN'S
FLORIDA WATER

Has a little pamphlet wrapped around each bottle, and the paper on which this pamphlet is printed has the words "MURRAY & KERR," "NEW YORK," in water mark, so that when a leaf is held up to the light, it shows these words in fine semi-transparent letters.

All buyers who care to enjoy the true Florida Water, and who wish to avoid being imposed upon, can, by the aid of the above direction, detect and reject the worthless counterfeits with which the market is flooded.

This Great Household Medicine ranks amongst the leading necessaries of Life.

These famous Pills purify the BLOOD, and act most powerfully, yet soothingly on the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys,

and BOWELS, giving tone, energy, and vigor to these great MAIN SPRINGS OF LIFE. They are confidently recommended as a never failing remedy in all cases where the constitution, from whatever cause, has become impaired or weakened. They are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females of all ages; and as a GENERAL FAMILY MEDICINE, are unsurpassed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Its Searching and Healing Properties are known throughout the World.

For the cure of BAD LEGS, Bad Breasts, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, it is an infallible remedy. If effectually rubbed on the neck and chest, as salt into meat, it Cures SORE THROAT, Diphtheria, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and even ASTHMA. For Glandular Swellings, Abscesses, Piles, Fistulas,

Gout, Rheumatism,

And every kind of SKIN DISEASE, it has never been known to fail.

The Pills and Ointment are Manufactured only at

533, OXFORD STREET, LONDON,

And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World ; with directions for use in almost every language.

The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence, any one throughout the British Possessions who may keep the American Counterfeits for sale, will be prosecuted.

☞ Purchasers should look to the Label and Trade Marks, and the address is not 533, Oxford Street, London, they are spurious.

Notice is Hereby Given

THAT an application will be made at the next Session of the Legislature of Ontario, for a charter for a Railway Company to construct a Railway to be called the

Toronto and Nipissing Extension Railway,

from Coboconk or some other point on the Toronto and Nipissing Railway, to or near the Snowdon mines, and thence easterly to the Township of Dungannon and County of Hastings, and thence to Ottawa, and with power to build the same in Sections.

DATED this 1st day of November, 1879.

JOHN LEYS,
Solicitor for applicants.

Toronto, Nov. 4, 1879. 159-6t

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN

that the Grand Junction Railway Company will apply to the Legislature of the Province of Ontario at its next session for an Act to amend the several Acts relating to the said Company, and to authorize the Corporation of the Township of Seymour to substitute for the Debentures of the said Township issued under its By-law in aid of thesaid Company other Debentures of an equivalent amount, to be dated on the 1st day of January, 1880, or such other date as may be fixed by the said Act, and payable at the dates and in the manner to be so fixed and agreed on between the said Township and the said Corporation, and to extend the time for the extension of the line of the said Railway and the completion thereof from the Village of Hastings to a point of junction with the Midland Railway of Canada till the first of May, 1884, and to legalize and remove doubts as to the several Municipal Bonuses granting aid to the said Company in accordance with such extension, and to authorize the payment to the Company of such Bonuses as may have been or may be granted to the said Company, and to authorize the said Company to sell, lease or transfer its line of Railway or any part thereof to any other Railway Company duly incorporated, and for such other alterations and amendments of the Acts relating to the said Grand Junction Railway Company as to the Legislature may seem proper.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

Sleep is one of the blessed angels which minister in love to the sorrowful heart of childhood. Let the sorrow be ever so great sleep steals it gently from the heart, and makes it for a time wholly unknown. In after years sleep becomes a smaller boon, and is often no shelter from trouble and pain, but on the spirit of childhood it does its beneficent work to the uttermost, and under its spell all fear is forgotten. Misery and woe are cast into oblivion, and no spectre of the imagination rises to reproduce and exaggerate the horrors of the past.

Despite the strange and ominous circumstances in which he was placed, Charlie had the dreamless sleep of innocent childhood. Yes, dreamless, notwithstanding the eventful scenes of the night. And that, too, was wonderful, even for a child. It showed very unmistakably how the experience of his young life had made him comparatively insensible to, and unmoved by, events and adventures which a child would regard with love, and fenced about by the shield of domestic tenderness, would have felt overwhelming. Most significant to us, if we think of it, was the fact that no hideous or terrifying dream disturbed the child's slumbers. He did not in his sleep renew his lonely wanderings through the silent streets, nor the terrible scene in the strong room of the Bank, where the murderer's hand had been stretched out to clutch his throat. Oh, blessed sleep! though at least it will not injure innocent and helpless childhood, nor stint thy gracious ministrations towards it. Sinful human hearts and hands may do their foul work, but from earnest thus to take advantage of its weakness. Upon them pivot to it a double measure of thy precious benefactions.

When Charlie awoke, which he did all at once, his large blue eyes looked straight up into a human face which was bending over him with an expression of unmitigated wonder.

It was a queer, small, wrinkled face, but not harsh or forbidding. Nay, it had a kind and pleasant look, which a child easily recognizes and interprets. Charlie looked steadily at it, but spoke not a word.

'Why, where on earth have you come from?' asked the owner of the face, in a voice not a whit less cherry and pleasant than the countenance gave warrante of.

'Collins' Court,' answered Charlie.

'And when or how did you come here?'

'A man brought me.'

'What man?'

'I don't know, but I think I am to live here.'

'Are you, indeed? Oh, I understand—Silas has long been wanting a little chap like you.'

'Who is Silas?'

'Master is Silas. Didn't you see him when you were brought into the caravan?'

'Do you mean the big man that the other called Morgan?'

'That's him. Silas Morgan is his name, but we call him Master. What is your name?'

'Charlie.'

'Charlie what?'

'Just Charlie. Nothing more.'

'Nothing more than Charlie? Haven't you another name?'

'No. Only one.'

Oh, that's nonsense. You must have another name, you know, only haven't heard it.

'Have you two names?'

'To be sure I have. Everybody has two names, and some have more. My name is Tobby Sprat. But, I say, I must not keep chattering here. I have got the horse to feed and the breakfast to make, and a thousand other things to do, and if master should think of coming, and things not ready, oh, Lor', what a row he'll kick up. An awful man is master when he's in a passion, and that is often enough before the day is done.'

With this volunteered information Tobby rose, and as he moved about in the confined space, Charlie saw that he was lame. This probably made him look less than he really was, but Charlie thought he had never seen such a funny little man. He was very quick in his movements, and jerked to and fro with such rapid motion as to give the idea that he was set on springs. And then he was such a cheery, happy-looking fellow, as if his spirit lived in perpetual sunshine. After kindling the stove and setting a kettle upon it, he put on his jacket and cap and prepared to go. Before leaving he turned round and stood for a moment looking towards a curtain which hung in front of a recess at the foot of the couch.

'No poor thing,' he muttered. 'She was very tired last night, and won't wake early. I daresay I'll be back before she is astir.'

Then, as he was again about to go, his twinkling and kindly eye fell on Charlie, and he came a step nearer him, and stood over him, looking into his face as if studying it.

'You don't look very savage at being caught,' he observed. 'You are not crying a bit for your mother, or your home. Don't you want to go back?'

'They have gone and left me,' answered Charlie quite calmy.

'Oh deserted you, have they? Well, it's none of my business. Only, I wanted to say if you like it into your head that I went out to try to run away, it wouldn't be a bit of use, for the door opens with a spring lock, and if Master caught you at its you would find it a bad job.'

'I don't mean to run away,' rejoined Charlie, at which assurance Tobby gave a brisk and pleased nod, and vanished.

And neither did Charlie want to run away; at least not yet. So far as matters looked to him, a residence in the caravan would be better than a residence in Collins Court with Dick and Bet. The treatment he had received from those worthies had never been such as to cause him to have any particular liking for them; but since poverty and destitution had overtaken them he had experienced hunger and nakedness, as well as neglect. So that the loss of the home he had with them was not a loss to cause him much concern, whereas on the other hand there was a promise of something better in his new abode. The couch on which he had slept was luxuriant as compared with the bed of straw on which he had lain for weeks and the ample supper of fine wheaten bread of which he had partaken before going to sleep was in itself a resetless recommendation. Altogether, therefore, Charlie had at present no inclination to run away. After Tobby disappeared the utmost quietness prevailed in the caravan, but the boy did not again go to sleep. He lay staring at what of the interior was within his view, and the novelty thereof was great enough to occupy his attention. He was intently taking stock of the various items, when he heard a rustle behind the curtain which fronted the recess, and scarcely had he turned his eyes in that direction when one half of the curtain was drawn aside, and a little golden head burst like a vision on his view while the very sweetest of childish voices was heard to exclaim—'Are you there Tobby?'

Charlie could only look in silent admiration at the beautiful face which made its appearance by the edge of the curtain, and presently the dark lustrous eyes of the little lady opened wide in wonder when they fell upon the countenance of Charlie, as he lay gazing at her.

The two children stared at each other for nearly a minute—amazement evidently keeping the girl dumb for that period. At length her rosy lips parted asunder, and she said—

'What little boy are you?'

'I'm Charlie,' was the reply. 'I know you. I saw you dancing on the rope yesterday.'

'Did you, though?'

'Yes, and I liked you very much. I thought you were so pretty.'

The little lady clapped her tiny hands in glee. 'And you have come to see me?' she cried. 'Does Master Tobby know you are here?'

'I didn't come,' answered Charlie. I was brought. A man brought me at daylight, and I am to live here now.'

'Oh how very delightful. We shall play with each other, shan't we? I've never had anybody to play with but Tobby—dear old Tobby, and he is very nice to play with, too; but he is not a little boy like you, you know. Can you dance the tumble?'

'Dance on the rope like you?'

'Yes, and tumble like Master?'

'No; but I should like to do it, only I think I should fall.'

'So you will before you learn. I used to fall often, but Master always caught me, and Tobby learned me how to keep my feet. I don't fall now. What did you say your name was?'

'Charlie. What's yours?'

'I'm Myra.'

'Myra!' echoed Charlie. 'Oh, what a funny name. I like it though, and I like you too.'

'Charlie is very nice,' returned the little lady. Then she added, with childish bluntness, 'Perhaps I may like you too, when you get your face washed. But you are very dirty just now. And oh, what a fright your hair is in. Look at mine!'

'It's not so pretty as that was yesterday,' replied Charlie.

'Oh, you would thing; don't you see it's in curls!' said the little lady, with her tiny hand, she patted the twisted paper which were stuck round her forehead. 'Tobby curls it for me every night, and combs it out when he dresses me for performance. Tobby must curl and comb yours too. Has it never been combed?' she added, looking at him very earnestly.

'No never,' answered the boy.

'And has your face never been washed either?'

'Sometimes, not often. Will they wash it here?'

'Yes, indeed; Tobby will wash it every day, and comb your hair, too; and then I am sure you will look nice. Oh, here is Tobby.'

'Ay, here I am, my darling,' cried the person named, as he came limbing in with a smile which seemed to make his mouth extend from ear to ear, and both his arms stretched out. In a moment Myra sprung in her snowy night-dress from the bed, and into Tobby's arms, was by him almost devoured with kisses.

'Dear old Tobby,' said the bright and beautiful child, in the most loving accents; as she fondled him with exuberant delight.

'My darling little ladybird,' said the no less delighted Tobby, as he laid her golden head in his bosom, and gently stroked the shining curls.

That afterfloon, Silas Morgan's caravan quieted its stand on Hogsnow Green, and when it halted for the night it was on an open common, many miles from the city.—

WEST BELLEVILLE GRAIN EL VATOR.

Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.

BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT, Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of RIGS enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers need have no fears of loans being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are in part in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from waggons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

☞ This Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 22,

The Municipal Elections.

The near approach of the end of the municipal year renders it necessary for the ratepayers to give attention to the election of Mayor and Aldermen for the ensuing term. The office of Mayor is one of the most important in the gift of the people, and a careful scrutiny of the abilities, qualifications and claims of those who seek the position ought to be made by every voter before giving effect to his decision by casting his ballot. Politics is not involved in such a choice, and ought not to be considered in this connection, further than that, when candidates of equal ability and different politics oppose each other, no blame could reasonably attach to a ratepayer for voting in support of his political friend.

The retirement from the civic chair of its present incumbent, Alex. Robertson, Esq., who has ably and in all respects acceptably filled the same for the past two years, has resulted in two gentlemen coming forward to contest for the seat, namely Messrs. James H. Hambly and Reuben S. Patterson. Both of these candidates are men of ability and experience as members of Council.

Mr. Hambly's services as Chairman of the Finance Committee for several years were two years ago recognized by many of those who had opposed the course which he had pursued in that position, as well as those who had supported him, as being of so arduous and important a character as to give him a very strong claim for the position he then sought. As those services have not been requited, as Mr. Hambly's claims have not been diminished by the passage of time, and as he is supported by the retiring Mayor, who defeated him in 1877, as well as by a large number of political opponents who then as now espoused his cause, we have no hesitation in advising our friends to give him their hearty support, believing as we do that he is also much the abler of the two candidates.

What is chiefly required of our Mayor and Aldermen at the present time is [illegible] within the revenue, and the reduction of unnecessary taxation. Which of the Mayoralty candidates will serve us best in this respect? Mr. Hambly, we should say, most certainly. His knowledge of the financial affairs of the Corporation is such that he knows exactly where the check should be applied, and he has the courage to undertake the task and the force of character to carry it through, provided the ratepayers will by turn men as Aldermen who have the interests of the city at heart. It is well known to every ratepayer who has given any attention to the matter that our finances have not been satisfactorily managed during the past few years, and the services of a Mayor who thoroughly understands the subject and will earnestly endeavor to keep the expenditures within the income will be of inestimable benefit. The people should therefore require from the Aldermanic aspirants an expression of their views, instead of accepting on trust those whose personal qualities are their chief recommendation. Personal popularity is all very well in its place but ability, energy and honesty of purpose and above all a desire for economy ought to be the chief recommendation in the coming election.

With Mr. Hambly as Mayor and a wise selection made for the Council, the year 1880 will be distinguished by a reduction of useless expenditure without affecting the efficiency of the public services, and a lowering of the rate of taxation. To this end, we urge our friends to organize in support of Mr. Hambly as Mayor, and to select the best candidates for Aldermen and support them heartily up to the close of the poll, in which case we anticipate a result which will be of great benefit to the people of the city.

RETURN OF THE PRINCESS LOUISE.—Her Royal Highness the Princess Louise sails for Canada in the Sarmatian on January 22nd.

WINNIPEG AND HUDSON BAY RAILWAY.—Notice is given in the Canada Gazette of application to Parliament for an act to incorporate the Winnipeg and Hudson Bay Railway and Steamship Company with powers to build a railway from the city of Winnipeg to Point Nelson or some other point on Hudson Bay and run a line of steamships in connection therewith.

POULTRY FAIR.—At the poultry fair, held at Smith's Falls last Friday and Saturday, about forty-two tons of poultry were sold, principally to outside buyers. This is entirely unexampled in the history of poultry fairs in this part of Canada. Evidently the turkey trade is yet bound to attain to enormous dimensions in the County of Lanark.

The Sir Francis Hincks Case.

The trial and conviction a short time ago of Sir Francis Hincks for having, as President of the Consolidated Bank, made wilfully false returns to the Government, in order to deceive as to the condition of that institution, created not a little sensation. There was a great diversity of opinion as to the righteousness of the verdict, and the case was taken to the Court of Appeals, which on Saturday rendered decision reversing the verdict of the jury. The Witness gives the following summary of the judgement:

The Hon. Mr. Justice Ramsay delivered judgment of the Court. This was a case reserved for the full bench on four points. The defendant was indicted and convicted under 34 Vict. Chap. 5, and 36 Vict. Chap. 43, for making wilfully false and deceptive returns. Section 13 of Chap. 84, provided for the making of monthly returns, there being eleven headings under which the liabilities should be classified. It was not quite clear that there could be anything wilfully false in a statement which contained all the information required by law, and if the direction were to go outside the legal form in a manner to injure the standing of the Bank it would not be difficult to conceive of circumstances under which an indictment would lie. His Honor, in an elaborate judgement, reviewed the points on which the case had been reserved, differing from the Hon. Mr. Justice Monk, who presided in the case. He held with the majority of the Court that questions such as whether certain loans to other banks, represented in the return as other deposits payable after notice or on a fixed day was a correct entry, were mixed questions of fact and law, and should have been left to the jury. The judgment held with Mr. Justice Monk that there could be wilfully false and deceptive statements in misclassification, but upon the former point the verdict was quashed. No new trial was ordered, the parties being left to whatever remedies they might have.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Cross in remarking upon the case, thought the indictment was drawn in a way that was a hardship to the defendant in not setting out clearly the portions of the return which were false.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Monk said the law was a new one, and as it depended entirely on classification it gave rise to very nice questions. At the time of the trial there were doubts raised in his mind, and he had thought it better to reserve the case for the full bench, and though his own opinion had not been entirely borne out, the result was quite satisfactory to him. The difference was as to whether these were questions of law, questions of fact, or mixed questions of law and fact. He had ruled that they were questions of law, and though he had not changed his mind, out of deference to the majority of the Court, he would refrain from further comment.

The Hon. Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Tessier also concurred.

This is generally supposed to be the end of the case.

Names of Countries.

Europe signifies a country of white complexion; so named because its inhabitants were of a lighter complexion than those of Asia and Africa.

Asia signifies between or in the middle, from the fact that the geographers placed it between Europe and Africa.

Africa signifies a land of corn or care. It was celebrated for its abundance of corn and all sorts of grain.

Siberia signifies thirsty or dry—very appropriate.

Spain, a country of rabbits or conies. It was once so infested with these animals that it sued Augustus for an army to destroy them.

Italy, a country of pitch, from its yielding great quantities of black pitch. Calabria, also, for the same reason.

Gaul, modern France, signifies yellow haired, as yellow hair characterized its inhabitants.

The English of Caledonia is a high hill. This was a rugged mountainous province in Scotland.

Hibernia is the utmost or last habitation, for beyond this to the westward Phœnicians never extended their voyages.

Britain, the country of tin, great quantities being found on it and adjacent islands. The Greeks called it Albion, which signifies in the Phœnician tongue either white or high mountain, from the whiteness of its shores, or the high ground on the western coast.

Corsica, a wooden place.

Sardinia signifies the footsteps of men, which it resembles.

Syracuse, bad flavor, so called from the unwholesome country on which it stood.

Rhodes, serpents or dragons which are produced, in abundance.

Sicily, the country of grapes.

Scylla, the country of destruction.

Ætna signifies a furnace, or dark or smoky.

UNEQUALLED.—Delightful to use, clean and healthful upon the hair, there is nothing that can compare with it. Try Rearine.

The City Municipal Elections and Belleville Iron Smelting Works.

For the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—I see by the INTELLIGENCER that there are two aspirants for the Mayoralty, and some for the position of Aldermen. Now, as the election for civic officers is drawing near, may it not be as well to agitate the question, yes, the important question, of smelting works for Belleville. It is quite evident our city needs something to arouse it from its lethargic slumber, and what would be better calculated to do so than the erection of smelting furnaces for the purpose of working a portion of our iron ores into pig iron, with a view to further enlargement by making the iron into steel, and I will go so far as to say into steel rails for our numerous railways now built and to be built. Surely there was never a better time to commence than the present, for iron having touched the lowest point has been rising in value, so that pig iron, which a year ago could be laid down here at $18 per ton, is now worth $26 with no immediate prospect of a fall in price.

Having said thus much, would it not be well for the ratepayers of Belleville to sound the candidates on the question of Smelting Works? By feeling of the candidates' pulse in this matter we may at least secure their willingness to actively co-operate with the citizens and that successfully, in obtaining for the city works that would turn out from 20 to 30 tons of pig iron per day.

A writer in the Oswego Times, in reference to Smelting works in that city, states that "in a letter from Mr. Orin C. Frost, dated Dec'r 2d, 1874, he stated: 'I would have it of medium size, one which would make from 20 to 25 tons per day, which could be built for $75,000, including machinery and cover heavy enough to run two stacks, building one stack first upon the plans of some furnace which has been run successfully, and trying no experiments; after that the cost of an additional stack or stacks would be light.'" The Oswego writer then goes on to state that "a furnace that could thus be built in small localities for $75,000 could doubtless now be built for $50,000 when to obtain other great advantages their location should be such as to have a rock foundation without cost and stone at hand for $2 per cord, suitable for building the furnace and other buildings required for operating it;" all of which we have at hand, and therefore would be able to build much cheaper than in those places where the material has to be brought from a distance.

This writer gives a large margin of 100 per cent profit: I will not go the length he has gone, but will confine the actual profits per ton over material and working expenses at the present cost of pig iron at $10 per ton, say one furnace yielding 20 tons of pig daily at $200 would be a profit of $1,200 per week, or if the furnace is kept in blast for 50 weeks the profit would be $60,000 say for the year, and suppose we allow the works to cost $75,000, and the Company should borrow the money at 8 per cent to build the works, they would have $6,000 interest to pay on the investment; take $6,000 out of $60,000 and there would be a net profit of $54,000 or about 70¾ per cent. clear of interest paid, or if the capital was paid in without borrowing it would have a clear dividend of 78¾ per cent. per year. What better investment could be desired?

But if the works could be built for $50,000 it would add $2,000, and add so much more and make the percentage so much larger; but supposing pig iron should fall say to $20 per ton, it would still be a profit of $4 per ton, or about $24,000 per year. It will be seen by [illegible] letter in the Bristol. Whig, which was copied in the INTELLIGENCER, that I make my estimate for iron ore and coal laid down in Belleville at $12.15 per ton of pig iron, leaving a margin of $7.85 for working expenses and profits at $20 per ton. I would now ask what better profits can the Corporation, or private individuals, or both together, have for the capital invested? Then see the large amount to be paid out for current expenses in the employment of labor, most if not all of which would flow back into the tills of our merchants, grocers, &c., &c., thereby giving further employment to others not immediately connected with working the ores.

This writer goes on to say: "When blast furnaces shall be built here (Oswego), and make as they inevitably will from causes heretofore named, a first-class pig iron for steel or other purposes, it will result as a logical corollary in the building here of iron mills of the various kinds required to supply the growing wants of civilization." I ask, is it not reasonable to suppose that the same would be required in Belleville? and will the owners of real estate and the business men of Belleville have another such opportunity during this century to make an investment so profitable to themselves and the City as that which is now set before them? The present is the time to take hold of the project, and to carry it on with vigor.

BILLA FLINT.

Belleville, Dec 19, 1879.

The Swiftest Ship in the World.

A new British war steamer, called the Mercury, built of steel, has just been completed and successfully tried at Portsmouth, England. The vessel is 300 feet long, 45 feet beam, 16 feet 3 inches hold. Displacement, 3,750 tons. On late trial trips the engines developed 7,595 horse power and the speed attained was within a trifle of 22 miles an hour. These are remarkable results for a vessel of the dimensions given. The Mercury has twin screws driven by separate engines arranged in separate engine rooms. Her machinery nearly fills the hull. There are twelve boilers, four high pressure cylinders, forty-two inches diameter and a low pressure 76 inches diameter. Stroke 3 feet; boiler pressure, 60 to 66 lbs.; coal consumption, 2.35 lb. per horse power power. One man governs the rudder, which is worked by steam. The vessels, armament will consist of ten 64 pounders.

A good wife is the greatest earthly blessing. A wife never makes a greater mistake than when she endeavors to coerce her husband with other weapons than those of love and affection. Those weapons are a sure pull if he has anything human left in him. Forbear mutual upbraidings. It is the mother who moulds the character and destiny of her child as to the exteriors, therefore let calmness, peace, affection, and firmness rule in her conduct when she governs her children. Children are great imitators; whether they have scolding or peaceful mothers, they are generally sure to learn from the examples set before them. And thus the consequent joy or sorrow is transferred to other families, therefore let mothers take heed to their conduct. It is not possible to exercise too much judgment and prudence before entering on married life. Be sure that the affections on both sides are so perfectly intertwined, that the two form as it were one mind.

We should be careful to deserve a good reputation by doing well, and, when that care is once taken, not to be over anxious about the success.

THE NEGRO EXODUS.

GLARING DECEPTION.

A GANG OF DESPERADOES.

THEIR DOINGS.

BURNED TO DEATH.

GOING FOR VARIETY THEATRES.

WHEELING, Va., Dec. 22.—Tyler County has been invaded by a gang of noted Wetzel County red men. W. J. Umpleby, proprietor of a country store, was struck senseless by a bludgeon and the store robbed and burned by a party of five masked men. Umpleby barely escaped being roasted alive. He was taken from the burning store unconscious by neighbors. A large body of citizens have formed a vigilance committee and started to the mountains in pursuit of the robbers.

CHERRY VALLEY, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Jacob Hawyer's residence was burned early yesterday morning. Hawyer, aged 71, was burned to death and his wife barely escaped in a badly burned condition.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 22.—Ten actors, seventeen actresses, and the proprietors of two variety theatres were arrested last night during a performance on a charge of maintaining a nuisance. A thousand people were present at the performances.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 22.—Henry Gutofsky, a Polander, at a low groggery on Saturday night struck a Russian and abused him for Poland's wrongs. George Blumm, another Polander, interfered, when Gutofsky drove a screw driver into Blumm's head. His injuries are fatal.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The Herald's Goldsboro, N. C., special says the emigration movement among the North Carolina negroes was started by a colored school teacher named Perry, and a colored preacher named Williams both of whom turned the exodus fever to their own profit by levying contributions. It is charged that the most glaring deception was practised to induce the negroes to emigrate to Indiana.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 22.—Major Geo. W. Cary, late of the firm of Richardson & Cary, a large dry goods house, was indicted a few days ago for embezzlement and forgery, and was brought here from Mobile yesterday.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 22.—The action of Bishop Pinkenay in prohibiting Rev. Mr. Mortimer from ministration in this diocese is a part of the organized plan to check the ritualistic tendency in certain parishes, and foreshadows an active low church policy on the part of the new Bishop.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The Tribune's Philadelphia special says the effort to attribute political significance to Evarts' and Sherman's presence here is unwarranted.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Among the sixty-five contestants in the six days walking match now in progress are Murphy, the Haverstraw boy, Merritt, of Bridgeport, Hart (colored), Campana, Brodie, Krohne, Hughes, "The Lepper," and other professionals, also Daniel Burns, Elmira, M. Crawford, Salama, Arthur Croft, Little Falls, Da, Hennessy, of Troy.

Hugh McCulloch writes to the Tribune that our present prosperity is mainly attributable to the fact that harvests in the United States for three years have been abundant, while they have been the reverse in Europe. We have no reason to expect this will continue to be the case. It requires no prophet to warn us of what will be our condition when with the large circulation of notes, and with speculations and extravagance in full blast, Europe shall again be favored with fruitful seasons.

Clement Harder, book-keeper at the Grand Hotel, became insane on Saturday by over indulgence in cold water baths, resulting in epileptic fits.

The Tribune publishes a long story concerning Indian Agent Hart, of Don Carlos reservation, Arizona, on the border of the newly developed silver district. The statement says Inspector Hammond, of the Indian Bureau, who was sent to investigate Hart's affairs, charged Hart with gross dishonesty. It is intimated that Hammond compromised these charges with Hart for the sake of getting possession of the latter's silver mine. [illegible] cast upon Commissioner Hoyt of approving such compromise and of placing his personal friends in the way of profitable mining speculations.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 22.

City and Vicinity.

POLICE.—There was only one tramp in the cells last night.

ARRIVED OUT.—The Allan steamship Sardinian, arrived out on the 21st inst.

CHRISTMAS PANTOMIME.—The annual Christmas pantomime will be given at the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb on Friday night.

CROSSING THE BAY.—Numbers of horses and sleighs crossed the ice bridge yesterday, principally at the upper ferry and at Lewis' saw-mill.

REMINDER.—The members of the St. George's Society and Englishmen generally are reminded of the meeting at Ald. Hulme's office, Campbell Street, to-night.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—The Trenton Advocate says:—"Mr. Wm. Bonter, of Ameliasburg, fell from a scaffold in his barn on Wednesday last, breaking one of his legs and both arms and some of his ribs. It is feared he will not recover."

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—The following officers of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 172 were duly installed on the 3rd inst.: Wm. Hurst, W. M.; J. A. Potts, D. M.; J. Stiles, chaplain; T. H. Matthews, secretary; D. Austin, Treasurer; George Stiles, D. of C.; Committee, P. Hubble, A. Thompson, W. Morton, D. Guernsey, Geo. Cotton.

A THIEF ESCAPES.—In its County Court report the Oswego Palladium of the 18th inst., says:—"Reuben Young alias Roy Horton, of Fredericksburg, Canada, was allowed to go on his recognizance, it being impossible to get witnesses here, they being Canadians. There were two indictments against him for grand larceny—one for stealing the yacht Little Giant, the other for stealing merchandize."

A GOOD AVERAGE.—The Sidney Cheese Factory, 3rd concession of Sidney, John R. Brower, President, has for the past nine years, since it was established, paid the patrons an average of $26.35 per standard. The highest realized in any one year was in 1874, when $32.50 was paid. This year the price paid was $21. This is an exceedingly creditable record.

REMARKABLE STILL HUNTING.—On Thursday, the 4th inst., says the Stirling News-Argus, Messrs. Stephen Badgley, Bidwell Sine and Jas. Coutts went on a still-hunting expedition back into the township of Tudor, and at the end of one week had brought down no less than eleven deer. Of this number Mr. Badgley shot eight with eight cartridges, not missing fire once. This is certainly a remarkable instance of good marksmanship.

FROZEN IN.—The Kingston Whig says:—"On Thursday morning a small sloop was observed to be frozen in near the martello tower. It had entered the harbor from some point on the Bay of Quinte during the night, and the thin ice had been sufficient to impede its course and finally bring it to a halt. There was fire in the cabin, but the night was intensely cold, and the crew of two or three men must have unpleasantly realized the fact."

SEVERE ACCIDENT.—The Stirling News-Argus says:—"On Thursday, the 4th inst., Mr. Jos. Hogle, clerk of Rawdon, met with a severe and painful accident at his home in the sixth concession. He went to the barn to feed the horses, and ascended to the mow, some twelve or fifteen feet above the barn-floor, and while busy slipped and fell to the floor beneath. The shock was so severe as to render him unable to help himself, and, there being no one within sight or hearing, he lay an hour and quarter, the fall having partially stunned him, before recovering consciousness and strength sufficient to arise and walk to the house. It was not for some time after this that he was able to remember and relate what had happened. It was found that he had been badly bruised about the left shoulder and chest, and generally shaken up, but no bones were broken. He was in the village on Monday last, but looked feeble, and as though he should still be in bed." We trust that Mr. Hogle will soon be himself again.

TYENDINAGA.—We understand that N. S. Appleby, Esq., M. P. P., is to be candidate for the Reeveship of Tyendinaga.

WRESTLING MATCH.—Ross again defeated Daly in their match in Montreal on Saturday night, Ross gaining three falls and Daly two.

SKATING RINK.—The unfavorable change in the weather has caused the opening of the Lorne Rink, which was to have taken place to-night, to be postponed until further notice.

L. O. L. No. 509, RAWDON.—The following officers were duly elected and installed for the ensuing year: J. T. Belshaw, W. M.; Edward Tanner, D. M., re elected; W. B. Tanner, Secretary; W. H. Jeffries, Treasurer; Paul Kingston, Chaplain; John Tanner, D. of C.; Committee, James Cooke, John Jeffries, Samuel Tanner, J. R. Preston, James Bateman, A. Chisholm, Tyler; Thomas Tanner, Standard Bearer.

THE PHILHARMONIC CONCERT.—This event, which is to take place in the Opera House on Tuesday night, gives promise of being one of the finest amateur concerts ever given in the city. The Society numbers nearly sixty voices, and comprises the best talent of the city, both vocal and instrumental. Constant practice and careful instruction have rendered the organization thoroughly efficient, hence a meritorious performance may confidently be looked forward to, whilst the selections numbered on the programme are of a choice character. Seats can be secured at Reynolds'.

FIRE.—Between 5 and 6 o'clock last night a frame building between the Grand Trunk and Grand Junction Railway tracks, near the crossing, and which was occupied by Joseph LeClair, took fire, it is supposed from a spark from a passing engine. The engines were called out, but before they could arrive the structure was almost entirely consumed. The furniture was nearly all saved. The Locomotive Brotherhood's lodge room was also in the same building. Cornelius Donovan owned the building, which was insured for $500 in the Victoria Mutual, which will nearly cover the loss.

VALUABLE PUBLICATIONS.—Mr. Wm. Warwick, a Toronto publisher, has made arrangements with the English publishers to issue "The Boy's Own Paper," "Sunday at home," and "Leisure Hour," to be sold at the same price as in England. These works will doubtless supersede many publications of foreign productions which now find favor with our people. "The Boys' Own Paper," a copy of which is now before us, is a journal of tales, sports, adventure, amusement and instruction, and is the first of the Canadian series. It is an excellent paper for the young, and its general circulation throughout Canada would have the effect of putting a stop to the vile trash which is imported from the United States.

RECOVERED.—In our issue of Monday, November the 17th, a report of the perpetration of an extension silk robbery from the store of Richard Costello on the Saturday night previous, was recorded. On the discovery of the loss, the matter was at once reported to the police, who on the following morning discovered the goods secreted in an unoccupied building in the vicinity of Pringle's sash and blind factory. The silk was held by the officers for a couple of days, after which it was returned to its owner. A watch was put upon the building and every night during these weeks after the recovery of the stolen articles, one of the force was stationed in the building, but strange to say no one came to again possess the stolen treasure, and the watch was accordingly withdrawn. The recovery of the goods was kept secret for a purpose which unfortunately has not been achieved.

Our City's Beauties.

The master poet, Gay, whose return to this city from Guelph has been hailed with joy by our citizens, and who has been received here with the honors which are his due, has handed in the following beautiful verses, which we cannot refrain from presenting to an appreciative public. This scintillation of genius will be admired by all, particularly by the ladies. It is entitled,

ON BELLEVILLE CITY.

Belleville is a pretty place
A thriving little City
Its for me to speak well of it
If I dont it is a pitty

The fare sex with rosy cheeks
Are on those grounds each day
As the leaves fell here October last
Young ladies trip hear each Day

Composing of this little piece
My mind could not keep still is
The beautifulist seans in Canada
To be seen on Taylors hill

If spared a few months longer you believe
Wat I say
Take your pleasant walkes up Taylers hill
In the beautiful month next May
So says this little Man your friend and

COLDEST OF THE WINTER.

AN ARCTIC WAVE.

20 DEGREES BELOW ZERO.

We are indebted to Prof. Dawson, Meteorological Observer, for the following statement as to the "cold dip" which visited the city on Saturday:

The coldest weather we have had for this season is that through which we are just now passing, and it is not at all likely that we shall have anything much colder for the rest of the winter. On Wednesday the thermometer got down to four degrees, and it has been growing steadily colder since then, the minimum temperature for the 24 hours ending at 9 p. m. on Sunday being twenty degrees below zero (—20°). The highest temperature reached during the day on Sunday was ten degrees below zero (—10°), so that it is likely the 21st of Dec. will be remembered as the coldest day of this winter.

Weather so cold is seldom experienced at this early part of the winter, and but a faint idea of the extreme cold can be gathered from the figures which record it. Saturday night was clear, and during the greater part of Sunday the extreme cold was scarcely realized from the same cause, but towards nightfall yesterday a wind arose and subsequently blew strongly, snow fell, so that the air was more searching than before, and there were very few houses in town in which the temperature did not fall below the freezing point during the night. This morning it was found that about four inches of snow had fallen, and a great deal of drifting has taken place, rendering travel very disagreeable. Fortunately these visitations of arctic weather do not last long in this part of the country, and that which came on Saturday has now passed away.

The variations in temperature within the 12 hours ending at 10 o'clock this morning were extreme. At 10 o'clock last night the temperature was 10 degrees below zero; at 7 this morning 10 degrees above zero, and at 10 a. m. 31 degrees above zero, with rain falling.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

GENERAL ROBERTS' POSITION.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—A cable special to the Tribune says:—The best authorities on Indian affairs say General Roberts was utterly ignorant of the enemy's preparations, and was obliged finally to fight his way round Cabul to the Shirpur cantonments, where he is completely surrounded. General Roberts' position is extremely critical, but he may hold out provided the state of things reported exists. It is doubtful if his supply of water is secure. Fuel is abundant, but forage is scarce. It is expected General Roberts will be compelled within a month to fight his way through the enemy. There is no possibility of reinforcements advancing before February, the transport service being deficient.

STRENGTH OF THE BRITISH ARMIES.

A Calcutta despatch says the Government of India has published an explanation of the military situation in Afghanistan, stating that Gen. Roberts has ample transport and ammunition. Besides the 23 cannon belonging to his force, he has 214 captured cannon, many of which are rifled. Entrenchments can easily be held by 2,500 men leaving 6,000 for offensive operations. General Bright has 12,000 men between Jumrood and Jugdullak with thirty cannon, two months' supplies, and complete divisional and brigade transport. Including the forces at Candahar and in the Kurum Valley, the total field force is 45,000, with 160 guns.

ATTACK ON COL. NORMAN'S COLUMN.

On reaching Kotal on the 18th a large force of afghans, who covered the hills on either side of the pass, opened a vigorous fire on Col. Norman's force, to which the British column replied as well as it could, considering the disadvantage of its position.

ARRIVED AT JUGDULLAK.

A despatch from Peizeran says Col. Norman's convoy with supplies from Peizeran Kotal reached Jugdullak on Friday after passing through a heavy fire.

GENERAL GOUGH ADVANCING TO GENERAL ROBERTS' RELIEF

A despatch from General Roberts on the 18th urges General Gough's immediate advance in light order without tents and only taking ammunition and supplies for five or six days. General Roberts states there is no enemy between Jugdullak and Cabul to oppose General Gough's advance, and adds that he will be able to settle affairs at Cabul when Gough arrives. General Gough leaves Jugdullak on the 21st inst. with 1,400 men and four guns, picking up 700 men and two guns at Latabound.

THE CAPTURE OF SECOCOENI'S STRONGHOLD.

A Capetown despatch of the 2nd inst. says Secocoeni's town was captured by the British on Thursday 28th. Two officers and seven captains were killed, and two captains and two lieutenants were wounded. Secocoeni's loss was heavy. The British lost twenty-five men.

USE OF THE HELIOGRAPH.

A Bombay despatch says General Roberts reported on the 18th inst., he heliographically communicated with Lababaud for a few minutes, and learned that General Gough had not yet advanced beyond Jugdullak.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 22. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, cloudy weather with rain and snow, followed by partially clearing and colder weather, brisk winds, gradually shifting to west or north-west.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20. — Indications: For lower lakes, cooler winds, rain or snow, followed by clearing.

A FAMILY FRIEND.—No family should be without Perry Davis' Vegetable PAIN-KILLER. It can be given to the infant for the Colic, and to the adult for Rheumatism. There is scarcely a disease to which it may not be beneficially applied. It contains no deleterious drug, but may be used for the various ailments of mankind.

A large proportion of children who die early are those whose brain development is unusually large in comparison with the body. Why is this? Simply because the functions of the body are too frail to supply the waste going on in the brain consequent upon active intelligence. Follows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is so prepared that it imparts the vital principal directly to the brain, while it assists in developing a vigorous and robust body.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Parnell, previous to his departure for New York yesterday, said he hoped that one of the results of his visit to the United States would be to show that the hearts of Americans would beat warmly towards Ireland. He said that if Dwitt was put on trial, or if repressive measures were introduced in the House of Commons before the 1st of March next, when he intended to return, he would return immediately.

2:0 emigrants have left Previso and Udine, Italy, for America.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 22.—Ex-Ameer Yakoob Khan arrived at Morout under military and police guards. It is doubtful whether he will be kept there long, as the proximity of Morout to Delhi and to other centres of Mussulman tradition, renders it an inexpedient place for the safe custody of Mahomedan state prisoners.

CAPETOWN, Dec. 22.—The capture of the stronghold of chieftain Secocoeni, has given the finishing stroke to native disturbances in South Africa.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 22.—The news from Cabul excites neither surprise nor apprehension. The tribes hitherto occupied in preparing lands for spring crops are now free from labor for three months, and thus long the excitement may be expected to last. No attempt ought to be made before spring, to do more than hold our position. Gen. Stewart's command on the whole line from Dadur to Candahar consists of 9,000 effective men. The tribes along the line are quiet.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—The Chilian minister at Paris telegraphs that the pretended recent victory of all over Chilians is officially denied. He says: "The entire province of Taragoca is now in our power."

BERLIN, Dec. 22.—Nordenskjold's, Arctic explorer, advocates the establishment of a regular navigation line to the mouth of the Jenisei River, Siberia. He believes the mouth of the River Lena may be regularly reached from Russia and America. He proposes the establishment of life boat and hospital stations on the Siberian shore.

PARIS, Dec. 22.—Gent, a member of the Republican union, has been elected a member of the Chamber of Deputies from Orange against Humbert, Communist, and Maze, a moderate Republican, from Versailles, against Buffenor, Radical. Goblet, a member of the Republican union, in the Chamber of Deputies will probably succeed Leroyer, as Minister of Justice.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—Treaver W. Park, President, Col. Thompson and other directors of the Panama Railway, and Totter, the builder of the Panama Railway, and others sail in the steamer Colon to-day to meet De-Lesseps and to be present at the inauguration of the Panama Canal enterprise on Jan. 1st, at Panama.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 22.—Michael Sullivan for murder, by burying alive his daughter's illegitimate child, has been found guilty of manslaughter with recommendation to mercy.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 22.—Best's Chestnut Street malt house, office, barn and elevator, containing a large amount of grain, are burned. Loss estimated over $200,000.

SANFORD'S

RADICAL CURE

For

CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all those years of endless suffering, but these things I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that came out.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful Medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange a good bottle of it for all the world and all it contains. My friends, this wonderful medicine has returned memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this to the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

HOW CRUEL IS FATE.

There was a young man with a shaddock,
Who met a young maid with a haddock,
He thought, "How I wish
He would give me that fish,
In legal exchange for my shaddock!"

The maiden, who did not like haddock,
Thought, "Oh, what a beautiful shaddock!
If I were not so shy,
I would certainly try
If he'd give me that fruit for my haddock."

He went on his way with his shaddock;
She went on her way with her haddock;
And so cruel is fate,
That, until it was too late,
Neither one of them heard
That, by speaking the word,
He might just as well have had haddock,
And she might as well have had shaddock!
—[St. Nicholas for December.

Severe Winters.

In the year 401, the Black Sea was entirely frozen over. In 462, the Danube was frozen, so that Theodomer marched over the ice to avenge his brother's death in Suabia. In 763, not only the Black Sea, but the Strait of the Dardanelles was frozen over. The snow in some places rose fifty feet high, and the ice was so heaped in the cities as to push down the walls. In 822, the great rivers in Europe, such as the Danube, the Elbe, and the Seine, were so hard frozen as to bear heavy wagons for a month. In 860, the Adriatic was frozen. In 1067, the cold was so intense that most of the travellers in Germany were frozen to death on the roads. In 1236, the Danube was frozen to the bottom, and remained for a considerable time in that state. In 1294, great quantities of snow fell in Austria as to bury the very houses. In 1460 the Baltic was frozen, and both foot and horse passengers crossed over from Denmark and Sweden. In 1468, the winter was so severe in Flanders that the wine distributed to the soldiers was cut in pieces with hatchets. In 1544, the same thing happened again, the wine being frozen into solid lumps. In 1661 and 1662, all the rivers in Europe were frozen, and even the Zuder Zee; a sheet of ice covered the Hellespont; and the Venetian fleet was choked up in the lagoons of the Adriatic. The winters of 1658, 1659 and 1660 were intensely cold. The rivers in Italy bore heavy carriages; and so much snow had not fallen at Rome for several centuries. It was in 1658 that Charles X. of Sweden crossed the Little Belt over the ice from Holstein to Denmark, with his whole army of foot and horse, followed by the train of baggage and artillery. In 1621, the cold was so excessive that the famished wolves entered Vienna and attacked the cattle and even men.

In 1700 occurred that famous winter called by distinction that "cold winter." All the rivers and lakes were frozen, and even the seas, to the distance of several miles from the shore. The frost is said to have penetrated three yards into the ground. Birds and wild beasts were strewed dead in the fields, and men perished by thousands in their houses. The more tender shrubs and vegetables in England were killed; and wheat rose in its price from two to four pounds per quarter. In the south of France, the olive plantations were almost entirely destroyed; nor have they yet recovered from that fatal disaster. The Adriatic Sea was quite frozen over, and even the coast of the Mediterranean about Genoa, and the citron and orange groves suffered severely in the finest parts of Italy. In 1716 the winter was very cold. On the Thames booths were erected and fairs held. The printers and bosvellers pursued their profession upon its surface. In 1754, and again in 1755, the winter was particularly cold. At Paris, Fahrenheit's thermometer sank to the beginning of the scale; and in England, the strongest ale, exposed to the air in a glass, was covered, in less than a quarter of an hour, with ice an eighth of an inch thick. In 1776 the Danube bore ice five feet thick below Vienna. Wine froze in the cellars both in France and in Holland. Many people were frost-bitten; and vast multitudes both of the feathered and the finny tribes perished. But the winter of 1812 was beyond all question the most severe of the present century; and was rendered memorable to all time by the sufferings of the French army during its retreat from Russia. We have no such winters now.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headache know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR-COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening would be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Bronp, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and almost despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 190 West Broadway, N. Y.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $3 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Ages on Entering.	Insurance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Fee.	Death of Member's Fee.
From 16 to 20 yrs.	$4.40	$2.50	$0.38
" 21 to 25 "	5.00	2.80	41
" 26 to 30 "	5.00	3.10	45

Lachine and Cornwall Canals.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Timber for Lock Gates," will be received at this Office until the arrival of the Eastern and Western Mails on MONDAY the 29TH DAY OF DECEMBER instant, for the furnishing and delivering, on or before the 1ST DAY OF JUNE, 1880, of Pine Timber, sawn to the dimensions required, for the construction of Gates for the Upper New Locks on the Lachine Canal, and for the New Locks on the Cornwall Canal.

The timber must be of the quality described, and of the dimensions stated on a printed bill, which will be supplied on application, personally or by letter, at this Office, where Forms of Tender can also be obtained.

No payment will be made on the timber until it has been delivered at the place required on the respective Canals, nor until it has been examined and approved of by an officer detailed for that service.

To each Tender must be attached the names of two responsible and solvent persons, residents of the Dominion, willing to become sureties for the carrying out of the conditions stated in the Contract.

This Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any Tender.

By Order,
F. BRAUN,
Secretary.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

This Great Household Medicine ranks amongst the leading necessaries of Life.

These famous Pills purify the BLOOD, and act most powerfully, yet soothingly on the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys,

and BOWELS, giving tone, energy, and vigor to these great MAIN SPRINGS OF LIFE. They are confidently recommended as a never failing remedy in all cases where the constitution, from whatever cause, has become impaired or weakened. They are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females of all ages; and as a GENERAL FAMILY MEDICINE, are unsurpassed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Its Searching and Healing Properties are known throughout the World.

For the cure of BAD LEGS, Bad Breasts, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, it is an infallible remedy. If effectually rubbed on the neck and chest, as salt into meat, it cures SORE THROAT, Diphtheria, Sore Throats, Coughs, Colds, and even ASTHMA. For Glandular Swellings, Abscesses, Piles, Fistulas,

Gout, Rheumatism,

And every kind of SKIN DISEASE, it has never been known to fail.

The Pills and Ointment are Manufactured only at

533, OXFORD STREET, LONDON,

And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World; with directions for use in almost every language.

The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence, any one throughout the British Possessions, who may keep the American Counterfeits for sale, will be prosecuted.

☞ Purchasers should look to the Label on the Pots and Boxes. If the address is not 533, Oxford Street, London, they are spurious.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CHAPTER V.

LIFE IN THE CARAVAN.

Life in a showman's caravan is peculiar and anything but monotonous at the best. Its experiences, its habits, its influences are different altogether from a common house existence with its essential elements of fixed residence and settled occupation.

Accordingly, we are never surprised to find peculiar people following this peculiar life. But, while unfavorable to the growth of much that gives a charm to domestic character, it is not incompatible with many fine qualities and attractive features; and here and there are to be met with in travelling establishments specimens of genuine humanity which we cannot choose but admire and love.

The travelling caravan of Silas Morgan, the mountebank, possessed its share of this somewhat rare phenomenon of real human goodness. Silas himself was anything but an amiable personage. That his character was not one of the most immaculate kind may be inferred from his acquaintance with Huffey White and the readiness with which he complied with that worthy's request to take possession of Charlie and carry him off. The inference does Silas Morgan no injustice. He was a man of no principle, was troubled with no scruples of a moral kind, and if he did not join with such men as Huffey White in their daring deeds of crime, it was from no strong objection to the dishonesty or wickedness involved, but rather from considerations of prudence. Besides, his acquaintance with such characters and their ways of life was pretty extensive, and on more than one occasion he had done them service of a similar kind to that which he had rendered to Huffey White.

But, apart from this, Silas Morgan was a coarse, brutal man. Savage in temper, callous in feeling, and surly as a bear, no one could possibly hold a position in his company, and whoever was in his power had a bad time of it. So far as he was concerned, then, life in the caravan would have been miserable enough. But it had its good angel in the person of Tobby Sprat. A more kindly being than Tobby did not breathe—a blyther, cheerier spirit never dwelt in human bosom. And, at first sight, it seemed a great wonder that two men of such opposite natures as Tobby and Silas should be found so closely connected.

That, however, admits of easy explanation. Originally Silas and Tobby had been partners in the tumbling and mug line, and travelled the country as tumblers and doers of all kinds of clever mechanical tricks. They were both very good at their work, and as for certain tumbling feats two are better than one, they found it to be to their advantage to go in company, and as they at that time stood on an equal footing with each other, Tobby could stand his own against his companion's bad temper and savage disposition. Had he been surly and savage too, a partnership between the men would have been impossible. But Tobby was invariably good natured, even under the most provoking outbursts on the part of Silas, and though he did not yield to him in his gusts of passion, it was always without a manifestation of the same kind—a curse which often inflamed Silas still more for the moment, but which eventually subdued the demon in his breast.

Once, however, he suffered from Morgan's passion severely and irreparably. One day just previous to a performance in a provincial town, they had differed about something, and Silas was thrown into one of his fits of rage. Tobby, convinced he was right, resisted with his usual equanimity, and the dispute had reached its crisis when the performance bell rang out. It was necessary, of course, that Silas should manifest no bad temper before the people, and they performed their feats with seemingly good humor and placidity. All the while, however, the passion was boiling in Morgan's bosom, and with the malignity of a fiend he resolved to gratify it at Tobby's expense. One of their feats was a difficult one, and particularly dangerous for Tobby. Silas was a very powerful man, and, mounted on stilts, he supported Tobby in various striking attitudes. Should any mischance occur by which Tobby was allowed to fall, the result would to a certainty be serious, but every confidence was held in Morgan's strength and steadiness, and the feat had been done scores of times without the slightest trip.

On this occasion, however, it was otherwise. At the most critical point Silas swerved, Tobby lost his balance and fell with awful violence on the hard ground.

His thigh was dislocated and his arm broken.

Of course, it passed for an accident, but Tobby knew better. Not a word of reproach or upbraiding, however, did he utter. He did not even indicate to Silas that he was aware it was wilful; but remorse was already at work in Morgan's heart, and the violent man would have given anything to recall the act.

That, however, was impossible, and equally impossible was it to undo the consequences. In the first place Tobby was condemned to six weeks' suffering and inaction; but that was the least of it. His professional career was terminated. He should never be able to tumble or do clever sleight-of-hand feats again, for when he rose from his couch he was hopelessly lame, and there was a stiffness as well as a weakness in his arm which caused his right hand forever to forget its cunning.

Tobby had no friends, and was destitute, but Silas kept him on in his caravan, and soon he made himself as useful there that his presence and accomplishments were indispensable. He kept everything right—cooked, washed, mended, baked—in short, he was the presiding genius in the interior of the caravan, and was nearly as much worth to Morgan as he had been before. Such a comfortable, well-ordered caravan as his did not travel the country, and if the Ethiopian could have changed his skin, or the leopard his spots—that is, if Silas could have got rid of his bad temper and coarseness of nature—the caravan and its occupants might have had a very pleasant life of it. But Silas Morgan was too old and too hardened to mend.

Three years before the entrance of Charlie into the caravan, Silas one day brought into it a female child, and without saying where he had got her, or to whom she belonged, he intimated to Tobby that he meant to train her to be a performer on the tight rope, and general dancer. Tobby took to the child at first, and the child took to Tobby. She was named Myra, and in a few weeks grew into the prettiest little fairy which the eye could light on. Tobby set himself to train her to the work for which Morgan designed her. He undertook the task in the first instance to save her from the rough handling of Morgan, who would soon have frightened her into fits by the brutal way in which he conveyed his instructions. Tobby could not bear to see her growled at, and roughly twisted into attitudes, and slapped in the face when her fear of the monster made her stupid, so he came between her and the cruel usuage, and undertook to teach her at a quicker rate than Silas would. Under the gentle, loving tuition of Tobby, Myra progressed with astonishing quickness. From him she very early learned to love the art they were compelling her to acquire; and once she got to understand it a little, she showed an amazing aptitude and cleverness, and attained a proficiency which surprised and delighted Morgan not a little. In two months time she could appear in public, and from that time Morgan's fortune improved daily.

Between Myra and Tobby there arose a love that was something wondrous. It was not the love of brother and sister; it was stronger than that. It was even deeper and tenderer than the love between father and daughter; it was like that between mother and child—so deep and touching was it, so absorbing and responsive. Myra twined herself round Tobby's heart till its every fibre was devoted to her, and he watched her and tended her with a pride and joy altogether rare. He dressed her with the most perfect taste and neatness, kept her ever clean and fresh; combed and brushed and arranged her beautiful hair, till it was a charm in itself, and being aided in all his cares and efforts by little Myra's sweetness of disposition, natural grace of manner, and singular beauty of person, she became a very sunbeam in the caravan, and an attraction in the performances, which Silas Morgan was not the last to appreciate although, withal, a selfish appreciation in harmony with his nature.

Such was the social interior of the caravan into which Charlie was introduced. We can understand now that it was not such an evil thing that had happened him. On the whole, it was an improvement in his condition. His little vagabond life on the Glasgow streets, amid dirt and rags and evil associates, had been terminated to his advantage, though the agents in the matter—Huffey White and Silas Morgan—cannot receive credit for the same. The Providence which watches over the fall of a sparrow may be safely considered as having something to do with it. Charlie was not abandoned altogether. His earthly parents had, indeed, abandoned him, but there is another Father who never abandons, and in a strange mysterious way He was bringing the child in connection with one who was to act a father's part towards him. A mountebank's caravan was a very unlikely place in which the agent of a beneficent Providence was to be found, but good people are often found in unlikely places—in places where other good and pious people would never think of looking for them. What a blessing it is that Providence is wiser than such people, and can find the instrument when and where it is wanted. In this distance it existed in Silas Morgan's travelling caravan, and it was named Tobby Sprat.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 23.

Cheating the People.

Popular government in the "freest country on earth" does not appear to be quite so much of a success as its projectors no doubt desired and intended. The people frequently elect men to offices, but by the action of the machinery for supervising the returns, which work is in many cases placed in the hands of irresponsible and unscrupulous tools chosen for the purpose, the will of the people is often defeated and minority candidates returned. Such was the case in the Presidential election of 1876, when Mr. Tilden, who was undoubtedly the successful candidate in reality, and whom even the falsified returns could not deprive of a majority of upwards of half a million of the popular vote, was yet "counted out" by the Returning Boards of Louisiana, South Carolina and Florida. Thus, by the action of some twelve or fifteen men, whose characters will not bear investigation, the verdict not only of the people but of the sovereign states was set aside and a revolution practically effected.

Another outrage of the same kind, but not quite so clear, was evidently perpetrated in the recent election in New York State. The Democrats, who were united on all their candidates except Mr. Robinson for Governor, succeeded in electing at least the Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary of State, Treasurer, and State Engineer; but the Republican canvassers managed to manufacture small majorities for all their candidates, except State Engineer, the majority for the Democratic candidate being too large to be successfully manipulated. Representations were made to the State canvassers as to the fraud they were committing, but no effect, they declining to "go behind the returns," which they knew had been carefully manipulated.

Animated by a spirit of revenge, the Democrats have commenced to fight their opponents with their own weapons. At the election in November the State of Maine gave a large majority to the Republicans; but the Democratic Governor and canvassers have, with evident fraudulent intent, although having a semblance of legality to back them, thrown out a sufficient number of Republican districts to give the Democrats a majority. The Republicans have not borne the cheating process quite so quietly as their opponents, and a without doubt justifiable outcry has been raised by them.

That United States politics are just now a dirtier muddle than ever, is quite apparent. One party steals a Presidency and reverses the popular verdict of the Empire State, whilst the other, by a trick, annuls the popular verdict in Maine. Perhaps after a time our neighbors will give up the farce of popular government as they are now playing it, and either adopt the practice which obtains in Canada, under which fraud cannot be perpetrated on a large scale, or do away with Electoral Colleges, Returning Boards, and State Canvassers.

The Mayoralty.

Mr. Hambly's canvass progresses most favorably and all bodes well for his success. It is probable that his friends will be invited to meet for organization at the hall in the Robertson block east on Friday night.

THE NORTH-WEST.—The Ottawa Citizen says :—"The North-West is now under a pretty active Government. The population is increasing; the Indians have been placed under the control of Mr. Dewdney, ex- M. P., with large powers of discretion; and the Indians and railway works in British Columbia have been placed under the control of ex-Governor Trutch. The Government are determined that active supervision shall be had of all public interests in the North-West, so that neither time nor money shall be wasted in needless negotiations with distant officials at Ottawa."

CANADIAN EXPORTS.—A Liverpool paper of the 6th inst., says :—"For some weeks past Canadian potatoes, in large numbers, have been arriving in Liverpool, finding a ready market, and these, in the course of a week or so, will be supplemented by heavy consignments of turkeys, prairie hens, and quantities of game for the Christmas season. Last year, the trade in Canadian poultry was engaged in to a considerable extent, and was a success, which will result in the area of operations this year being extended. The first steamer—one of the Allan line—will probably reach the Mersey in the course of a week or two with some 10,000 turkeys, besides other descriptions of poultry. It is expected that many of the turkeys will be despatched to the Parisian markets." The shipments to England this season of Christmas stuff, are larger than ever before; and the demand promises to exceed the supply.

The Business Revival.

In a recent issue the Monetary Times discusses the present revival in business, and the question of its probable continuance. That the revival may be of short duration—that it will necessarily prove to be so if it has been brought about by transient causes—our contemporary admits. But, reviewing all the considerations, the Times comes to the conclusion that the revival is genuine and that the "better times" so long looked for may be expected to arrive and to continue for several years at least. This opinion is based on these grounds: First, that the insolvency evil has about run its course. Second that the productions of farming have of late years been so varied that success in one or more branches is certain when others fail. Third, the rapid advancement of the North-West, which cannot fail to re-act favorably on the other Provinces, and Ontario in particular; fourthly the stimulus which the National Policy is imparting to the various industries of the country; and finally the probable improvement in the timber trade, caused by the return of prosperity to England and the United States. This apparently well grounded prediction from a journal which is generally conservative and never over-sanguine in its views of trade matters, is highly encouraging. Equally satisfactory is the declaration by Sir Leonard Tilley in a recent speech, made after viewing the principal manufacturing centres in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, of his belief that a year hence many of those who now denounce the National Policy will be amongst its warmest supporters, because of the good effected under its influence. That the highest anticipations may be realized is our earnest hope.

Bellevue Separate Schools.

Last Thursday the boys of the 1st division of the Belleville Separate Schools, which is under the care of Mr. T. O'Hagan, underwent a public examination. There were present: Very Rev. J. Farrelly, V. G., Rev. D. Farrelly, Alderman Doyle, Mr. T. O. Bolger, P.L.S., Mr. J. Ryan, of Treaton, Mr. P. Madden, Head-master of the Trenton Separate School, Mr. R. Costello, Mr. O'Neil, Mr. Yorke, Mr. Maguire, and a number of ladies. The different classes were examined by Vicar-General Farrelly, Mr. Ryan, Mr. Madden, and Mr. O'Hagan, and evinced very great efficiency in their work. The subjects examined were Reading, Spelling, Arithmetic, Grammar, Geography, History, Canadian and English Literature, Algebra, and Euclid. The readiness with which the pupils solved mathematical problems showed how carefully they had been taught to reason in an analytical manner, while their knowledge of History, Geography and Literature testified to a minute study of the very import of each subject. At the conclusion of the examination, addresses were made by Vicar-General Farrelly, Rev. D. Farrelly, Mr. Ryan, Mr. Madden, Mr. Bolger, Alderman Doyle, Mr. Costello and Mr. O'Neill, expressive of the success of the examination, and the great proficiency which characterized it throughout.

On Friday afternoon the girls of the 1st Division of the Separate Schools, which is under the supervision of the Ladies of Loretto, were examined. Amongst those present were Vicar-General Farrelly, Rev. P. Farrelly, Mr. P. P. Lynch, Alderman Doyle, Mr. T. O'Hagan, and a goodly number of ladies. The curriculum of studies in this department is similar to that of the 1st division of the boys. Special mention might be made of the subjects: Mental Arithmetic, History, and Grammar. The manner in which the pupils disposed of mathematical problems mentally, was almost incredible. In History, too, they evinced an equal proficiency. The examination throughout bore testimony to the indefatigable work of the good Sisters of Loretto, whose convents now grace a great number of the leading cities and towns in the Province. At the conclusion of the examination, prizes were distributed to the deserving pupils by Vicar-General Farrelly. Addresses were then made by Very Rev. J. Farrelly, V. G., Rev. D. Farrelly, Mr. P. P. Lynch, Alderman Doyle and Mr. T. O'Hagan, expressive of the great proficiency and progress which marked the work of the School. The elementary divisions of the Separate Schools, examined at different intervals during the past week, also showed good work, and reflected much credit on their respective teachers.

THE FRENCH CRISIS.—De Freycinet has declined the task of forming a Cabinet in France; and M. Waddington has been asked by President Grevy to retain his position, and reorganize his Ministry. He has the matter under consideration, but it is understood that he has urged the President to entrust the task to M. Leon Say.

THE DAIRY FAIR.—The International Dairy Fair closed in New York on Saturday night after a successful run of two weeks. The receipts are said to be larger than last year. An Iowa man was awarded the largest number of premiums, 13, amounting to $425. Iowa also took twice as many premiums as any other State, and most premiums of any State for butter.

HOW IT WORKS.—Manitoba customs returns show clearly that the National Policy has caused a decided change in the purchases of the people there, Canadian goods being now much more largely used than formerly. In August 1878, $41,988 worth of American goods were entered at the Winnipeg Customs House, while in the same month of this year, United States products only figured to the extent of $31,457. Winnipeg's trade this year has been much larger than last, and the increase in the sale of Canadian-made goods has been very large, while the consumers have not had to pay increased prices.

MENNONITE WHEAT.—The Montreal Gazette says :—"On the Corn Exchange today much interest was taken in the samples of wheat exhibited on the table of Messrs. A. W. Ogilvie & Co. from the different Mennonites settlements in Manitoba. Most of the samples were from seed imported by the Mennonites from Russia. Mr. Ogilvie reports that the wheat has been much improved by the fertile soil of Manitoba, being dark and hard, weighing 65 lbs per bushel, and just the wheat that is now so much required for making strong flour. The Mennonites have already sold 50,000 bushels of this year's crop, and have still a large quantity on hand."

CINCINNATI, Dec. 23.—Capitalists here have arranged to have a refusal of the right to supply Cincinnati with Edison's electric light in case it proves a success on New Year's eve at Menlo Park.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 23.—The low tax Democrats adopted a resolution recognizing but one Democrat party in the state, and asking the Democrats, without regard to difference of opinion to secure a nomination of candidates for the State and National officers on the low tax platform.

ATCHESON, KS., Dec. 23.—Two extension lines of the Central Branch Union Pacific, now under the control of Jay Gould, have been consolidated under the name of the Atcheson, Colorado and Pacific Railway. R. M. Pomeroy, Boston, is elected President.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 23.—Col. McDaniel, a veteran turfman, is very ill of pneumonia.

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 23.—The earnings of the Louisville and Nashville Railway for the eleven months ending December 1st, show an increase of $459,000 over the same period last year.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—A despatch to the Chilian legation says a revolution has broken out in the Province of Moqueça, Peru, led by Gen. Chocane, in favor of Pierold. A revolution has taken place in LaPaz, Bolivia, on account of the recent defeat.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 23.—Rev. Abraham Paige, pastor of the South Casten bury Methodist Church, was yesterday committed to gaol for thirty days for lascivious conduct while preaching in a neighboring town; he recently made improper approaches to a young lady of his congregation, and her mental troubles recently culminated in insanity. At the trial Paige narrowly escaped lynching. He is 60, and has a family.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Indian Commissioner Hoyt telegraphs to the Tribune pronouncing its story of the Indian scandal published yesterday utterly unfounded in all that reflects on him.

It is claimed that Mayor Cooper violated the city charter in not publishing in the city record a notice of Morrison's reappointment as private secretary.

The Tribune says some aldermen are taking steps looking to his impeachment.

Samuel Sevin, aged 21, received a check for $30 in September from Alex. Taylor & Co., his employers. Experts express the opinion that this check was used as a model for recent extensive forgeries on Taylor & Co. aggregating $11,000. Sevin was arrested.

Christine Eckhardt, a doctress, was yesterday sentenced to three years in prison for malpractice on Minnie Pope. She claims to be an astrologer and wept aloud while the sentence was being delivered. Dr. Fayey, indicted with her, was too sick yesterday to be taken to the Court for sentence.

A sale yesterday of goods seized for violation of the revenue laws brought $8,000. Many imported articles brought better prices than those asked at Broadway stores.

A large consignment of oranges arrived from a Mediterranean port yesterday. An examination disclosed 450 boxes filled with sand and straw, with a few oranges ingeniously inserted between the slats. Baring Bros., London, made large advances on the cargo and lose heavily.

A supposed incendiary fire last evening destroyed R. W. Adams & Son's planing mills in Brooklyn. Loss $15,000.

A mass meeting was held at Jersey City yesterday in the interests of the suffering poor of Ireland. The hall was densely crowded. Mayor Cooper presided, and appointed a committee of relief consisting of many prominent citizens.

FIRE IN THE CENTRE BLOCK.

A Large Amount of Damage Done.

At about 3 o'clock this morning, fire broke out in the third story of the Centre Block, on Front Street west, whether in the room occupied by James Robbin as a cigar manufactory or in an adjoining room, is not known; but the general belief is that the fire originated in the cigar factory. The building, which it will be remembered was damaged by fire in January last, is well protected against the spread of a conflagration, being divided into four compartments by heavy brick walls, and owing to this fact the firemen were enabled to confine the flames to the compartment in which it originated. The roof over that part is completely destroyed, and a portion of the burning material fell into a room which F. S. Hynes, job printer, occupied as a stationery room. Otherwise there was no damage from fire on the floors below.

The heavy streams of water poured into the building have, however effected a great deal of damage.

Mr. Hynes' office is thoroughly soaked and he estimates his loss at $200, which is covered by insurance in the Northern.

Mr. Roblin's stock was destroyed. He was insured in the Royal, which will about cover his loss.

Messrs. Simpson & Bogart, whose offices are on the second floor, succeeded in saving their books and papers, which, however, are badly damaged with water. Loss $200, insured in the Quebec for $300.

Mr. Stuart Hooey, grocer and liquor dealer, who occupied the northernmost store, loses all articles of a perishable nature in his stock. His loss is about $1,500, insured in the Lancashire for $2,000.

Mr. R. H. Toy's store, next door south, is also flooded, and the contents, which consist largely of wall papers and painter's supplies, damaged badly. Loss not known.

Mr. W. R. McRae, grocer, loses $100; covered by insurance in the Scottish Imperial, Commercial Union and Phœnix.

Mr. M. D. Ward, dentist, sustains a loss amounting to $75; covered by insurance in the Northern.

The loss on the building, which is owned by the Ross estate, is covered by insurance in the Western.

The night was not very cold, but the wind was strong, and the firemen are entitled to credit for the earnestness of their efforts, which confined the fire within bounds which it would otherwise succeeded in overleaping.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 23.

City and Vicinity.

LATE.—The eastern mail was an hour late last night.

THE CELLS.—There were neither prisoners nor tramps in the cells last night.

TO-NIGHT.—The Philharmonic Society's concert will take place at the Opera House to-night.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.—The prospectuses of these admirable publications will be found in our advertising columns.

SHIPMENT OF CATTLE.—Messrs. Lingham & Co. will ship from Boston 4,000 head of cattle for England between now and the 17th of January.

BAD WALKING.—The frost which last night succeeded the rain storm of the early part of the day coated the sidewalks with ice where any snow remained and rendered walking very bad.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.—Work on the restoration of this edifice progresses rapidly. All the pews have been erected, and it is expected that the organ will arrive and be placed in position by the close of the present week.

THE WRESTLING MATCH.—The styles of wrestling in which Ross defeated Daly in their Montreal match were the catch-as-catch-can, the Graeco-Roman and the Scotch style. Daly won the collar-and-elbow and the Cumberland style.

THE MARKET.—The roads being in fine condition and the weather highly favorable, there was a very large attendance on the market this morning. Provisions of all kinds were in abundant supply, whilst receipts of grain were light.

CHRISTMAS TREES.—The Christmas tree entertainment of Christ Church and St. George's came off last night in the City Hall with great success. There was a large attendance and the children seemed to enjoy themselves thoroughly.

THE FLIGHT OF TIME.—A number of sparrows were this morning seated on one of the hands of the city clock. Whether they were watching the flight of time or not is not known, but their perch was suggestive to that effect.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—The delegation of municipal representatives and leading men of the district affected, who were to have an interview with Sir Charles Tupper, Minister of Railways and Canals at Ottawa to-day, passed eastward by the midnight train. Alderman Robertson accompanied the deputation.

THE RAILWAYS AND THE STORM.—The trains on the local railways had yesterday hard work in making their way through the heavy drifts that encumbered the lines in many places, but reached here shortly after their appointed times. Several men were employed in cleaning the rails on the Pinnacle Street grade before the trains could pass.

A FINE WINDOW.—One of the most attractive windows on Front street is that of Mr. Angus McFee, jeweller. He has just opened out a very large stock of Silver Ware and Silver Plated Ware, Gold and Silver Watches, and has made a fine display in his large window, which attracts every passer-by. Go inside and you will see a finer display and have a large stock from which to make your choice of a Christmas or New Years present.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE.—The December issue of "Maga," which has been received from the American publishers, the Leonard Scott Publishing Company, 41 Barclay Street New York, presents the following table of contents: Theatrical Reform: "The merchant of Venice at the Lyceum"; Reata, or What's in a name—part IX.; Progress; Bush Life in Queensland—part I.; Old Squires and New; The Broads and Rivers of Norfolk and Suffolk: A Liberal Address; Political Babies; The Late Orkan Blackwood. Now is the most favorable time to subscribe. Terms, including postage, payable in advance: Blackwood or any one Review $4 a year; Blackwood and any one Review $7; Blackwood and two Reviews $10; Blackwood and three Reviews $13; Blackwood and four Reviews $15; single numbers of Blackwood 35 cts. To be had from booksellers.

VENNOR AGAIN.—Vennor having been successful in his last venture is encouraged to try it again, and in the Witness of last evening predicts as follows: "December having given the intense cold anticipated by me over a large portion of the Dominion, I am encouraged to attempt a step or two farther, and from the same stand-point in my theory from which my former forecast was made. It seems pretty certain that we shall have to record at least two more terms of severity during the present winter, and it is an interesting problem to determine when each of these may be expected to occur. To determine, if possible, this point, I have carefully studied my charts of our winters as far back as the winter 1860-1861, and have arrived at the following "probabilities," viz: that the next marked severe term is likely to occur between the 9th and 15th days of Jan., or very close upon these dates. This will be severe and probably equal if not exceed the December cold term. The third "dip" which I think will be the severest of the three, is likely to come upon us in proximity to the 8th day of February and continue for three or more days. Two other "dips" of minor importance will probably be located towards the end of February and close to the 17th of March respectively. Between these very cold periods there are likely to occur two or more very general thaws, probably with rains."

The Municipal Elections.

The following are the candidates for municipal office who have so far declared their intentions through our columns:

THE MAYORALTY—James H. Hambly and Reuben S. Patterson.

BALDWIN WARD—D. B. Robertson.

COLEMAN WARD—Robert Gerdon.

MURNEY WARD—J. H. Simpson J. G. Vandusen, and David Holden.

KETCHESON WARD—Morgan Jellett, J. W. Johnson, Richard Costello, W. P. Niles, and D. E. Burdett, M. D.

FOTHER WARD.—George Boulter.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR,—In reply to the communication of Richard Burke in your Saturday's issue, I have only to say that he received seven dollars from me on the evening of the 4th of June to spend on the election, that he got this money from James Shevlin knowing it was mine and that it was from me to spend on the election, and that he objected because I would not give him more. I can prove what I say here.

Yours truly,
JOHN JOHNSTON.

Belleville, Dec. 22, 1879.

DEATH OF TWENTY-FIVE INDIANS FROM STARVATION.

Coal at Edmonton—Progress of the Telegraph Line.

WINNIPEG, MAN., Dec. 22.—The first bank business is now done in Edmonton. Coal is using Saskatchewan coal with perfect satisfaction.

Telegraph poles are up as far as Edmonton, and the wire has been strung the whole distance excepting seven miles.

Advices from Fort McLeod, Bow River, to November 3rd, confirm the reports of the destitution among the Black Foot Indians. Twenty-five of them had died of starvation at Blackfoot Crossing. There are fresh reports about cattle being killed by Indians.

W. F. Knight, while sinking a well twelve miles north-east of Emerson, struck hard coal at a depth of twenty-five feet.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

REPULSE OF THE GHILZAIS.

Gen. Gough reports that in consequence of the desultory attacks of the Ghilzais, it became necessary to engage them all along the line. The Ghilzais have been driven off. He hopes they are dispersing. The Viceroy of India telegraphs that Gen. Bright reports a movement of reinforcements all along the line. Gen. Gough marched yesterday for Cabul. Ayaudlah Khan, a Ghilzai chief, of Loraghman, who led the tribe in the recent engagement with Gen. Gough's command, is reported wounded. His followers are deserting him. Reinforcements have been sent to Dakka, in consequence of the report that the Mahmouds are assembling.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

NEW YORK, Dec., 23.—Fears are entertained that some girls employed in the corset factory which was burned last night did not escape but none are yet reported missing.

NEW YORK Dec. 23.—General Sherman and S. J. Tilden, who are Directors of the Pittsburgh, Wayne and Chicago Railway Company, were both in attendance at the meeting of the Directors at this city yesterday.

READING, Pa., Dec., 23.—The warehouse, machine-shops and part of the foundry of the extensive hardware works of Ricks Bros., were burned this morning; loss $45,000.

AYRESTOWN N. J. Dec. 23.—The residence of James Gleason was burned yesterday morning. Two boys and a girl, the eldest ten years of age, perished in the flames.

GALVESTON, Dec. 23.—A Denison freight train on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, fell through a burning bridge near the Durant station, the locomotive passed over safely; but the tender and 22 cars were badly wrecked and burned. Mike Shelby, the fireman, fell into the fire and was burned to death.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Gas stocks depreciated yesterday on the report of the news of Edison's discoveries in cheap electric lighting.

Part of the crew of the British steamer Borussia from Liverpool on Nov. 20th for New Orleans, landed at Queenstown by the British ship Mallowdale. The Borussia was abandoned while sinking on the 22nd inst.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Murphy of Haverstraw, one of the favorites in the walking match, suddenly withdrew yesterday. It is said he had been drinking too freely. The others who withdrew are Twomey, Steele and Howard. 60 men are still walking. P. J. Faudet, by his record yesterday 120 miles wins the gold watch offered for the best score in the first 24 hours.

It is said the unexpended balance of funds raised in '48 by Greeley, O'Connor, Emmett and others, for the Irish sufferers, is to be handed over to relieve the present distress in Ireland. With the interest it reaches about $50,000.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Dec. 23.—A claim of $24,-000 filed by the Jeffersonville, Madison and Indianapolis R.R., has just been withdrawn from the Adjutant General's office, Indiana, and sent to the Secretary of War at Washington, under the new Act of Congress. This is the largest claim yet filed. It is for the transportation of the home guard troops, and for bridges and property destroyed by Morgan's men.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—The Viceroy of India telegraphs that General Bright reports the continued advance of reinforcements. A despatch from General Roberts on the 19th says at slight skirmishes on the 18th one or two principal Afghan leaders were killed. Our loss was one killed and two wounded.

An announcement was issued yesterday that the Attorney-General having granted a fiat for a writ of error in the case of the Tichborne claimant, an association is being formed to assist in the prosecution of the fiat to obtain a remission of sentence to promote the passage of a bill in Parliament for the reversal of judgment in the case. The evidence of points of mistaken identity are being forthcoming, and information to the claimant of properties, heirlooms and possessions of the Tichborne baronetcy.

HAVANA, Dec. 23.—Capt.-General Blanco has issued a proclamation announcing that all incendiaries and robbers captured in the districts will be tried by the verbal court martial, and upon conviction sentenced to death, and that general officers of the army in the Provinces will have authority to approve of such sentences. An official despatch states that the Insurgent chief Pancho Jimines lately pardoned took arms again on the 20th inst., and joined a party of insurgents from Sancti Spiritus in an attack upon Arroyo Blanco. The troops repelled the attack, killing Jiminez with two of his so-called lieutenants, disposing of the rest and capturing a box containing a thousand cartridges.

A FAMILY FRIEND.—No family should be without Perry Davis' Vegetable PAIN-KILLER. It can be given to the infant for the Colic, and to the adult for Rheumatism. There is scarcely a disease to which it may not be beneficially applied. It contains no deleterious drug, but may be used for the various ailments of mankind.

A large proportion of children who die early are those whose brain development is unusually large in comparison with the body. Why is this? Simply because the functions of the body are too frail to supply the waste going on in the brain consequent upon active intelligence. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is so prepared that it imparts the vital principal directly to the brain, while it assists in developing a vigorous and robust body.

Sweet vs. Sour Cream.

(From the American Dairyman.)

It is quite pisin that some of our corrospon dents do not recognize the difference between the sweet and sour cream controversy now going on at the present time, and the sweet and sour curd controvery which raged ten or fifteen years ago. But as we have no wish to set up or take down, and are willing that every man should have all the credit that belongs to him, and no more, we propose to give a brief history of the controversy.

Before the factory system was adopted, such things as sour curds, tainted curds and floating curds were never heard of—at least, in this country. These came from the new condition of things, the sour curds from imperfectly cleansed pails and cans, and the tainted and floating curds, from carrying hot milk long distances in close, unventilated cans. The sour curds factory men could account for, they had seen sour milk, and knew what it meant, but they did not so well know how to make it into good cheese. The result was in many a batch of cheese curds, with puckered and cracked faces, dripping like a leech. Gradually they learned that they must have the action of heat and rennet on these curds, and expel the whey before putting them to press. There was, and is, an immense amount of butter, but our factorymen have acquired remarkable skill in this direction, and now obviate most of the worst features of former times.

But tainted milk and the accompanying floating curds, were the very devil in the cheese vats. Here was something new. It had never occurred to anyone that fresh milk might taint like fresh meat. Gradually, however, it was discovered that this kind of milk and curd were always sweet as long as the curd lasted and threatened to lift the roof of the factory off. Finally it was found that if such a batch could be made to sour, it stopped the putrefactive action and made a firm curd. It was also found that a certain amount of acid on every curd gave it firmness and prevented porousness. So a school soon sprang up in favor of acidulating all curds, and it became a nice matter to determine exactly when the requisite amount of acid was developed and the curd ready to dip. At the same time it was understood that the acid must not be allowed to get the start of the action of the rennet and heat. The writer of this was, in 1866, educated by one of the most successful factorymen into the mysteries of making cheese with rennet, heat and acid, and it is not vanity to say that he had more than ordinary success. Later the hot iron test for acid was introduced, with apparent good results, and the idea of airing curds after they were salted found many advocates —among others the writer of this article, who was thus early in favor of "oxygenizing" curds.

Up to about 1870, all development of the curd was made in the whey. A portion was drawn off, leaving just enough to float the curd freely, and in this it was kept until the hot iron indicated the proper amount of acid. Then there was often great hurry to get the curd dipped, and the salt on before the acid got too far. There are leading factories still run in this way. But about 1870, Mr. Macadam, now of Rome, and his sons—notably Alexander, who ran several factories in Montgomery County—introduced a modification of the Cheddar system, which is now quite generally practiced in our factories. The elder Macadam was a pupil of Harding, the English cheese-maker, so often quoted and referred to in the past. But the free development of acid was one of the prominent features of this system, it being found safe to occupy with the whey running off as fast as separated than it was when the curd was kept in the whey. This was also essentially an "oxydizing" process, and led to much more freely airing curds than was possible under the original American system. Pretty much everybody favored airing curds as much as possible, always after salting.

Let it not be understood, however, that the acid system was not introduced without a struggle. "No sour curds for me!" was often heard in our conventions and in private conversations. Large numbers long contended for dipping curds sweet, and a few possibly never gave up the habits of their earlier days and always insisted on dipping their curds sweet; though, to an observer, it was always apparent that the "sweet" of later years was not quite so sweet as that of former years. Everything tended practically to the acid system, which was well nigh rendered permanent by the modified Cheddar system introduced by Macadam. Lots of leading factorymen who sell for the highest price on the market still declare they cannot make a firm good shipping cheese without developing the acid. We are credibly informed that at the Canada Dairymen's Convention last winter, Mr. X. A. Willard took strong grounds in favor of the acid system and against Voelcker and Arnold; and that there were some pretty sharp passages between him and Mr. Ballantyne on the subject.

The new method of oxydizing curds before salting originated, so far as we know, with Prof. Arnold, who has had a good deal of labor and trouble in making dairymen exactly understand him. The idea that acid is injurious to cheese we believe to have been first announced by Prof. Voelcker. It was received with surprise throughout the country. Prof. E. J. Wickson, of the Rural Pacific, California, said it completely upset all our theories and practices, if true; and would produce a complete revolution in cheesemaking, if carried out. Prof. Wickson was right; and it requires extreme "cheek" on the part of anybody to claim to have recommended the new system of sweet curds and oxygenizing curds on the strength of what he said in the sweet and sour curd controversy of ten or twelve years ago. The two controversies are not the same in any of their bearings.

The chemical analyses made last year by Prof. Arnold and Prof. Francis P. Engelhardt, one of the most careful of German chemists, demonstrated that the digestibility of cheese, all other conditions being the same, was just in proportion to the absence of acid. This was a startling fact and led Prof. Arnold todevise some method whereby he could get the action of rennet, heat, and oxygen on the curd at an early stage, free from the excision of air by the whey, and before salting. That his process is different from any before suggested or tried is apparent to all who have witnessed it and from the fact that it is difficult for many to understand; also, from the fact that it is self evidently not understood by those who are trying to lay some sort of claim to having originated it. But we will people have the faculty of advocating all sides of all questions, and of finally establishing their claims to infallibility by quoting from themselves.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, pain in the head not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors consider this disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know they symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and sometimes cured.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Hroup, Hemorrhage, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true German Syrup is curing thousands of these dreadful diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family for a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

When Your Horse is Lame and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so obtain a bottle of Gides' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the facts about Dr. Giles liker, where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

WEST BELLEVILLE
GRAIN ELEVATOR.
Capacity, 60,000 Bushels.
BRENNAN & VANDERVOORT,
Proprietors.

THE undersigned having leased the above premises for a term of years, are prepared to receive, store, and ship all kinds of Grain, at reasonable rates.

The large number of Bins enables us to pay more attention to grading than any other establishment in the City, and being away from Railways and Steamboats, farmers can have no fears of teams being scared or annoyed in any way.

All roads approaching the premises are in g put in first class condition.

Having first class facilities for receiving grain, we can take in from wagons 1,000 bushels per hour.

The many years' experience we have had in the grain trade, and the confidence heretofore placed in us by our many friends, has decided us to offer these facilities, surpassed by none on the Bay, and we trust our old friends will appreciate the advantages offered.

The Elevator is now ready to receive grain.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $200 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $200 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anæmia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

Messrs Scott & Bowne: 96 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.
Gents,—I have been frequently prescribed Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice prescribed very extensively Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in disease of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent. It is perfectly palatable and agreeable form.
December 19th, 1878. Yours truly, J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble, under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of. I then commenced using Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, and in short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your Emulsion and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have parted with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your Emulsion and shall continue to use it. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable remedy.
Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. BLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

Messrs. Scott & Bowne: Lynn, Randolph Co., Ind., July 24, 1878.
About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your Emulsion and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the Emulsion in small doses, it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

CHRISTMAS ANTHEM,

Mothers, mothers that may be,
Bring your wreaths to deck the shrine
Of the Mother-maid divine
With her Child upon her knee;
Shout your silvery songs of praise
For the birth of better days.

Mothers, come! I see confessed
In your faces deep and mild
The adoration of the child.
Come, your children at the breast;
Lift your prayerful songs of praise
For the birth of better days.

Children come with confidence,
Seek the benediction mild
Of this gentle little child.
Who was love and innocence;
Lisp your guileless songs of praise
For the birth of better days.

—PHILIP O. SULLIVAN, in Harper's Magazine for January.

A CHRISTMAS SONG.

Sound over all waters, reach out from all lands,
The chorus of voices, the clasping of hands;
Sing hymns that were sung by the stars of the morn,
Sing songs of the angels when Jesus was born!
With glad jubilations
Bring peace to the nations!
The dark night is ending and dawn has begun;
Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the sun,
All speech flow to music, all hearts beat as one.

Sing the bridal of nations! with chorals of love
Sing out the wild war-drum and swell the sad dove.
Till the hearts of the people keep time in accord,
And the voice of the world is the voice of the Lord!
Clasp hands of the nations
In strong gratulation:
The dark night is ending the dawn has begun;
Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the sun,
All speech flow to music, all hearts beat as one.

Blow bugles of battles, the marches of peace;
East, west, north and south let the long quarrel cease:
Sing the song of great joy that the angels began,
Sing of glory to God and good will to man!
Hark! the jubilant chorus
The heavens bend o'er us!
The dark night is ending and dawn has begun;
Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the sun,
All speech flow to music, all hearts beat as one.
—JOHN GREENLEAF WHITTIER.

MY CHRISTMAS GIFT.

Being a bachelor, in independent circumstances, and able to return such civilities in kind, I have usually been so fortunate as to receive a large number of Christmas presents, the response to which has cost me so much mental and pecuniary wear and tear at different times, that I freely confess that I would, at any period, have been willing to come to an understanding with my friends, and agreed to stop both giving and taking, if such a proposition could have been ventured by a civilized man in the nineteenth century. And upon my word, I think I should have had the best of it; for the numbers of useless and troublesome articles which have accumulated in my chambers at each succeeding return of the Christmas season have, I fear, put many a nail into the coffin of my patient servant, and added several wrinkles to the brow of a certain good-natured man, who prides himself upon his youthful appearance in spite of his thirty-two years.

With this preamble I come to the point. I was seated in my comfortable sitting-room one Christmas eve, mainly occupied beneath the rolls of tissue paper that I had been resignedly removing from various little mementos, labelled with the sender's name and inscribed with appropriate sentiments, when another parcel was brought in. It had a thin paper cover over it, and felt cold and hard. "Good heavens!" I mentally ejaculated, "not another paper-weight!" for I was already the happy possessor of sixteen; but my apprehension had proved correct, and I behold on opening the parcel a duplicate of seven that were already adorning my sanctum, being one of those heavy glass ones with a picture slipped in at the bottom. I read the card enclosed, "From your loving little niece," and was laying it down on the table near by, without having had the spirit to examine it carefully, when I became conscious that through the crystal glass in my hand the bonniest little face I had ever beheld was looking straight into my eyes. I hastily slipped the photograph out, and looked on the back. The picture had been done in Naples, and was rubbed at the corners, and had the appearance of being old. Who, in the name of all that was delicious, could this little darling be? I asked by a fancy sketch—but not probably. She looked too real to me for that, and as I stood entranced at the sweetness of the infantine cheeks and lips, the rumpled blonde hair, the tiny ears and big ear-drops, the bewildering great eyes and the piquant little nose, I forgot that I had half a score of pressing matters to attend to that night, and rushed off to the home of the little niece who had given the paper-weight to me, to enquire about the original of the picture it contained. But a keen disappointment awaited me, for the child could give no satisfaction whatever. The photograph had been given her a year before by a guest who was staying at the house, and who was travelling somewhere beyond their knowledge, and so she could not be communicated with. Little Bessie informed me, however, that she had meant to have her own photograph done for the paper weight, but she had been too ill to go out in the cold, and so thought she'd just put this one in, though it had been in her baby-house for a year, and was not very fresh, and she promised me, by-and-bye, to have hers done for me, and I could then take back mine. I am proud to say that I managed to answer the child civilly, but at the same time I registered a vow that if necessary I would present Bessie with an original Vandyke, if it cost one-half I was worth, sooner than part with my little treasure. Well, I got a good many pretty things that Christmas, but not the very handsomest among them gave me half the pleasure I got from this little picture. I was positively in love with it, and I thanked my lucky stars that I had never married as long as the world contained such a cherub as this. You will say all this is very silly of me, and if it's any comfort to you to know it, I assure you that I entirely agree with you.

A year rolled by; the anniversary of my making the acquaintance of my picture came around, and in the meantime I had been altogether loyal and was more enamored of my little charmer than I had been at the first; but she had come to be a little less real to me, and I had about made up my mind that I should have to be content with the counterfeit presentment, and to despair of finding the original. In calm moments it seemed prodigiously unlikely that I would ever meet her. I had a cousin, Lucy Moore, who lived in a country place near New York, and who was good enough to take a good deal of notice of me, and to listen to my prosing on many subjects, and I had confided to her my passion for the little picture, though she had never seen it. The fact was I was a donkey about showing it. I did not like to share it with any one; but I was going to Lucy's home for the christmas, and I had promised to bring my picture along and show it to her, I doubt if I should have been willing to do this but that I thought it would be necessary to save me from a certain danger which threatened me at my aunt's. Lucy was to have a friend with her for the Christmas, who was a great hairess and a belle, and to whom she had resolutely determined to marry me. Now I knew Lucy to be a sensible girl, and that if I showed her the picture she would see at a glance that I was in love with such a finished coquette and worldling as her friend Miss Chester, and would simply out of the question, after having accustomed myself to the innocent loveliness of my guileless little inamorata. I reached Pearly, my aunt's place, long before Christmas eve, and Lucy came out to meet me, and told me the others had gone to ride, that she stayed at home especially to welcome me. This was very good of her, of course, but I knew my cousin pretty well, and I at once divined that this premeditated tete-a-tete with me had some object in it, and I was not wrong. She only allowed me to go in and kiss my aunt, who was an invalid, and then dragged me off into the library made me seat myself in front of her and opened upon me at point blank range, with a volley of Miss Chester. I bore it patiently for a while, and then I reminded her of my pre-existing affections. She scoffed, derided and sneered, laughed at me, shamed me, and called me a goose; but it had but little effect, and finally asked me to show her the picture of my little ballet-girl, for of course she must be some creature of that sort to be scattering her pictures in this anonymous way about the country. This made me angry, and I would not show it to her, and so we parted very huffily, and I made a resolution to avoid Miss Chester and to spend twice as much time in the smoking-room as usual, and to devote most of of my other time to hunting. I had pledged myself to remain until after Christmas, and would do that, but Mademoiselle should see that sometimes the opinions of other people were worth something, and I would not be married to order as she seemed inclined to arrange. I was nursing my wrath and treasured it up against her that Miss Chester might possibly be disinclined to the match —had that idea never occurred to her! Of course it had, she answered; and she never supposed that Di would marry me, when she had refused scores of better men, for any reason except to oblige her. She hoped I did not think that Di Chester was a girl to pine after such a man as me! And with this parting thrust my cousin stalked out of the room. I went up stairs to my old, familiar quarters, to change my dress for dinner, and I was listlessly engaged in my toilet, when I heard the clatter of hoofs. I walked to the window and looked out. Several people on horseback had drawn up under the window, but a patch of bright blonde hair upon a black habit and under a black feather, caught my eye. The girl's back was turned to me, and I was surprised to find myself regarding her lovely figure and hair with more interest than I had felt in any feminine loveliness since I had been in my present state of thraldom to my photograph. This was Miss Chester, of course; and she was a lovely creature—that is, as far as I could see, for I had not yet had a view of her face. Just at this moment she turned her head—her chin was raised and her head was turned directly upward toward my window. My heart gave a great jump, and my blood came tingling through my veins —it was the face I had learned to adore and worship—the lovely face in the world to me, and I realized that I had for a whole year been in love with my cousin's friend, Miss Chester. I stooped and watched her closely, and saw her dainty foot, and watched her exquisite motions as she came toward the house, and I confess to you, my confidential friend, that I was smoked. Excuse the emotion which has betrayed me into this expression, but it conveys an idea of my complete collapse better than any that occurs to me just now. After reflection I concluded not to reveal my secret to any one, not even Lucy; but to try, with all my might and main, to be my best self, and throw out of my life, at once and forever, all that was wrong, and vain, and selfish, and ignoble, and see if it was not possible to win the love of this peerless creature.

I came down presently and was presented in due form to Miss Chester, and—I record it proudly—I so far controlled myself as to meet her calmly and easily instead of falling down and caressing her slippers, as I felt strongly inclined to do. She was dressed in a piece of French millinery, with a train of about twice the length of her small body, and she had numbers of sparkling rings on her little fingers, and a great many other beautiful things, in which they had tried to make her look like a woman, but she was my innocent child-sweetheart still. There was quite a large company staying in the house, but it fell to my happy lot to take Miss Chester in to dinner. I don't know what might have happened if I had not pocketed my pride when I saw Lucy arranging it all, and said in an imploring whisper, "Oh, Lucy, if you please," accompanied with such beseeching contortions of countenance as proved to be irresistible. So Di and I sat side by side together, and drank champagne and ate jellies. He likes champagne and jellies, and we have decided that these terms are but a free rendition of nectar and ambrosia, and that Feely is Miss Chester's name for my original Vandyke, if it cost one-half I was worth, sooner than part with my little treasure. Well, I got a good many pretty things that Christmas, but not the very handsomest among them gave me half the pleasure I got from this little picture. I was positively in love with it, and I thanked my lucky stars that I had never married as long as the world contained such a cherub as this. You will say all this is very silly of me, and if it's any comfort to you to know it, I assure you that I entirely agree with you.

A year rolled by; the anniversary of my making the acquaintance of my picture came around, and in the meantime I had been altogether loyal and was more enamored of my little charmer than I had been at the first; but she had come to be a little less real to me, and I had about made numerous excursions about the country, in all of which, thanks to my dear cousin Lucy, I was Miss Chester's escort. She's a dear girl, this cousin of mine, though she would torment me now and then to show her the picture, and I was obliged to promise to grant her request at Christmas day. I was shocked to hear that she had told Di the whole story one day, but somehow I got the idea that the child looked a little pensive all that evening, and so in my heart I blessed my cousin, who, ignorant as she was, was helping my cause efficiently.

When Christmas morning came, and we all started off to church, Di and I were among those who were loitered. It was a short distance, and she decided it so herself, and let me go with her. She had a sprig of holly at the throat of her fur coat, and a patch of vivid red in her hat, and as I walked at her side in the light of the Christmas sunshine and the sound of the Christmas bells, surely I felt a happier and better man than ever I had been before, and made stronger resolutions for my future life if only this good and gentle little creature could be with me, to hold me back from every evil way, and to help me to lead my turbid man's life up to the pure rectitude of hers. I had not yet assured myself that my life or my future could be anything to her, but I hoped strongly, and was determined to tell my story to her soon.

All through the Christmas music and the Christmas service, so beautiful and triumphant, I was by her side, and we knelt together and stood together, and I think the hearts of both of us were warmed to fervent praise. And afterwards, when we walked back through the winnter woods and over the dry, dead leaves, I offered my arm to little Di, and she put her tiny hand within it, and all through the walk her exceeding gentleness and sweetness carried such comfort to my heart that a half-formed resolve that I had made took stronger hold upon me.

By-and-by, when Lucy and Di and I were together, after the rest had disbanded to meet at dinner, my cousin reminded me of my promise in these words:—

"Come, Hal, you must not forget your pledge to me. Di, he promised to show us to-day the picture he fell so violently in love with a year ago. It was taken abroad, I hear, and perhaps you may recognize in it some Venus of the skylights that you have seen in some of your travels. If you do, now, don't spare him—cop with the crushing truth, for Hal has definitely informed me that he will never woo or wed any other woman than the original of this —unless he has lately changed his mind." She said this last with a twinkle in her eye, but I answered very gravely:—

"I have never changed my mind, Lucy, and I am as strongly as ever resolved that I will never love or marry any woman but the original of this picture," and then I slowly drew the precious little card from my pocket.

Miss Chester, without any apparent reason, here sprang up suddenly and retired to a distant part of the drawing room, and stood with her back toward me looking out of a window. Lucy stretched out her hand for the picture, but I held it back.

"Miss Chester must see it first, I said, "to tell whether she recognizes it. Miss Chester, will you come and look?"

Di called out in a loud tone that she did not want to see it, and I declare the great distance made her voice sound choky, and almost as if it had tears in it. In a moment more I had gone to her side, and fancy my surprise when I discovered that her great star clear eyes were full of large tear drops, and she was holding the end of a damp little handkerchief between her tiny pearls of teeth, and giving it little jerks in her agitation and anxiety to keep back the tears. My heart gave a quick throb of joy as a delightful thought shone in upon me. The little darling was jealous of the picture. Could it be true?

"Don't you want to see the face of the little woman who had won my heart before I ever saw you? Don't you feel interest enough in me to care to see the woman that I love and hope some day to marry?" I said.

But she only shook her head, and I saw the great tears fall and roll down her beautiful cheeks.

"Ah, but you must," I said; "I will make you look. See, Di, this is the picture of my sweetheart, my one love, the little creature who possesses every shred and atom of my heart."

And I held the picture just beneath her eyes.

A look of wonder—a little start—a glad cry of happy confusion—and she was in my arms.

We never knew how long it was before we thought of Lucy, but when we did she was nowhere to be seen, but by-and-by Di ran off and brought her back, and we had a little explanation and rejoicing together, and Di explained how she had given the picture to my cousin's guest, and said first that she was very angry with her for giving it away, and then that she would thank her as long as she lived for doing it, and that Lucy knew she always had said that matches were made in heaven, and a great many more to the same purport. In this last, however, I agreed with her entirely, for surely her love has shed into my life a joy and peacefulness that are not born of earth.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 24.

CHRISTMAS GREETING.

The wheel of time has made another revolution, and once more, on the eve of the greatest of Christian festivals—the anniversary of the birth of the Saviour—the INTELLIGENCER extends to its readers, one and all, the hand of fellowship, and repeats the familiar but hearty salutation, "A MERRY CHRISTMAS."

None other of the old festivals brings to the mind and heart recollections so glad, so tender, so varied, as those which are evoked by the sound of the Christmas bells, of which the poet sweetly and suggestively sings :

This is the day that Christ was born!
Hark to the music sweet and wild,
That wakens glad hearts and forlorn,
To greet the blessed Child!

O silver bells, that ring so clear
All the wintry morning gray,
Rouse up the sleeping world to hear
That Christ was born to-day.

Ring till the children start from sleep,
Sweet with the dream of joy to be,
And clap their little hands, and leap
And shout aloud in glee.

Ring till the sorrowful ones of earth,
Whose lives are spent in toil and tears,
That leaves, alas! no place for mirth
In all the dreary years.

Shall hear the tender words He said,
"Come unto Me all ye that mourn"—
And enter through the open door to tread
The path His feet have worn.

Ring loud, ring sweet, O Christmas bells,
And tune each waiting soul to prayer,
The while your joyful peans swell
Upon the frosty air.

Through misty dawn, and sunshine clear,
Ring, till the callous hearts of men,
Stirred with the thought of Christ so near,
Grow warm and soft again.

Ring till the tender impulse turns
To pitying thought, to generous deed!
Ring till the eager spirit burns
To succor all that need!

And while ye ring, with heart and voice,
Glory to God! let all men say,
And every living soul rejoice
That Christ was born to-day!

Christmas is the season of merry-making as well, and few there are so soured by ill. fortune, for otherwise rendered so callous to the convivialities of ordinary occasions who do not at this festival season feel animated, in spite of themselves, by the blessed influences of "peace on earth and good will to man" which seem to ride in the very air. Feuds of long standing are laid aside, old wounds are healed, old friendships once broken are cemented again, and the better feelings of mankind are apt to show themselves and find vent in the very words in which we greet our readers. Families long separated gather again around the paternal hearth, whilst the charitably disposed find occupation for their means and a safety valve for their feelings of charity in donations to the needy, and assisting them to rejoice with those whom fortune has more highly favored.

With the exception of some of the Jewish holy days, none of the festivals observed by man dates so far back into antiquity as Christmas, and none other has so holy an origin or so blessed an influence. Though perhaps observed with less of religious solemnity than in the early days of the Christian Church, and by the operations of dry reasoning perhaps deprived of some of its miraculous features, there are still enough of pleasant and sacred associations connected with the Christian festival to make its recurrence a source of pleasure and of enjoyment to all. To young and old alike is the anniversary welcome, as to their deeds of charity and benevolence the elders can add the unadulterated pleasure of witnessing the amusements of the young people; whilst to the children the visits of Santa Claus with his inexhaustible store of good things, and to the more mature the exchange of presents as tokens of esteem and affection, render the festival the most memorable and the most pleasing of the year, apart from every other consideration.

Reminiscences, both sad and cheering, steal into the minds of those who are well advanced on the path of life, and many a treasured memory of the past will thus make its appearance to each and happiest are they who can derive pleasure from the retrospective as well as from the prospective.

Those who have the shortest distance to look back are the happiest, as hope is ever more charming than reality, but in all cases we trust that a proper enjoyment of the day will be possible, and that sorrow will be tempered by the prospect of joy which is to come.

Prepare the cheer, the festive cheer,
The old loved season still revere;
Revere with thanks for blessings shed,
And libtik of many a roofless head;
Give of your substance, freely, kind,
The shorn lamb shivers in the wind;
Let pity claim your liberal hand,
To aid the helpless, outcast band;
If each one starving wretch would feed,
The act would cheer in sorrow's need;
Comfort the poor—and then you may
Welcome with joy old Christmas day.

Visit of Ministers.

The gentlemen from this part of the country who visited Ottawa in connection with the Trent Valley Canal deputation, express themselves as being highly pleased with the courteous reception which they received from Ministers and the favorable attention paid to their representations.

It was also arranged that the promised visit of the Finance Minister to the mining region of North Hastings should take place next week, and that, if possible, Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. M. Bowell should be of the party. The arrangement, as outlined, is that the Ministers should leave Ottawa on Monday night, arriving here by the morning express on Tuesday. After breakfast they will proceed by special train to the terminus of the railway at the Seymour mine. Should the sleighing continue, they will be driven to the Dufferin mine, and thence to the Marmora gold mines, including the Gladstone, Feigel, Gatling and Dean & Williams or Wyandotte mines. Returning to Madoc, they will there be entertained, and return to Belleville by special train. Sir Leonard Tilley, having an engagement at Gananoque on the following day, will leave here by the midnight express. It is hoped that Sir Charles Tupper will have time to spare to view the site of the proposed Murray Canal.

We have no doubt that a hearty reception will be given to the Ministers by the people, irrespective of party.

FOR THE PRAIRIE PROVINCE.—Mr. Prittie, of Toronto, has received a letter from one of the English agricultural delegates who visited Manitoba last summer, asking him to make arrangements for the transportation of 400 emigrants from Quebec to the Prairie Province early next spring.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.—An Ottawa dispatch says:—"A deputation between 60 and 70 strong waited on the Government to-day to urge the claims of Trent Valley Canal for assistance, and members of Parliament, Senators and Reeves of the country along the Ottawa and the St. Lawrence, from Peterboro, to Montreal, including the Mayor of Montreal, were present and spoke strongly in favor of the scheme. Sir. Chas. Tupper and Sir John Macdonald listened attentively to their representations and promised to give the matter the fullest consideration, as they acknowledged the force of the arguments in its favor."

GEO. BROWN'S IDEA.—They do not believe in the N. P. They do not believe in Sir John Macdonald. They do not believe in Sir Leonard Tilley. They do not believe in Sir Charles Tupper. They do not believe in Mackenzie Bowell. They do not believe in the —Hum." They do not believe in public progress. Everybody in the Government is a cross between a booby and a buffoon. Every Tory is an undetected, possibly even a convicted, scoundrel. That is George Brown's idea of his political opponents, their policy, and their party. Meantime the Tory chief has about 87 of a Parliamentary majority, we believe while the Reformers at present have no Parliamentary chief at all.

Christmas Day on Thursday.

As Christmas day comes this year upon Thursday, the following quotation from an ancient M.S. in the British Museum is pertinent for publication at the outset of winter as a prophesy of coming events the approaching year:

If Xmas day on Thursday be,
A windy Winter ye shall see;
Windy weather in each week,
And hard tempests strong and thick;
The Summer shall be good and dry;
Corn and beasts shall multiply;
That year is good for lands to till,
Kings and Princes shall die of skill;
If a child born that day shall be,
It shall happen right well for he,
Of deeds he shall be good and stable,
Wise of speech and reasonable,
Whoso that day goes thieving about;
He shall be punished without doubt;
And if sickness that day betide
It shall quickly from thee glide.

High School Entrance Examination.

The examination of candidates for admission to the High School, was held in the Central School on the 16th and 17th inst., and the papers being now all examined, we give the result below. There were eighty-one candidates, from the following Schools and Divisions :—Mr. Irwin's, thirty-four; Miss Templeton's, nineteen; Mr. McKeown's, sixteen; and from country schools, twelve. Of the forty-four candidates who failed, twenty-seven failed in Arithmetic; in Dictation, Geography, and Literature, one each; in Parsing, two; while no less than twelve failed to obtain the required aggregate number of marks; though successful in securing the minimum in each subject, Candidates should bear in mind that a minimum of fifty per cent. on the whole examination is required, and it is very difficult to reach this standard if even the most unimportant subjects are neglected. While, perhaps owing to the shortness of the term, the results were not in all cases perfectly satisfactory, the Examiners take great pleasure in congratulating Miss Templeton on the brilliant success achieved by her Division; no less than sixteen of her candidates having succeeded out of a total of nineteen applicants.

The following is the list of successful candidates arranged in order of merit, together with the Schools in which they were prepared, and the number of marks obtained by each :—

Public Schools Promotion Examination, North Hastings.

In accordance with a purpose announced some time ago by the Inspector of Schools for North Hastings, an examination of candidates for admission to the fifth class in the public schools was held at Madoc, on Dec. 16th and 17th inst. The papers upon which the candidates were examined were those set for the examination for admission into High Schools (a supply of which were kindly furnished by the Minister of Education) and the regulations which have been prescribed by the Education Department for that examination were strictly adhered to in every particular.

Fifty-one pupils from public schools in Stirling, Madoc, Rawdon, Elzevir and Madoc Township were examined, and of these 27 were successful.

In the examination of the papers the Inspector was aided by Mr. F. E. Seymour, Rev. D. Wishart, Mr. E. Sutherland, master of the Stirling school, Mr. Geo. Kirch, master of the Madoc school, and Mr. Fuller, teacher of S. S. No. 6, Madoc. None of the teachers mentioned examined his own pupils' papers.

To pass it was necessary to obtain one-third of the marks given for each subject, one-half of the marks given for the parsing questions on the grammar paper, and one-half of the total marks (560) assigned.

In valuing the answers in grammar, geography and composition, one mark was deducted for each error in spelling.

The examination will be held half yearly. To the successful candidates (whose names arranged in order of merit we now give) certificates will be given by the Inspector.

Scribner for January.

In the November number of Scribner was commenced a story of Creole life entitled the "Grandissimes" by George W. Cable, author of "Old Creole Days." Of this work the Cincinnati Times said;

"That is a rare day when one strikes a vein of gold after long search over barren reaches. When, from amid the pile of weary, ordinary books from the new or unknown writers, a streak of true metal shows itself, that is a delight. The title page said "Old Creole Days," by George W. Cable, and below was the imprint Charles Scribner's & Sons, on a small book. Nothing more was known of the writer. It may be ignorance; but it was a great pleasure to be ignorant, for it lent the charm of discovery. Here was true art work. Here was poetry, pathos, tragedy, humor. Here was an entrancing style; Here was a new fie'd, one full of passion and beauty. Here was local color, with strong drawing. Here in this little volume was history, not acts and deeds, but life breath and blood—life as seen in an offshoot, as it were, of the human family."

Of the present Novel it need hardly be said that thus far it gives promise of being of much greater interest than the story which has made Mr. Cable's name so famous. The field is one which the author has created for himself, and in which he has no rival; it, moreover, offers a freshness of romantic incident and a many-colored scene not to be found elsewhere in the United States. It is not too much to affirm that no book upon the South has ever been written which surpasses 'The Grandissimes' in dramatic force. Its theme is the relations of slavery to Southern Society; and the work is written by a Southern man who has lived for years in the midst of the life whose color he seeks to catch. Moreover, the story is interesting as furnishing a new accession to the ranks of American novelists in the person of one who has heretofore done remarkable work in the more limited field of short sketches. It was commenced in Scribner's monthly for November. Ask your bookseller to send for it.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 24.

City and Vicinity.

RAIN STORM.—An unexpected rain storm set in this morning, but it is probable that the sleighing to-morrow will be good.

PROMOTION EXAMINATION.—The postponed examination for promotion to the fourth class will be held in the Central School, on Monday, Dec. 29th, at 9 a. m.

THE MARKET.—The rain storm to-day had a depressing effect upon business, and the attendance on the market was comparatively small.

DRIVING WITHOUT BELLS.—This dangerous nuisance is still prevalent to a small extent. The police ought to make an example of some of the reckless ones.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—Legions of purchasers of holiday goods will doubtless be abroad to-night. Let them scan our advertising columns and buy from advertisers and they cannot go wrong.

A GOOD EFFECT.—The strictness with which the police are now enforcing the Snow By-law is having a good effect. Those liable under the By-law were quite prompt in getting their sidewalks cleaned this morning.

ORGAN RECITAL.—On Monday evening, 29th inst., a grand organ recital and sacred concert will be given in St. Thomas' Church, by Prof. Wnish, assisted by the choir of the church. This will undoubtedly be one of the musical treats of the season.

FIRE IN SIDNEY.—On Sunday morning last the residence of Mr. Hicks, in the 7th concession of Sidney, took fire and was burned to the ground with nearly all of its contents, the barn and stables escaping very narrowly. Loss about $1,000. Insured in the Victoria Mutual for $500.

BONUS BY-LAW CARRIED.—A telegram from Tweed this morning conveys the gratifying intelligence that the By-law granting a bonus of $10,000 for the construction of a branch of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway from Crookston to Tweed has been carried, in the face of formidable opposition by a majory of 37 votes.

BELLEVILLE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.—The concert given by the above Society in the Opera House last evening proved to be a great success. The first selection on the programme was the singing of a fisherman's chorus "Away, away, the Morn is breaking," which was got through with in fine style. The second, a duet, sang by Miss Ockerman and Miss Christie, entitled "Gently Sighs the Breeze," was well rendered. Next came a piano solo by Mrs. Goetzel. This lady's skill as a musician is widely known throughout Belleville, and she surpassed her former efforts last night. A song by Mrs. C. G. St Clair, " Ask me no More," accompanied by Prof. St. Clair with his violin, was well given. The celebrated "Anvil Chorus" was rendered by the Society with an accompaniment of twenty hammers wielded by strikers from Burrel's axe factory, upon ten anvils, with such success as to necessitate their second appearance. "Angus Dei" by the Society, a violin solo by Prof. St. Clair, and a double quintette "Queen of the Valley" by ten of the Society were also well rendered. A comic duet "The troubles of the Fusseys," by Mrs. St. Clair and Mr. S. Spangenberg, brought down the house. The last on the programme was "God Bless our Dominion," by the Society, concluding with a beautiful tableau representing Canada, with her attendants Peace and Prosperity.

HOLIDAY.—The INTELLIGENCER will not be published to-morrow.

COLD DAY.—The " probabilities" predict that to-morrow will be a very cold day.

KNOCKED DOWN.—A lady was knocked down by a snow slide from a roof on Front Street this morning.

FOR THE ASYLUM.—William Ganey, a lunatic, was taken hence to the Rockwood Asylum at Kingston yesterday.

TELEGRAPHIC.—In consequence of the very bad working of the lines to-day, our usual morning telegrams were not received.

GOOD SPORT.—Judging from the quantity of venison exposed for sale on the market lately, the deer hunters must have had fine sport.

PERSONAL.—Mr. S. S. Peck, M. P. P. for North Victoria, was in town to-day.—Mr. Thos. Blezard, M. P. P. for East Peterborough, is also in town.

JOHN STREET PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—The congregation of this church have extended a call to the Rev. W. Mitchell, of Toronto.

TEA-MEETING.—A successful tea-meeting was held in the Methodist Church on the Kingston Road last evening. A choir from the City Churches furnished choice musical selections and a number of speeches tended to add to the evening's entertainment.

CHRISTMAS CHEER.—The St. George's Society are preparing, as usual, to provide Christmas cheer for a number of their countrymen who require assistance at this season. They have collected for this purpose $70, a sum in excess of the subscriptions of former years, and will make donations of beef, groceries, &c.

THURLOW.—Mr. James H. Peck, who has entered the field against Mr. Harford Ashley, for the Reeveship of Thurlow, is making a successful canvass. Mr. Peck is a man of ability, has had long experience in connection with municipal matters, and is well posted in municipal and school law. He would make a capable representative of the township, and we hope that he will be elected.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.—As will be seen by advertisement, this church edifice, which destroyed by fire three years ago, will be re-opened for divine worship on Sunday first, the 28th inst. The Bishop, assisted by the Rev. A. H. Baldwin and other clergymen, will conduct the services, which will be held at 11 a. m., 3:30 p. m., and 7 p. m. The collections will be devoted to the restoration fund.

MURRAY CANAL.—Following the interview with the Minister of Railways and Canals in relation to the Trent Valley Canal, in Ottawa yesterday, the Minister received a deputation anent the Murray Canal. The representations of the deputation were received very satisfactorily, and, the impression left on the gentlemen composing the deputation was that the project will receive the favorable consideration of the Government.

ROARING DRUNK.—A "young man from the country" who came to town yesterday with a load of cordwood and disposed of it, passed up Mill Street about 5 o'clock, lying on the sleigh and roaring like a demon. He had evidently imbibed too much of the curse of Canada, and left his horses to guide themselves, which the docile animals seemed to do very well. It is a pity that a policeman was not on hand to capture the man, as he was in no fit condition to be in charge of a vehicle on the road.

THE SILK ROBBERY.—Mr. Costello informs us that he did not, as stated, recover the whole of the silks stolen from his store. Of the thirty-six ends stolen, twenty-three were recovered, including the best qualities, the value of the part found aggregating $368. It is to be hoped that the remainder of the stolen goods will be recovered. The discovery was made by the fireman in Pringle's sash factory in removing a boat which had been placed in the shed which the thieves had chosen as a hiding place for their booty.

DRUNK.

F. P. McDonnell was fined $1 and costs.

John McCallum, drunk and threatening his wife, was given till 6 o'clock this evening to leave town.

C. E. Kyle, of Uxbridge, writes October 3rd, 1870, and says :—"I certify to the excellent qualities of ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM as a remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. I know it to be all it is recommended to be."

DIRECTIONS FOR COLIC IN HORSES.—Contents of small bottle Pain-Killer in quart bottle, add pint warm or cold water, sweeten with molasses, shake well until all mixed, and drench well. Give about half at once, then balance in ten or fifteen minutes, if first dose is not sufficient. This will be found a never-failing remedy.

THE USES TO WHICH MURRAY & LANman's Florida Water is put may, without exaggeration, be said to be universal. In refined and cultivated society it is recognized as the most refreshing and agreeable of perfumes for the handkerchief, the toilet and the bath.

GEORGETOWN, DEMRARA, JANUARY 17, 1873. Gentlemen :—I suffered for eight months with palpitation so that I could not do anything for myself. I called in Dr. Forte, and he recommended me to try BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS, and, after using them four weeks, I was relieved of the trouble.—WILLIAM WILSON.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—A despatch from Cairo says that at a meeting of the Egyptian Ministers, at which European controllers were present, the Khedive submitted a despatch from Gordon Pasha stating that taxes amounting to £250,000 remained to be collected in the Saudan. The Ministers expressed great surprise and the Khedive demanded an explanation from Gordon Pasha.

In another despatch Gordon Pasha desires that Egypt should cede to Italy a port in the Red Sea in order to produce complications between Abyssinia and Italy. The Ministers unanimously rejected the proposal. Other despatches were submitted to the Council from Gordon Pasha, showing his inconsistencies.

A despatch from Larnica, Cyprus, says that the cattle plague is spreading, and no horned cattle are allowed to leave or enter Larnica by sea or land.

A despatch from Pera says that the Mon, tenegrin ambassador at Constantinople, who demanded his recall in consequence of the difficulty of his position in regard to the Guisinje question, will leave on Friday.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—There is much dissatisfaction among the Irish people because the Government has not applied the surplus of the Irish church fund for the relief of the popular distress, which they are empowered to do by the terms of the disestablishment act. The directors and members of St. Vincent de Paul society publish a declaration that the "Elcemosynary" systems are a mockery and delusion if they are intended adequately to meet the deep and dreadful famine now approaching. On the other hand, archbishop McCabe, Dublin, has issued a circular to the clergy of his diocese, asking them to appoint a day for collections in churches, and to urge their parishioners to contribute.

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—A letter from St. Petersburg contradicts the recent reports of difficulties between the Czar and Czarewitch. It says the latter goes to the winter palace daily, and attends conferences between the Czar and his ministers.

ROME, Dec. 24.—Russian Major Domo and his Secretary arrived at Catonia, Sicily, to select apartments for the Czarina.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—Arrived out, the Bolivia, Othello, and Rheubina.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 24.— Cotton exchange closes to-night until Monday, and will also be closed on the first of January.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The board of railway arbitration have at last agreed upon the percentages of the east bound freights to be aliotted in seven roads, leading from Peoria eastward. By this decision the rates from all other western cities will be strengthened, and all cause of cutting the rates removed. The arbitrators decided that the Peoria division shall commence on January the 1st, and the Peoria lines to be agreed upon by the joint agent to put the pool into effect then. A Christmas dinner to the news boys of this city is to take place at the news boy's home at 7 p. m. on Christmas day. It will be provided for the tenth time by the Merchant Philantropist, Wm. M. Fliess.

WORTHING, Minn., Dec. 24.—Lester C. Turner, a merchant of Sioux Falls, was set upon on coming out of the outhouse of an hotel by two men, who knocked him down, and robbed him of $15,500 which he had just realized by the sale of his business.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec., 24.—At the Carleton college fire at Northfield yesterday, Willia Hallmain's building and nearly all the contents, including furniture, books and student's effects were burned. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—General Grant, accompanied by Col. Fred Grant and wife, left on the 8 o'clock train this morning for Jersey City, the party will return this evening. Mrs. Grant remains in the city.

From the steady, firm and regular beat of the Heart, replacing interrupted and feeble action of that organ, demonstrated in a variety of cases, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is known to exert a powerful tonic effect on the muscles of the Heart.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 24. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours : For the lower lakes, increasing westerly to northerly winds, cloudy to partly cloudy, decidedly colder weather with passing snow storms. To-morrow will probably be a very cold day.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.— Indications : For lower lakes, warmer with rain, followed by snow and partly cloudy.

DIED,

This morning, the 24th inst. at 3 o'clock, ELIZABETH, wife of J. G. Robinson, Esq., Treasurer of Albert College.

[The funeral will take place to-morrow, Christmas day, at 10 a.m., from her late residence to the Railway Station.]

Loss of a British Steamer.

ONLY TEN RESCUED OUT OF TWO HUNDRED AND THIRTY FOUR PERSONS ON BOARD—THE CAPTAIN AND AN OFFICER STUCK TO THE SHIP AND GO DOWN WITH HER.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—Part of the crew of the British steamer Borussia, from Liverpool, Nov. 20th, for New Orleans, have been landed at Queenstown by the British ship Mallowdale. The Borussia was abandoned sinking on the 2nd inst. Those landed include the chief engineer, doctor, boatswain, and six seamen picked up on the 5th inst., in an open boat. The Borussia had 180 passengers, of which 105 embarked at Liverpool-and 75 at Corunna. The crew numbered fifty-four. After leaving Corunna on the 24th Nov., she experienced terrific weather and sprang a leak on the 1st December. The severity of the weather increasing, she was abandoned on the 2nd, about 350 miles south-west of Fayal. The captain and second officer remained on the sinking steamer. The crew and passengers embarked in eleven boats. The nine survivors have no hope for the other boats, having seen one boat capsized, drowning all the occupants.

The survivors of the lost steamer Borussia started immediately from Queenstown for Liverpool. It appears a panic occured among the passengers after the wreck. The survivors state that no order to launch the boats and prepare for the abandonment of the vessel was given by the officers. The crew themselves lowered the boats without waiting for orders. About a dozen passengers got into the boats with part of the crew. The remainder of the passengers went down in the vessel, with the captain, second mate, three engineers, eleven firemen, three stewards, carpenter, and two boys. One boat swamped alongside of the steamer, and its occupants, five men were drowned. The survivors state that at nine o'clock on the night of the abdonment of the vessel they saw a second from the steamer, and soon after her masthead lights were seen to suddenly disappear.

ELEVEN FEET OF WATER IN THE ENGINE ROOM.

A Liverpool despatch says the survivors from the Borussia report the captain and a majority of the crew remained on board the vessel. Only sixty persons left in the boats. A Cork despatch reports that 184 persons were aboard the Borussia. The captain, on seeing that all efforts to save the vessel would be useless, ordered the boats to be got ready. Some rafts were prepared and necessaries provided. The vessel was abandoned at night, there being then ten or eleven feet of water in the engine-room. Four or five boats were lowered about the same time, but, owing to darkness and heavy sea, they soon lost sight of each other.

The crew still continued work at the pumps until the next day, the 2nd inst., when it was determined to abandon the vessel. Her boats were launched and provisioned, and part of the crew, with about a dozen passengers, got into them. Those of the crew who remained by the vessel were the captain, second mate, three engineers, eleven firemen, three stewards, a carpenter, and two boys. Shortly after leaving the vessel one of the boats swamped, and the occupants, five in number were drowned. The survivors state that the steamer's covering board, when they shoved off, was not more than two inches above water. It is supposed she must have gone down with her living freight. The fate of the other boats is doubtful, as nothing has been heard of their occupants since.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

For CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For some years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

Here's Merry Christmas Come Again.

I.

Here's Merry Christmas, and it seems
To call back childhood to the breast,
With kindly words and laughing gleams;
With leaping steps that shake the beams;
With noisy games and happy dreams.
And all of life that's bright and best.

II.

It comes with music in the hall,
That stirs the old man in his chair;
And when the midnight measures fall,
We'll lead the blithest dance of all,
Spurning alike the chimney, wall,
And seventy years of wear and tear.

III.

Here's merry Christmas come again,
Click heart to heart and hand to hand.
"Love one another" was the strain
Of him who never taught in vain;
And let it sound o'er hill and plain;
And rule the feast in every land.

—REGINA COOK.

Christmas.

But is old, old, good old Christmas gone?
Nothing but the hair of his good, gray, old head and beard left? Well, I will have that, seeing that I cannot have more of him.—Hue and cry after Christmas.

A man might then behold
At Christmas, in each hall
Good fires to curb the cold,
And meat for great and small.
The neighbors were friendly bidden,
And all had welcome free,
The poor from the gates were not chidden,
When this old cap was new.—Old Song.

Nothing in England exercises a more delightful spell over my imagination than the lingering of the holiday customs and rural games of former times. They recall the picture my fancy used to paint in May morning of life, when as yet I only knew the world through books, and believed it to be all that poets had painted it; and they bring with them the flavor of those honest days of yore, in which perhaps, with equal fallacy, I am apt to think the world was more homebred, social and joyous than at present. I regret to say that they are daily growing more and more faint, being gradually worn away by time, but still more obliterated by modern fashion. They resemble those picturesque morsels of Gothic architecture, which we see crumbling in various parts of the country, partly dilapidated by the waste of ages, and partly lost in the additions and alterations of later days. Poetry, however, clings with fondness about the rural game and holiday revel, from which it has derived so many of its themes—as the ivy winds its rich foliage about the Gothic arch and mouldering tower, gratefully repaying their support by clasping together their tottering remains, and, as it were, embalming them in verdure.

Of all the old festivals, however, that of Christmas awakens the strongest and most heartfelt associations. There is a tone of solemn and sacred feeling that blends with our conviviality, and lifts the spirit to a state of hallowed and elevated enjoyment. The services of the church about this season are extremely tender and inspiring. They dwell on the beautiful story of the origin of our faith, and the pastoral scenes that accompanied its announcement. They gradually increase in fervor and pathos during the season of Advent, until they break forth in full jubilee on the morning that brought peace and good-will to men. I do not know a grander effect of music on the moral feelings than to hear the full choir and the pealing organ performing a Christmas anthem in a cathedral, and filling every part of the vast pile with triumphant harmony.

It is a beautiful arrangement, also, derived from days of yore, that this festival, which commemorates the announcement of the religion of peace and love, has been made the season for gathering together of family connections, and drawing closer again those bands of kindred hearts, which the cares and pleasures and sorrows of the world are continually operating to cast loose; of calling back the children of a family, who have launched forth in life, and wandered widely asunder, once more to assemble about the paternal hearth, that rallying place of the affections; there to grow young and loving again among the endearing mementoes of childhood.

There is something in the very season of the year that gives a charm to the festivity of Christmas. At other times we derive a great portion of our pleasures from the mere beauties of nature. Our feelings sally forth and dissipate themselves over the sunny landscape, and we "live abroad and everywhere." The song "the bird, the murmur of the stream, the breathing fragrance of spring, the soft voluptuousness of summer, the golden pomp of autumn; earth with its mantle of refreshing green, and heaven with its deep delicious blue and its cloudy magnificence, all fill us with mute but exquisite delight, and we revel in the luxury of mere sensation. But in the depth of winter, when nature lies despoiled of every charm, and wrapped in her shroud of sheeted snow, we turn for our gratifications to moral success. The dreariness and desolation of the landscape, the short gloomy days and darksome nights, while they circumscribe our wanderings, shut in our feelings also from rambling abroad, and make us more keenly disposed for the pleasure of the social circle. Our thoughts are more concentrated; our friendly sympathies more aroused. We feel more sensibly the charm of each other's society, and are brought more closely together by dependence on each other for enjoyment. Heart calleth unto heart; and we draw our pleasures from the deep wells of loving-kindness, which lie in the core of our existence—of which, when resorted to, furnish forth the pure element of domestic felicity.

The pitchy gloom without makes the heart dilate on entering the room filled with the glow and warmth of the evening fire. The ruddy blaze diffuses an artificial summer and sunshine through the room, and lights up each countenance in a kindlier welcome. Where does the honest face of hospitality expand into a broader and more cordial smile—where is the aby glance of love more sweetly eloquent—than by the winter fireside? and as the hollow blast of wintry wind rushes through the hall, claps the distant door, whistles about the casement, and rumbles down the chimney, what can be more grateful than that feeling of sober and sheltered security, with which we look round upon the comfortable chamber and the scene of domestic hilarity!

The English, from the great prevalence of rural habit throughout every class of society, have always been fond of those festivals and holidays which agreeably interrupt the stillness of country life; and they were, in former days, particularly observant of the religious and social rites of Christmas. It is inspiring to read even the dry details which some antiquaries have given of the quaint humors, the burlesque pageants, the complete abandonment to mirth and good-fellowship, with which the festival was celebrated. It seemed to throw open every door, and unlock every heart. It brought the peasant and the poor together, and blended all ranks in one warm generous flow of joy and kindness. The halls of castles and manor-houses resounded with the harp and the Christmas carol, and their ample boards groaned under the weight of hospitality. Even the poorest cottage welcomed the festive season with green decorations of bay and holly—the cheerful fire glanced its rays through the lattice, inviting the passengers to raise the latch, and join the gossip knot huddled round the hearth, beguiling the long evening with legendary jokes and oft-told Christmas tales.

One of the least pleasing effects of modern refinement is the havoc it has made among the hearty old holiday customs. It has completely taken off the sharp touchings and spirited relicts of these embellishments of life, and has worn down society into a mere smooth and polished, but certainly a less characteristic surface. Many of the games and ceremonials of Christmas have entirely disappeared, and, like the sherris sack of old Falstaff, are becoming matters of speculation and dispute among commentators. They flourished in times of spirit and lustihood, when men enjoyed life roughly, but heartily and vigorously; times wild and picturesque, which have furnished poetry with its richest materials, and the drama with its most attractive variety of characters and manners. The world has become worldly. There is more of dissipation, and less of enjoyment. Pleasure has expanded into a broader, but a shallower stream; and has forsaken many of those deep and quiet channels where it flowed sweetly through the calm bosom of domestic life. Society has acquired a more enlightened and refined tone; but it has lost many of its strong local peculiarities, its home-bred feelings, its honest fireside delights. The traditionary customs of golden-hearted antiquity, its feudal hospitalities, and lordly wassailings, have passed away with the baronial castles and stately manor-houses in which they were celebrated. They comported with the shadowy, hall, the great oaken gallery, and the tapestried parlor, but are unfitted to the light showy saloons and gay drawing-rooms of the modern villa.

Shorn, however, as it is of its ancient and festive honors, Christmas is still a period of delightful excitement in England. It is gratifying to see that home feeling completely aroused which holds so powerful a place in every English bosom. The preparations making on every side for the social board that is again to unite friends and kindred; the presents of good cheer interchanging and repassing, those tokens of regard, and quickeners of kind feelings: the evergreens distributed about houses and churches, emblems of peace and gladness; all these have the most delightful effect in producing fond associations, and kindling benevolent sympathies. Even the sound of the Waits, rude as may be their minstrelsy, breaks upon the mid-watches of a winter night with the effect of perfect harmony. As I have been awakened by them in that still and solemn hour, "when deep sleep falleth upon man," I have listened with a hushed delight, and connecting them with the sacred and joyous occasion, have almost fancied them into another celestial choir, announcing peace and goodwill to mankind.

How delightfully the imagination, when wrought up by these moral influences, turns everything to melody and beauty! The very crowing of the cock, heard sometimes in the profound repose of this country, "telling the night watches of his feathery dames," was thought by the common people to announce the approach of this sacred festival:—

"Some say that ever 'gainst the season comes
Wherein our Saviour's birth is celebrated,
The bird of dawning singeth all night long;
And then, they say, no spirit dares stir abroad;
The nights are wholesome—then no planets strike,
No fairy takes, no witch hath power to charm,
So hallowed and so gracious is the time."

Amidst the general call to happiness, the bustle of the spirits, and stir of the affections, which prevail at this period, what bosom can remain insensible? It is, indeed, the season of kindness, and eminently the season for kindling, not merely the fire of hospitality in the hall, but the genial flame of charity in the heart.

The scene of early days again rises green to memory beyond the sterile waste of years; and the idea of home, fraught with the fragrance of home-delights and home-endearments, of the drooping spirit; and the Arabian breeze will sometimes waft the freshness of the distant fields to the weary pilgrim of the desert.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; the inducements it offers as loans as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION
CAN BE CURED
IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish the result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anæmia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine dict, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE, 46 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.
GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.
J. COCKLOWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,
J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.
December 19th, 1878.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble. Under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and various preparations of iron, which I took and grew no better. I then bought a bottle of SCOTT'S EMULSION of COD LIVER OIL, and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough sweating, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL. And I have a friend who has tried about all the nostrums in the market, but is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving so rapidly that he is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.
Jan. 20th, 1879, Very truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 22, 1878.
About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours, obtained for new inventions, or for improvements in old ones. Caveats, Trade Marks and all patent business promptly attended to

PATENTS

Inventions that have been rejected may still, in most cases, be patented by us. Being opposite the U. S. Patent Office, and engaged in Patent business exclusively, we can secure patents in less time than those who are remote from Washington, and who must depend on the mails in all transactions with the Patent Office.

When Inventors send model or sketch we make search in the Patent Office and advise as to the patentability free of charge. Correspondence confidential, prices low, and no charge unless patent is obtained.

We refer to Hon. Postmaster General D. M. KEY, Rev. F. D. POWER, to officials in the U. S. Patent Office, and especially to our clients in every State of the Union and in Canada. For special references, terms, advice, &c., Address obtained for Inventors, in the United States, Canada and Europe, at reduced rates. With our principal Office located in Washington, directly opposite the United States Patent Office we are able to attend to all Patent Business with greater promptness and despatch and less cost than other patent attorneys, who are at a distance from Washington, and who have, therefore, to employ "associate attorneys." We make preliminary examination and furnish opinions as to the patentability, free of charge, and all who are interested in new inventions and Patents are invited to send for a copy of our "Guide for obtaining Patents," which is sent free to any address, and contains complete instructions how to obtain Patents, and other valuable matter. We refer to the German American National Bank, Washington, D. C.; the Royal Swedish and Norwegian, and Danish Legations, at Washington; Hon. Joseph Casey, late Chief Justice U. S. THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Interview with the Dominion Government on the Subject.

(From the Globe)

OTTAWA, Dec. 23.—This morning at eleven o'clock the members of the Trent Valley Canal deputation waited on the Minister of Railways in the Railway Committee rooms in the House of Commons. The deputation numbered some fifty-four delegates. The members of Parliament present were :—Messrs. Hector Cameron, Hilliard, Burnham, Cockburn and Keeler, and of the Local Legislature, Messrs. Blezard and Peck.

The members of Parliament introduced the delegates to the members of the Government present, who were Sir Charles Tupper, Messrs. Carling, Pope, Aikins, the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, and Hon. M. Masson. The chairman of the deputation was Mayor Lundy, of Peterboro', and the secretary, Mr. H. E. Smith, councillor, of Peterboro'. Mr. Trudeau, Deputy-Minister of Railways and Canals, was also present.

Mayor Lundy, of Peterboro', as chairman of the deputation, thanked the Ministers for the reception accorded them, and presented a number of petitions in favor of the scheme. He also presented a memorandum setting forth reasons why the canal should be constructed.

Mr. HECTOR CAMERON, M. P., being called upon, stated that he felt that the question was one of general importance, and was not of a sectional or local character. Even if it were looked upon from this narrow view, however, he felt that this section of the country should not be overlooked. The country was of a very fertile character, and had been greatly blessed by nature for the purposes of a channel of inter-lake navigation. The proposed system of navigation would be about 230 miles in length, and according to Mr. Stark's estimate would only require the construction of some 90 miles of canal, to connect the various stretches of water. He narrated the facts relative to the transference of the works to the Ontario Government by the late Administration, and the coupling of the transference by their successors, acting on a report presented to the House of Commons last session by a Committee specially appointed to consider the question in relation to the proposed canal. The first question to be considered was, What engineering difficulties, etc., are there to the completion of the scheme? But what problem had been satisfactorily solved by Mr. Stark, who reported that there were none. As to the cost, he estimated it would be about three millions of dollars. It was also contemplated to build a canal giving five feet of water in the locks. It was said by many that the day of canals was passed, but statistics proved the contrary. A large portion of the grain that two-thirds of all the grain which entered the port of New York was conveyed by canals, and only one-third by the numerous railways which centred that city.

Sir Charles Tupper—Was that last year?

Mr. CAMERON, resuming, replied in the affirmative, and said that that statement was satisfactory proof to him that the days of canals were not past. The canal would afforded the cheapest means of carrying grain. He believed that the demands of our own North-West and the North-Western States for the exportation of cereals would give ample employment for every canal and every railroad that could be built to communicate with them. The construction of the section of the Canada Pacific Railway from Thunder Bay to Nipissing seemed to require the construction of such a canal as this. When the grain arrived at Thunder Bay, should it be carried down the lake through the canal, or by the short means of communication through their own territory be provided? Cargoes transferred into barges on the Georgian Bay would pass down the canal to the Bay of Quinte and to the St. Lawrence without transhipment. Only a partial benefit was derived from the cargoes of vessels passing through the Welland Canal, while by this scheme Montreal would be the great exporting point. Another consideration for the Government was that this canal would benefit the St. Lawrence canals, for the Welland Canal was spending so much money, and which, he was free to admit, scarcely paid the interest on the principal. It was said that the construction of this canal would provide a rival to the Welland Canal, on which the Dominion Government had expended so much money; but it must be apparent to every thinking man that the Welland Canal was in direct competition with the Erie Canal, and that that proposed was an entirely supplementary scheme. The shorter distance from western points to the seaboard via the Welland and Erie canals was slightly in favor of the latter, and from that circumstance he drew an argument in favor of the Trent River scheme. He concluded by expressing confidence in the Government's impartial consideration of the claims of this scheme—a scheme in which his constituents had so deep an interest.

Mr. CARNEGIE, who was the second delegate to speak, pointed out that the Erie Canal stood unrivalled in the grain carrying trade, and said that if that canal had been enlarged, how much more successful ought this one to be? The draught of water in the Erie Canal locks was only one foot more than that of the Trent River navigation works, while the locks were longer in the latter case, and the gates wider. He pointed out how the early completion of a portion of the Trent would tend to the development of the mining industry in Marmora and Madoc, the ores excavated from which district were being at present carried partly by rail and partly by water to the Bay of Quinte. Viewed from every standpoint, he believed that the Dominion was deeply interested in the construction of the work. There was no way by which the Government could more cheaply provide means of exportation for the grain trade of the West than by the construction of the Trent Valley navigation system. He hoped that the Government would see their way clear to carrying out this work at so small a cost.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER asked Mr. Carnegie if the deputation had considered the comparative merits of this scheme as compared with the canalization of the Ottawa, which aimed at the same object.

Mr. CARNEGIE in reply said that the Ottawa scheme would cost from twenty to twenty-seven millions—and this did not include a harbor at the mouth of the French River. It was very far north, and would not be open so long in the year as the Trent Canal. Besides, in the estimates no account had been taken of the cost of constructing a harbor at French River, which, being at present far from safe for shipping, would require a large expenditure of money; whereas at the western entrance of the Trent Canal there was the harbor at Midland—one of the finest and safest on the lakes. The Trent scheme had one of the best harbors on Georgian Bay. There was only twenty miles in distance in favor of the Ottawa scheme, and this he did not think would justify the extra expenditure. He believed that both schemes would be required, but thought that they should first build the one that could be the most easily and the cheapest constructed, which was the Trent Canal.

Mr. MCCUAIG expressed the opinion that a five foot depth of water barge would not carry sufficient grain to enable them to cheapen the cost of transport.

Mr. CARNEGIE believed that their locks were adapted for the most economical carrying of the time. At the present time scows carry down the Trent River works 450 tons of ore each.

In reply to another question,

Mr. CARNEGIE said it was proposed to unload the lake propellers at Midland and transport the grain in barges from that point to Montreal. He had also been informed that for Montreal it was better to carry the grains in small bulk, because of the want of storing capacity.

Mr. MCCUAIG said that he did not oppose the scheme, but the question which the country at large would ask would be—How could the canal transport be reduced by the carrying out of their views? It was a question with him with the undertakings they had on hand whether they were not in favor of the Ottawa scheme.

Mr. CARNEGIE replied, holding that the Trent Valley scheme offered decided advantages in point of economy, and especially in the matter of insurance, wherein a large saving would be effected.

Mr. HILLIARD, M.P., gave an illustration to that effect.

Mr. KEELER, M. P., gave a historical resume of the agitation, and pointed to the fact that before the troubles of '37 the Government expended $670,000 on this work, of which portions will still be in excellent condition. He then recited several arguments in favor of adopting the Trent River scheme. Instead of freight being carried round two sides of a triangle, as on the lakes, it would, through the Trent River Canal, pass across the base, and effect a great saving in distance. As to the question of cost, the arguments in its favor were still greater. The Ottawa and French River would cost from twelve to twenty-seven millions of dollars. This provided for a greater draught of water; but reducing it to the same draught, it would still cost three times more than the Trent Valley scheme. As compared with Mr. Capreol's scheme the advantages were still stronger in their favor. No man with a knowledge of engineering would regard the Rideau and Ontario Canal scheme as practicable. The cost was estimated at thirty-six millions of dollars, and a large subsidy of land was to be given to the promoters of the scheme. Another rival—although rather northern—was the Hudson Bay scheme. He did not think it was necessary to consider this seriously at the present time, as it would be many years hence before it would be realized. He considered it to be the duty of the Government to seriously consider this scheme, and devise means, if possible, to carry it out, and he pressed upon them the necessity for considering the proposition in a proper light.

Mayor RIVARD, of Montreal, said that on behalf of the city of Montreal he could not commit himself to any expression of opinion on the matter. He merely was present to watch and report on the proceedings.

Ald. NELSON, of Montreal, endorsed the Mayor's remarks, and also spoke of the great advantages and capabilities of the North-West and the necessity for proper communications being afforded. He was not prepared to commit himself to the Trent Valley scheme, believing that a greater depth should be secured. He was wedded to a certain extent to the Ottawa scheme, believing that it would be less liable to be tapped by the Americans. He believed that the present effort was in the interest of the country, and that if three to five millions of dollars would secure it it would be money well invested.

Mr. E. G. SILLS, Reeve of Sidney, referred to the water-power capacity of the Trent River to grind into flour all the wheat passing over it.

Mr. DUMBLE, of Peterboro', directed attention to the fact that the water of the Trent River could easily be controlled and dammed.

Some controversy between Mr. McCuaig and the rest of the deputation arose at this point as to whether ordinary flat-bottomed canal barges carried grain across the lake, Mr. McCuaig maintaining the affirmative view, and Mr. D.R. Murphy, of Trenton, Ald. Robertson, of Belleville, and Mr. Hilliard, M. P., the negative.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER re-expressed his sense of indebtedness to the deputation for having discussed the presence of the Premier, his colleagues, and himself, this question, which was undoubtedly one of very great importance. Any one who looked at the map could see why for fifty years past a good deal of attention had been devoted to Trent navigation. The late Government—he might say the Government of his right hon. friend—had passed an Order in Council transferring the works already constructed from the Dominion Government to the Ontario Government. After their accession to office their attention was called to the fact that their predecessors had exceeded their powers in transferring this work to the Government of Ontario without a promise that the latter should maintain it, and the transfer had consequently been cancelled. Apart from these considerations, the present Government were prompted to cancel the transfer on account of the probability of the system of navigation being considered as one of the prospective outlets from the upper lakes for the produce of the North-West of the Dominion and the North-Western States of the adjoining country, which territory on both sides of the frontier found this portion of Canada afforded the most convenient and economic means of communication with the seaboard. Under these circumstances the present Government not only reversed the action of their predecessors, but sent an able engineer to examine and report upon the whole of this question, in order to furnish the fullest information upon the matter. The engineer, Mr. Stark, had reported that for three millions of dollars they could accomplish the work, as Mr. Carnegie had said, with a depth of five feet in the mitre-sills, with double the width of the Erie Canal, and with locks of greater dimensions. Mr. Starke had not only found that this could be accomplished by an expenditure of three millions, but also that the distance might be shortened by passing across instead of taking the circuitous route now pursued. He need not tell them that the Government was most anxious to look at the question in the broadest aspect, but in the present financial position of the country they were unable to carry out all the projects which were found perfectly feasible, sound, and desirable. In the present financial condition of the country, when the Finance Minister was endeavoring to place the Government upon a sounder financial basis than it had unfortunately occupied for several years past, and when it was necessary that the credit of the country should be maintained abroad, it would be the duty as well as the aim of the Right Hon. the Premier and his colleagues to approach the subject with due reference to the great public works which the country was at present engaged in pushing. It was perfectly obvious to every one that the decreasing of the cost of transporting grain must have an important effect in contributing to the rapid development and settlement of the North-West, and the question of cheapening the transportation of the products of the North-West must at an early day occupy the Government's attention. The Government, he need hardly say, was most anxious that the traffic to the seaboard should pass through their own country as far as possible. He closed by stating that the subject would be carefully considered by him, with a view of adopting the departmental action that would be possible moment when the circumstances demanded it.

Sir JOHN MACDONALD said that he had but little to add to the remarks made by the Minister of Railways and Canals. He referred to the history of the work, spoke of its importance, and said that the views of the delegation would receive the fullest consideration. Prima facie the Trent seemed to be a valuable scheme, and if, after further investigation, it was shown that the work could be prosecuted for the present estimates, and if Parliament thought the resources of the country would enable the Government to undertake the work, it would be done.

Mr. CAMERON, M. P., referred to a charter for this work given to a private corporation, but which had expired by lapse of time.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER replied that the Government would throw no obstacle in the way of private enterprise, but proper guarantees would be expected.

Mr. CAMERON was of opinion that the Government should keep the work in their own hands. He hoped that the Government would be able shortly to ask Parliament, if not for a grant to build the works, at least for assistance to make further investigation.

After a vote of thanks had been passed by the deputation to the members of the Government present, the deputation withdrew.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is a symptom of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but this is why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days and more. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. JERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, etc. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Croup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will break up the cold. It will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, do not begin to think of treating him after—before doing so obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Remember the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

BELLEVILLE, FRIDAY, DEC. 26.

Railway Legislation.

The coming session of the Ontario Legislature promises to be productive of a vast amount of legislation with regard to Railways. So successful have been the efforts of those promoters of Railways who have sought to make of the Legislature the great arbitrator between the municipalities and the Companies which they have aided—to make of the Provincial Parliament a court of law and a court of equity as well—that as the natural consequence a heavy crop of railway legislation of all kinds is certain to distinguish the forthcoming session of the Legislature. The notices in the Ontario Gazette show that the following named Companies seek for fresh legislation—in many cases of an important character, and in some others of such a character that the Courts rather than the Legislature should be called upon to decide with regard to it :

The Grand Junction Railway Co.
London Junction Railway Co.
Credit Valley Railway Co.
Midland Railway Co.
Toronto and Nipissing Line.
Prince Edward County Railway Co.
Erie and Huron Co.
Toronto and Ottawa Railway Co,
The Trent Valley Railway Co.
Stratford and Huron Railway Co.
Toronto, Grey and Bruce Line.
North Simcoe Railway Co.

Some of these Companies, the Monetary Times states, have given notice of two measures, and doubtless there will be others brought before the Legislature besides those enumerated above. We observe also, says our contemporary, that quite a number of new Companies will seek incorporation, with a view to carry out other railway projects. How far these new schemes are deserving of legislative sanction, Ontario representatives, and particularly the Government—which is responsible for all legislation — should carefully consider. Each project should be carefully scanned and judged upon its own merits, more especially if the Company seeks any Government grant. The Provincial surplus should not be further reduced unless for works of undoubted utility. This fact cannot be too earnestly impressed upon the new house.

Among the projected railways are the following : (1) The Grand Ontario Central Railway, to run from Goderich to Ottawa ; (2) Toronto & Nipissing Northern Extension Railway, to run from Coboconk through Victoria, Haliburton and Muskoka, to Trading Lake ; (3) Toronto & Nipissing Eastern Extension, to run through Victoria, Peterborough and Hastings, to the Ottawa River ; (4) A railway from Sault Ste. Marie to Lake Nipissing ; (5) A street Railway from Clifton along the Niagara River, into the Township of Stamford ; (6) A Branch of the Belleville & North Hastings Railway, to the Village of Tweed ; (7) A railway from Sault Ste. Marie, to connect at French River on Lake Nipissing with the extension of the Canada Central west of Pembroke ; (8) The Port Rowan and Lake Shore Railway, to extend from Port Royal to Port Dover, in the County of Norfolk, with power to connect with the Hamilton and North-Western line ; and (9) a railway from the Horse Shoe Falls to Queenston, "near the water's edge" of the Niagara River.

It is greatly to be regretted, in view of the importance of many of these measures, that the Provincial House has been called together at so late a date that a considerable part of its session must run concurrently with that of the Dominion Parliament. The consequence of this object ionable course is that the leading journals are unable to report the discussions in the Local House at such length as they otherwise would do, and public attention is diverted to the Dominion Parliament, greatly to the injury of our local interests, as many objectionable measures are thus slipped through almost without the knowledge of the public. This is all the more censurable because of the fact that the Ministry have an overwhelming majority, which they will not, as their past record shows, hesitate to use without scruple. For these reasons we shall endeavor to watch narrowly the proceedings of the Ontario Legislature at its next session, and the legislation affecting railways in particular.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT.—The small village of Menlo Park, N. J., was illuminated with Prof. Edison's electric light on Christmas evening, and was pronounced a perfect success. It was demonstrated by illumination that the light of each so-called burner was fully equal to that produced by an ordinary gas jet in the street lamp or dwelling house. The effect of the perfecting of Edison's electric light caused gas stocks in New York to decline heavily.

The Murray Canal.

In other columns will be found a report of the interview had with the Minister of Railways and Canals with reference to the Murray Canal project. The Globe's report, from which we quote, shows that Sir Charles Tupper expressed himself in a manner highly satisfactory to the well wishers of the scheme, and the Mail's report gives still further grounds for encouragement. The latter journal reports the hon. gentleman's remarks as follows :

Sir Charles Tupper, in reply, expressed his surprise that a work so small in magnitude, and for which lands had actually been appropriated, and the proceeds from the sale of which were in the hands of the Government, had not been undertaken before this. He did not think that there would be any difficulty on the score of the work partaking somewhat of a local character, as, in reality, it would be a harbor of refuge on a large scale, and such works were usually constructed by the Government.

This report agrees closely with the statement of the delegates. It shows that Sir Charles is favorably disposed towards the enterprise and that he views it in its true light, as a work of a most important character which has too long been neglected.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.

GENERAL ROBERTS' SITUATION AT SHERPUR AND CABUL.

His First Move Will be to Eject the Enemy.

HEAVY FIRING IN THE DIRECTION OF CABUL.

LONDON, Dec. 24.

Colonel Norman telegraphs from Jagdulluk to-day as follows :—"Heavy firing has been heard in the direction of Cabul in the past fourty-eight hours. General Gough is close to Lataband. It is expected he will reach Cabul." Mail bags from Cabul have arrived at Jagdulluk, the bearers being harmlessly fired at en route. [Jagdulluk is about fifty miles from Cabul, eastward of the Khyber Pass.]

A Cabul telegram of the 22nd says the insurgents have plundered the principal bazaar in the city. It is stated large numbers are leaving with their booty.

A Lahore despatch says Gen. Roberts reports that his troops are suffering from overwork, cold, and exposure.

LONDON, Dec. 25.—A Bombay despatch dated Wednesday says :—Yesterday a small column of infantry cleared the close country between Shirpur and Cabul. This action has restored confidence in the city, where the most influential people are with us. Were it necessary to save them, Roberts says he would attack the enemy immediately. If no opportunity to strike a blow offers before Gough arrives Roberts will make an attack the day following his arrival.

A despatch from Cabul says the first move of Roberts will be to eject the enemy from the Bala Hissar and the city. This effected, the forces may be spared further offensive efforts during the winter. It is possible that the combination against us, which is not national, but feebly religious, will collapse from irresolution. The combination has within the last few days apparently lost much strength.

A correspondent at Lahore reports that a suspicious movement is noticed proceeding from the Afghanistan frontier. The Afghans, in small parties, are travelling to different parts in India. Every train from the interior takes from 20 to 40 Afghans. The authorities are on the alert and will watch the travellers. Another ominous circumstance is the fact that large numbers of Arabs are continually arriving at Bombay, and although they are stopped at the railway stations whenever there is any ground for suspicion, they make their way to the various cities of the interior by the by-roads. The matter is attracting the earnest attention of the Government.

A Lahore despatch, dated December 25th, announces that Gen. Gough has joined Gen. Roberts without opposition from the enemy.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 25.—Three thousand Ghilzais attacked Col. Norman at Jugdulluk on the afternoon of the 23rd, but were beaten off with loss and dispersed. Major Thackeray was badly wounded. One Sepoy was killed and one wounded.

The Murray Canal.

INTERVIEW WITH SIR CHARLES TUPPER ON THE SUBJECT.

What is Said in its Favor by its Advocates.

OTTAWA, Dec. 24.—This afternoon a deputation composed of Ald. Robertson, of Belleville, chairman ; Mr. Pearce, Warden of Hastings ; E. G. Sills, Reeve of Sidney ; D. R. Murphy, of Trenton ; J. N. Lee, Deputy-Reeve of Trenton ; Thos. Welsh, Reeve of Brighton ; Mr. McCuaig, M. P., Prince Edward ; and Mr. Keeler, M. P., were introduced to Sir Charles Tupper, Minister of Railways and Canals, at his office by Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, Minister of Customs. It was explained that the deputation was not somewhat of an informal nature, and was composed of gentlemen attending the Trent Valley Canal deputation, but especially interested in another scheme, viz., the construction of the Murray Canal across the isthmus which separates the western limits of the Bay of Quinte from Lake Ontario.

Mr. KEELER, M.P., explained to Sir Charles the topography of the district sought to be especially benefitted by the construction of the proposed Murray Canal. He said that the scheme dated originally from 1726, and that a long time ago lands, the proceeds from the sale of which were to be devoted to the construction of the canal, were set aside, and afterwards sold, and the proceeds held by the Government of Canada. The construction of the canal, besides facilitating transportation of the iron ore from the North Hastings district to the smelting works at Cleveland, would also offer a harbour of refuge on a large scale for vessels storm bound. It would render it unnecessary that vessels should round the stormy coast of Prince Edward county, which was more fatal to ships than any other portion of the lake shore. In the Bay of Quinte there was ample draught of water, the shallowest portions being ten feet in depth.

Hon. Mr. BOWELL remarked that there had been three surveys for the work made.

Sir CHAS. TUPPER enquired as to the estimated cost of giving eight feet of navigation across the isthmus.

Mr. KEELER replied that the estimates varied. Messrs. Baird, Lyons and Rowan had each made surveys. The former estimated the cost to be forty thousand pounds.

Sir CHAS. TUPPER—No lockages will be required ?

Mr KEELER replied in the negative, and said that neither would there be any rock-cutting if one of the surveyed routes were adopted. The cost of dredging was formerly estimated at thirty cents per square yard, but he had received a written offer from a responsible contractor to do it for fifteen cents. This would effect a saving of from seventy-five to one hundred thousand dollars on the estimates. The distance across the isthmus was three-quarters of a mile.

Mr. MCCUAIG, M.P., favored the scheme, and dilated on the impetus it would give to the development of the mining resources of Hastings if constructed. He advertred to the fact that a peculiar and valuable iron was hitherto brought all the way from Africa had been discovered in large quantities in Hastings, and an American firm had concluded negotiations to work the mine.

Mr. KEELER said the construction of the canal would save one hundred and fifty miles of lake navigation for vessels leaving Belleville and going west.

Mr. D. R. MURPHY, of Trenton, pointed out that the principal, with interest, realized from the sale of the lands originally appropriated for the construction of this canal, would more than suffice for the carrying out of the work.

Ald. ROBERTSON, of Belleville, directed attention more especially to the Dominion character of the work, and its importance to the lake shipping, and to the fact that it would reduce the insurance rates—to prove which point, a deputation of insurance companies' representatives would shortly wait on the Minister of Railways and Canals. He also dwelt on the military argument, and concluded by submitting to Sir Charles' consideration an able report which appeared in the Toronto Globe a few weeks ago on this very subject. While he did not agree with the Globe on political issues, yet its correspondent was sound on the Murray Canal question.

Hon. Mr. BOWELL said there was one redeeming feature about The Globe's report on the Murray Canal scheme, viz., that it contained a good attack upon Sir Charles and himself. (Laughter.)

Sir CHARLES TUPPER said he entertained no difficulty on the score of the works being of a local character. Should the Government undertake its construction it would be a harbour of refuge on a large scale, and such works were invariable undertaken by the Government. He promised to carefully consider the matter.

Mr. SILLS and Mr. PEARCE both spoke in favor of the scheme, and the importance of its early adoption.

The deputation then withdrew.

A FEARFUL LEAP.—A respectable looking man, supposed to be D. A. Sikes, of Chautauqua Co. N. Y., leaped from the suspension bridge, Niagara Falls, on the 24th inst. His body struck the river and sunk, arose to the surface almost instantly, and face upward floated lifeless down the stream. Before the boats could be manned, the body had floated into the rapids and was lost.

A POLAR WAVE.—A polar wave of intense severity passed over the Red River valley on the 24th inst, and on the Pacific slope. The harbor of Victoria, Vancouver Island, was frozen over, and navigation on the Upper Columbia river was suspended. In portions of California fruit sustained great damage. At St. Vincent, Minn, near the British lines, the spirit thermometer stood 58 degrees below zero; at Crookston, 56 below; at Grand Forks, 56; at Fargo, 40 below. Extreme snow storm prevailed along the line of the North Pacific, and trains were much delayed by drifts. In Utah, the cold has been unprecedented. Several people were frozen to death.

From the steady, firm and regular beat of the Heart, replacing interrupted and feeble action, that organ is demonstrated in a variety of cases, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is known to exert a powerful tonic effect on the muscles of the Heart.

C. E. Kyle, of Uxbridge, writes October 3rd, 1870, and says :—"I certify to the excellent qualities of ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM as a remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. I know it to be all it is recommended to be."

DIRECTIONS FOR COLIC IN HORSES.—Contents of small bottle Pain-Killer in quart bottle of warm water ; add sugar to sweeten with molasses, shake well until all mixed, and drench well. Give about half at once, then balance in ten or fifteen minutes if the first dose is not sufficient. This will be found a never-failing remedy.

THE USES TO WHICH MURRAY & LANman's Florida Water is put may, without exaggeration, be said to be universal. In refined and cultivated society it is recognized as the most refreshing and agreeable of perfumes for the handkerchief, the toilet and the bath.

GEORGETOWN, DEMERARA, JANUARY 17, 1873. Gentlemen :—I suffered for eight months with palpitation so that I could not do anything for myself. I called in Dr. Forte, and he recommended me to try BRISTOL'S SARSAPARILLA AND PILLS, and, after using them four weeks, I was relieved of the trouble.—WILLIAM WILSON.

Card of Thanks.

THE Rev. Dr. Clarke wishes hereby to express his cordial thanks to the congregation of Christ and St. George's Church parish for the liberal and kind expressions of good will, as manifested on Christmas day ; and to the Choir for their superior and tasteful rendering of the choral part of the service ; and also to the ladies and gentlemen who so cheerfully aided in decorating the church for Xmas tide.

Daily Intelligencer.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 24.

City and Vicinity.

SKATING.—The Lorne rink was opened for the season yesterday, and numbers of skaters enjoyed themselves in the practice of their favorite winter amusement.

GRIS ELEVATOR.—Mr. H. M. Foulds intends to erect at Hastings this winter a grain elevator having a capacity of 60,000 bushels.

COLD WAVE.—Another cold wave has rolled over the country, which though not severe as that of Sunday last, has yet been keen enough.

POLICE COURT.—The only business in court this morning was the hearing of half a dozen cases under the Snow By-law. A fine of $1 and costs was imposed in each case.

NEW ORGAN.—The new organ for St. Thomas' church, which has been procured from Messrs. Warren, of Toronto, has been placed in position in the church.

WOOD.—The principla article offered for sale on the market to-day was cord-wood. The amount received by the local railways having been considerable, the price has been reduced in consequence, and the price ranges from $2 to $2.50 per cord for soft and mixed wood, to $3 to $3.50 for hard wood, according to quality.

COMING AND GOING.—The familiar faces of numerous "Belleville boys" who are now resident in other places, and are home for the holidays, were observable on the streets yesterday. Numbers of dwellers here whose parents reside elsewhere were at the same time missing They also were off for a holiday gathering at their homes.

CHRISTMAS IN THE CITY.—The Christmas holiday passed over quietly as usual in the city. Clear but cold weather encouraged walking and driving, and both were indulged in to a large extent, the streets presenting quite an animated appearance. There were services in several of the churches, but the congregations were not generally large. The holiday was well kept, their being but few persons at work.

O. Y. B.—White lodge No. 68 of Tweed O. Y. B. met on its usual night, namely the 2nd Wednesday in December for election of officers, and the following were duly installed for the year 1880 :—Geo. S. Wilson, W. M.; Nelson Beatty, D. M.; E. B. Huyck, Sec.; S. Countryman Treas.; G. W. Detlor, Chap.; H. Brown, D. of C.; T. Dyre and W. Beatty, Tylers. Committee —John Houston, Foroman of Com., Geo. Brown, J. McGowan, J. Way, and J. Elliot.

FROZEN.—The Madoc Review says:—"On Sunday morning last a man named Hugh Gribbin, whose home we are informed is in Tyendinaga, but has been at work mining for some time, was found lying on the road leading to a place known as "The Farm," in Huntingdon. He was carried to the place in question, and on examination found to have both feet and hands badly frozen. He was removed to his home on Monday. Dr. Sutton, who attended him while here, informs us that he is likely to lose one if not both feet. It is supposed he was under the influence of liquor, and while in that condition he was overcome by the extreme cold which prevailed at that time."

BANGOR, WICKLOW AND MCCLURE.—We are informed that Mr. Charles McDavitt has been re-elected by acclamation as Reeve of this municipality.

BARLEY AT OSWEGO.—It appears that the receipts at Oswego of barley from Canada have amounted to 3,834,000 bushels in the present year against 2,844,000 last year; against 3,915,000 in 1877 and 3,014,000 in 1876.

OPENING.—Although the skating rink is now open for the select holders, it has not yet been opened to the public generally. A formal opening will take place on Monday night, when the Oddfellows' band will be in attendance.

MUNICIPAL.—The contest for municipal honors progresses actively, and so far as the Mayoralty is concerned, most satisfactory reports of Mr. Hambly's prospects reach us. The various candidates for the position of Alderman are working like beavers, and a lively contest in each Ward seems probable. Ketcheson Ward has six candidates, Coleman five, Murney five or six, Samson and Foster four each, and Bleecker and Baldwin are well supplied. The best of good feeling prevails, as every one of the candidates expresses himself as certain that he will be elected. This faith in the good will of the electors cannot, however, be realized in every case.

THE MADOC FIRE.—The Review gives the following particulars as to the losses and insurance incurred in the destruction by fire of Messrs. Wood & Ross' grain warehouse at Madoc ;—"The building and fitting up, we are informed, cost from $1,500 to $1,800, on which there was an insurance of $800 in the London and Lancashire Company. The losses on grain, as nearly as we can learn, are about as follows :—J. D. Breeze, $1,000; S. Rollins, $1,000; A. F. Wood, $3,000 to $3,500; on which there was an insurance of $2,000 in the British and Mercantile Insurance Company; Wm. West grain stored, $225; Frank Trotter, $25. We understand that the owners are about to make arrangements for the rebuilding of the warehouse at an early date." We regret to learn that Mr. Robert Breakell the warehouseman, was severely burned about the head and neck whilst trying to extinguish the fire.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

GRAVESEND, Dec. 26.—An almost continuous fog has prevailed on the Thames river during eighteen days past, the consequence being that a fleet of inward bound ships are detained. On Wednesday night the fog cleared for a few hours and some vessels got away, but eighteen still remain, among which is the British steamer Hooper from Boston, Nov. 27th, which has been anchored here since her arrival on the 10th inst.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—A Paris despatch to the Times says if President Grevy objects to De Freycinet's cabinet or programme, his only alterative is to summon Jules Simon, and to discolve the Chamber of deputies.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—The Dempsey family who were evicted at Balls, Ireland, on the 12th inst., have been reinstated to their former home, the rent having been paid by subscription.

The cotton spinners at Ashton under Lyne, have demanded 5 per cent. advance in wages.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—A despatch from Lahore to the Standard says the 5th infantry and 3d cavalry regiments are moving from India to Peshawur to form a new division there.

A St. Petersburg despatch to the Daily News says that the statement that the Winter Palace is illuminated all night by electric light is unfounded.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 26.—A Musselman priest has been sentenced to death for assisting to translate the Bible into the Turkish language. Sir Austin Layard, the British Ambassador has demanded the priest's release and it is believed that Germany will support the demand.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—Advices from Valparaiso to the 3rd inst. are as follows :—The port of Iquique, Peru, has been opened to commerce, the only restriction being in respect of arms and ammunition. The President of Peru is marching with a force upon Lima, expecting the Chilians to attack Callao, its capital. It is reported that the Belivians have sacked the town of Tacna, Peru, and threatened Arica, in the same republic.

TEHERAN, Dec. 26.—It is stated that the Shah of Persia intends undertaking a pilgrimage to Meshed next spring, accompanied by 10,000 troops.

ALBANY, Dec. 26.—Geo. W. Bull of the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser who was injured in the Grand Central depot, N. Y., on Monday evening, died this morning at the Kanmore hotel.

WARREN, Me., Dec. 26.—W. D. Ball's farm house and barn were burned last evening owing to a defective chimney.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Arrived, the Herder from Hamburg and the Ethiopa from Glasgow.

BRUNSWICK, Me., Dec. 26th.—The Dunlop block, owned by the Dennison manufacturing Co., Boston, and partly occupied by them for the manufacture of paper boxes, was burned this morning. 150 hands are thrown out of employment. The lower story was occupied by B. C. Dennison, fancy goods. Two small buildings adjoining were also burned. Total loss estimated at $30,000 to $40,000.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 26.—Very meagre reports have been received here that the passenger train on the Chicago and Alton road, which left here last night for Kansas City, ran off the track between Kane and Berden stations sometime last night, and that two passengers were killed, several badly injured, two coaches burned and the train generally wrecked. The accident was caused by a broken rail. Particulars are expected shortly.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Arrived the Algeria from Liverpool, and Patara from Newport.

QUEENSTOWN, Dec. 26.—Arrived the Bothnia and Nevada.

—The electric light has been found a useful signal in surveying. In recent work of triangulation in Algeria it is stated that the light was seen at a distance of 164 miles.

GREAT EXCITEMENT.

FALL IN GAS STOCKS.

BRADFORD, Pa., Dec. 26.—The Lacy case was decided yesterday. The Court awarded custody of the child to Harry Lacy the father, who took the early train for New York.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 26.—Christmas eve was the warmest ever known in Georgia. There were few fires in the night, and persons walking in the streets perspired freely. Yesterday it turned bitter cold. More money was spent than during any holiday since the war.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—The Herald's Bangor special, speaking of the interference by citizens yesterday with the execution of the Governor's orders for the removal of the arms and amunition from the state arsenal, says the scene was immediately in front of the office of the Whig, of which Bontelle, the most violent of the Republican comedors, is editor. The reins of the foremost horses were seized and the drivers were commanded to halt. The shouting and scuffling which occurred drew fresh accessions of numbers, until the streets for rods around were black with the surging mass of men.

The excitement, which had hitherto been of a subdued nature, dissipated like the ardor of a military host, now threatened to pass all bounds of civic decorum. Never was there a coincidence of conditions which together seemed more likely to bring forth riot and death. The party of the Governor were probably at a disadvantage as to force and they therefore prudently refrained from attempting to make their way to the depot. They vainly however, called upon the rioters to representations and orders of the executive, who desired to do nothing contrary to the laws. The excited populace was addressed by Editor Bontelle, he said:—"It is a strange coincidence that on this Merry Christmas day while we are trying to enjoy ourselves with our families the Democrats should be counted in, Gov. Joe Smith should be in the City, and that on the same day loads of guns and ammunition should be attempted to be hauled through our peaceful streets. Gentlemen this is a serious matter. I counsel moderation."

The horses had been unhitched from the ammunition waggons by a crowd, but on determination to return the arms to the Arsenal being known they were surrendered to the teamsters. Col. White thinks that the State government will eventually secure the desired arms. The Arsenal in Bangor is the only one in the state.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Col. MacDaniel, a veteran turfman, who has been seriously ill, is now reported to be out of danger.

Alice Smith, a young variety actress, while walking home yesterday morning was accosted by her husband, Chas. Smith. The pair had separated, and Smith demanded his wife should come with him. On her refusal he shot her in the head and escaped. The wounds are not considered dangerous.

Police Superintendent Walling says he feels certain that the ticket in the Louisiana lattery to draw the $100,000 prize at last drawing, was among those seized at the recent arrest of lottery dealers, and the winning ticket is now in the city's possession. He says if this is true the city would never claim the prize.

A preconcerted plan for an attempt at escape by six prisoners confined in the Ludlow Street gaol for passing counterfeit money, was discovered yesterday. An iron bar across one of the windows was found almost sawn through, the filings removed and the opening filled with putty and dirt. Pennett, one of the counterfeiters, on Wednesday night behaved boisterously and defied the keepers to remove him to the cells in which the prisoners were usually placed for the violation of the rules. The window from which escape was intended and where the bar was found cut, is accessible from these cells, and it is now believed that his action was part of the pre-arranged plan.

On Wednesday occurred the first public sale of gas stocks in this city since the publication of Edison's recent invention. Fifty shares of the Manhattan Gas Company's stock sold at 138. Two weeks ago the same stock brought 143. The New York Gas Company's stock can be bought at 70 ; it sold for 78 on Monday. Mutual is offered at 90 ; it brought 65 a year ago. The principal cause of the heavy decline is said to be a war between the Companies, which has reduced the price of gas in many cases below the cost of production. It is stated that many large manufacturing firms and printing establishments in this city pay only 75 cents per 1,000 ft. The Mutual Company contemplates a reduction in its capital of from 3 to 5 millions, preparatory, it is said, to a general consolidation of all the city gas Companies. which has been projected for mutual protection.

For it is the remedy that is causing so much excitement by its many wonderful cures, curing thousands of hopeless cases. Over one million bottles of DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY have been used within the last year, and have given perfect satisfaction in every instance. We can unhesitatingly say that this is really the only sure cure for throat and lung affections, and can cheerfully recommend it to all. Call and get a trial bottle free of charge, or a regular size for $1.00. James Clarke & Co., Belleville.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a receipt that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City. 1y

SANFORD'S
RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1878, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of sufferings I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

FELLOW'S SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITES COMP. FELLOWS

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that there is genuine but the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James T. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anæmia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, Co.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epelcptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.
JAMES L. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine. I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. R. ROBERTSON.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.
JAMES L. FELLOWS, ESQ.,

SIR,—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,

LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $3 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Age on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Fee.	Death of Memb'r

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach, and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anæmia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS.—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.

Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

December 19th, 1878.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and I grew worse in the winter. I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; I was very emaciated, night and morning coughs, night sweats, and a terrible pain and extreme tenderness of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was a object of pity all over Toronto. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pain and tenderness disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke about for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

Jan. 20th, 1879. Very truly yours,

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 24, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

DONT GIVE UP.

Bear up firmly in your trouble,
Its unmanly to complain,
Tax more sturdily every muscle,
Hold, as sacred, all your gain.

Have more faith in your own labor,
Make the brain work for the hand,
Lean not on the best of neighbors,
Self-reliant—be a man.

Build up firm from your commencement,
Like the insect in the sea,
Every day make some advancement
Like the ever-growing tree.

Take no thought of evil thinking,
Frees on, hope on, never fear ;
Scorn the fearful and the shrinking,
Let the world bring up the rear.

Death will strike the unprotected,
Laugh at all such foolish fears,
But a life that is well-protected
Knows no death, nor childish fears.

If you gain not all you hoped for,
If you fail you are not slain ;
We will profit by the good endeavor,
Bid you hope and try again.

Restraints of God's Law.

No doubt the law restrains us, but all chains are not fetters, and the walls the gloomy precincts of a gaol. It is a blessed chain by which the ship, now buried in the trough and now riding on the top of the sea, rides at anchor and outlives the storm. The confidence that would give worlds to break his chain, but the sailor trembles lest his should snap, and when the grey morning breaks upon the wild lee shore, all strewn with wrecks and corpses, he blesses God for the good iron that stood the strain. He has paid no penny to count the iron wall, to curse the man that built it, and envy the little bird that, perched upon its summit, sings merrily, and flies away on wings of freedom. But were you travelling some Alpine pass, where the narrow road hung over a frightful gorge, it is with other eyes you would look on the wall that restrains you from a false step from backing into the gulf below. Such are the restraints God's law imposes—no other. It is a fence from evil—nothing else. It challenges the world to put its finger on any one of those ten commandments, which is not meant and calculated to keep us from harming ourselves or hurting others.—Dr. Guthrie.

Strengthening Hands.

"Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees."—Isa. xxxv, 3.

"He that is not with Me is against Me ; and he that gathereth not with Me scatter-eth." So it is not enough merely to hinder ; we must help ; for not helping generally amounts to hindering. Perhaps we tried yesterday not to be hinderers ; to-day let us go on to completeness, and try to be helpers.

"Strengthen ye the weak hands." Plenty of these around us ; for where is one real worker who does not feel his weakness, even in very proportion to what success he has in his strength ? It does not at least follow that those who are altogether much stronger than ourselves are not perhaps realising their weakness much more. We "should not think of such a thing" as aiming to strengthen their hands and so very much mutual ministry is left undone. A little child may strengthen the hands of a giant and veteran in the faith, and it is just the giants and veterans who do not say to the feeble members, "I have no need of you."

"David sent to comfort Hanun by the hand of his servants." St. Paul received the comfort of God by the coming of Titus, his "own son" in the faith ; and he seems to have had a great deal of both comfort and joy (which certainly are most strengthening), at second hand, by the "fervent mind toward" him of the Corinthians, so that "exceeding the more joyed we."

Again, those very near us often need strengthening ; are we right if they have practically to look farther for the strengthening which it might be ours to give ? There may be a spiritual want, only of providing especially for those of our own house.

Again, are there not sometimes such very "weak hands," that we almost get tired of trying to strengthen them, and feel inclined to think it no use dealing with such hopeless feebleness ? What if our master did this to us ?

How far shall we set about it ? First by prayer, as Aaron and Hur held up the hands of Moses. "Helping together by prayer." This reaches all. Who knows how much of the weakness of hands, weariness or even annoys us, may be laid at our door because we talked about it instead of praying about strain. Very many pairs of eyes occur to us now, then take those names at once to the Mighty One, and ask Him this morning to strengthen those weak hands, and confirm those feeble knees.

Secondly, by personal contact. I suppose we never came in contact with one who is really strong in the Lord without being strengthened, whether we feel it or not. But we should not be content with the unconscious influence which it is our singular privilege to radiate. "Jonathan arose, and went to David in the wood, and strengthened his hand in God." Arising always implies a little effort. Then make it ! What are our orders ? "Comfort ye, comfort ye My people, saith your God." How are we to do it ? Speak ye to the heart of Jerusalem. What comes from the heart goes to the heart. "Speak !" don't hint and beat about the bush. When the arrow is feathered with love and weighted with wisdom, it must fly straight. What are we to say ? "Say. . . Be strong, fear not ; be bold, your God will for he would say in a moment where the passage was to be found. On one occasion Mr. Hall had prepared a sermon on the uncertainty of life and the nearness of death, associating the subject with the words "In the midst of life we are in death ;" but while turning over the Bible in the vestry, and unable to find them there, he said—

"Mr. James, I cannot find the text; where is it ?"

"If you will tell me, Mr. Hall, the words of it, I will try and help you."

"Why, sir, that wonderful passage. 'In the midst of life we are in death.'"

"Do you think, sir, that passage, fine and striking as it unquestionably is, is in the Bible ?"

"Of course I do, Mr. James. It is my text, and must, therefore, be in the Bible, sir"

"I don't see that, Mr. Hall. You may have been thinking of a topic to which those words are suited ; but they are not in the Bible, sir ; they are in the prayer book."

"Whatever am I to do, sir ? That is my text, sir, and you know I cannot preach without a text."

"There are plenty of passages in the Bible, Mr. Hall, which express the sentiment of those words with far greater distinctness and force. What think you of David's language to Jonathan—'There is but a step between me and death ?'"

Gambling.

One may sometimes feel like intruding advice upon young men and young women who have to make the best of their surplus earnings. They are engulfed by lotteries and money producing schemes without number. Their inexperience exposes them to deceptions ; the sharper may handle them to their ruin. Who will volunteer to warn them not to be deceived by ungrounded expectations ? What more friendly service can be rendered than to reiterate the old maxims that are the basis of all sound business prosperity, but which are apt to be forgotten in the rush and flurry of these times. The gradual growth of moderate savings of many years may place one in a condition of nobler independence than can be reached by a magic touch of some spring of fortune, or by having to do with any of the aids of financial jugglery. Too slow an advance, does say some, but better this than break-neck speed, possibly on the way to pauperism.

No Brains.

It is somewhere related that a poor soldier, having had his skull fractured, was told by the doctor that his brains were visible. "Do write and tell father of it," said he, "for he always said I had no brains." How many fathers and mothers tell their children this, and how often does such a remark contribute not a little to prevent any development of the brain ? A grown person tells a child he is brainless, foolish, or a blockhead, or that he is deficient in some mental or bodily faculty, and in nine cases out of ten the statement is believed ; the thought that it may be partially so acts as an obstacle to progress the confidence and energies of that child. Let any person look to childhood's days, and he can doubtless recall many vexed and oppressions which had such a discouraging influence over him as to tell upon his whole course of future life. I know a very ambitious boy, who, at the age of ten years, had become so depressed with faultfinding and reproof, and daily mingled with encouraging words, that at an early age he longed for death to take him out of the world, in which he conceived he had no ability to rise. But while all this appeared so dark around him, and he had so often been told of his faults and deficiences that he seemed the dullest and worst of boys, and while none of his good qualities and capabilities had been mentioned, and he believed he had none, a single word of praise and appreciation, carelessly dropped in his hearing, altered his whole course of thought. We have often heard him say, "that word saved me." The moment he thought he could do well he resolved that he would ; and he has done well. Parents, these are important considerations.

By the rules of justice no man ought to be ridiculed for any imperfection, who does not set up for eminent sufficiency in that way wherein he is defective.

Good Joke on a Great Preacher.

Occasionally Robert Hall would fix on some passage without taking the precaution of ascertaining its place in the Bible. If, however, his brother-in-law, Mr. James, a man of a jocosely termed "a living Concordance," happened to be on hand, no difficulty arose, for he would say in a moment where the passage was to be found. On one occasion Mr. Hall had prepared a sermon on the uncertainty of life and the nearness of death, associating the subject with the words "In the midst of life we are in death ;" but while turning over the Bible in the vestry, and unable to find them there, he said—

"Mr. James, I cannot find the text; where is it ?"

"If you will tell me, Mr. Hall, the words of it, I will try and help you."

"Why, sir, that wonderful passage. 'In the midst of life we are in death.'"

"Do you think, sir, that passage, fine and striking as it unquestionably is, is in the Bible ?"

"Of course I do, Mr. James. It is my text, and must, therefore, be in the Bible, sir"

"I don't see that, Mr. Hall. You may have been thinking of a topic to which those words are suited ; but they are not in the Bible, sir ; they are in the prayer book."

"Whatever am I to do, sir ? That is my text, sir, and you know I cannot preach without a text."

"There are plenty of passages in the Bible, Mr. Hall, which express the sentiment of those words with far greater distinctness and force. What think you of David's language to Jonathan—'There is but a step between me and death ?'"

A Touching Story.

I looked at the boy, whose years numbered fourteen or fifteen, and saw in the white face, hollow cheeks and unnaturally bright eye, the unmistakable mark of that dread disease which places its victims beyond all hope—consumption. On the table lay an old Bible, its worn pages lying open where the mother had finished reading. The boy's mind was wandering. His voice was too weak to cough and the accumulation in his throat could not be removed. "Shine yer boots—shine 'em up for a nickel—morning paper, sir ?" came in feeble accents from the pillow. "Paper, sir ? Morning paper ! All about the——" And the sufferer made a effort to clear his throat, which occasioned something like a death rattle. The mother was on her knees at the lounge sobbing, and Jack, her other son, who had brought me to the room, was by her side crying. I lifted the wasted frame and moistened the poor boy's parched lips and tongue with water from the cracked pitcher that stood on the window sill. He felt the cool hand on his brow and his mind came back to him. "Oh, Jack, I'm so glad you have come home. I shan't sell any more papers or black any more boots, Jack ; but you'll be somebody, won't you, and sumthin' better'n newspapers and boots, Jack, and I know where I'm goin'. Give my bit to Tom Jones. I owe him twenty cents. Bring all your money home to mother, Jack. Keep my badge bright, Jack. I wonder if I'll be 'papers' or 'boots' up there ? Good-bye, mother ; good-bye, Jack. See em shine, Morning—.' Jim, the newsboy, was dead. Detroit Free Press.

Weighing.

The Charlestonian says that religion cannot be measured, weighed or counted :—

If men will persist in measuring their religious work, it is unfortunate that they can formulate their measurings only by figures ; for the religious life is not to be gauged by figures. It is a hidden life. But when men come to measuring it in these matters, they must lay hold of something to which they can apply their figures. From this it arises that the receipts of money are more often spoken of in church matters than is anything else. It is true that baptism and communicants and marriages and funerals are all counted, with more or less of accuracy. But the most commonly recurring statement is as to the amount of money received at this or that time, in this or that place, to be used in the Church's work. Hence comes an unavoidable impression that the church's great object is the raising of money. She seems to be the most worldly of corporations, when, in truth, she is, by her divine mission, the most unworldly. This is disastrous to her influence and her success. She is really the divinely-appointed bestower of untold blessings. She seems to be the perpetual seeker of money.

Fidelity to God.

It is only by fidelity in little things that a true and constant love to God can be distinguished from a passing fervor of spirit. To be silent, to suffer, to pay when we cannot act, is acceptable to God. A disappointment, a contradiction, a harsh word received as in his presence, is worth more than a long prayer. Ye who complain so much of what others make you suffer, do you think that you cause others no pain ?—Fenelon.

Speak to that Young Man.

BY PRESIDENT J. R. JAQUES, D.D.

The preacher's work reaches out toward infinity in all directions. In public and in private he is influencing character for time and eternity. No professional man has greater opportunities for varied usefulness than the minister. His throne of power is the pulpit, but when he stepped down from his throne he still carries with him wondrous power to bless or blight human souls that come under his influence. Destiny is often determined by seemingly trivial influences. An encouraging word may influence a young man and turn his steps from an aimless life toward a grand destiny. Happy is the minister who knows his opportunity to speak the wise word that may yet yield a harvest of immortal wealth. Speak to that young man. He knows not, or remembers not, that he is wanted for some post of duty. There are multitudes about us who are spending their precious strength in a loitering aimless life, while they might climb the heights of sublime success. All they need is to be started into a nobler aspiration by the fitting word fitly spoken. Many a youth with slumbering aspiration is but waiting for the encouraging word to rouse him to effort worthy of his high possibilities. Many of earth's most illustrious benefactors owe the beginning of their upward career to the kind word of a friend. Few ever start in the race for high achievement without this stimulus. The New York Christian Advocate, a few weeks ago, called attention to a "storm of honors" falling on a certain Methodist minister. Within the space of one brief moon he was made D.D., LL.D., and President of a University by leading Universities in three different States. But what has this to do with the subject under discussion ? Much, every way. More than twenty years ago the writer of this article was pastor of a church in a city where among his parishioners, he found a young man whose budding genius though not seen by all, was seen by his pastor. That lad, was encouraged by his pastor, and his parents earnestly exhorted to send him to college. That young man is now the honored President of a leading Methodist Episcopal University, and is the man on whom, Dr. Fowler declares, an unprecedented "storm of honors" fell. His start in his upward career he willingly ascribes to the encouraging words of the writer, the pastor of his youth. Now, brother pastor, speak to that young man ! You may save a youth from death. You may do more than any by saving one large earnest soul start influences that may save thousands. All cannot occupy high office in church and state, but all need, have culture, and ought to have it, and must have it in order to rise to their highest possibilities. Speak to that young man !

Not for Ourselves Only.

That sort of religion which ignores the obligations of Christian philanthropy, and shuts itself up in a cloister to "count its beads and patter prayers," is no longer regarded as of much value to the world, and yet there is a modern pietism, the offspring and relic of monasticism, which is so constantly pre-occupied with inward experiences as to forget the dying need of others. Many good people give themselves up exclusively to this sort of introspective piety, watching their spiritual thermometer to discover their spiritual state, and thus become so self involved that they do not perceive the woe and the want all around them. The religion of Christ is not a set of holy emotions and affections which must be nursed and coddled by constant watching and indulgence of spiritual raptures. It is the religion of philanthropy, which goes out into the world where God's poor and needy are, and works to the full extent of our powers for the good of their bodies and souls

This, then, is the law of Christian philanthropthy, as announced by the Saviour and illustrated by His example, that those who are strong should bear the infirmities of the weak ; that those who have, should impart to those who need. And this law is binding upon all men, but especially upon those who profess to be Christians. If we are Christians, we are, by the very conditions of being such, philanthropists. — Western Christian Advocate.

BELLEVILLE, SATURDAY, DEC. 27.

The Mayoralty.

Mr. Patterson's friend in the press, which does not openly espouse that gentleman's cause—probably because it has received an intimation that its ill-omened advocacy would prove fatal to its candidate—endeavors in its issue of Tuesday last to prejudice Mr. Hambly in the eyes of those Reformers who are supporting him by asserting that the INTELLIGENCER advocates his election on political grounds. In order to effect this purpose, the organ, with an utter disregard for honesty which perhaps it has acquired from its frequently quoted contemporary the London Advertiser, travesties a sentence from this journal in such a manner as to grossly misrepresent its meaning. How this is done the following quotation will show :

> Our local contemporary says politics "is not involved in the choice of a Mayor, and ought not to be considered in this connection." Exactly. But, says the same oracle : "No blame could reasonably attach to a ratepayer for voting in support of his political friend." Funny doctrine! Having solved this metaphysical problem to its own satisfaction the organ advises the ratepayers of Belleville to vote for Mr. Hambly, for Mayor, and make "a wise selection for the Council." Now, will he just make that "wise selection" himself, and let us see how much politics has to do with it?

What the INTELLIGENCER really did say was this :

> Politics is not involved in such a choice, and ought not to be considered in this connection; further than that, when candidates of equal ability and different politics oppose each other, no blame could reasonably attach to a ratepayer for voting in support of his political friend.

Thus, it will be seen that by the omission of the words which we have placed in italics the sense of the context is perverted from its true intent, and a false meaning given to the sentence, in order to suit the dishonest purpose of the falsifier. Such tactics are contemptible, and success is not likely to attend a resort to them. Mr. Patterson, if he—as it is quite probable he did—asked for silence on the part of his would-be organ—has acted wisely. Its course in this matter is, however, quite in keeping with that which is said to be constantly pursued by some of his friends, who talk politics to Reformers and taboo anything of the kind when the votes of Conservatives are asked for.

The principle which we have above restated is a good one, and we unhesitatingly reaffirm it. Mr. Hambly is an abler financial man than is Mr. Patterson—his experience in the management of the finances of the municipality specially fits him for the greater portion of the duties which he will be called upon to discharge—therefore he is doubly entitled to the support of his political friends, and will, we trust, receive it.

In the case of Mr. Patterson, who is an esteemed citizen and has served long at the Council board, we have no objection to urge against his political friends supporting him, if they conscientiously consider that he is equally as well or better fitted than Mr. Hambly to fill the office of Mayor ; but we do object to a choice being made on purely party grounds. Our desire is to keep politics, aside from municipal affairs altogether; but if our opponents desire to fight the contest out on a political basis, their wish can be gratified to their hearts' content.

The organ's reference to our present Mayor is equally the product of political spleen. Mr. Robertson has during his term of office received credit from all parties for having creditably filled the position, and it is unjust to tax him now with having had any share in the unsatisfactory management of our finances. The majority of the Council have either supported measures which entailed expenses above our means to meet, or have neglected to do their duty in taking steps to secure a more economical administration of our affairs, even when pointed out to them by the press, and upon them the blame must rest. In the coming election we trust that the ratepayers will look more closely to their interests than heretofore, that they will return only such men as are pledged to economy, and that they will during the year see that such promises are put into effect. Ante-election declarations are generally of little value, but we are convinced that with greater attention to their affairs on the part of the electors, many existing abuses can be remedied and a less expensive system of municipal administration inaugurated and a consequent much needed reduction of our taxation effected.

As such a reform is, we believe, much more likely to be secured with Mr. Hambly as Mayor than with Mr. Patterson, we therefore urge all who can rise above mere political considerations to accord him their support.

SMELTING WORKS.—An exchange gives currency to the report that Mr. Robert McDougall, who has been shipping iron ore from Drummondville, Que., all summer, has at last decided to erect smelting works, and it is expected he will proceed in the spring with the erection of twenty or thirty tenement houses for the use of his employees, of whom he will have about fifty.

Visit of the Ministers.

We understand, if public business will permit, it is the intention of Sir CHARLES TUPPER and Hon. MACKENZIE BOWELL, after visiting the iron and gold mines of Madoc and Marmora on Tuesday, to extend their visit to Campbellford and Hastings, on Wednesday, and also to the Carrying Place, to inspect the locality of the proposed Murray Canal. Further particulars will be known on Monday.

Respecting the visit to Madoc and Marmora, we understand the programme to be as follows : The ministers will reach here by Tuesday morning's express, leave Belleville sharp at 8 o'clock, go direct to the iron mines in Madoc, thence to the gold mines at Marmora, lunch at the Gatling mine, return to Madoc in the evening where an address will be presented to Sir Samuel L. Tilley, and short addresses will be given by the Ministers, and return to Belleville in time for the express going east. Sir Leonard Tilley having an engagement to visit the Gananoque manufactories on Wednesday. As there will be only one fare for the double journey, we have no doubt a number of our citizens will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the mines in Madoc and Marmora.

Municipal Elections.

In view of the near approach of the municipal nominations, the following remarks of the Peterborough Review —which apply to other municipalities besides that respecting which they were written—are deserving of serious consideration by every ratepayer :

> Without wishing to be invidious, we may assume, without fear of contradiction, that some of those who have sat at the Council board for the present and previous years have hardly been such men as the ratepayers would have selected for trustees or managers in their own private affairs, and surely the standard should be at least as high, if not higher, for those who are to transact the business of the corporation, to control its expenditure, and to regulate its government. The duties of the Council are so important, not only for the present welfare, but also for the future progress of the town, as to call for the best available talent for their performance, and to make the position not below the acceptance of our foremost men. It is utterly unreasonable for men of standing in our community to complain, year after year, over the management of the finances and the general business of the town, when they not only scout the idea of serving in this capacity themselves, but are even too indolent or too careless to bring forward better qualified candidates.
> The trouble has been in Belleville that the better class of citizens either do not care as a rule to canvass personally, or cannot spare the time necessarily required for so arduous an undertaking, and that in consequence municipal affairs have been left to men who have the time at their disposal for electioneering purposes. This is a state of affairs much to be regretted, and what makes it more regrettable is that there is seemingly no cure for it. Personal canvassing cannot be put a stop to by legislative enactment, and it seems that the great majority of the people will not vote for a man who does not personally ask them for their votes. The exceptions to this rule are very few ; it is to be hoped that they will soon become more numerous, in which case the complexion of the various municipal bodies will be very materially improved.

The Municipal Nominations.

The nomination of candidates for Mayor and Aldermen will take place on Monday, in accordance with the provisions of the law. The Mayoralty nominations will be held at the City Hall, commencing at 10 a. m., and the Aldermanic nominations will take place in the various Wards at noon, at the following places :

FOSTER WARD.—At John Covert's shop, Church Street; John Covert, Deputy Returning Officer.

SAMSON WARD.—At the Police Court ; Francis Clarke, Deputy Returning Officer.

KETCHESON WARD.—In the office next east of Dr. Allen's office, Campbell Street ; George Adams, Deputy Returning Officer.

BALDWIN WARD.—At No. 2 engine shed; Richard Taylor, Deputy Returning Officer.

BLEECKER WARD.—At Mrs. Eaves' shop, Mill Street; John Northcott, Sen., Deputy Returning Officer.

COLEMAN WARD.—In D.C. Curtis' building, North Front Street; D. C. Curtis, Deputy Returning Officer.

MURNEY WARD.—In Spong's new store Bridge Street; Peter Maybee, Deputy Returning Officer.

The nomination of candidates for the office of School Trustee will be held on Wednesday, 31st inst., at the same places as the nomination for Aldermen.

KINGSTON ELECTION CASE.—Chief-Justice Wilson, in the Court of Common Pleas on the 26th, gave judgment in the Kingston election case, refusing the eccentric Dr. Stewart's application to be substituted as petitioner against both Mr. Gunn and Sir John Macdonald. Dr. Stewart announced his intention to appeal to the Supreme Court.

THE LENNOX DEFALCATION.—The Commission recently appointed by the Ontario Government to enquire into the finances of the united counties of Lennox and Addington, has reported that Mr. E. Hooper, member of the House of Commons for Lennox, who was treasurer of the county, has failed to account for various sums, amounting in the aggregate to about $25,000.

THE AFGHAN SITUATION.—A letter from Cabul asserts that Yakoob Khan not only sympathised in the attack on the British Embassy at Cabul, but actually signed Major Cavaguari's death warrant. The same authority corroborates the report of Russian gold being found in Cabul. The reported arrival of General Gough at Cabul on Christmas day turns out to be premature. Nothing has been heard of him since passing Lataband. Some mounted Ghazis ran amuck through the Brit'sh camp at Candahar yesterday. General Tytler was wounded and four of the fanatics were killed. It being a Mahomedan festival day the Ghazis were much excited.

—Thousands of people are likely to perish from cold and starvation in Roumania if prompt help is not given.

The Indian Trouble.

WAR FEARED.

TERRIBLE OUTRAGES.

DENVER, Col., Dec. 27.—A LesPinos special says that Ouray came up yesterday afternoon and the Commissioners went promptly into session. Upon the question being asked Ouray where the prisoners were, he affected great surprise and said he had not understood that the Commissioners wanted the Indians as prisoners of war and had not thought that any of them were to be tried, but he had thought all of them were to go to Washington to have a talk with the Great Father on the subject of their wrongs. Now inasmuch as the principal difficulty the Commissioners had been struggling against was to induce the Indians to surrender themselves up for trial, and as they had finally consented on condition that they should not be tried in Colorado, this affectation of misunderstanding of the wishes of the Commissioners was too much for even the patience of Hatch, and for the second time since the convening of the Commissioners he lost his temper, and for the first time he lost confidence in the final success of his efforts. Last night he expressed himself as though he didn't believe Ouray had power to enforce the surrender of the Utes. He has, I think, finally given up the hope that the Indians will be surrendered and is making preparations to start out.

Ouray was not reproached by him on a display of bad faith or direct lying, but was told by Hatch that he would start on the 28th for Alamosa and would remain one day at the station on the Cimmaron, twenty-five miles distant ; should he choose to deliver up the Indians there upon the 29th they would be received. Ouray then begsn to entertain the commission with stories of men who had been frozen and lost in the effort to get out at this season, a childish plan to deter Hatch from leaving. He evidently fears the consequences to his tribe should Hatch leave without the prisoners, and he evidently cannot persuade or force the Utes to deliver themselves up. The last five days given to Ouray makes a total of twenty-one days time given to the Utes.

I make no predictions as to the result this time. Hatch is determined the Utes will possibly decide to give themselves up, but whether they do or not Hatch will leave on Sunday, and if he leave without the prisoners there will be war. A full list of names of the twelve Utes who are to be tried at Fort Leavenworth it has been impossible to obtain from the Commissioners heretofore, and it has been equally impossible to ascertain when these twelve are to be tried for testimony of the Meekers as given, for the press convicts only a few of them of crime. This list is frequently referred to by the Commissioners and attaches in connection with certain Indians and always as "the star list." What this list is I cannot say positively, but from hints dropped from members of the commission and stray remarks made by them when they imagined reporters were not alert, I am confident the star list contains names of those Indians who committed a crime worse than murder or arson a—crime, which is spoken of only with bated breath and which has not yet been even hinted at by the newspapers.

It is well known that the story of the women as given to the public and their testimony made under oath differ widely, and the crimes of which they accuse the Indians in their sworn testimony would suffice to hang any man of whatever color, without the formality of a trial, in the twinkling of an eye. That this list contains the names of those Indians who are accused of this nameless crime toward defenceless women is not a matter of conclusion, but one which has been arrived at after careful consideration, and which will be fully supported when the trial of the miscreants occurs.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Francis Smith was killed at his woodyard, Jersey City, yesterday, by the bursting of a circular steam saw.

Assemblyman Talmage, who has been collecting information relative to taxes in arrears in Brooklyn, with a view to preparing a bill to be submitted to the Legislature, has discovered about $17,000,000 taxes in arrears. In a number of instances accumulated taxes amounted to twenty times the assessed value of property.

Elizabeth Keeley of Green St. was burned probably fatally last night, her clothing catching fire from a grate ; her two daughters were badly burned while trying to assist her.

The European steam ships which arrived last week made long passages on account of head gales, hence several vessels advertised to sail to-day have not received their cargoes. Only one passenger steamer, the Neckar, will leave this port to-day.

Martin Van Brocklin, ex-chief engineer of the Metropolitan elevated Railroad, Wm. J. McAlpine and Mr. Scott, engineers who are to superintend the construction of the inter Oceanic Railway from the Atlantic to Pacific at the isthmus of Tehuantepec, will sail to-day. With the exception of about 25 miles on the Pacific side, there will be no engineering difficulties to encounter. No tunneling will be required. It is expected that 3 years will pass before the entire road will be in operation. The labor will be mostly performed by negroes from Jamaica and New Orleans.

The arrest of Howard, chief manager of the Louisiana Lottery, creates a sensation. The last movement which denotes warfare between the managers of the Louisiana and Kentucky Lottery Co.'s is that Howard, who controls the printing offices in Delaware, where all lottery tickets of the two companies are printed, has given instructions to discontinue the printing of any tickets for the Kentucky Lottery. Arrests of the managers of these lottery frauds are rare occurrences, as petty agents have hitherto been the victims.

C. E. Kyle, of Uxbridge, writes October 3rd, 1870, and says :—"I certify to the excellent qualities of ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM as a remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. I know it to be all it is recommended to be."

DIRECTIONS FOR COLIC IN HORSES.—Contents of small bottle Pain-Killer in quart bottle, add pint warm or cold water, sweeten with molasses, shake well until all mixed, and drench well. Give about half at once, then balance in ten or fifteen minutes, if first dose is not sufficient. This will be found a never-failing remedy.

City and Vicinity

LATE.—The mail from the west was upwards of half an hour late to-day.

THE DEAF AND DUMB.—The pupils in this Institution, now number 236.

POLICE.—There were four tramps and one prisoner in the cells last night.

CITY COUNCIL.—A regular meeting of Council is appointed to be held on Monday night.

CATTLE PURCHASE.—Mr. Wm. Elliot, of Hungerford, purchased this morning from Messrs. J. & J. Nightingale of Prince Edward, a Durham bull calf 5½ months old weighing 600 lbs.

NEW YEAR'S EVE.—The Workingmen's Temperance Association will hold their annual reunion on New Year's eve. A programe of vocal and instrumental music, readings and recitations, will be presented.

Anticipate and prevent sickness with SANFORD'S JAMAICA GINGER.

BUSINESS.—A fair amount of business has been done in town during the holiday season so far. The roads being now in first class condition, farmers are bringing forward their produce more freely than for some time past.

ENTERTAINMENT.—Mr. Biggar entertained his Sunday School class last evening with a Christmas tree and a magic lantern exhibition in the basement of the Bridge Street Methodist Church. The entertainment was a treat to the little ones.

GRAND TRUNK RECEIPTS.—The return of traffic for the week ended December 20th, shows the total receipts for that period to be $200,133, as against $170,108 for the corresponding week of 1878. Increase, $30,080. Increase in the past 25 weeks, $371,577. Miles open, 1,271½.

SPECIAL TRAIN.—For the convenience of those who wish to accompany the Dominion Ministers on their visit to Madoc on Tuesday next, a special train will run on the North Hastings Railway, leaving here at 8 o'clock a. m., returning the same evening. The fare will be single fare for the double journey, which arrangement is a most liberal one, and will doubtless be largely taken advantage of.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.—This beautiful church edifice, which has been completely restored, will be re-opened for divine worship to-morrow. The services, which will be conducted by the Bishop of the Diocese, the Dean of Ontario, the Rev. A. H. Baldwin and other clergymen, will be held at 11 a. m., 3:30 p. m., and 7 p. m. The musical portion of the services will be under the direction of Prof. Henry Whish, of Hamilton, and the collections will be devoted to the restoration fund. On Monday evening a grand organ recital and sacred concert, under the direction of Prof. Whish, will be given, when the powers of the fine new organ will be made manifest.

CROWDED OUT.—A lengthy notice of the Christmas pantomime at the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb has been crowded out. It will appear on Monday.

MASONIC CONVERSAZIONE.—The Masons of this city will celebrate St John's day by a grand conversazione on Tuesday evening in the Masonic buildings. Previous events of this nature under the same auspices have been so successful that we have no doubt that under notice will be of the most enjoyable character.

HAY AND STRAW.—Large quantities of hay and straw are being purchased daily by Mr. Job Lingham, for the purpose of feeding the heavy consignments of cattle which the firm of which he is a member are shipping from Boston to England. Mr. Lingham has three presses in operation, the hay and straw being pressed here and forwarded by Grand Trunk to Boston. A car load was shipped yesterday.

ATHLETICS.—Thomas Lynch, of New York, claims the heavy weight championship of America, disputing the title of Ross and Daly thereto. He offers to compete with any man living for the general athletic championship of the world, naming certain feats—which, we may say, are not generally regarded as constituting heavy weight competitions, as they do not include stone putting or hammer throwing.

PRINCE EDWARD RAILWAY.—The Picton Gazette says:—"The barley shipments at Wellington have been discontinued until after the holidays, when they will be resumed. This week several car loads of peas have been shipped for Mr. Mathews. On Tuesday the first car load of wheat was shipped from the Picton station. The shipment of barley from this place will commence after the holidays. The passenger traffic shows no signs of abatement."

PHOTOGRAPHIC VIEWS.—We have received from Rev. Anselin Schuster, Pastor of the Bible Christian Church, Belleville, a photographic view of Luther's house at Frankfort on the Main, and the window out of which he preached, —also a view of "Rothschild's Birthplace and grave," at Frankfort on the Main. These views were taken by Messrs. Brown & Dean and have been copyrighted by the Rev. Mr. Schuster. They can be had for 25 cents each. The profits of the sale of the pictures are to be given to the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

CALENDARS FOR 1880. — Amongst the most useful calendars for 1880 we have seen thus far, is that issued by the Canada Life Assurance Company. It is in the shape of a pamphlet with a handsome illuminated cover, the inside comprising twelve leaves of thick blotting paper, one page being blank, the other containing the calendar for the month, while on the inside pages of the cover, is a great deal of information respecting the Company and its operations. Mr. T. Donnelly, Bridge Street, is the Company's agent for this district.

A CHANCE FOR THE CHAMPIONS.—John O'Neill, of Trenton, challenges either Ross or Daly to wrestle the three following holds, best three in five in each: catch-as-catch-can, Irish style, Scotch style and collar-and-elbow. The match to be for $50 a side and the championship, to take place in Purdy's Hall, Trenton, at any time to suit their convenience, and the winner to take the proceeds of the hall. Mr. O'Neill evidently means business, but he must surely know that a match for the championship could only be with the champion. Ross holds the title at present to the "Cook Championship," and a match with Daly will not include that emblem.

The Municipal Elections.

The following are the candidates for municipal office who have so far declared their intentions through our columns:

THE MAYORALTY—James H. Hambly and Reuben S. Patterson.

BALDWIN WARD—D. B. Robertson.

COLEMAN WARD—Robert Gordon.

MURNEY WARD—J. H. Simpson J. G. Vandusen, and David Holden.

KETCHESON WARD—Morgan Jellett, J. W. Johnson, Richard Costello, W. P. Niles, and D. E. Burdett, M. D.

An Irishman, who had been doing some work for a gentlemen, was given a small portion of whiskey. This he speedily swallowed. He then looked at the glass and said, "A yer honor tell me how they make thim glasses so nate?" The gentleman gave him the information how glass was blown. "Arrah, sure, thin," said Paddy, "he must have been mighty short i' the wind that blew that glass."

A woman who had buried four husbands was sadly contemplating their pictures. 'Your poor father is in heaven, I hope,' she said to her little five-year old. 'Which one, mamma!' inquired the little innocent. 'Why, your own dear father.' 'And are the others all burned up?' The mother didn't answer the conundrum.

The New Organ.

The new organ built by Messrs. S. R. Warren & Sons, of Toronto, for the St. Thomas' Church, is a very beautiful and powerful instrument, and will be a great ornament to the church.

The case, as far up as the impost moulding, is of oak. Above that the front and sides are composed of pipes symmetrically arranged, the large double open pipes being at the sides of the organ, while the bourdon pipes form a back ground for the illuminated metal pipes in front.

The specification of the new organ is as follows:

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

BANGOR, Me., Dec. 27. — Although the feeling is very intense, or hinary quiet prevailed on Friday and all business proceeded regularly. The best citizens express great indignation at the moving of arms through the streets on Christmas, but not the slightest tendency to disorder is manifested. The news of the clandestine removal of the rifles of the old town's company from the armory by fenionists last night caused much comment and comparison with the lack of any disposition by Republicans here to disturb the munitions at the arsenal or the armory.

Lieut-Colonel White, of this city, who succeeds to command the state militia by the resignation of Col. Mattocks, has issued circulars to different Col's expressing the hope that the present troubles will be peaceful ly settled, and asking reports of members arms, etc.

Petitions by several leading citizens, including some of the most prominent Democrats of this city, are to be forwarded to the Governor, urging the propriety of complying with Morrill's proposition for the reference of the questions involved to the Supreme Court.

At a meeting of the citizens' executive committee last evening, an address to the public was adopted, which states that if our Governor shall see fit to persist in this remarkable and alarming purpose of gathering munitions of war for use against the people, the responsibility therefor may well be left upon him and law abiding citizens. Bangor will do nothing by which they would incur any degree of responsibility for the deplorable consequences which may ensue from turning the capital of the State into an armed camp. We therefore feel assured there is no disposition on the part of the people to resist the execution of any order lawfully given by the Governor for the removal from our city of any property belonging to the State.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Arrived, the Queen from Liverpool.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Arrived out the Alatia and Adriatic.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A Paris despatch says Gambetta himself would not succeed at this moment, and with this Chamber informing a durable majority it is resolved on supporting his Cabinet.

Ex-Marshal Bazaine, convicted of treason in the surrender of Metz, who escaped from prison with the assistance of his wife and her cousin, has been refused permission to settle some family affairs in France.

PORTLAND, Dec. 27.—The principal Protestant clergymen of Portland have united in a petition to the Governor to ask the advice of the Supreme Court. Episcopal Bishop Neely is among the signers.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—In the walking match Hart turned his 500th mile shortly after 11 o'clock. Krohno accomplished the same distance in less than an hour later. Faber was 3rd, the negro, Pegram, 4th. It is probable that 8 contestants will make over 500 miles. Hart promises to beat Rowell's record of 530 miles.

After some 18,000 examinations Dr. Jeffries affirms that about one male in twenty-five is color blind to a greater or less degree. He finds the defect to be largely hereditary, although sometimes occasioned by disease or injury. In the former cases it is incurable, but in the latter, it may be only a temporary difficulty.

To convince various scientific skeptics in regard to certain events of Biblical narrative, Abbe Moigno, editor of Les Mondes, of Paris, proposed fitting out an archaeological expedition to search for the remains of the Egyptian cavalry buried in the Red Sea. His belief is that these remains can be found by digging for them, and that the action of the salt in which they are buried must have kept them in a good state of preservation.

The man who helps to circulate a piece of gossip is as bad as the one who originated it. To put your lips into a bar barrel and then go round shaking hands with everybody is what some people like to do.

RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH. No sooner did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed. It cleared my throat, it cleared my head, it cleared my mind. It operated on my system in a way that nothing ever before given me by doctors had done. How rapidly I improved under the influence of this wonderful medicine those who have known me for years can testify. And now, sirs, to make a long story short, I will say I would not exchange the good it has done me for the whole world and all it contains. My memory, which was nearly all gone, has returned again, and I could tell of afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith attest this on the Holy Bible. God bless the man that found out this remedy.

FUTURE.

If, in future, we should meet,
If, in passing down the street,
I should chance your face to see,
Would you smile again on me?

And if such should be our meeting,
Would you clasp my hand in greeting?
Would you kiss me, just once more,
As you kissed in days of yore?

If the years could blotted be
From your girlish memory,
If the sin and needless pain
Could repented be again,

If my tears could wash the stain,
There would naught of 'em remain—
If my life for you was given,
I should know so much of Heaven.

Therefore, if love lives like this,
Out of pain comes so much bliss;
Therefore, if love still must be,
Let it live for you and me.

Life is short, and life is sweet,
Tread it not beneath your feet;
Darling, as life's moments flee,
Cherish still your love for me.

If inconstant friends should fly,
If the hopes of youth should die,
We at last shall find above
Love is Heaven, and Heaven is love.

"Old Si."

HE DOES NOT WANT TO GO THROUGH TIME AND ETERNITY WITH DRUMMERS.

Old Si brought up the church notices and thereupon remarked.

"I'se gwine ter meetin' ter-morrow, sho! I don't know what time er 'skurshun tran's gwine ter flop offen de track an' switch me onter de down grade, an' I don't want ter go dar, ef hit's jess ter miss de kumpany ob some folks dat'll be dar!"

"Anybody specially, now?"

"Hit's mos'ly dese hyar kermushel trabellers—dese drummahs—dat I'se boun' ter shake somewhas 'twixt heah an' kingdum come, sartin!"

"They are very clever people, aren't they?"

"Well, I ain't 'quainted wid dem all, but ef dem dat I does kno' am fa'r samples, jess 'skuse me fum de ballunce. W'y, dey's de wust men on de rode, book agints bein' barr'd offen de track!"

"Why do you think so?"

"'Kase I'se had 'sperience wid dem. Dey comes round dar ter hotel, takes up mo' room dan er dead head edutur in er sleepin kyar, cusses de porters wid der moufs an' flings empty beer bottles arter dem wid der han's, hez two trunks er piece det weighs like dey wuz nailed ter do flo' an' clinched in de room down stars, an' den dey makes lub to every woman in de house fum de chambermades in de garret ter de gubnor's maiden aunt dat bangs de pianner in de parler!"

"They are pretty fast boys, I should judge."

"W'y yer jess order porter in er house er while whar dey comes! Dey 'pears ter be hired fer der mouts, an' two ob em kin talk er hotel full er people in fair week times into gallopin konsumption! Dey interferes wid de adfertizin' bizness ob de newspapers an' ter heah one ob dem talk yer' tink he wuz de whole 'shociated press an' had de monoperly ob de news ob de day! But I'se larnt wisdum an' when I sees er drummah comin' offen de trane I goes lame right den an' dar."

"Still they do a great deal of good in commerce."

"Jess so! But den I don't like ter see dyes hyar wholesale peddlers runnin' ober de kountry in dis style. I'd rudder see Sherman's army comin' agin dan ter see er convenshun of drummahs in dis town. Dey kin be shook one at er time, but mo' dan dat ar' moughty dangerus ter de good licker an' de fresh eggs in town, fer dey's pow'rful fond of boaf. An' I say agin I don't want ter go down yander in de 'furnal regions, 'kase ef I has ter go I don't want ter be pester'd all de time by dese drummahs tryin' ter sell me palm-leaf fans an' linen dustars?"

Kissing the Baby.

While Col. Allen was discussing national finances on the hotel piazza Col. Tom Crittenden quietly slid down off the platform and circulated among the crowd. He wore a delicate white duck suit, blue necktie and patent leather pumps, and was the cynosure of all female eyes on the premises. Col. Tom, with an eye to business, began ogling the babies.

"Oh, you sweet little darling," said Col. Tom, addressing a fuzzy, pop-eyed child that lolled lazily in its mother's arms under one of the trees; "how old is it, ma'am?"

"Four months, sir," said the fond mother.

"A little girl, eh?" said Col. Tom.

"No, a boy," replied the mother.

"Ah, yes, now that I come to look at it more closely, I detect the strong manly features of a boy," the Colonel hastened to say. "Please, may I kiss the little cherub?"

Col. Tom shut his eyes and exploded an osculatory sound on the fuzzy face, and the child put up a big lip and threatened to cry.

"He is such a beautiful child," murmured Col. Tom; "such eyes, such a head, such an expanse of forehead, such a mouth, such a wealth of complexion, such a sweet, tranquil expression."

"La, me; you don't really think so, do you?" simpered the flattered mother.

"I never saw a sweeter little cherub," said Col. Tom; "I believe I'll have to kiss him again."

Having gone through osculatory martyrdom, Col. Tom assumed a seraphic look—a look calculated to strike taffy to the most hardened feminine heart, and got right down to business.

"I'm a candidate for Governor," said he, "and nothing would give me greater joy than to rest assured that I had the support of the father of the sweet babe. Come, let me hold the little darling in my arms. I do think he is just the sweetest little angel I ever saw."

The flattered mother gave up the fuzzy baby with profuse apologies about its not being well dressed, etc.; hoping it would not trouble the gentleman, etc.; glad to know that he admired it so much, etc.

The fuzzy baby writhed and squirmed and grew red in the face, and wrinkled itself all up, and then lay calm and composed on Tom's strong right arm.

"The little precious," cried Col. Tom. "You'll tell his father how much I thought of his little cherub, won't you, ma'am? And you'll tell him I'm a candidate for Governor, eh, ma'am?"

The poor woman's face dropped, and big salt tears came into her eyes.

"Oh, sir," she cried, "you don't know what you ask. My poor husband died two months ago."

There was a far-off look in Col. Tom Crittenden's golden glinted eyes as he gently but firmly dumped the fuzzy baby on the bereaved woman's lap and walked straight back to the platform and replaced himself on a bench.

"What are the Wild Waves Saying?" is a question which has been forcing itself on public attention for a long time. We don't know what they're saying, but whatever it may be, it is doubtless a water spont.

A Coming Dramatist.

A man with an unshaven face and a meditative air climbed to the bar of the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday, and said to His Honor:—

"Look a here, I've got something on my mind that's botherin' me a heap, and I dropped in thinkin' as how you might help me out of it."

"All right. Let's hear it," said the Court good-naturedly.

"Supposin' I was a follow that cracked banks and broke open tills and knocked people on the head for their money—a regular out and out bad un, you know."

The Court in surprise viewed the speaker from head to foot.

"Oh, you needn't size me up," the man interupted; "a white linen tie may do service where a hemp bandage oughter be, and a striped ulster may cover a multitood o' sin. There's no tellin'. So supposin' I was a bad egg of extrar quality and a puttin' up a job to clean out a rich old file's house when I sees his darter and falls in love with her away up to the top of my hatband. Well, the gal kinder takes to me, and I'm a figgerin' on reformin' and winnin' her and gettin' the old man's tin. D'you see?"

"Quite clearly," said His Honor. "A very laudable purpose."

"You bet," the narrator complacently observed. "But there's a hitch in my happiness," he went on "for I finds out that the gal hankers after a lumtum sort of a feller with a four-in-hand which his father has give him when he went into bankruptcy for the fifth time, and the treacherous female is a-goin' to give me the go-by. See?"

The Court nodded affirmativeiy.

"I ain't done nothin' again the lor so far, eh?"

"No, there is nothing that you have mentioned that could be legally construed into a misdemeanor."

The man seemed quite relieved. "But I'm bound to get even with that team," he continued; "so one dark night I brings my pals around and we climbs up the fire escape and lays at the parlor winder when the young feller comes a lovin', and when he and the gal is together I bounces inter the room and gives it him right and left with a ten-inch bowie knife, and we takes all the jools we can get a hold of, and we set the house afire, and I carries off the gal."

"What do you mean?" cried His Honor, quite horror-stricken. "Be careful what you say, or—"

"Oh, don't worry," interrupted the other naively. "I don't play a card without lookin' at my hand. What I want tu know is what all them offences is worth. Let's figger. How muck for takin' the jools?"

"Five years at the least."

The man pondered for a moment.

"And the gal?" he then asked.

"A still heavier penalty."

More profound reflection.

"And a-settin' the house on fire?"

"Imprisonment for life."

"And a-knifin' the young feller?"

"Hanging, you fool. Are you a lunatic to come here to tell me this? Do you seriously mean to denounce yourself?"

"Denounce! Ha! ha! Why, Jedge, you're clean off the track. I was only supposin' all that. You see, I've been on the road with a theatrical combination, and I'm a thinkin' o' startin' in business meself and gettin up a dramar. See! But I'm a wery particklar man, and though the piece is a goin' to be a red-hot, blue-fire and blazes sensation, I want lots o' facts to bolster it up. I must have the lor in the play dead straight, so I jest dropped in to have a talk with you about it. Now, supposin'——"

But His Honor interrupted.

"My nerves can stand a pretty stiff," he said, "but if you put yourself into any more such violent, hypothetical positions I'm afraid the illusion will be so perfect that I'll have to lock you up anyway. So get out while you've time."

The meditative man looked at him reproachfully, but grabbed his hat and acted on the suggestion all the same.—New York Herald.

Wanted Something Better.

A stylish young lady entered a bookstore and bought a three cent stamp. She was about to stick it on a letter—a letter with a deep black border—when she paused.

"I think," she said, "I will take one of a deeper color. This don't seem to match the envelope."

"I beg your pardon," said the gentlemanly clerk.

"I said I wished a postage stamp of a deeper color—more cardinal in it. This light red stamp with the black border makes my letter look like a fright. What would people say if they saw it going through the post with colors that don't match?"

"Really, Miss, I am sorry, but I don't think we have stamps of any other color."

"Oh, dear! That's too bad. In the store I was in last week they had stamps of ever so many colors. Some real nice large blue ones, and they just matched the color of the envelopes splendidly. I suppose I shall have to use these horrid things, but I know every one who sees it will laugh."

And she sighed as she licked the stamp and pressed it on the letter.

An American contemporary publishes the successful paper for a prize essay on woman. It is this: "After man came woman: and she has been after him ever since."

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowauce for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the un, qualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Aneamia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.
GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practise prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the most delicate stomach; which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases.
Oct. 12, 1879. Yours respectfully, A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LINER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,
December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail, and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my lite was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime: and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.
Jan. 20th, 1879, Verp truly yours, H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878,
About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

Epeleptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully.

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Sold by all Druggists.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

We have already witnessed Charlie's introduction to his new society, and the kind and pleasant reception he experienced from Tobby and Myra. With Silas Morgan he did not fare so well, and if there had been no counteracting influence to his harsh brutality, Charlie's young life would have been miserable enough. His troubles began on the evening of the second day of their travels. They had halted some three hours before sunset, and, while Tobby and the two children were frolicking in the caravan, Morgan entered, and, sitting down on a box, called out—

'Come here, youngster ; I've got you to crick to-night.'

Charlie went towards him in blessed ignorance of the meaning of the operation of cricking, but he was soon painfully enlightened. Tobby could have told him what it meant if he had had opportunity, but he had none, and Charlie had to find it out from experience—the sternest but most effectual of all teachers.

Silas stripped the child quite naked, and began the process by taking hold of his right arm. This he twisted and violently doubled up, and twisted round in a way which made Charlie scream with pain and terror, and turn round imploringly to Tobby.

Tobby, however, was gone, and had taken Myra with him. Knowing the painful scene that was about to take place he drew the girl away from witnessing it.

Morgan never heeded the boy's cries and writhings, but went on bending and twisting limb after limb, and turning them in all directions, till the victim was in a very fever of pain and fear. This process of torture was continued for some time, until every limb had been manipulated and the body bent and re-bent by the great strong hands of the unfeeling savage. Then he brought from a cupboard a large bottle of some kind of oil, and, pouring some on his palm, he rubbed it well into all the child's joints, and made him leap and caper about till the poor fellow fainted with agony and exhaustion.

'There, that will do for a beginning,' said Morgan, as he carelessly lifted the unconscious form by the nape of the neck and dropped it on the couch, where he left it and went out for a stroll.

Tobby was on the watch at a little distance, and leaving Myra to pluck a handful of wild flowers, he went by himself into the caravan, and found Charlie lying in this sorry plight.

'The brute, the cruel, unfeeling monster, to torture the poor little thing like that !' murmured Tobby, as, with tears in his eyes, he strove to bring Charlie back to consciousness. 'He might have stopped at less for the first time till the joints were loosened. But it's just like him. He has no more feeling than a wheelbarrow.'

Here Charlie moaned, and opening his blue eyes, fixed them so pathetically on Tobby that the latter folded his arms as tenderly round him as a mother could have done, and soothed him with words of comfort and encouragement till the little wornout thing fell sound asleep, and Tobby, wrapping the blankets round him, went out in search of Silas to say unto him that he had would undertake Charlie's training as he had done that of Myra.

Morgan received the proposal with all readiness, and from that time Charlie's instruction was conducted by Tobby, who dealt in a more merciful manner, and ere long the child could twist his limbs about with little or no pain, turn somersaults, revolve like a wheel, stand on his head or feet on his hands with his legs in the air, and accomplish other common tumbling feats. As he advanced in this physical education he manifested a cleverness and aptitude very like that Myra had shown, and proud was he when he, too, could perform in public, and receive applause as she did.

In other respects Charlie improved immensely. A neat, becoming dress was substituted for his dirty rags, his skin was now daily, was no longer dun, but blooming and ruddy, and his fine curly hair was made as pretty and glossy as Myra's. The transformation was wonderful. The boy was now a most handsome and engaging little fellow, his eyes grew bright and sparkling with intelligence, a smartness was manifested in all his motions, and he fairly divided admiration with the pretty little Myra.

Tobby had now two to love, and two to be loved by, and his happiness and usefulness were correspondingly increased. Having succeeded so well with their professional education, he did not rest satisfied with that, but taught them as far as he was higher and better things. Their hours of leisure, which were many, he devoted to teaching them to read and write, and to imparting to them some knowledge of a secular and religious kind. Yes, Tobby Sprat was not without religion. Without religion ! Was not his conduct to these poor, helpless children a grand and noble religion in itself, and could it have sprung from anything but a pure and true Christian in his soul ? Oh, we should all be laboring under a great mistake if we supposed that a travelling mountebank such as Tobby was, could not be a Christian. Nay, true it is that this kind of life is not favorable to piety, and among those who follow it, characters like Tobby are the exception and not the rule. But they are to be found and Tobby was among the finest of them.

And very beautiful it was to see Tobby and the two children quit the caravan on a Sabbath morning, most neatly and becomingly dressed, and walk over the moor or common to the nearest church. There was Tobby limping along, with the pleasantest of smiles, Charlie holding one hand and Myra the other, and looks of affection passing betwixt all three. On entering the sacred pile they would be wonderingly stared at by the villagers, who probably on the previous day had seen them performing on the stage of the caravan, and never would have dreamt of seeing them at church. There they were, however, as serious and devout as the most serious and devout amongst them, and followed the service with quiet earnestness and intelligence—the large-printed prayer-book serving all three, and sometimes one, sometimes another, turning up, with no difficulty, the lessons for the day. It was, we say, a beautiful sight to eyes that watched and understood it. Shall we be far wrong in saying that a fairer was not to be seen at that or any other time in all merry England ?

A very different sort of picture was at these times presented elsewhere by Silas Morgan. Little chance of finding the huge, unlovely form of the showman at church or chapel. For the most part he spent his Sundays lying in bed, or lounging on some sunny bank, if the caravan happened to be stationed in the outskirts of a country village, and the companion by whose assistance he whiled away the hours was a bottle of brandy or of the strongest Scotch whiskey. In plain words, Silas Morgan was a heavy tippler, and the demon drink was every day getting more the mastery of him. In his case it was demonizing indeed, for, surly and passionate when sober, strong drink made him positively outrageous, and whoever came in his way at such times was sure to be subjected to ill-usage. Even Myra, who was his favorite when in his sober senses, did not escape when he was half-drunk, and then it was that Tobby Sprat became bold as a lion. Tobby was the meekest and gentlest of men on ordinary occasions, and even when assailed and abused himself did not lose his temper, but when Morgan dared to lay a hand on Myra, it made him wild, and weak and disabled though he was, he would have done battle for her to the last gasp. Generally, however, when Tobby bearded Morgan, the latter quailed, and turned away with a grumble or a growl. It was inexplicable how Tobby's manfully standing to him should quell him so, for had Silas chosen to exercise his physical strength Tobby would have had no chance with him whatever. Yet, strangely enough, no sooner did Tobby snatch the little Myra from his grasp, and, putting her behind him till his person shielded her, stand forth in bold anger before Morgan, than the big brute would cower before the little man's fierce and honest indignation, and sheer off with unintelligible mutterings. Tobby himself was often puzzled to account for it, though glad enough that he did possess such an influence over the tyrant.

Yet the matter gave Tobby increasing pain and anxiety, for when Morgan got drunk, this influence was in a measure lost, and as intemperance was fast gaining absolute power over the mountebank, the fear pressed upon Tobby that the time would come when he would no longer have control over him, and both the children and himself would suffer cruelty at his hand. Then behind this fear there loomed another. Silas Morgan was evidently destroying himself for business. Several times already he had performed somewhat under the influence of liquor, and none knew better than Tobby that it required a clear head and steady hand and eye to do the tumbling and other feats. If, therefore, Morgan continued in his increasingly intemperate habits, he would most surely incapacitate himself for work, if, indeed, some accident did not precipitate the end before the case the establishment must be broken up, and what was to become of him and the children! The children especially, Tobby's unselfish soul was most concerned about them. The care and training he had bestowed on them, and the affection which they both cherished for him, had endeared them to his large and warm heart, and many sore, sad thoughts he had about their future. To all appearance the life before them, even at the best, would be an equivocal one, but he saw in each of them the elements of better things, and grieved to think that the vagabond existence to which they were doomed would ere long destroy their childish innocence, and introduce them to scenes and habits demoralising and degrading. Tobby's heart was literally wrung with anguish when he thought of this, and his sorrow was intensified by the suspicion he entertained that they were children who had been fearfully wronged, that they had been born into a very different sphere of life, that by fraud they had been stolen from their friends and their homes, deprived of their rightful inheritance, and robbed of that holy love and social comfort which would have been theirs if justice had been done them.

He had no doubt of this so far as Myra was concerned. The secret way in which Morgan brought her to the caravan, and the resolute manner in which he had always evaded Tobby's inquiries as to her connections, convinced him that her presence there involved the existence of a guilty secret, while everything about herself indicated that she had come from a home whose occupants moved in good society. Eagerly and closely had he watched Morgan to see if some chance word would give him a clue to the truth, but on this matter Morgan appeared to be singularly on his guard, and even while in drink he uttered not a syllable from which Tobby could gather information.

But this very care to conceal convinced Tobby the more that there was mystery and crime in the business, and he had only to look at Myra—at her pretty form, her lovely face, her innate refinement, the purity of her childish language, and the words she at times uttered—to understand that she had been brought from a far higher rank in life, the restoration to which would in all probability give joy to those who mourned her loss, and rescue her from, perchance, a life of vice and sin.

Regarding Charlie, Tobby's suspicions of a similar kind were not so clear. When he made his appearance in the caravan, there was everything to indicate that he belonged to the lowest stratum of society. Rags, dirt, and neglect had clearly been his portion, and never could Tobby extract from his childish talk any reminiscences of a half-forgotten home of comfort, or of kind and loving friends from whom he had been abducted.

Still Charlie had a certain unmistakeable air of superiority about him. Once he was made clean and fresh, neatly dressed, and the silken ringlets of his curly hair freed from the dirt which had matted them, and thoroughly acquainted with comb and oil, he had a look which Tobby could not associate with the idea that he was a beggar's brat. His finely-shaped limbs, his beautiful eyes, and the cast of his features, irresistibly produced the impression that he, too, belonged to a higher rank of life, and was the helpless victim of fraud and wrong.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache, that is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to these organs, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important is how to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of DR. HERRICK'S SUGAR COATED PILLS and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should procure a bottle of BOSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true GERMAN SYRUP is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, do not rest until you have tried this remedy. Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—don't do anything until a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. Those are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes ; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says on application to him at his office, 120 West Broadway, N. Y.

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 29.

A Working Ministry.

Whatever the political opponents of the present Dominion administration may urge against its members, they cannot deny that Ministers have shown an earnest desire to ascertain the wants and wishes of the people whose affairs they have been called upon to administer. Their industry in this respect is most commendable, and contrasts so strongly with the dilettanti do-nothingism of their predecessors, that their course has won for them the approbation of the people of the country generally. This feeling of approbation is thus fittingly given expression to by the Berlin Daily News :—"Every member of the present Dominion Government seems to be doing his very best to serve his country. Of the extraordinary interest manifested by Sir S. L. Tilley, our talented Finance Minister, no one need be told, for no Minister of the Crown, either in Canada or elsewhere, has ever been known to do the same amount of work to benefit his country as he has and is doing. Then in the case of Sir Charles Tupper, Minister of Railways and Canals, we find him one day on the Welland Canal, inspecting its works, and familiarizing himself with everything about it; the next day he is on the Intercolonial and other Railways, directing their affairs; then again we find him on the St. Lawrence Canals, all for the benefit of his country, to say nothing of his going to Europe and purchasing steel rails, just at the time when the price had touched bottom, thus saving hundreds of thousands of dollars, perhaps a million, to the country, when on the other hand Mackenzie by his steel rails speculations lost for Canada well on to two million of dollars. Mr. Bowell, our painstaking Minister of Customs, when not at work in his office, is constantly on the move to ascertain all possible information as to the working of his Department. Mr. Aikins, Secretary of State, is probably as familiar with the affairs of the country, especially the new Territories, as any public man in the Dominion. Mr. Baby, Minister of Inland Revenue, Frenchman though he be, is also vigilant and active to learn all about the workings of his Department. He has this week been in Toronto, Hamilton, and other places west, where he had interviews with the leading business men. The same might be said of the Minister of Agriculture, the Minister of Marine, the Minister of Militia, and others, all of which goes to prove that the right men are in the right places. We are satisfied no country has ever had a Government showing more anxiety to faithfully secure the best interests of the people than Canada has the good fortune to have at present. And in view of such a fortunate state of things it is no wonder that prosperity is again smiling upon this fair land. Things were different in the days of the Flies on the Wheel.

Though the Globe and some of its irreconcilable satellites may sneer at the praiseworthy exertions of Ministers in their efforts to thoroughly acquaint themselves with the resources of the country and the position and necessities of the people for whom they are to legislate, in order to be able to do so intelligently, their efforts to serve the country will not the less commend them to the vast majority of the governed. Our country is so vast in extent—its wants are in consequence so diversified — that no cast-iron rule can be laid down for dealing with the several provinces. Experience alone can teach; this the members of the Cabinet are doing their best to acquire, and for their evident desire to do so they will receive the credit which is their due, despite the efforts of the organs of their chagrined and incompetent opponents.

EXPORTS OF MONTREAL.—The exports from Montreal in November last were $1,892,759 over the corresponding month of last year. The total exports of produce of Canada for Montreal were $3,049,561, against $1,805,195 in November, 1878. Goods not the product of Canada $882,001, against $240,694 in November 1878. The export of wheat was 930,867 bushels, of which 441,262 bushels were Canadian, valued at $537,618. Butter exports were $547,258; cheese exports $327,137.

SUICIDE.—A despatch from Three Rivers, Dec. 27th, conveys the following sad intelligence:—"A very sad occurrence took place here last night about 7 p.m. Mr. Stratton Black, paying teller in the Quebec Bank here, while at dinner, and after having read a letter received by him last evening, mailed from Quebec, suddenly left the table, at which his wife was seated, and after having walked up and down the room three or four times, stopped next his wife, putting his arm around her neck, kissed her for good-by, and, drawing a seven shooting revolver from his pocket, aimed straight for his temple and shot himself. He died the following morning. No cause is assigned for the rash act."

The Civic Nominations

Who the Candidates Are.

MR. PATTERSON ELECTED MAYOR.

THE MAYORALTY.

The nominations of candidates for the Mayoralty of the City of Belleville for the year 1880 took place in the City Hall this morning, pursuant to the provisions of the statute. At the appointed hour—10 a. m.—the attendance was limited, consisting of six ratepayers and an equal number of boys, but as it was understood there was to be a contest the Hall gradually filled up, until there was about an average attendance.

At a few minutes after 10 the City Clerk, who is by virtue of his office Returning Officer, took the platform and announced himself ready to receive nominations.

A long interval occurred, when at 10:50 A. R. Dougall, seconded by J. P. Reeves, nominated Wm. J. Taylor.

W. J. Diamond, seconded by L. W. Hyman, nominated Alexander Robertson.

John Sutherland, seconded by Wm. H. Ponton, nominated Reuben S. Patterson.

The hour of eleven o'clock having arrived, the Clerk declared the nominations closed.

Mr. Taylor declared that he would not be a candidate.

In the absence of Mr. Robertson, his nomination was withdrawn by his mover and seconder.

The Clerk then declared Mr. Patterson duly elected Mayor for 1880, which announcement was received with applause.

Mr. Alex. Robertson said that matters had transpired, which would be gratifying to them all as to the election of to-day. So far as Messrs. Hambly and Patterson were concerned, both were old members of the Council and able men, and it was well to elect Mr. Patterson. It was well that Mr. Hambly's services should also be recognized and that he should be elected as Mayor for another year, to which his services entitled him. He thanked them for their past support. There were several important enterprises projected which would be of great benefit to the city in the future. He retired with some reluctance and probably within an hour he would know what was to be his fate in connection with the Legislature election, so that he would not, whether successful or not, retire from public life. He was glad that a probably bitter contest had been avoided.

Mr. Patterson thanked the electors for electing him to the office of Mayor without a contest. He entertained the most friendly feelings towards Mr. Hambly and had he known that the gentleman wished election, he himself would not have been a candidate. He hoped to discharge his duties satisfactorily, and that good man would be returned to the Council. He would endeavor to emulate the present Mayor, and if at the close of the year he found that he had filled the office as acceptably as Mr. Robertson he would retire feeling that he had done his duty satisfactorily.

Mr. J. H. Hambly said that, a misunderstanding with Mr. Patterson, having been cleared up within the last half hour, he had retired in favor of that gentleman, he being an old Counsellor and worthy of the honor. He thanked his friends for their hearty support, and might on another occasion solicit their suffrages.

The audience then separated.

THE ALDERMANIC NOMINATIONS.

SAMSON WARD.

There was no contest in this ward, the old members, Messrs. McIninch, Lingham and Dickson being returned by acclamation.

FOSTER WARD.

Mr. D. Brennan, F. Wallbridge, J. B Drewry, G. Backus, A. T. Petrie, and Geo Boulter.

BALDWIN WARD.

Messrs. James Smith, D. B. Robertson, R. C. Hulme and A. L. Smith.

BLEECKER WARD.

Messrs. A. A. Farley, Samuel Hambly, John Doyle, John Lazier, James Grant and Wm. Baker.

COLEMAN WARD.

Messrs. W. A. Ostrom, Lawrence Johnston, A. E. Proctor, Jas. St. Charles, E. Hayne, Robert Gordon.

KETCHESON WARD.

Richard Costello, W. P. Niles, Dr. D. E. Burdett, Thos. Holden, J. W. Johnson, and Morgan Jellett.

MURNEY WARD.

David Holden, J. G. Vandusen, A. L. Geen, W. W. Watson and Jas. H. Simpson.

The Grand Junction.

The By-law for extending the time for the completion of the Grand Junction Railway will come up in the Council to-night. It is to be hoped that it will be passed unanimously, as the people are strongly in favor of it, and the measure must be adopted before the 1st of January, when the time as previously fixed expires.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.—The Dominion Parliament has been called to meet for the despatch of business on the 12th of February.

A RAILWAY TO HUDSON'S BAY.—An application for a charter to build a railway from Winnipeg to Hudson's Bay, it is stated, is to be made by Messrs. D. A. Smith and C. J. Brydges, on behalf of the Hudson's Bay Company.

NOVA SCOTIA COAL.—The Toronto Fuel Association advertise that they are receiving Nova Scotia coal daily. They say the coal gives general satisfaction, and they have very little trouble in disposing of it. Once used they say their customers always return for more, preferring it to American.

INTENSE COLD WEATHE.—The cold weather in the North-West had the effect of delaying mail communication between St. Paul and Winnipeg from Tuesday until Saturay night. The mercury on Wednesday registered fifty degrees below zero. Two persons are reported frozen to death.

A recently-discovered fossil animal, Amphicallias fragilissimus, is described as a monster considerably more than one hundred feet in length, with spinal vertebræ six feet across, hind legs forty feet long, and a large and powerful tail. I imagine the monster in life, standing on its hind legs and catching its prey with its fore paws, and a striking picture is brought to mind from the ages long agone.

Deaf and Dumb Institution.

The Christmas Pantomime.

The pantomime given at the Deaf and Dumb Institution on Friday night was a decided success. Long before the hour of commencing the performance crowds of people could be seen acting upon Horace Greeley's advice by "going west," and when eight o'clock came—the hour for beginning the entertainment—the large and spacious dining hall was crowded to excess, many having to go home again unable to gain admittance. In the main hall leading to the dining room was a Chinese lantern showing the illuminated word "Welcome," which on the opposite side was "Good night." The dining room was beautifully decorated with evergreens, and at the east end, directly over the stage, was the motto, "Merry Xmas and Happy New Year," painted in rustic letters.

The superintendent opened the entertainment with a short address, stating that the pupils were very much pleased to have so many of their friends come to spend a social evening with them. The deaf and dumb were debarred from very many enjoyments, and during their stay at the school he endeavored to make them happy.

The title of the pantomime was "The Statue Blanche." An old man and old woman had a very pretty daughter, and this daughter had numerous suitors. Most of these attentive young men were not at all acceptable to the old folks, but the daughter enjoyed their company. Each young gallant fell deeply in love, and made proposals to the young lady; but of course this was all distasteful to the old couple, who wished to marry their daughter to a wealthy person. The daughter was very cunning and had her lover in the form of a Statue. This statue was able to assume different positions when turning the crank of the pedestal on which it was placed.

Prof. Green, as clown, was simply immense. His clandestine manner, cunning winks, happy face when he discovered some new ridiculous thing, and his ready witticisms, expressed by means of gestures and signs, were simply grand. When the "Accepted Lover," "The Dandy" and the "Sculptor" performed the office of turning the crank, he was in the dress of the Sculptor, and never failed to bring down the house with that heavy blow administered with his strong arm.

Mr. Wallbridge, as pantaloon, did justice to his part. He and the clown played well into each other's hands. His mania for pocketing all he got hold of, and the quickness with which he could get into any position, was well done. After eating some of the "cat pie" which the clown gave him, his personification of a sick man and the eagerness with which he grasped the stomach-pump, was admirably rendered. In fact, his acting throughout was faultless.

Mr. McKillop and Miss Perry, as old man and old woman, were very good. The rage of the old man and the horror of the old lady depicted in her face when she discovered the secret suitors for their daughter, was very true to nature.

Miss Lorenzen, as "flirt," did her part faultlessly. Her ironing the clothes, hiding her sweet-heart's letter from the gaze of the old folks, attempting to secrete her lovers, her many petitions to the old people to forgive her wrongdoings, were all admirably rendered. Her personal appearance was always sure to capture the hearts of of her numerous suitors and her happy face throughout her courting contrasted with the sorrow depicted when she was discovered, did not fail to win the audience.

Miss Dowling, as "Columbine," and Johnson as "Dandy," Bush as "Sculptor;" Wilson as the "Accepted Lover"; O'Neil as the Harlequin and Sutton as Negro, all performed their parts well. Wilson, in order to deceive the old people assumed the form of a statue. He kept remarkably still and endured the torments of the "Clown" and "pantaloon" with cool indifference. The "Dandy" and "Sculptor" made splendid hits by clown, who, like Handy Andy, did everything wrong—threw some water in the barrel and sand in the box; it brought all the actors on the border of a tragedy and each sustained his part well.

We must not forget to make mention of the dancing of the little girls during the intervals between each act; their beautiful dresses, happy appearances, and the charming grace with which they went through all the intricacies of the dance could not possibly be surpassed.

Instrumental music was furnished by Miss Christie and some songs from Messrs. McDermid, Brown, Indley, and Glendenning, were also given between the acts of the pantomime. At the close a collection was taken up, and the proceeds $15 will go to assist an indigent deaf mute family in the city. This closed one of the most pleasant evenings we have ever spent.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION. — Judge Stevenson, in the Halimand, Ont., Division Court, has just rendered a decision of special interest to newspaper publishers and their advertising patrons. The publishers of the Cayuga Advocate received an advertisement from a merchant of that town named Boyle, to run a year, which was duly paid for. The merchant did not order the advertisement continued nor discontinued after the expiration of the year. The publisher, however, continued the advertisement and carefully sent the paper to his patron regularly. At the end of three years, he sent a bill for the last two. The merchant refused to pay on the ground that the card was left in, as he supposed, to fill up. Judge Stevenson decided that the advertisement must be paid for.

From the steady, firm and regular boat of Heart, replacing interrupted and feeble action of that organ, demonstrated in a variety of cases, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is known to exert a powerful tonic effect on the muscles of the Heart.

C. E. Kyle, of Uxbridge, writes October 3rd, 1870, and says :—"I certify to the excellent qualities of ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM as a remedy for the diseases of the throat and lungs. I know it to be all it is recommended to be."

DIRECTIONS FOR COLIC IN HORSES.—Contents of small bottle Pain-Killer in quart bottle, add pint warm or cold water, sweeten with molasses, shake well until all mixed, and drench well. Give about half at once, then balance in ten or fifteen minutes, if first dose is not sufficient. This will be found a never-failing remedy.

Forward and loquacious youth—"By Jove, you know—upon my word, now—if I were to see a ghost, you know, I would be a chattering idiot for the rest of my life." Ingenuous maiden—"Haven't you seen a ghost?"

BELLEVILLE, MONDAY, DEC. 29.

City and Vicinity.

CITY COUNCIL.—A regular meeting of Council will be held to-night.

ARRIVED OUT.—The Allan Steamship Moravian arrived out on the 28th inst.

ATHLETICS.—E. W. Johnston disputes Thomas Lynch's claim to the general athletic championship, and offers to contest with him at Toronto in the feats named by him for $200 a side.

NOT THE SAME.—Mr. S. Burrows, Life Assurance agent, requests us to state that he was not the person of the same name who tried to personate some other voter at the last election for the Ontario Legislature in West Hastings.

SAW MILL.—Messrs. Bell & Ponton offer for sale a saw mill situated on the line of the North Hastings Railway, two miles south of Madoc. The property is a very desirable one. For terms and particulars see the advertisement.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.—In the Court of Common Pleas at Toronto on Saturday, Mr. Justice Osler decided that Police Magistrates in cities have no right to fees, except in connection with cases arising outside the city limits.

SKATING RINK.—The general opening of the Lorne Skating Rink will take place to-night, when the Oddfellows' band will be in attendance. Mr. Loynes, the present lessee, has made a number of alterations and improvements in the rink, which will now be found much more comfortable than heretofore.

PRESENTATION.—On Saturday evening, it being the anniversary of Alderman Doyle's birthday, the inmates of the International Hotel (and a few others) presented him with an address and several articles as tokens of esteem. After the presentation those present partook of an excellent supper.

BURGLARY.—The branch store of Mr. Fish in Madoc was entered by burglars on Saturday night or Sunday morning, the burglars effected an entrance by taking a pane of glass out of the front window. It is not known as yet what goods were taken, but from an examination the amount taken is supposed not to be very great.

A SERIOUS LOSS.—It will be seen by advertisement that Mr. W. H. Gooding, an employee of Mr. J. H. Ford, met with a serious loss on Saturday evening by losing his purse containing the sum of $104. It is to be hoped the money may have fallen into honest hands, for it is too large a sum for a young man depending upon his daily labor for support to lose.

A HIGH HONOR.—The Poet Gay has received from the private secretary of Her Majesty's Secretary of State a letter acknowledging a communication from the poet dated Nov. 21st, and enclosing a poetical welcome to the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise, copies of which had been presented to the Queen. Our bard's honors multiply thick and fast. He wears them well.

FORESTERS.—The following are the officers elected for the ensuing term of Court Moira, 33 Independent order of Foresters: —John Parker Thomas, Chief Ranger; John McKeown, Vice Chief Ranger; Henry L. Bottoms, Recording Sec.; S. R. Earle, Financial Sec.; James Macoun, Treas.; Jason H. Post, Sr. Woodward; James H. Simpson, Jr. Woodward; John A. Smith, Sr. Beadle; Edward Harrison, Jr. Beadle; Dr. A. Abbott, Physician; David Waters, Apothecary; Angus Christie, Chaplain; George D. Dickson, Past Junior Chief Ranger.

THE VISIT TO MADOC.—In order to give every one an opportunity of accompanying Sir Leonard Tilley, Sir Charles Tupper, and Hon. M. Bowell, in their visit to the Iron Gold Mines of Madoc and Marmora, on Tuesday, the 30th Dec, a special train is advertised to leave Belleville at 8 a. m., sharp, calling at the following stations at the times mentioned:—Belleville, 8 a. m.; The Junction, 8:20; West Huntingdon, 8:30; Crookston, 8:45; Madoc, 9:00; Mines 9:15. We are informed that at the Pusey and Coe & Mitchell Mines, grand blasts will be prepared and explosions will take place on the arrival of the train, and a grand demonstration will take place at Madoc, at 5 p. m., immediately after which the train will return to Belleville. As the fare to the Mines and back is only 90 cents, every one who wants to see the development of our Mining industries, should avail themselves of this opportunity.

We understand that a large number of teams (in addition to those provided for the guests) will be in readiness at the mines to enable parties who may wish to extend their visit to the gold mines, to do so.

West Hastings Election.

A telegram from Toronto this afternoon informs us that the Judge to-day gave decision in the West Hastings election case, unseating the respondent with costs.

St. Thomas' Church.

The Services at the Reopening.

Sermons by Bishop Lewis, Dean Lyster, and Archdeacon Parnell.

Within a few weeks of four years ago—namely, on the night of the 26th of February, 1876, the beautiful stone church edifice which was erected by the Anglican congregation of Belleville in 1830, was totally devastated by fire. The night was a bitter cold one, and the firemen were able to do but little towards saving it, owing to the distance from the river; hence little was saved, and in the morning nought was left but the church walls.

Some efforts were put forth to secure the restoration of the edifice, but owing to lack of unity amongst the wealthy congregation, all attempts in that direction failed of success. At length a decree of the Court of Chancery was obtained, which ordered the expenditure of the amount of the insurance money on the restoration of the church. Consequently the work was commenced late in the autumn of last year, resumed in the spring of the present year, and hurried forward to such an extent that the sacred edifice was reopened yesterday.

Public notice of the same having been widely circulated, a steady stream of worshippers, composed of the congregation who had formerly attended St. Thomas' and who rejoiced to revisit the familiar place, as well as of members of other congregations, began to enter the sacred edifice half an hour before the appointed time, and by 11 o'clock the church was well filled, though not crowded.

As we have very recently described the appearance of the structure, it is not necessary to repeat that description. A glance around, however, showed that a good deal remains to be done before the work is completed—the stained glass portions of the windows being still wanting, the seats unvarnished, and other work to be done, which will no doubt be executed in good time.

At 11 o'clock the Rev. J. W. Burke, M.A., the Rector, followed by the Bishop of Ontario, the Dean of the Diocese and Archdeacon Parnell entered from the vestry, and the services were commenced by the singing of the 9th hymn by an efficient choir, Prof. Whish, of Hamilton, presiding at the organ, which is a beautiful instrument and was heard to much advantage.

The service was read by the Rev. Mr. Burke and Dean Lyster, and the sermon was delivered by Bishop Lewis, from the text:—"I was glad when they said unto me: We will go into the house of the Lord."—Psalm 122, v. 1.

His Lordship proceeded to say that David was evidently rejoiced at the occasion, and he hoped that those whom he was addressing were animated with the same feeling as was the great Psalmist. The great difficulty in the way of the church was he said, that many persons went to church just as seldom as they could do and maintain an appearance of respectability, whilst others were bodily present but not in spirit, their thoughts being elsewhere, and others did not attend at all. He urged that all should attend to their religious duties—not ostentatiously for the purpose of attracting the attention of others; for that was hypocritionable—but humbly, devoutly, and with the view of the effect on their future state. He counselled them to meditate upon religion, to read the scriptures, and above all to pray for without asking they could not expect to receive anything from God. Jesus prayed constantly to God, and the disciples followed his example. According to men's light, wealth and influence was their responsibility for neglecting to perform their religious duties, not merely as a matter of form but with a devout and cheerful spirit. A man who was known to be devout in private would have an effect upon his neighbor's conduct, and much greater was the effect of the public discharge of those duties. The influence of the learned, the wealthy and the wise was in this respect far-reaching, as their example was very powerful. Even the least influential in a congregation could not plead that he was of so little consequence that he could absent himself from church; for from such a cause indifference might be propagated and a whole congregation ruined by even its least considerable member. There were those who were indifferent, but were resolved to seek to make their peace with God at some future time. He warned them against such death-bed repentances, which he held could be of little avail. They should seek the Lord voluntarily—not offer an unwilling service at the last moment—and lay up for themselves treasures in heaven. The sermon, which was of much power and impressively delivered, was listened to with the utmost attention throughout.

After the communion service had been concluded the congregation dispersed.

AFTERNOON SERVICES

Divine service was held at 3:30 p. m. when the Ven. Archdeacon Parnell preached The Rev. gentleman's discourse was brief but most interesting, and was devoted largely to showing the results of efforts put forth by the members of the early church in erecting edifices for divine worship. He also urged very strongly the importance of prayer.

There was a very large congregation at the evening services and the seating capacity of the edifice was largely taxed. Prof. Whish again presided at the organ and once more demonstrated his musical ability, whilst the choral offerings were rendered with excellent taste and effect. The services were conducted by the Dean of Ontario assisted by the Rev. J. W. Burke, M.A., Rector. The pulpit was occupied by the first named, who chose for his text the 28th verse of the 11th chapter of St. Luke. "But he said yea rather blessed are they who hear the word of God and keep it." The companions of a great man were almost invariably influenced by him, they imbibed his ideas and acquired in turn his habits, thoughts and actions; the force of his views being communicated to them, they were governed by his influence. God gave a model character which was only in himself. What is a pleasure in one person is a displeasure to another, because the latter is so from imitation. We should put our wills under the influence of good and great men so they may be influenced by their good acts and virtues. What he asked would be the effect on the discipline of a man who had for his companion Jesus Christ, as apart from His teaching He would unfold a meaning and spirit. In addition a great deal would be gained by intercourse and observance with Him, the drama of the redemption of whose life would be unfolded to him for view. We find such persons as the above were in the following of his precepts God's servants must always prevail. Rightly did the Apostles appreciate and esteem the personal intercourse they had with Christ, and what thought He left them on earth it was for their gain. We are not losers because we have not the scheme of salvation in accordance with our own individual wishes. We should believe in the gift of the Holy Spirit who can take us to a different sphere of existence. We should recollect that it was God who, manifested in the flesh, came on earth to save lost humanity, and there was no way to be brought through Jesus Christ who gave us the Holy Scriptures. St. John said what we have seen and heard we declare, so that good fellowship may exist among you. We are signed to apply to Christ that the benefit of His discipline received in His hearing and intercourse with Him would apply to those who had intercourse with the Apostles. It may be said we stand in a different position because the disciples had intercourse with our Saviour, but here he would remark that we should learn but little and not endeavor to attain knowledge beyond our capacity. There was but a small amount of the sayings and doings of the Saviour known to the disciples. We should give a careful and prayerful consideration to what is presented before us, for he who made the mind also gave us a measure of reasoning sufficient for our capabilities and study, and should daily hear of Jesus Christ. If one has prepared a frame of mind to be preser ved in church, it is dangerous for him to do so for he should not put aside the means of grace. We should mix with the world, read liberally, enjoy conversation and instruction to a certain degree; for by these we are affected as we adopt ideas that are advanced by others. For these we should take the antidote offered by the sayings of Jesus Christ, and should therefore each day read a portion of the Scriptures. We need something strong and true to struggle effectively against the influences of the world; we need words of encouragement and cheer, and should prepare ourselves for deceits and danger. We should read the scriptures, let to investigate the substance of faith; 2nd to determine the laws of God so as to direct our conduct, and 3rd we should exercise our affections on the truth contained in what we have read. Too often do we undervalue the good and not perceive it until we have lost it. Hence the duty of reading the Scriptures. We should pray to God to enlighten our spirit life may be profited by reading the Scriptures. We should try to better the elements of our strength and endeavor to weaken and destroy what was bad. We should while in our closet devote a portion of the day to the reading of the Word of God. Is it probable that any of us should not prefer to be among His disciples in Judea in preference to seeking the human wisdom of to-day. In the increase of the literature of now-a-days there lurked a danger that the reading of the scriptures might be precluded. Some persons objected, or urged as an objection to the reading of the scriptures their want of time; they had things to do that must be done; they had too much to read. Yet he would assert that he is not alone in the view he declared that they did not read the scriptures. No matter how busy we may be we can find time—if we are so inclined—to read the Word of God. We should take an effort to read the scriptures and not give up spiritual exercise because a difficulty presents itself. Ordinary literature was capable of ready comprehension and he would therefore urge the reading of the Holy Word. The Devil had a special hate for the Word of God and would keep you from it and would endeavor to increase the aversion which one might feel for the study of it, but we should take courage and accept as truth the Word of the Lord and resist Satan. He (the speaker) thanked God that the privilege of officiating once again in St. Thomas' Church had been accorded to him. For three years the structure remained a wasted monument to those who possessed the power of might; now it is a city on the hill and is not what it was—a reproach. He prayed that the Word of God would be continually be preached there, and that the blessed sacrament would always be observed and administered there in accordance with the rules of the church. He returned his thanks to the Rector and congregation for their invitation to be present on the re-opening of this church, and concluded by asking his hearers to bear in mind the words of the text "Blessed are they who hear the word of God and keep it."

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29th.—The Herald's Albany special says some consternation occurred among the fusion leaders yesterday, over the discovery of a clause in the Constitution which seems to indicate that Governor Garcelon's term of office expires Jan'y 1st. This would create an interregnum between the 1st and 7th, the most critical period of the coming struggle, which would have to be filled by Haynes, President of the Senate, a Republican. Pillsbury, in an editorial in the Maine Standard to-day, says it is too late to set up any new construction of the meaning of the Constitution as to the time when the political year begins or ends. Garcelon will hold his office till noon on the 7th January if he lives, "and don't you forget it." The excitement at Garcelon's dinner yesterday was at fever heat; the scenes on the streets resembled those familiar in war times. Twenty-five per cent. of the members of Rev. Austin Parks' Congregational Church were preparing to go over in a body to the Episcopal Church, because Parks signed a call for a recent Republican indignation meeting, but they discovered that the Rev. Bradley, pastor of the Episcopal Church, was a speaker at the same indignation meeting.

A sensation was caused at Gardner yesterday by the discovery that Richard's light infantry were preparing to remove their muskets from the arsenal. Capt. Perry, Republican, ordered the arms to be packed without the knowledge of his Lieutenants, who are Greenbackers. The authorities have been informed of the intention to remove the arms and will try to stop it.

TUCSON, Arizona, Dec 29.—Geronomo, an Apache chief, with eighty-three of his band surrendered to the military at Camp Rucker and will be sent to San Carlos reservation. This is the band which has been raiding along the border and did much work credited to Victoria's band. This virtually wipes out all renegade Indians in Arizona and one border.

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—Further details of the fire show the loss much less than previous estimates. On buildings it will probably be half a million and near that on stock.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—A Norwegian bark yesterday brought the captain and crew of the abandoned Norwegian bark Veterata, which sailed from Newcastle on Oct. 27th. They were rescued utterly exhausted as the ship was about to sink.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

LONDON, Dec. 2 Paris correspondent says the elements composing the new Cabinet are more moderate than might have been expected.

AMITE, La., Dec. 29.—Four negroes imprisoned, charged with murder, were taken from jail last night by a mob and shot to death. Two other prisoners are reported liberated.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—A Berlin correspondent says he is authorized to contradict the rumors that a revival of the alliance between the three Emperors is contemplated. He also denies that any alterations are at present intended in the protective tariff. It is understood that the Imperial Government intend bringing in a bill restoring the right of free settlement, with a view to checking the spread of Socialism.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Arrived, the Belgianland.

The weather is milder at Paris. It is thawing after 32 days of frost, during which the thermometer touched 8° below zero—the coldest on record here.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 29.—The President has just passed through this city en route for New York. The train stopped a few minutes and a crowd gathered. The city officials, the clergy and others, including Dickinson, were present. The President bowed acknowledgements.

MADRID, Dec. 29.—The Committee Chamber of Deputies to whom was referred the bill for the abolition of slavery in Cuba which passed the Senate, will to-day commence an examination. The Cuban deputies were desirous to propose the amendment on the reassembling of the Cortes, January 10th. It is expected the members of the Chamber of Deputies who recently absented themselves will participate in the debates on the abolition bill.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—The New Testament company of the American Bible Revision committee held their last meetings on Friday and Saturday. It is expected the revised New Testament will be published by the English University presses next year, which is the 5th semi-centennial of the publication of Wicklife's bible, the first complete translation into the English language.

The steamer Aragon, reported foundered and all on board lost, is commanded by Capt. Brown, and had a crew of about 28 men. It left Bristol for this city on the 19th inst. The New York agent is not at all apprehensive regarding the steamer's safety, but expects it will be heard from within a few days.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—A dispatch to Houghton, Osgood & Co., says only the bound stock was consumed, the plates and sheet stock is safe at the factory at Cambridge, and will be ready for business in three days. The loss it is stated is fully covered by insurance.

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—The estimates of total loss by fire last night vary from one to two millions of dollars.

WEATHER REPORTS.

TORONTO, Dec. 29. — Probabilities for the next twenty-four hours: For the lower lakes, cloudy weather with local rains, followed by northwesterly or northerly winds, and colder weather with snow flurries.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.— Indications: For lower lakes, slightly warmer, cloudy, rainy' followed by colder.

An Apalling Accident.

A Passenger Train Breaks through the Tay Bridge.

THE LOSS OF LIFE ESTIMATED AT 150 TO 200.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—A portion of the bridge across the Frith of Tay was blown down while a train from Edinburgh to Dundee was crossing last night. The gale was so strong that a steamboat was unable to reach the scene of the disaster, but several rail mail bags have been washed ashore four miles from the bridge. There is no doubt that the train is in the water. The passengers, who are certainly all drowned, are estimated at 150 to 200.

LATER.—The gale having moderated somewhat, the Provost of Dundee and a number of leading citizens started in a steamer to the scene, but have not yet returned. The excitement at Tay Bridge Station is appalling. Many thousands of people are congregated, awaiting definite intelligence.

The missing train was seen crossing the bridge, then suddenly a flash of fire became visible. The railway officials in spite of the gale walked along the bridge from Dundee until they found there was a large gap caused by a fall of two or three of the largest spans.

COMMERCIAL MATTERS.

When it was rumored in Chicago that Keene was about to withdraw $5,000,000 from Wall street, New York, to margin his wheat contracts in Chicago, the Chicago Inter-Ocean facetiously remarked:—"If Keene sends out that $5,000,000 it will be very acceptable to the boys here, and they will gladly receive it."

Dressed hogs are firm in Montreal, the sale of a car load is reported at $6.25. And sales are reported of 800 lbs. of turkeys at 7c to 8c, and several cases at 9c. A lot of 12 saddles of venison was sold at 9c, and several carcasses at 5½c.

Over 200,000 tons of coal was shipped from Pictou this season.

Canadian hops shipped to the English markets from Montreal some time since still remain unsold.

The Montreal Gazette says:—"There can be little doubt but that wheat in the American markets would be selling 10c@12c per bushel less than it is to-day were it not for the speculative manipulations of certain capitalists who are devoting their whole means and energies to divert the vast traffic in breadstuff from its legitimate channel into one of pure speculation and gambling."

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Ages on Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Death of Memb'r

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and capable of being borne by the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed, and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption—and the diseases leading up to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anæmia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food and medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the stomach; rich blood is produced by it which renders it a very reliable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases. A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

Oct. 12, 1878. 6 mos. repd.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,

December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve and in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result; Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pain nearly disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 116 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and is still in good and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.

Jan. 20th, 1879. H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass. Very truly yours,

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 31, 1878.

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

This Great Household Medicine ranks amongst the leading necessaries of Life.

These famous Pills purify the BLOOD, and act most powerfully, yet soothingly on the Liver, Stomach, Kidneys,

and BOWELS, giving tone, energy, and vigor to these great MAIN SPRINGS OF LIFE. They are confidently recommended as a never failing remedy in all cases where the constitution, from whatever cause, has become impaired or weakened. They are wonderfully efficacious in all ailments incidental to Females of all ages; and as a GENERAL FAMILY MEDICINE, are unsurpassed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Its Searching and Healing Properties are known throughout the World.

For the cure of BAD LEGS, Bad Breasts, Old Wounds, Sores and Ulcers, it is an infallible remedy. If effectually rubbed on the neck and chest, as salt into meat, it Cures SORE THROAT, Diphtheria, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, and even ASTHMA. For Glandular Swellings, Abscesses, Piles, Fistulas,

Gout, Rheumatism,

And every kind of SKIN DISEASE, it has never been known to fail.

The Pills and Ointment are Manufactured only at

533, OXFORD STREET, LONDON.

And are sold by all Vendors of Medicines throughout the Civilized World; with directions for use in almost every language.

The Trade Marks of these Medicines are registered in Ottawa. Hence, any one throughout the British Possessions, who may keep the American Counterfeits for sale, will be prosecuted.

Purchasers should look to the Label on the Pots and Boxes. If the address is not 533, Oxford Street, London, they are spurious.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermitten Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ages of Intermittent fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we know of.

Epileptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MINN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little child is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, it was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining flesh the fits are not so partial and the action of the heart is less terrible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully,

D. WALTER OAKES.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name to mine, or other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

Sold by all Druggists.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Grand Junction Railway Company will apply to the Legislature of the Province of Ontario at the next session for an Act to amend the several Acts relating to the said Company, and to authorize the Corporation of the Township of Seymour to substitute for the Debentures of the said Township issued under its By-law in aid of thesaid Company other Debentures of an equivalent amount, to be dated on the 1st day of January, 1880, or such other date as may be fixed by the said Act, and payable at the dates and in the manner to be so fixed and agreed on between the said Company and the said Corporation, and to extend the time for the extension of the line of the said Railway and the completion thereof from the Village of Hastings to a point of junction with the Midland Railway of Canada till the first of May, 1884, and to legalize and remove doubts as to the several Municipal Bonuses granting aid to the said Company in accordance with such extension, and to authorize the payment to the Company of such Bonuses as may have been or may be granted to the said Company, and to authorize the said Company to sell, lease or transfer the line of Railway or any part thereof to any other Railway Company duly incorporated, and for such other alterations and amendments of the Act relating to the said Grand Junction Railway Company as to the Legislature may seem proper.

ORANGE CERTIFICATES, handsomely got up, for sale at the INTELLIGENCER Office

Daily Intelligencer.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

The Tea Trade and the N. P.

DEAR SIR,—In the Ontario of the 26th, Mr W. A. Hungerford replies to my letter of the 4th, and I have carefully read it, hoping to gain some information, but find little but a column advertisement for his New York firm, but this is about all we can expect from a Grit Newspaper or Renegade politician.

He claims that New York does a larger tea trade than Canada. This I admit, but the claim that New York does a large tea trade in Canada, to-day, could only be put forth by one who can get from 10 to 25 per cent. more for teas than any retail man of good credit can buy at from a Canadian importer.

He goes on to say, referring to the INTELLIGENCER'S editorial and my letter :

In his first article he refers to credits having been sent to China, and goods sold and were filled before the great advance in prices. Now, he admits that teas were bought in New York early in the late excitement.

As regards these credits, they were taken to China by a New York gentleman, whose name I can give, and who returned home again with his pockets filled with those same Canadian credits. A second went and returned with a similar result.

The first part of the first of the above paragraphs is correct, and so is the last, and the reason teas were brought early in the late excitement was that our merchants had to keep up their stocks as soon as they saw their own importations arrived they had the satisfaction of selling a great many invoices in New York at handsome profits. I might further state that large quantities of green, black and Japan teas, imported by Canadians, are in the New York market to-day and are bringing better prices thanthey are in Canada.

Now for those Canadian credits. I do not know of any New York gentleman taking out a dollar's worth, and if he did he brought back very few, if any.

The next spread of this American eagle is just what we wanted. Here it is :

Does "Young Hyson" remember that in the last year of Sir John Macdonald's late administration, Sir Francis Hincks not only allowed tea to enter Canada free of duties, but actually paid back to the merchants in Canada a rebate of 3 cts. per lb. This was when Canada was in her commercial glory. But, what is the first act of the new Administration? A famous tariff, which, in the face of the hardest times Canada has ever seen, cannot fail but bring condemnation from an enlightened, thinking public.

"Young Hyson" remembers well that Sir John A. Macdonald's late administration took the duty off teas and gave a rebate of 3c a pound on all teas out of bond. He also remembers that the first acts of the Mackenzie, Cartwright administration was to put a tax of 6c a pound on Green and Japan Teas, and 5c on Blacks. A most unfair and unjust tariff for the poorer classes, as the poor man had to pay the same duty as the man who drank high priced tea, in other words a tariff that made the poor man pay for the rich man's luxuries. The present tariff gives fair play and the poor man gets the benefit, as I will prove by figures.

A green or Japan tea at 30c pays,
Specific duty.....	3c
Ad valorem "	3c
	6c
A green or Japan tea at 70c pays,
Specific duty.....	3c
Ad valorem " 10 per cent	7c
	10c

This is as it should be and makes the rich consumer pay his share of the revenue in proportion to his means. It must be borne in mind that the above calculations are based on teas imported direct to Canada from the place of growth we would just cost 6½c duty or 3½c in favor of the Canadian importer.—As to the greater part of the teas used in Canada coming from the States, I must ask better authority than Mr. H., as the statement is erroneous, and Mr. H. must be either ignorant or untruthful in the matter, as nearly all of the teas for the Canadian trade this season are imported direct from China and Japan.

Mr. H. concludes by calling me a coward, because I do not write above my own signature. My reply to this is that I am too modest, and that no one might think I was trying to advertise my firm at the cost of a newspaper that should be paid for advertising.

Yours,
YOUNG HYSON.

The Course of Cheese.

(From the Journal of Commerce.)

While the present season has presented unusual features in very many branches of our export trade, in none, perhaps, are these more marked than in the cheese market. Barely, if ever before, has a season opened so inauspiciously as that just passed. The large stocks held over from last year, not only in the city and throughout the cheese marts of the Dominion, but still more notably in England, and the low prices which ruled during the winter months, only to be followed by further dealings and a sagging market upon the advent of spring, together served as a strong check upon the farmer and factor engaged in operations. To these agencies favoring diminished production, was next added the fairly ruinous figures reached in midsummer, whereby dairymen were led to a not inconsiderable extent to divert milk from its ordinary use to the fattening of calves and hogs. Finally, a long dry season added its influence in the same direction, though depriving the grass of moisture, to the impairment of its milk-producing power. To these several causes, all working directly to one end, may be traced a largely decreased supply of cheese for the season; but, as stocks held over entered into the summer export, from forwarding movements given to reliable clue to the extent of the extent of the reduction.

The rise in cheese this year began at about the time of the apparent absorption of the last of the stock of 1878, and then it was that the attention of shippers was drawn to the condition of the market as affected by the limited character of the new makes. At this juncture a few bold operators, taking the risk of the market abroad, succeeded in making quite a number of contracts for fall makes, but, as a rule, we understand that factory men refused to sell beyond stocks on hand. The revival of business in England now brought about the same effect in this as in the butter trade, by which we had occasion to refer last week. A rapid and almost uninterrupted rise from 30s to 60s, took place, the price at this port, singularly enough, rather leading that cabled from the other side, upon which it was in reality dependent. The demand freely absorbed all that came forward, and the close of navigation found stocks low in Liverpool, and not large at this port, the total visible supply being generally estimated inadequate to the full requirements for consumption to be felt before the coming of another season.

So it has happened that a most unpromising season at the opening proves a very profitable one at its close. It is true that not a few contracts were made by factory men at low prices, but last year the same plan worked greatly in their favor, and, moreover, the contracts, we believe, were generally made not to extend beyond October. Owing to the prolongation of fair pasturing weather, it is thought that the November make this year has been exceptionally large, in which case the dairymen have somewhat of an offset against their early sales in the high price to be had for unexpectedly late months. In a majority of instances, however, as we have aready stated, farmers refused to contract ahead, and the consequence is that they have reaped a very good proportion of the gross price paid for the season's cheese by consumers abroad. In fact, all interested parties, shippers, handlers, dairymen and farmers, have done well, and have every reason to congratulate themselves upon the outcome of the year's business. As to the future course of the market, if the points we have touched upon seem to suggest a continued upward movement, it should not be forgotten that the unusual November make have a contrary bearing, and furthermore, since consumption has already been so large this season, there would appear to be more than usu l margin for miscalculation as to the demand during the winter months. Added to this is the probability, which we find generally ignored, that consumption will not continue on the ordinary scale of former good years, since the general revival of business, while having a thoroughly sound basis is yet, on the surface, of a somewhat spasmodic and speculative character; moreover the lower prices of meats might well have the effect of turning consumption largely in that direction, to the consequent neglect of cheese. In the present state of trade reactions, extending back in their effects to actual consumers, are not by any means remote possibilities, and perhaps it would be the part of wisdom to regard them as contingencies it were well to provide against.

THE AFGHAN WAR.

Sir F. Roberts has a Two Days' Engagement with the Enemy.

THEY ARE DEFEATED ON ALL SIDES.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—Sir F. Roberts telegraphs on the 23rd inst :—Desultory attacks were kept up all day yesterday. Information was received that a general attack would be made at daybreak to-day. A large number of the enemy was seen occupying the distant villages, and approaching nearer at dark. This morning a fire was lighted on the Asmi Heights. We were apprised that this would be the enemy's signal for an attack. Immediately the attack commenced on three sides, for which we were prepared. On the Behmaroo Heights some thousands collected, and evidently contemplated an assault. As soon as the enemy's intention was fully developed I determined on a counter attack with cavalry and artillery. These issued by the gorge between Behmaroo Heights, opened fire on the enemy's flank and speedily dislodged them. The cavalry pursued and sabred numbers of the enemy, who retired from all points and hastily retreated to the city. We have now occupied some advanced villages, particularly those on the Butkakroyd. Gough's camp is visible, six miles to the east.

Roberts telegraphs on the 24th:—Our success yesterday is complete. The enemy's loss was severe. Our losses are five, including Captain Dundas and Lieut. Nugent by a premature explosion when blowing up the towers of a neighboring village, and 33 wounded. The majority are doing well. Those of the enemy living at Cabul went to their houses after defeat of the Kohistanis and Logaris and remained at Cabul a few hours, but all fled during the night. Two of the enemy's leaders, Mushki Alim, a priest, and Mahomed Jan, fled early in the day. Another prominent leader is reported to have fled with Yakoob Khan's eldest son towards Wardak, with cavalry in pursuit. The Bala Hissar and the city will be taken possession of this afternoon. The former will be occupied if it appears certain that there is no danger from hidden mines. Yakoob Khan's wife, mother, and a daughter of the late Akbar Khan, who it is reported contemplate flight, and who did all in their power to incite the Afghans, will be brought to Shirpur to-day. I telegraphed Bright to push forward detachments from Jugduluk to Lehbaba and Lataband. I will send a force to occupy Butkak tomorrow. Communication with Indin will thus be rapidly restored. Gough's brigade arrived this morning. A slight snow fell last night; all well.

Akbar Khan was the principal opponent of the British in 1841. His daughter, it is reported, distributed £20,000 to incite the Afghans to the present rising.

A Cabul despatch of the 14th, hitherto withheld by the Viceroy, discloses for the first time Roberts' danger at that date. Baker's troops sacked the Cabul suburb. Ayoub Khan's army exasperated the Afghans. This barbarity exasperated the Afghans. 30,000 of whom retook Baker's position and drove the English out in a disorderly retreat. The English steadily evacuated the positions outside Sherpur, but the enemy's fire was tremendous and their bravery is acknowledged.

Berlin rejoices in the possession of a Scientific Cooking Association, formed by house-wives of the city. It has a school of instruction in cookery; and a qualified chemist gives members of the society lectures in practical chemistry. A laboratory has been established, in charge of the chemist, for the examination of articles of food, and, also, of utensils employed in cooking.

Professor lecturing on psychology : "All phenomena are sensations. For instance, that leaf appears green to me. In other words, I have a sensation of greenness within me." Of course no harm was meant, but still the class would laugh.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 30.

West Hastings.

Owing to acts of bribery committed by some of his agents, the election of Alexander Robertson, Esq., as member of the Ontario Legislature for West Hastings has been set aside, with costs against the respondent. That Mr. Robertson had neither knowledge of nor connection with the acts which have caused the voiding of the election, was made perfectly clear, both by his own evidence and that of the witnesses whose testimony was taken in the case.

We are sure that under these circumstances a general feeling of sympathy for Mr. Robertson will be felt throughout the constituency, and it is quite probable that should he again be a candidate, as we have no doubt will be the case, he will be re-elected by acclamation. Should opposition be offered, we expect to see the splendid majority of 337 which was cast for him in June largely increased. That, despite the illegal and indiscreet actions of some of his supporters, Mr. Robertson was the choice of a large majority of the electors who were unbribed and unbought there can be no doubt, and the people owe it to themselves as to him to return that gentleman as their representative.

The Mayoralty.

By the retirement of Mr. Hambly at the eleventh hour, Mr. Reuben S. Patterson has been chosen Mayor of Belleville for 1880. This unexpected result, which, we understand, was brought about through the deliberations of a committee of friends of each of the candidates, appointed by them to arbitrate on their claims, took a large number of the electors by surprise.

Having offered to Mr. Patterson an honorable opposition, believing his late opponent to be the better fitted of the two candidates, we yet have expressed the belief that he would fill the position of Chief Magistrate of the city creditably. We hope that the best anticipations of his friends may be realized, and that he will prove a thoroughly efficient Mayor. In any action which he may take calculated to benefit the city, the INTELLIGENCER will cordially support him.

Afghanistan.

The hopeful anticipations which we ventured to hold forth regarding the situation of the British forces in Afghanistan, despite the gloomy view generally given expression to by our contemporaries, have been fully realized. On the 23rd the enemy, apparently aware that if success was to be theirs, they must oust General Roberts from his stronghold in Shirpur before reinforcements could join and enable him to assume the offensive, attacked his position in great force. Although the assault was made with the utmost bravery, it was as gallantly met and decisively repulsed. The British loss was very slight, while that of the Afghans was so severe that they will scarcely be able to muster in strength again or to cause much further trouble.

On the following day Gough's detachment joined, and communication with India was at once to be restored. Evidently the worst is past, and the task of restoring order will probably be completed at an early day.

Mayoralty Nominations.

TORONTO—James Beatty and Angus Morrison.

OTTAWA—C. H. Mackintosh and John Clancy.

PERSCOTT—William Dunn, elected by acclamation.

NAPANEE—Alexander Henry and Charles James.

HAMILTON—J. E. O'Reilly, by acclamation.

NORTH LANARK.—The name of Mr. James Bethune has been mentioned as a possible candidate for North Lanark in the Reform interest.

PACIFIC RAILWAY CONTRACT.—It is said that $100,000 was paid for section A and C, and $10,000 for section D British Columbia section Canada Pacific Railway by the recent purchasers. Section B was not sold.

SOUTH WENTWORTH.—The result of the scrutiny in the South Wentworth (Local) election case is that Mr. Awrey has been declared elected. Mr. Carpenter (Conservative) was returned as elected by a majority of one vote.

THE AFRICAN WAR.—Despatches have been received from Sir F. Roberts to the 24th inst. He had had a two day's engagement with the enemy, and defeated them on all sides. Cabul and the Bala Hissar are to be repossessed if deemed safe, and communication will be ventured with India. Gen. Gough's force had joined that of Sir Frederick Roberts.

Visit of Ministers.

AN EARLY ARRIVAL AND A HASTY CLANCE AT SOME MANUFACTORIES.

THEIR DEPARTURE FOR MADOC AND MARMORA.

The expected arrival in our city of Sir Leonard Tilley, Sir Charles Tupper and Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, occurred this morning. The weather being cold and stormy, and the hour of arrival early, there was not a large attendance at the Grand Trunk Station to welcome the distinguished gentlemen. That duty was discharged by a deputation composed of Mayor Robertson, Mayor-elect Patterson, Ald. Dickson, McIntosh, and Robertson and W. H. Ponton, Esq.

As the visitors stepped from the train they were welcomed by the deputation, and by a few citizens, and conducted to an omnibus in waiting, in which they were driven to the Dafoe House. Here a considerable number of citizens of both political parties gathered, and after a short delay breakfast was served.

After the morning repast had been discussed, the Ministers, accompanied by several other gentlemen, including Senator Read, Mr. Jos. Keeler, M.P., Jas. Brown, M. P., the Mayor and others, paid a flying visit to Walker & Co's foundry, Tickell's furniture manufactory, Brown's foundry and Burrell's axe factory. In all of these establishments work was found to be "humming," and the visitors were much pleased with what they saw. They then proceeded to the railway crossing, where the special train, which was composed of an engine, three cars and a van, conveying a considerable party, was drawn up awaiting them, and they proceeded on their journey to Madoc.

A representative of the INTELLIGENCER accompanies the party and will give full details of their movements.

It is pleasing to note that, although time did not permit of any formal reception, the welcome accorded to the Ministers was most cordial, and was heartily joined in by our citizens, irrespective of party.

Sir Leonard Tilley will proceed eastward to-night by the midnight express, and Messrs. Tupper and Bowell will to-morrow visit the Trent works at Hastings and the site of the Murray Canal.

They will go to Campbellford to-night, thence to Hastings, inspect the works there, return to Belleville, go to the Carrying Place and view the site of the Murray Canal, and after that is done return to Ottawa.

Recent comparative measurements of the crania of eminent men and of criminals show that, while a capacious intellect requires a large skull, a large cranium is not always attended by a high order of intelligence. The crania of a considerable number of criminals were found to have a capacity much above the average.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

PINE HILL, Ky., Dec. 30.—In 1868 Wm. A. Owens killed Jas. Langford's brother Henry and was acquitted. Langford attempted several times to kill Owens. Once he emptied a shot gun into Owens' back as he was fleeing. Another time he chased Owens several miles on horseback. The latter escaped by taking to the woods. Yesterday they quarrelled at a store. Owens ran home, got a double barrelled shot gun and navy revolver. Returning he met Langford in the road, and emptied both barrels of the gun and four chambers of the revolver at his enemy, the loads of both gun barrels entering Langford's body and three pistol balls passing through his brain. Langford's navy revolver was found strapped to his body. A warrant for the murderer was issued. It is thought he will not attempt to escape. In 1874 John Hickens was shot from the bushes while on the road home. From his striking resemblance to Owens Langford was charged with the murder, it being supposed he mistook his man. He fled, but was captured in 1876 and acquitted. Langford has been mixed in other affairs of bloodshed. Owens killed John Griffin not two miles from the spot of today's tragedy. He was acquitted. In Indiana three years ago he killed a fourth man. He is not more than 23 years, and is the son of one of the best citizens of the County. Opinion is divided as to whether Owens' act was justifiable.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Ex-Cashier Frech and ex-President Veghte, of the Somerset Co. N. J. Bank, were yesterday indicted, the former for embezzlement and the latter for misdemeanor in connection with the affairs of the bank.

Over $2,000,000 were disbursed at the subtreasury here yesterday on account of the January interest on Government funds. The total amount to be disbursed here exceeds $16,000,000.

General Geo. Garrison, a prominent citizen of Newburgh, was arrested yesterday on a civil process at the instance of Geo. D. Boyard, who charged Garrison with having two years ago obtained $10,000 from him by a trick and device.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—Mrs. Zelda Rosen, who occupies a tenement on Orchard Street died suddenly from fright last night on die. covering that thieves had ransack edthe place. She had been suffering from heart disease.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Thomson complains to the Commissioner of Charities and Corrections, that the body of her husband, who died in Bellevue hospital on Dec. 9th, was dissected without authority, and the remains, in a horribly mangled condition sent to her on Christmas.

The President arrived in New York yesterday morning, and after calling on several several friends left for Washington by a fast train at 4 o'clock. In a talk with a Tribune reporter the President said he thought there was no danger of violence in Maine. He did not believe the alleged fraud would be successful, in the face of the public feeling on the subject, and he expected Garcelon and those acting with him to yield. He expressed great confidence in the people of Maine.

Edison's electric light stock, selling a month or two back at $100 or $200 per share, reached $4,000 per share yesterday. Nothing offering at the close under 5,000.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—The Herald's Salt Lake special says it is believed Congress will take no violent measures against Mormonism, except to prohibit polygamy. Reports are that the Mormons are arranging for a footheld in Mexico, where their leaders might take refuge in case of trouble. It is reported that the Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, while offering lands for Mormon occupation, said polygamy would not be tolerated.

AGUSTA, Me., Dec. 30.—It is understood that Major Farley, commandant of the United States arsenal here, has asked reinforcements here to protect Government property in case of a mob outbreak.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 30.—It is announced that early in the spring the Pennsylvania Railway will increase the wages of all its employees. The Company's officers believe such increase will compel the New York Central and other trunk lines to the same. The Pennsylvania Company since '73 has reduced the wages of its employees 25 per cent.

DENVER, Dec. 30.—Communication between Lake City and LosPinos is not broken, but there is no news, official or unofficial, since Friday night. Hatch was to have left for Cline's ranche, 30 miles from LosPinos, yesterday morning. Anxiety is intense. There are fears of another massacre.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 30.—A special from Oxford says a letter from State Librarian Stacy, to Moses Chesley, representative elect, was shown by Chesley to a Republican by mistake. The letter requests him to appear at the capital at an early day with ten good men who will stand by him in case there is opposition to fusionists taking their seats. The letter further says: "Expenses to be paid. Show this to none but true Greenbackers."

DEATH OF "ULSTER SCOT."—Many of our readers will unite with us in expressions of regret at the news received by the last English mail, of the death on the 7th inst., of the Rev. Henry Henderson, of Holywood, Ireland, better known under the nom-de-plume of "Ulster Scot." We have frequently placed before our readers letters written by him in the Belfast Weekly News, "to his friends at home and abroad" several of these having been addressed to the Hon M. Bowell and Mr. Wm. Johnson of this city. The Rev. Henry Henderson was a leading Minister in the Presbyterian Church of Ireland, and while truly loyal to that church was the friend of all other churches and the enemy of none. He was an eloquent speaker and wielded a trenchant pen. He was the author of various works, and lived a busy life; his services as a preacher, lecturer, and writer, being in constant demand. He was a brother of James Alex. Henderson, Esq., proprietor of the Belfast News Letter, and of the Rev. Alexander Henderson, Presbyterian Army Chaplain. It was fully expected that he would have visited Canada during the past year as a representative of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ireland, at the Triennal Council, but illness prevented his coming. He has always been a great friend of Canada and been very attentive to Canadians visiting Ireland.

CABUL, Dec. 29.—Gen. Roberts has occupied the Bala Hissar. The Candahar Cabuleze troops plundered Herat for three days. Ayoob Khan, who is a puppet in their hands, has sent his father-in law here to treat for peace.

The Tay Bridge Disaster.

THE EFFECTS OF A TERRIBLE STORM.

HOW THE DISASTER WAS CAUSED.

LONDON, Dec. 30.—The gale which destroyed the Tay bridge, was the most violent ever seen in Scotland since the memorable storm of January '68. The streets of Dundee are covered with debris. The streets were almost deserted until the rumor of the demolition of the bridge attracted hundreds to the shores of the Tay.

Reports from Glasgow, Paisley, Greenock, and Edinburgh say the storm raged with great violence. It is claimed by some that the bridge was not demolished by the gale, but that one or more back carriages went off the rails, and coming against the lattice works tore the structure to pieces.

BELLEVILLE, TUESDAY, DEC. 30.

City and Vicinity.

Masonic Conversazione.—The brethren of the mystic tie will hold their conversazione to-night. It promises to be a great success.

First Page.—On the first page of to-day's issue will be found the reply of our correspondent "Young Hyson" to a second letter of Mr. W. A. Hungerford on the tea question.

Personal.—Mr. J. F. Wolff, Inspector of Customs, who has been making an official trip through the Maritime Provinces, during the past few weeks, returned to this city on Saturday evening last.

New Year's Eve.—The Workingmen's Temperance Association will hold their annual musical entertainment in their hall in the new Robertson Block to-morrow evening, when a choice programme will be presented to their patrons.

Another.—In addition to the large quota of engines at the G. T. R. sheds in this city, another with six driving wheels was added yesterday. It made its first trip westward this morning with 25 loaded cars and a number of "empties."

School Trustees.—The nominations for School Trustees takes place to-morrow at twelve o'clock, noon, in the same places where the civic nominations were held, and are to be made to the same returning officers as presided yesterday.

Week of Prayer.—A series of prayer meetings to be conducted by city clergymen and laymen, will be held in the different churches here, beginning on Monday evening next and continuing to Sunday evening, the 11th of January.

School of Gunnery.—We observe in the Militia General orders that Corporal Jas. Wood, of the Trenton Garrison Battery, has been granted a third class "short course" certificate, and that Gunner John Arnold, of the Trenton Garrison Artillery, is the recipient of a fourth class "short course" certificate.

The Rink.—The opening of the Skating Rink was not as largely patronized as it merited. This is to be regretted, for the new lessee has used his best efforts towards securing additional comforts for his patrons as well as presenting a fine sheet of ice. The ladies' dressing room is now in the west end of the building, thus making it more convenient than it had been heretofore.

Lumbering.—We are informed that lumbering operations in this part of the country are being prosecuted this season with much more vigor than for some years past, in consequence of a favorable turn in the market. Farmers in the rear townships who supply the lumbermen are reaping considerable benefit in consequence of the duty on corn and oats imported from the United States. Oats which at this date last year, brought 45c. now sell at 55c., whilst hay, which sold at $12 last year, now brings $15 per ton. Last year it was a three days' journey to reach the shanties, whilst this year it is two days' drive, which makes the present prices so much the better.

The Council.—Owing to there being but eight members of the City Council present at the appointed hour of meeting there was no session last evening, as that number was not sufficient to constitute a quorum. A special meeting has been called for Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Weather.—The sleighing, which owing to the mildness of yesterday had exhibited serious symptoms of passing away, was freshened and revived this morning with a slight fall of the fleecy element which greatly improved the slipping and therefore gladdened the hearts of all possessors of fashionable or unfashionable rigs.

Presentation.—On Christmas Day the Rev. F. L. Stephenson, Incumbent of St. Paul's Church, Almonte, was presented with a costly Pocket-Communion Service by his parishoners as a token of their appreciation of his labors among them. Mr. Stephenson was for some time Incumbent of St. John's Church, Stirling, from whence he removed to Almonte in the fall of 1877.

St. Thomas' Church.

THE ORGAN RECITAL LAST NIGHT.

St. Thomas' Church was well filled last night with a select and appreciative audience to hear Prof. Whish's organ recital. The programme consisted of a large number of organ solos, all of which were rendered in Mr. Whish's masterly style, and some vocal music by Mr. and Mrs. Graham, and the members of the choir of the church. To notice all the programme would occupy too much of our space; but some of the pieces rendered cannot be silently passed over. Doubtless the gem of the evening was No. 9—Grand Overture, (Oberon) by Weber. This was the first time this magnificent overture has ever been heard here on the organ, and Mr. Whish succeeded in so interpreting it as to add greatly to his popularity as an organist and to increase the love of all present for this overture, which is so well worthy of Von Weber.

In place of "God Save the Queen" (varied)—No. 17—Mr. Whish played "The Storm." This is the representation of the approach of a storm, and as the storm breaks on us with its peals of thunder followed by the pouring rain, one sits and wonders how such a representation can be produced from the organ, but our wonder soon gives way to delight as the storm passes away, and the sunlight breaks through the clouds in the form of a lovely soft air, which sounded very sweet. The soft stops of the organ were beautifully shown in the "Andante in F Major" by Batiste. The accompaniment of the flute, with the tremolos producing a very beautiful effect. We must also notice No. 6, "Elegy on the Death of a Hero" by Silas. This tested Mr. Whish's ability as a pedalist, but neither in this or in the rendering of the soft, plaintive parts in this piece was he found wanting.

The other organ solos deserving of special notice, we think were No. 1, "Fifth Concerto" by Handel and No. 16 "Grand offertoire on two Christmas Hymns" by Guilmaut.

Mr. Graham sang "Sing ye Praise," by Mendelssohn and also with Mrs. Graham "My song shall be always" by the same composer. Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Milburn sang "I waited for the Lord," the choir singing the chorus. A vocal trio "Like thine Eyes" and a quartette "Cast thy Burden" by Mrs. Falkiner, Mrs. Col. Campbell, Mrs Graham, Mr. Graham and Mr. Van Norman, completed the vocal part of the programme. During the intermission Rev. Mr. Burke took the opportunity of thanking Mr. Whish on behalf of the congregation for his services, and expressed his thanks to all who had in any way helped to restore the church, and also to all present for their attendance. We cannot close this notice without congratulating the St. Thomas' Church congregation on having their church rebuilt, and also on the new and beautiful organ, which we think is a much sweeter toned instrument than the one destroyed by fire.

Truth is always consistent with itself, and needs nothing to help it out. It is always near at hand, and is upon our lips, and ready to drop out before we are aware; but falsehood is troublesome, and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one untruth needs a great many more to make it good.

Promotion Examinations.

The following pupils from Miss Furnival's division, were promoted from the first class to the Second Book:—

Maude Armstrong, Maude Hunter, Mary Morgan, Amy Sharpe, Florence Dafoe, Donald Bain, Lyman Moore, George Leavoy.

From Miss Chambers' division—Fred Brown, George Brown, Eddy Sandon, Willie McMullen, Freeman McMullen, Willie Philpott, Campbell Wallbridge, John Allen, Susy Vanmear, Della Bonter.

From Miss Martin's division—Harry McIninch, Harry Foster, Willie Gibbins, Charles Shepard, George Cole, Eddy Roy, James Allen, Samuel Storrs, Minnie Walker, May Humphreys, Aggie Tammadge, Augusta Stock.

Police Court.

(Before A. Diamond, P. M.)

Tuesday, Dec. 30th, 1879.

DRUNK.

Charles Smith appeared for re-examination on the above charge. Owing to evidence adduced yesterday the case was continued to determine a charge of brutality on the part of Sergeant Snider, who made the arrest. The testimony exonerated the officer, and the defendant was found guilty of the charge and fined $1 and costs and the alternative one week to liquidate the indebtedness.

THE SNOW BY-LAW INFRINGEMENT.

Several cases under this heading were continued.

Vandalism.—Some of the doors on the ferry steamer Prince Edward were forced on Saturday night by some unknown burglar, probably for purposes of plunder. Capt. Jellett reports nothing missing, however.

Reported Drowning.—It was reported this afternoon that a man and horse had broken through the ice near the Institution for the deaf and dumb, and that both had been drowned. To ascertain the truth of the rumor a representative of the office visited the locality where the accident was supposed to have occurred, but could discover no trace of any such event nor hear of any one who had witnessed it, though the report was current on the street.

Accident.—Mr. George Swazie, who resides on Bridge Street, purchased a load of wood on the market this morning and determined to accompany it to his house. The driver proceeded to fill the order given by Mr. S. as to his residence, and both were on top of the load as the loaded sleigh went up Front Street. After conversation with the driver Mr. S. was about to go to the end of the sleigh when his feet slipped from under him and he fell heavily to the road, injuring his back. He was taken to the Dominion House, where he recovered from the effect of the shaking and afterwards was enabled to go home.

THE TAY BRIDGE HORROR.

More than Three Hundred Lives said to be Lost.

NO SURVIVORS.

London, Dec. 29.—The manager of the North British Railway, telegraphing from Leuchars at four this morning, says:—Several large girders along with the last train from Edinburgh were precipitated into the river last night. There were nearly 300 passengers, besides the Company's servants, all of whom are believed to have perished.

A despatch from Edinburgh at four this morning says the portion of the bridge which fell consisted of several large superincumbent girders at the central or navigable portion of the river, which averages from 30 to 45 feet in depth. The train would fall about 88 feet before reaching the water. Some time elapsed before the nature of the disaster was ascertained, the damage to the wires on the bridge and the badness of the weather having interfered with the transmission of the news. Whether the girders were blown down before the train entered the bridge or were carried away with it will probably never be ascertained, as there are no survivors. The bridge was only opened for traffic in May, 1878. It was considered a triumph of engineering skill. It was about two miles long, and had 85 spans, the widest of which was 245 feet. At the highest point it was 130 feet above high water. The train left Edinburgh at 4.15 in the afternoon. It consisted of four third-class cars, one first-class, one second-class, and the brakemen's van. At the last station before entering the bridge the tickets were taken; the train was then crowded. Vast quantities of wreckage—doors and roofs of carriages, pieces of the bridge, and apparel—are coming ashore. The entire thirteen girders of the long central span are gone. The night was bright moonlight, but the wind was blowing a hurricane.

The Provost of Dundee and the citizens who accompanied him in a steamer to the scene of the disaster have returned. A search about the bridge in small boats revealed no trace of any survivors. The gap in the bridge is about half a mile long, comprising eleven of the longest spans, each 245 feet in length, and one of 145 feet.

A dispatch from Dundee asserts that the number of lives lost by the Tay bridge disaster does not exceed 90. This is probably under the estimate. Six bodies have been recovered.

London, Dec. 29.—The railway authorities now estimate the total lives lost at 75. A telegram from Dundee states that only fifty-six passenger tickets were taken at th last stopping place, but these do not account for a number of young children requiring no tickets, nor for a number of passengers for Broughty Ferry, whose tickets were not taken up. However, if this statement is correct it is evident that the loss of life has been greatly over-estimated.

The Government has sent two inspectors to ascertain the particulars of the Tay bridge disaster, and also directed a formal inquiry into the occurrence. Divers so far have been unable to discover the wrecked train. They will make another effort today. The place where the train sank is full of quicksands, and if the bodies drowned are not recovered within a few days they will become imbedded with the cars beyond recovery.

The Queen has telegraphed to the Provost of Dundee tendering her condolence with the bereaved. Only one body so far has been recovered, and that one was badly mutilated.

Various accounts agree in placing the total loss of life by the Tay disaster at 90.

Cooing is well enough before marriage, but the billing dosen't generally come till after; and then it comes from silk dresses and other articles.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

London, Dec. 30.—10,000 miners are on strike in the Mons district, Belgium.

London, Dec. 30th.—The severe gales of Sunday extended to Boscastle, Edinburgh, Stranraer, Greenock, Yarmouth, Liverpool and Plymouth. Much damage to property on land and some to shipping, including the loss of a French barque and 8 men.

The official report of the North British Railroad in regard to the Tay bridge casualty, says, the falling girders made a very clean break. From that portion which remains standing, almost the only signs of a smash are the ends of the rails on which the trains ran, which are torn asunder. The rails remaining are wrenched out of their chairs for a few yards.

Caretows, Dec. 30.—A meeting of Boers on the 10th inst. dispersed quietly after adopting a resolution to maintain the demand for independence of the Transvaal and to elect Valks Road. Paul Kruger declines to the leadership and instructed to summon Volks Road. Another meeting is to take place on the 6th of April. Sir Garnet Wolsley, at a public dinner, said henceforward the Transvaal would be regarded as a Crown Colony.

London, Dec. 30.—It is reported that three more bodies has been washed ashore from the scene of the Tay bridge disaster. All the mails are recovered.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 30.—It is understood Russian the mission has been offered to Gen. Burnside, through Gov. Van Zandt, but both felt compelled to decline.

Sherman, Texas, Dec. 30.—The Opera House and adjoining buildings have been burned. $40,000.

Boston, Dec. 30.—Mrs. Helen Josephine Ward, living with her daughter, aged 19, was fatally shot last night while asleep. From what the daughter says while in a state of somnambulism she shot her mother who occupied the same bed.

Newport, Me., Dec. 30.—The Republicans held a large indignation meeting last night, presided over by Rev. David Boyd. Several earnest speeches were made by prominent Republicans. Resolutions severely condemning the action of the Governor and Council were adopted.

Petersburg, Va. Dec. 30.—One hundred and seventeen colored emigrants from Goldsboro, N. C., arrived en route for Washington, from which place they go to Indianapolis, consisting of men, women and children. Several hundred more will soon follow.

CAST ON THE WORLD:

OR,

The Border Marriage.

A STORY OF THE GREAT GLASGOW BANK ROBBERY.

CONTINUED.

One day Tobby, greatly to his amazement got some enlightment on the subject. They had been for months travelling through the English provinces, and as the waning year had passed beyond the close of autumn, and the cold weather of the approaching winter would soon make travelling about in the caravan impracticable, they were shaping their course in the direction of London, where they were to take up their quarters till longer days and warmer weather again came round.

In the course of their progress they arrived one afternoon in a pretty little village in one of the rural districts, and as it was some distance to the next town, all thought they might as well remain there for the night, and improve the time by giving a performance.

Accordingly, as soon as the vehicle was pitched, the stage was got out, and the village crier sent through with an announcement of the performance. Many of the villagers were already aware of the arrival of the show folks, and an eager and half expectant crowd was collecting and fast increasing in front of the caravan. In due time Silas, with Charlie and Mrs. Jones, came out in their gaudy dresses, and the performance began.

Charlie was now nearly as clever a dancer on the tight-rope as Myra, and the two children enhanced the crowd as they did everywhere. Being so handsome and pretty, so young, and so very active and graceful in their movements, they at once gained the hearts of the simple country people, who were at once full of wonder and loud applause.

On such occasions Tobby was generally going about here and there, noticing that everything was right, and he, hearing to look through a crevice in the caravan, noticed that the horse, which was tethered at a little distance, had drawn up the stave, and was moving away. So he made his way out by the back, and went to fasten him.

This done, he was leisurely returning, and stood still in the outskirts of the crowd to look with pride and joy on the clever doings of the two objects of his fondest love. As he stood there, he was conscious of the approach of a man and woman, who came along a lane, and took up a position close behind him. He was paying no heed to them till a remark suddenly made by the woman caused him to listen with intense eagerness.

'Bless me, Dick, if my eyes don't deceive me that's Charlie.'

'What's that you say?' returned the man, with a start.

'The little 'un dancing on the rope! By all that's wonderful, it's Charlie!'

'I'm blessed if that same thought didn't strike me, Bet. But it ain't possible; it's only a likeness, though an uncommon strong one, I must say.'

'It's more than a likeness,' rejoined Bet. 'It's actually the boy.'

'Oh, nonsense! How can that be Charlie? Didn't we leave him in Glasgow to shift for himself only four months ago covered with dirt, and hardly a rag on him? So you say that he has, dressed like a little lord, and as pretty as the squire's little boy at the Hall? And, then, see how he dances! Why, Charlie couldn't dance a step.'

'For all you say, I tell you that is Charlie,' persisted Bet. 'Do you think I would be mistaken?

'Why not? You ain't his mother to know him by nature.'

'If I ain't his mother, I brought him up from he was a child of two days old or so, and 'taint likely I wouldn't know him anywhere, or take another boy for him. That's Charlie as sure as you and I stand here.'

'Well, it is uncommon like him,' said Dick, dubiously, staring the while towards Charlie as if his eyes would leap from their sockets.

'Hang it,' he added, 'I do believe you are right.'

'I know I'm right,' said Bet, in the same undoubting tones.

'Then, good Lord, how has he got to be with the show folks, and become so clever as that?

'That man must have picked him up,' said Bet.

'I say,' rejoined Dick, hastily, 'we had better go in case he gets his eye on us, and want to live with us again. That's what I won't have at no rate. He is neither chick nor child of ours that we should be burdened with him, and the money we got with him is gone many a year ago. Come now, Bet, let us go.'

'He's quite a picture to look at, him and that little girl. Who'd have thought Charlie could have been made to look like that?'

'Come along, I tell ye,' repeated Dick dragging her forcibly away.

'I say,' whispered Tobby to a man who stood near, 'do you know who these two are?'

And he pointed to the retreating forms of Dick and Bet.

'Them,' replied the man, 'that's Dick Morris and his wife.'

'What are they?'

'He's the new under-keeper at the Hall, and has just come to this parish.'

'What's the name of the Hall?'

'Singleton Hall—Squire Carlton's place.'

'Oh, thank you,' murmured Tobby, and limped away back to the caravan.

What he had heard that evening cost him the greater part of his night's sleep. His suspicions regarding Charlie were more than verified, and, as he mused and reflected on the dark business, his heart yearned with pity and compassion, and he drew the sleeping boy close to his heart, and holding him there, he too, fell asleep.

About the first thing Tobby did when he rose in the morning was to enter the following in his note-book:—

'Dick Morris, under-keeper at Squire Carlton's Singleton Hall. October, 1811.

Within a week Silas Morgan's caravan reached London, the horse was sold, the vehicle stored away in an empty shed, and the occupants took up their quarters in Ratcliff Highway.

There we shall leave Charlie for the present, and proceed to describe more exciting scenes.

MURNEY WARD.

Your Vote and Influence

ARE RESPECTFULLY SOLICITED FOR

JAMES H. SIMPSON.

As ALDERMAN for 1880.

To the Electors of MURNEY WARD.

GENTLEMEN:—I again solicit your vote and influence for Alderman, for the year 1880.

Yours faithfully,
J. O. VANDUSEN.

Belleville, Dec. 15, 1879.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $3 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $200 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $200 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

Ageon Entering.	Entrance Fee.	Annual Assessment on Death of Mem'b'r
From 16 to 20 yrs.	$4.40	$2.50 ..... $80.38

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health, and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach; and we make the unqualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed and prescribed by more physicians for Consumption and the diseases leading to it, such as Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anæmia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine diet, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, NEW YORK, September, 1876.

GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious.

A. H. SAXTON, M. D., Baltimore.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that I have ever used. In my practice, in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form.

C. C. LOUKWOOD, M. D.

Yours truly,
J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

December 19th, 1878.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve, and early in the winter, I began to raise blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning cough, night sweats, short breath, and a return of the spinal trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I lost all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all well. The following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats ceased, appetite returned, pains in spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 118 to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not been able to walk for months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he bought two more, then got a dozen and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many persons and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable remedy.

LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.

Yours truly,
H. F. SLOCUM, Lowell, Mass.

Jan. 20th, 1879.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:

About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so prostrated that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and some two or three have already taken it. I am really out doing for every. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Loss of Appetite, Nervous Prostration, Asthma and Consumption

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effects from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, James I. Fellows, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by the first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly orthodox preparation.

For Ague, Anemia, Intermittent Fevers, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MERCER CO., MISSOURI, May, 1879.

THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING CO.

GENTS.—We have used your Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague.—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption or Anemia or General Debility. We should recommend it as an excellent remedy we know of.

Epileptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN. JANUARY 4th, 1878.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—I have delayed writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effects of your medicine, I can now safely say that it is a blessing to me. I have not had a fit since I commenced to use it, and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have died. I am really out doing for every. I am gratefully yours,

R. W. HAMILTON, M. D.

Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.

SIR;—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me, I have been ailing over 40 years with a number of diseases but lung difficulty was the most prominent, I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and, as directed, sent to try your medicine, and I found its effects were almost magical to me and I was a stranger to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for this under any circumstances.

THE OLD YEAR AND THE NEW

The Old Year's going: the sobbing wind
Is wailing its requiem-moan,
An old man sits by the dying fire,
In his solemn home alone.
Watching the ember's fitful glow,
The darkly falling shadow;
Lower his head drops on his breast—
Faster the firelight fades.

"Tis near! 'Tis near! The fair New Year!
But I welcome it not," he cries;
"And gladly I lay my burden now,
As the Old Year's echo dies.
For I am weary of living with all its din,
Weary of sin and pain,
Weary of winning but Dead-Sea fruits,
Of toiling for shadows vain.
Take me, Old Year, to your peaceful grave,
Where they're borne the friends of my life;
Take me to rest, for I'm wearied now
With my long, long day of strife."

"Dying! Dying!" the breezes sob;
"Dead!" new floats on the wave;
The shadows deepen, the fire is dim—
The Old Year rests in its grave.
The silence grows deeper; a peaceful light
Rests on the old man's face;
The Old Year's dead, and he sleepeth, too—
The last of an honored race.

* * * * * * *

"Farewell to the Old! Hail, hail to the New!
The New of joy and mirth!
How can men bear to die and leave
Their beautiful Mother-Earth;
Fair, shining world, with its wealth and fame,
And noble hearts and true;
Bright, glorious life, whose rainbow-tints
Just burst upon my view!
Your battles I fear not, for I will be
The victor in every field;
Long may I live to taste the sweets
Your stores or bounty yield!"
Thus spake the youth of the sunny brow
As he greets the New Year entering now.

The world so trusted will soon deceive;
Then wilt thou be as glad to leave
As the weary man whose flickering light
Went out on the Old Year's parting night.

HOW THE YEAR WENT.

Cold lay the midnight, cold and black
On sleeping earth and sea;
The moon paused on her pallid track
And the stars crept out to see.

As, bowed with age and bleak,
The Old Year took his way
Across Earth's little atmosphere
Toward the slow-moving day.

A sound of revel smote and rang
In glorious, merry din,
"The New Year comes," glad voices sang;
"Arise and let him in."

Sadly the Old Year paused; a sigh
Broke from his brave old heart,
"The world cares not that I must die,
And smiles to see me part.

"When I was young, it welcomed me
With gifts and song and praise.
Have I not served it faithfully
These many months and days?

"Why should men joy to see me go—
I, their old, loving friend,
Departing, grieved not sad and slow,
With none to watch my end?"

But as the old year spoke a sound
Of voices low and sweet
Struck on his ear, and, peering round,
He stayed his lagging feet.

Two lovers leaned them side by side.
On either cheek a tear,
And with a strong, and voice, one cried:
"Good-bye, good-bye, Old Year!

"Good-bye, O kindly friend and true,
Who wove our lives in one,
Other good years may come; but you
Are still our dearest one."

Then smiled the old year as he went,
His misty eyes shone bright,
And fearless now and quite content,
He fared into the night.

And when he met the New-born Year,
All rosy, blithe and gay,
He chessed him with a father's cheer,
And sped him on his way.

"Heaven go with thee, fair son, and keep:
And this thy guerdon be,
That at thy end some eyes may weep
As they have wept for me."

The Red Light.

A STORY OF NEW YEAR'S EVE.

It was New Year's eve.

Not one of the ideal New Year's eves of poets and romance writers, wherein the moon is at the full, the snow shows always a sparkle, like pulverized diamonds, and the air always still and cold and clear; but a stormy twilight, with the snow driving heavily from the east, the wind, raw and biting, and the sky—what you could see of it—as black as ink.

But it was New Year's eve, all the same, and Bertha Hooper's cheeks were as red as the bitter sweet berries in the woods, as she sat, all wrapped up in the train that was speeding northward on her way to spend New Year's with her Aunt Almira Higgins.

New Year in the country! To Bertha, who had lived all her life in the brick walls and stone pavements of a city, the very words seemed to convey somewhat of cheer and joyusness And Bertha, as she sat with her eyes closed, and her little gloved hands safely nestled in a gray squirrel muff, beheld in her mind's eye, great fires of logs roaring up wide-throated chimneys, and had half composed a poem on New Year and its associations, when the ruthless conductor came along for her ticket.

'How far are we from Montcourt station?' she inquired, as she gave up the bit of pasteboard.

'Next but one, miss,' said the man, as he hurried on, with his lantern under his arm. 'Half an hour yet.'

She had never been so far from New York in all her life before. The driving rain in which she had left her home had changed, as they progressed northward, in a steady fall of snow, which fluttered around them like a white waving shroud. But Bertha Hooper cared little for this. Had not aunt Almira promised to send Zebedee, her youngest son, to the station with the pony to meet her on the arrival of the sixty-four train from New York! And was not Zebedee to have a lantern with a red glass door to it, so that she could identify him at once?

She was very pretty as she sat there in her little black velvet toque, with its curling plume of cardinal red, and the wine-red at her throat—pretty with the bloom and freshness of 18 years. She was dark, with large hazel eyes, almond shaped and long-pointed, a clear, rosy bloom on either cheek, and wavy dark hair hanging in silken fringe over her broad, low forehead.

'Mont—court—sta—tion!' bawled the brakeman, putting in a snowpowdered fur cap, and withdrawing it again as quickly as if he had been a magnificent edition of the Jack-in-a-box, wherein children must rejoice at holiday time. And Bertha Hooper knew that she had reached her destination.

Stiff and cramped from the length of time in which she had been sitting in one position, she rose up, with a little steel-clasped travelling bag in one hand, and a dainty silk umbrella in the other, and made her way to the door.

All she could see when she stepped out upon the wet and slippery platform was a blurr of driving snow, through which the lights of the solitary little country depot gleamed fitfully; but the next instant something flashed across her vision like a friendly red-eye—and beneath the reflection over the station door, she saw a tall fine looking young man, in a fur-trimmed overcoat; a sealskin cap sat jauntily on one side of a crop of chestnut curls, and a red-lighted lantern swinging from his left hand, as he stood straining his eyes into the stormy darkness, as if to catch sight of some familiar face in the little crowd.

'Cousin Zebedee!' cried Bertha, aloud, and she made one spring into the arms of this blonde-whiskered young giant. For had not she and Zebedee played dominoes and fox and geese together, in the days when she wore blue ribbon sashes, and his hair was a closely shaven mass of carroty red!

'Oh! Cousin Zebedee, I'm so glad to see you; and I hadn't any idea you had grown half so handsome!'

And she gave him a great hug, at the same time holding up her rosebud lips for a kiss.

But, to her infinite amazement, the hero of the sealskin cap seemed a little backward in responding to her cousinly advances.

'I—I beg your pardon,' said he slightly receding, 'but I am afraid there is some mistake. My name is not Zebedee, and the lady for whom I am looking is some years older than you.'

Bertha Hooper started back, coloring and confused; and, as she did so, a fat comfortable-looking old lady came trundling along the platform, in an Indian shawl and a box of Russia sable worth its weight in greenbacks.

'Charley!' she cried, 'I thought I should never find you. Is the carriage here?'

'All here, and waiting Aunt Effie,' responded the young man; but he still hesitated a second, as Bertha Hooper stood with averted face and motionless figure in the shadow of the building.

'Can I be of any service to you?' he asked. 'If you are expecting friends who have failed to meet you—'

'Anybody here by the name of Berthy Hoo co-per!' shouted a stentorian voice; and a tall, raw looking lad with a lantern—also lighted with red glass—rushed shuffling around the corner.

Zebedee himself! Zebedee, red-haired and shambling and awkward as he had been in the old fox and geese days.

'Oh!' said he catching up his lantern, so that the scarlet lard's wings dashed out, like a spit of flame—scarcely more scarlet, alas! than Bertha's own face. 'Here you be! I'm a little late, for the roads is so all-fired bad I couldn't start the pony out of a walk. Come on! How de do! Be you very cold?'

'Zebedee,' said Bertha, clinging almost hysterically to her cousin's arm, 'Who's that young gentlemen with—with the other lantern?'

'Eh!' said Zebedee. 'That feller with the old lady in a patch work shawl?'

'Yes!'

'It's Charley Harcourt, the Squire's son,' said Zebedee. 'Just come from furrin parts.'

'Zebedee,' said Bertha, with a curious little sound between a laugh and a sob; 'put me into the cutter quick; and drive me somewhere. I don't care where! Because—'

'Eh!' said Zebedee, staring hard at his cousin, as he patted the buffalo robe around her before touching up the laggard old pony.

'Because,' added Bertha, in a species of desperation, 'I took Mr. Harcourt for you; and I hugged him and I kissed him.'

'Is that all?' said philosophical Zebedee. 'He won't care!'

'No,' said Bertha, 'but I shall!'

'You ain't crying, be you?' said Zebedee, noting the quiver in his cousin's voice.

'How can I help it?' wailed poor Bertha. 'I wasn't no fault o'yourn,' said Zebedee, consolingly.

'Of course it wasn't' said Bertha, impatiently. 'How was I to know that every lantern at Montcourt had a red glass to it!'

And poor little Bertha cried herself to sleep that night.

The next morning—New Year's day, all snowed up into glorious drifts everywhere—Mr. Harcourt drove over to the Higgins farmhouse. The young lady had dropped a fur glove on the platform, and Mr. Harcourt felt it his duty to restore it to her. And, moreover—here Mr. Charley Harcourt hesitated a little—he hoped Miss Hooper would excuse him for being so stupid as to allow her to fancy him her cousin.

'I ought to have explained sooner,' said he.

'No, you ought not,' said Bertha. 'The fault was all mine.'

'I don't recognise a fault anywhere,' said he. 'And if I am pardoned—'

'Of course you are!' said Bertha, rosier and prettier than ever.

'In that case, I am commissioned by my mother to ask your aunt's permission to take you over to help us finish dressing the church in time for morning service. My horse is waiting.'

'May I go, Aunt Almira?' said Bertha, with sparkling eyes.

'Of course you may,' said Aunt Almira.

And so poor Zebedee was left out in the cold.

What was the end of it all? There is but one sequel to stories like this, when youth and bright eyes and human hearts are concerned. The next New Year's eve Bertha Hooper and Charley Harcourt were married. But the bridegroom persists in declaring that Bertha did the first of the love making.

And Bertha only laughs.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 31.

1879.

The closing hours of the year 1879 are ebbing rapidly as we write, and before the INTELLIGENCER again greets its readers the old year will have passed away and 1880 will have stepped upon the scene, bringing in its train new hopes and fears, new aspirations and new duties.

A retrospective glance shows that 1879 has been a most important one in the history of the Empire, the Dominion and of the City of Belleville in particular, whilst events of much historical interest have also happened in foreign countries. Its first month witnessed the commencement of war with the Zulus of South Africa, one of the early fruits of which was the bloody massacre of Isandula. The death of the young Prince Imperial of France, in the service of the land in which his parents found shelter, will also render memorable for all time the Zulu war. After the expenditure of much blood and treasure, the Kaffirs have been subdued and their monarch Cetewayo is now a prisoner in the hands of his conquerors. Later, war broke out with Afghanistan, and after a comparatively slight resistance the natives were apparently subdued and Yakoob Khan placed on his father's throne. Closely succeeding this event was the massacre of Sir Pierre Cavagnari, the British Resident at Cabul, which treacherous and detestable act was speedily punished. Seizing another opportunity, the warlike Afghans once more rose against the invaders. The result, as told in our dispatches a few days ago, was the complete defeat of the enemy. Successful thus in the field, it is gratifying to state that our brother Britons are experiencing the beneficial effects of a revival in sundry branches of trade. Still, the harvest was so deficient in quantity and the crops so poor in quality that the depression in the agricultural interest counterbalances very largely the benefits of the improvement in the manufacturing interest. Ireland, too, is laboring severely from the bad harvest, and to add to the other ills under which she is suffering a crowd of demagogues have caused an agitation amongst the suffering people on the rent question. Let us hope that 1880 has brighter things in store for the United Kingdom, and that prosperity may return to all its members.

The year has been one of the most important in the history of the Dominion. The return of the Conservative party to power has been productive of highly beneficial effects. By the changes effected in the fiscal policy of the Government, a great stimulus has been given to the manufacturing interests of the country, whilst the mining and agricultural industries have also been considerably benefitted. A more than usually bounteous harvest has blessed the country, and if the same measure of prosperity as the Dominion enjoyed in 1879 has not yet been reached, a long stride has been made towards it. Confidence once more restored in business circles, trade generally reviving and important steps in the development of our natural resources taken, the construction of the Pacific Railway pushed forward with vigor, and the settlement of the North-west largely accelerated, are results of the wise and patriotic policy of our present rulers, favored as their efforts have been by the adventitious aid of an abundant harvest.

The Province of Ontario has continued to advance on the path of progress, despite a very large emigration, principally of the agricultural classes, to Manitoba and the North-West. The great lumber industry, so long depressed, has taken a decided turn for the better, and it is to be hoped that this change will endure for a long time. A general election for the Legislature took place during the year, and very unexpectedly resulted in increasing the majority of our present rulers. That they may prove more economical in the future than in the past is very much to be desired.

An event of much moment in the history of our city is the completion and opening for traffic of the Belleville and North Hastings Railway throughout and of the Grand Junction to Hastings, thus opening up to our merchants by the latter opening up to our merchants by the latter line a fine section of country which had hitherto been tributary to Cobourg, Peterborough and other places. Our railroad interests wear the most promising aspect now that they have done for years past, as the completion of the Grand Junction to a connection with the Midland at Omemee seems assured for 1880. The benefit of Belleville being thus placed on a through line—and that the shortest practicable—to the North-west need not be dilated upon, as thus only can a return be secured for the liberal bonuses given to the road. A forthcoming event of the North Hastings line of connection of the North Hastings line into the great iron and gold region also seems quite probable, and the construction of the long deferred Murray Canal appears at length to be likely of attainment. We have perhaps departed from the subject in speaking of benefits in prospect instead of those already secured, but as the initial steps towards the prosecution of these enterprises have been taken in 1879, they form to that extent part of the passing year's history. Despite the influences of the "hard times" which are now happily passing away from our city as from the rest of the country, we were yet able to report an expenditure of $104,310 on building operations during this season. Several stately business buildings and many beautiful residences have been added to these already existing, and in the time to come 1879 will not be noted as the least progressive year in the history of Belleville. Here, as elsewhere, the National Policy has had an effect in causing an extension of the business of existing industries, the starting of new and the reopening of idle ones. With thanks to the bestower of all bounties for past favors, and with bright hopes for the future, we wish all our readers "A HAPPY NEW YEAR."

Scenes and Incidents of the TRIP.

OFF FOR HASTINGS AND TRENTON.

The inspection of the manufactories in Belleville occupying about an hour, it was after nine o'clock before the train left the Grand Trunk Station for Madoc. About one hundred and thirty persons comprised the party, among whom were Mayor Robertson, Senator Read, Dr. Boulter, M.P.P., Thos. Wills, C. L. Coleman, Thos. Kelso, Geo. E. Henderson, Aldermen Dickson, Robertson, Farley, McIninch and Patterson, Jno. Brenton, J. J. B. Flint, Dr. W. J. Palmer, C. J. Starling, Hector Cameron, M.P., E. O. Bickford, Jas. Brown, M.P., M. C. Wesler, M.P., and many other of the leading men of the country. Letters were received from E. W. Rathbun, Esq., Mill Point, and from N. S. Appleby, M.P.P., regretting their inability to accompany the distinguished guests in their visit to the mineral industries in Madoc and Marmora.

Arriving at Madoc station at 10:05, a number of the leading citizens of the village and surrounding country got on board, among whom were A. F. Wood, Esq., T. P. Pearce, Warden of the County; A. B. Ross, M. Empey, S. D. Ross, R. T. Gray, J. T. Breeze and others, and in five minutes more the train was on its way to the mines. Owing to some misunderstanding the train passed the Seymour mine and did not stop until it reached the depot of the Coe and Mitchell mine. Here the party disembarked and took sleighs for the mine, about half a mile distant. There were some thirty cutters and sleighs, so that ample accommodation was provided for all. Preparations had been made for a couple of blasts, and after a few minutes inspection of the mine and the surroundings, the blasts were sent off. According to an estimate of a practical man one of the blasts would probably yield 130 tons, while the other loosened over 200 tons.

A brief stop was made in examining the results of the blast, when the party again took sleighs for the train with, the intention of returning to the Seymour mine, about a mile down the track towards Madoc. But here an unexpected delay occurred, in consequence of the engineer having misunderstood orders, for when the party reached the railway no train was visible. However, it was determined to make the best of a bad bargain, and the sleighs again came into use, and after a little native Anglo-Saxon grumbling, the party proceeded to the Seymour mine, where as soon as the party had arrived, a blast was sent off. A few moments were spent in the inspection of the mine and its surroundings, the distinguished guests evidently taking a great interest in the development of the iron industries. As the time at the disposal of the party was short, in a few moments more the company had again embarked in sleighs and were on their way to Malone, where it was proposed to take a lunch, but here another unfortunate hitch occurred in the arrangements, the lunch having been sent forward to the Gatling mine. However, after a few moments spent in examining the Feigel mine mill, under the direction of David Stewart, lessee, which was then running, another start was made, and in an hour after the famous Gatling mine was reached. Here lunch was already on the table, under the superintendence of a staff of employees from the Dafoe House, and, we need hardly say, full justice was done to it. Gen. Tuttle, the Managing Director of the Gatling mine, received the party, and conducted them to different points of interest in the vicinity. Mr. Dickson, President of the Gatling mine, showed the Ministers various specimens of the ores, and explained at considerable length the position of the mine, the quality of the ore, and the prospects of the future. A very pleasant hour was spent here, Sir Leonard Tilley and Sir Charles Tupper taking a most careful interest in what they saw, and making a minute and thorough inspection of the ores. About 4 o'clock another start was made, the next point of interest being the Dean & Williams mine, which is now being got ready for operation under the direction of Mr. McFarlane. It is hardly necessary for us to refer to the condition of these mines, as it is only a short time since that a very full description of them appeared in the INTELLIGENCER.

The return to Madoc was made via the overland route and the village was reached about six o'clock.

It was a most enjoyable ride, the weather was delightful, the air cold and clear and bracing, the sleighing splendid—a genuine Canadian winter's day. Some of the principal residents of the village and township had volunteered their teams, so that there was ample accommodation for all who chose to avail themselves of the trip.

After warming themselves, the guests were escorted to the Masonic Hall by the band playing some lively airs, and a large procession of the inhabitants. The hall was beautifully decorated with flags, mottoes and evergreens and was crowded to the door, the aisles being full. The chair was taken by A. F. Wood, Esq., Chairman of the Committee, who after a few introductory remarks presented the following address:—

To SIR LEONARD TILLEY,
Minister of Finance,
SIR CHARLES TUPPER,
Minister of Railways and Canals.
HON. MACKENZIE BOWELL,
Minister of Customs.

GENTLEMEN,—On behalf of the citizens of Madoc and vicinity I have much pleasure in extending to you a hearty welcome to North Hastings, and beg to assure you that we are deeply sensible of the importance of such a visit to the mining interests of this part of Ontario.

Your personal inspection to-day of a few of our mines of gold and iron will give you some idea of the value and probable extent of these important mineral interests, and enable you hereafter more intelligently to prepare and discuss the necessary legislation that is likely to present itself for your consideration.

We would respectfully remind you that we are not alone a mineral district, but that North Hastings has large tracts of agricultural lands producing all cereals, and that almost every neighborhood has its factory for the manufactury of cheese. But while this is the case, at the same time you are aware that our mineral interests are of vast importance and of great value both as to quality and extent.

The value and quality of gold will speak for itself, but I am safe in assuring you that the class and quality of iron ore produced in this region is not excelled in any part of this continent. That capitalists are eagerly seeking investments whenever opportunity offers, and the many enquiries the United States are asking contracts for our ore far beyond our means at present to supply, and are offering prices that but a year ago would have seemed fabulous.

In the two iron mines visited to-day you have the two kinds of ore produced in this region. The "Seymour" being a rich magnetic "Bessemer" ore with a rich percentage of iron of 70 28-100. The "Wallbridge" being a red Hematitic very rich and valuable. Then in immediate proximity is the "Dufferin," an iron mine of wonderful richness and extent, and close by are the "Nelson," the "Hastings," the "Thompson," the "Moore," the "Cameron," the "Sixsmith," and many others of equal richness and value, And within a radius of a few miles are gold mines of supposed great value. The "Feigel" and "Dale" mines, visited to-day give you some idea of the character of our gold mines and the quality of ore produced and the success attending the crushing in the mills attached to these mines. Close by are the "Gatling" and the "Dean & Williams" and to the east of the road travelled to-day is the famous "Richardson," noted for its wonderful "pockets" which, however, are now rather empty, but practical miners believe that capital properly applied would soon reveal treasures in that mine of the richness of which "not one half has been told us."

But while the value of our mines is being developed to a certain extent, what we most need is such encouragement to capitalists as will influence the development of these valuable iron ores in our own country.

The policy of the members of the present Government of the Dominion in visiting the different sections of the great country and becoming personally acquainted with its resources and requirements is one that commands the hearty thinking citizens of the Dominion, and we are led to hope that what you have seen to-day may induce to some legislative action that will bring about a larger and more perfect development of our ores and their manufacture on Canadian territory.

At the present moment the people of North Hastings are watching with much interest the probable prospects of the Murray Canal, for by that route when constructed will we hope be supply the demand of the world for our iron ores, which they must have from this section or from Lake Superior, and by the opening up of this water way we can command the market as cheaply as any section, and we are also of the impression that the time is not far distant, if it is not almost at hand, when the great lakes will be the highways over which we deliver near our doors as return cargoes coals from the east, with which by timely legislation we hope to see two important interests, the iron and coal of Canada, fostered and become here, as it has in Great Britain, the foundation of the nation's wealth.

In conclusion we would say that while we have not the unbroken prairies of the west lately visited by the Minister of Customs, nor the fertile country of Western Ontario, visited a short time since by the Minister of Finance nor have we a country particularly adapted for the building of railways, a department over which the Minister of Railways so ably presides, yet we would remind you that the stones of our country are iron, and out of our hills we dig gold, and that you produce the material out of which railways are made, and though we may not possess the soft words or the polish of dictation by which our presiding would fall as smoothly on your ears as in more favored sections, yet our words are true and our greeting is the welcome of a country who are proud of their country, and of the government who so ably administer its affairs and that in the exercise of our constitutional rights we have contributed a member to that Government—a Minister of whom no one doubts that he will bring ability and industry to the Department over which he presides. The grasp of the hands in welcome that you have received to-day may be hands hardened with toil, but they are the hands of men who love their country and its institutions and are equally prepared to add to its material wealth by honest labor and industry, defend its liberties or give an honest and hearty welcome to men whom they believe are seeking to maintain the constitutional liberty of the country.

Again we extend a cordial and hearty greeting.

(Signed,) A. F. WOOD.
Chairman of Committee.

HON. MR. BOWELL, who was first called upon, said as they had met to hear the two distinguished gentlemen, Sir Leonard Tilley and Sir Charles Tupper, whom he had the honor to accompany on a visit to his constituents, it was not his intention to occupy their time at any length. It afforded him peculiar gratification to meet so many of his constituents as had it been his privilege to do to-day, and to have with him two of his colleagues, who had occupied such distinguished positions in the political history of the country and whom he had prevailed upon to visit this part of the country and see for themselves its magnificent mineral resources. They all know the issues that were before the country at the last election. The country had been well nigh ruined under the "fly on the wheel" policy of their predecessors, and instead of making an effort to revive the crippled industries of the country, they threw every obstacle in the way of its accomplishment. The Conservative party went to the country with the protective policy nailed to their mast, and they all know how triumphantly the country sustained them. What was the result of that policy? Why in every part of the country new manufactures had been established, old ones long closed had been re-opened, the workingman who had only been employed half time was working in full day, new capital had been introduced into the country, and instead of depression and gloom we saw everywhere signs of returning prosperity. Referring to the charges against the management of his own department by the Opposition press, he said it was in the interests of the country that a most liberal bonding system should be adopted, and the experience of the past few months showed that that system gave every satisfaction except to inveterate grumblers, who were determined never to be satisfied. Respecting the sugar trade one day the Globe stated that the sugar policy of the Government was a fraud, and the next day you might read in the same paper that the sugar made in Montreal was being shipped in large quantities to New York, because it was dearer in the latter city. The hon. gentleman then referred to the principle of granting drawbacks, explaining its workings, and saying although they did not expect to please every one by their policy, he was satisfied from the general result that their policy gave satisfaction to the country as a whole. He spoke of their visit to the iron and gold mines to-day, and he was satisfied from the developments made that this county would yet be one of the richest in the whole country, and he looked forward to the time as not far distant when there would be extensive smelting works, iron industries and gold works, established and in successful operation in various parts of their northern townships. He made a brief reference to the great North-west, which he had visited in company with one of his colleagues during last fall, and although he did not intend to issue an emigrant agent nor advise any of his constituents to leave comfortable homes, still if there were any determined to leave and build up for themselves new homes, they would find as good lands and better homes on the fertile prairies of the great North-west under the British flag, than they would on United States soil. He again thanked the audience for the kind reception they had given him and his colleagues and resumed his seat amid loud cheers.

SIR LEONARD TILLEY was the next to address the meeting. He said the reason he and Sir Charles Tupper desired that their colleague, the Minister of Customs, should address them first was that he was among his own constituents, and it was natural they should be desirous of hearing him first, and then as Mr. Bowell had said the junior officer was always sent forward first, and they knew how well he had always done his duty as an officer of the militia. It was well known that the Hon. Minister of Customs was acting Minister of Militia for some time, during the illness of Mr. Masson, and he filled that position with the same ability with which he filled every position he occupied. It was not our object to establish a mutual administration society, but he could not refrain from referring to a remark of Sir A. T. Galt at a recent banquet at Montreal, referring to the administration of the Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, Mr. Galt said it was a happy faculty of Sir John that in selecting his Ministers he always managed to select the right man for the right place, and in the selection of his friend, Mr. Bowell, as Minister of Customs, he obtained the best man he could find for the position. Having been Minister of Customs for five years, he knew something of its arduous duties, and if Sir John had asked him to take it he should have had to say no, because it was the most laborious and the most unpopular that a member could take. When Sir John selected the Minister of Customs, he wanted a man who could say No! and in that was fortunate in finding that man in his hon. friend Mr. Bowell. If there is a man in the Cabinet who could say no, it was the Minister of Customs, and if the policy of the Government is to be faithfully and honorably carried out and enforced, it was necessary to have a man as Minister of Customs who had the courage to say no. They had such a Minister, and sometimes we think he carries it too far, particularly when we want something done. But he was satisfied that whatever fault finding there might be, the Minister of Customs would be able to give a good account of himself and of his department on the floor of Parliament. He was gratified to accompany that gentleman to his constituency and was pleased with what he saw to-day, and with the hearty welcome they had received. He was glad also to have the company of his colleague Sir Charles Tupper, and although in your address, Mr. Chairman, you say you need no flattering words, you evidently had an eye to business when you spoke of the Murray Canal and your varied industries. Although we cannot take you into our confidence and proclaim our financial policy before Parliament, this much we can say: Our policy is as stated in one of the mottoes on your walls, "A Canadian Policy for the Dominion of Canada." (Cheers.) The speaker then referred at some length to the charge made against them that they had been free traders and had changed their views upon trade questions. His idea had always been to foster and encourage all the varied industries of the Dominion, as agriculture alone—not to mining alone—not to shipping alone—not to manufactures alone, but to all the varied industries. The circumstances of the country had changed, and although at one time he might have held some views in common with free traders, still he was sufficiently a patriotic citizen to give his views if he saw that the policy he was pursuing was detrimetal to the best interests of the country. He referred to his recent visit to Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, and as the results of those visits he conviction grew stronger and stronger every day in the wisdom of our policy, and the time was coming when the whole country, irrespective of party, will say that the policy of the Government was a good one. He referred to the silly charges made by the Opposition press that in his visits to the different factories, shops had been opened for the day to give the appearance of work—workmen had been brought from one flat to another and such sort of dog tray, but he had discove ed when a man resorts to such arguments to sustain his position, he must have a failing cause. He referred to the iron mines he had visited to-day, and although they were not indebted to the National Policy for the development of this wealth, still he believed that the policy which will be inaugurated will produce just what you desire—furnaces in your very midst. This county has only been on our statute books eight or nine months, and it could not be expected to revolutionize the trade and commerce of the country in so short a time, but it has worked wonders. What happy people you ought to be with your hills of gold and mountains of iron and valleys teeming with rich verdure for the cattle which produce your butter and cheese, and you ought to be a happy people, and it will be the duty of the Government to foster and protect your industries. Referring to the effects of the National Policy he said go to the great commercial centres of the Dominion and see how old manufactories had been renewed, new industries established, workingmen employed regularly instead of on half time; why within a circle of a mile in Montreal more than 3,000 more people were employed to-day than there were a year ago, in consequence of this Policy. It had been a great satisfaction to him to have witnessed the iron wealth and gold mines they had seen to-day; and he was satisfied from his examination of the gold ores, all it needed to develop this vast mineral wealth was capital, energy and knowledge of the quality of the ores. He felt satisfied the deposits of gold were not appreciated as they should be. They had spent an hour this morning in visiting some of the manufactories of Belleville; they had seen there the largest axe factory in the Dominion, and they had visited other industries which had been fostered and protected by the wise policy of the government. He thanked them for the kind welcome they had given to him as a stranger, and he believed the day was not far distant when the country would have a return to the prosperity of 1873. The hon. gentleman renewed his seat amid loud cheers.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER was received with hearty cheers. He said it had afforded him the greatest possible pleasure to visit this very interesting section of country. You have properly stated in your address that this constituency has a fertile soil, mines of iron and mines of gold, of very great importance; and my colleague has convinced me that you have not over-stated the advantages you possess. You have withal an intelligent, an industrious, and an enterprising population, and I am not surprised to find myself in the midst of such an intelligent audience, when I remember the gentleman you have sent to Parliament—a gentleman who has occupied a seat beside me for twelve years—one of the most able, accomplished, and hard-working members we have in Parliament; and whether in the cold shades of Opposition or as a member of the Government, he is equally respected. And he does not shine to greater advantage in the Department over which he presides, than he does in the cold shades of opposition. Sir Leonard Tilley has only paid a tribute to your representative when he spoke of him as being the best man that could have been selected for the position of Minister of Customs. He need not tell them that when Sir John A. Macdonald laid down the seals of office, he handed down as prosperous a country as the sun ever shone upon. He need not refer to the state of the country when that gentleman again came into power, but he would say that no two periods of the country's history will be so marked as during the Government of Sir John A. McDonald, when it was in a most prosperous condition, and under the McKenzie Government, when depression and ruin were visible everywhere. When in opposition they had begged, and implored the Mackenzie Government to change the policy of the country so that prosperity might be restored to it, but they begged and implored in vain. It was then that we stated that if we were in power we would change the policy, and when we came into power we did change the policy and with what result, every one knows. And we find Sir Leonard Tilley going about the country examining the various manufactories and seeing for himself what the policy of the Government has effected. What country could stand the policy of Mr Cartwright in coming down every year with increased tariffs? We found the industries of the country paralyzed, people going away from our shores to more favored lands, and being driven from other countries, and it was time to change the country's policy. Delegations waited upon Mr. Cartwright representing every interest in the country, praying him to do something to foster and protect their industries, but he always turned to them a deaf ear. The great mistake that Mr. Cartwright made was that he knew everything, and here was the difference between the hon. gentleman and the hon. Mr. Bowell. Sir Leonard Tilley believes he can learn something.—Mr. Cartwright shewed that he could learn nothing. And Sir Leonard Tilley is learning something every day, and he is not so stubborn or fatuous as to the true interests of the country that if we see we have made a change or modified the policy of the country, he will not do so. We were told that our policy would exasperate the American, that it would bring upon us trouble and war. But what was the result? Why, American capitalists had come into this country and established immense industries, and they had been flattered by the fact that we had copied from them some of the features of their protective policy. At some length the hon. gentleman referred to the altered condition of the country and to the bright prospects before it. So far as the government was concerned they they had fulfilled responsibilities, there was much that was pleasant. In the first place they had a great leader. The Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald possessed a large share of the love of people to an extent that no other man ever before did. He possesses too, the confidence of his Ministers, and he has the skill, the tact, the ability and consummate statesmanship to successfully carry on the affairs of the country. We had a government amongst whom there were no jealousies, and they acted with a sincere desire to advance the real interests of the country. He paid a high tribute to the Conservative press and particularly to the Mail, which was rapidly displacing that other great organ of political opinion in public estimation. He then referred to his visit to the mines of Madoc and Marmora, expressing himself as highly gratified with what he had seen, and again referred to his visit to the proposed Murray Canal to-morrow. He had come to inspect the site for himself, and he hoped at no distant day a finance Minister would see his way clear to make the required appropriation. He closed a most brilliant speech, which we regret our limited space will allow us only to make a brief synopsis of, and sat down amidst rounds of applause.

A vote of thanks was then given to the Chairman, and hearty cheers for the Cabinet Ministers, and Sir John A. Macdonald were given. The band closed the proceedings by playing "God save the Queen."

At the close of the meeting the members of the Government with about thirty invited guests partook of a substantial supper at the Madoc House kept by Mr. Simmons, the popular landlord. At ten o'clock the party left by train for Belleville, reaching here about midnight. A special train was at the junction to take Sir Charles Tupper, the Hon. M. Bowell, accompanied by Senator Read and a few others, to Hastings to inspect the locks there.

BELLEVILLE, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 31.

City and Vicinity.

City Council.—A special meeting of the Council was to be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The Market.—The snow fall and cold of this morning prevented a large attendance on the market.

The Election Case.—In another column will be found the full text of the judgment in the West Hastings election case.

W. T. A.—Go to the Workingmen's Temperance Association's musical and literary entertainment in their hall to-night. The chair will be taken at 8 o'clock. Admission 10 cts.

Early Closing.—The barbers of this city give notice in another column that from the 1st of January next until the 1st of June, they will close their places of business every night at 8 p. m., except on Saturday.

Hard to Beat.—Messrs. Vandervoort and Hogle dressed for Mr. John N. Simmons, 3rd concession of Sidney, last week, 70 bushels of seed from 9 loads of clover. 50 bushels of the above was done in 7 hours, the work was performed with one of Jos. Hall's improved mills.

Counterfeiters Convicted.—George Coulter and Charles Clarke, the Kingston counterfeiters, were tried before Judge McDonald at Brockville on Monday, and found guilty. Coulter was sentenced to three years and Clarke to three years and three months in the Penitentiary.

Bogart L. O. L. No. 1135.—The following officers were duly installed for the year 1880 :—Robert Gordon, W. M.; Wm. Porter, D. M.; A. N. Dafoe, Chap.; S. G. Dafoe, Sec.; Wm. Knowles, Treas.; J. Dwyre, D. of C. Committee—John Sparrow, J. Deen, D. Embury, S. Coulter, A. Whedar.

Mechanics' Institute.—A meeting of the membersof the Belleville Mechanics' Institute was held last evening for the purpose of organizing a Literary and Debating Society in connection with the Institute. The following are the names of the officers: —President, His Honor Judge Lazier; 1st Vice President, Thos. Ritchie ; 2nd Vice President, John J. B. Flint ; Secretary, J. W. Dafoe; Cor. Secretary, Thos. O'Hagan; Critic, J. Lewis. Meetings will be held on Tuesday night in each week.

Albert College.—We understand that Prof. John Macoun is busily engaged in preparing for the Dominion Government a report of his late scientific expedition. In view of these engagements, the Professor has resigned his Rectorship in the grammar school of Albert College, but retains his Professorship in the University College and will deliver his usual lectures on Botany and Geology during the winter term beginning January 1st 1880. The office of Rector of grammar school is now filled by Prof. Bannister. The Institution is to be congratulated on retaining the services of Prof. Macoun in his own Department of Botany, etc., in which he has won a reputation not only in Canada but in the Mother Country, where he is recognized as an authority, having been recently elected Fellow of the Linnean Society.

St. Thomas' Church.—The pews and sittings in this church will be allocated by public auction at the Metropolitan Hall on Tuesday afternoon next at 3 o'clock.

Through the Ice.—A horse belonging to Messrs Lake & Jamieson broke through the ice yesterday afternoon when crossing the bay. The two gentlemen who occupied the cutter succeeded after much difficulty in rescuing the animal.

Scrimy.—King winter has taken a firmer grip than usual this year, and the weather has been decidedly unpleasant. The roads are, however, in excellent condition, and business continues brisk in consequence.

Accident.—Mr. Stanton, conductor, and Mr. Kerr, an employee of the Grand Junction Railway, were both injured to-day whilst coupling cars. Mr. Stanton was severely squeezed, and Mr. Kerr was said to be less seriously injured. Fortunately neither is believed to be dangerously hurt.

Masonic Conversazione.—The conversazione given under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity in their building last night was a complete success, the entertainment being large and the arrangements satisfactory. A number of songs were given by the ladies and recitations by the gentlemen, and dancing to the excellent music furnished by the Oddfellows' band was kept up until about 5 o'clock this morning.

School Elections.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The nominations took place in the various wards to-day, as follows ;

A marriage license was returned to Doctors' Commons with the endorsement, "She wouldn't have me."

"Woman's inhumanity to man," says an old brute of a batchelor, "is what keeps the broom market steady."

From the steady, firm and regular beat of the Heart, replacing interrupted and feeble action of that organ, demonstrated in a variety of cases, Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is known to exert a powerful tonic effect on the muscles of the Heart.

Directions for Colic in Horses.—Contents of small bottle Pain-Killer in quart bottle, add pint warm or cold water, sweeten with molasses, shake well until all mixed, and drench well. Give about half at once, then balance in ten or fifteen minutes, if first dose is not sufficient. This will be found a never-failing remedy.

C. E. Kyle, of Uxbridge, writes October 3rd, 1870, and says :—"I certify to the excellent qualities of Allen's Lung Balsam as a remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. I know it to be all it's recommended to be."

Major J. W. Powell, who has given much attention to Indian mythologies, finds the philosophy of rain and snow entertained among certain tribes a peculiar one. Accoording to the Shoshones, a monster serpent-god coils his back against the ice of which the firmament is made, and rubs off flakes, which fall as snow in winter, and melt to form rain in summer. The Oraibi believes that an upper god makes rain by dipping feathers in the lakes of the sky and sprinkling the earth; but in winter the god crushes the ice of the sky lakes and flings it down as snow.

Good Advice.

Now is the time of year for Pneumonia, Lung Fever, &c. Every family should have a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. Don't allow for one moment that cough to take hold of your child, your family or yourself. Consumption, Asthma, Pneumonia, Broup, Hemorrhages, and other fatal diseases may set in. Although it is true German Syrup is curing thousands of these dreaded diseases, yet it is much better to have it at hand when three doses will cure you. One Bottle will last your whole family a winter and keep you safe from danger. If you are consumptive, dyspeptic, or think you have tried each remedy, Sample Bottle 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by your Druggist.

A CARD.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness, early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. Joseph T. Inman, Station D, New York City. ly

THE AFGHAN WAR.

BARKER ON THE WAY TO KOHISTAN—COLONEL SOEMAN'S ATTACK AT GUSDAMUK.

London, Dec. 30 —The Viceroy of India telegraphs that Colonel Norman has been attacked at Gandamuk by Azmatalı with 2,000 followers. The enemy were driven off. The British loss is one officer and one man killed. Norman will advance at once and reoccupy Lataband.

Cabul, Dec. 27.—Baker has gone to Kohistan with 1,700 infantry, a regiment of cavalry, and four guns, to punish the insurgents there. Mohammed Jan has taken Musa Khan with him to Wardak. Cabul is rapidly becoming quiet.

Cabul, Dec. 30.—General Hills has been reinstated as Military Governor. The shops in the city are destroyed and closed, and business is entirely suspended. Gough's brigade will occupy the Bala Hissar.

MORNING DESPATCHES.

AMERICAN.

Tiffin, O., Dec. 31.—George Clevidence, aged 70, in a fit of jealousy last night shot his wife three times, and emptied the remaining two chambers of the revolver into his own side. When found, he complained that the revolver was not a good one. Neither can recover.

San Francisco, Dec. 31st.—Advices from Hong Kong December 3rd say that reports are current that Bailey, U. S. Consul-General at Shanghai, has been called to Washington, in consequence of a report on his conduct submitted to the State department by the Government inspector.

Yokohama, Dec. 13.—An energetic minority of the ministry has urged an immediate resumption of complete and entire control over the Customs tariff. This was opposed by the majority, under the apprehension of forcible opposition by Great Britain and other commercial powers, if the promised scheme was adopted.

New York, Dec. 31.—George, the Count Joannes, who claimed to be an actor, author and counsellor, died yesterday afternoon aged 60.

The stagnation in the export demand for grain, and the cause of high prices has seriously affected the commerce of this port. Ocean rates for freight are unusually low.

The Parnell reception committee received word from Henry Ward Beecher and Rev. Bay Storrs expressing sympathy with Parnell's Dr. t. Two steamers will proceed down the visit to meet Parnell.

Boston, Dec. 31.—A special telegram from Augusta says the Governor agrees to submit a plan of Morrill's questions to the judgment of the Supreme Court. The reason why all will not be submitted is because there is such a mixture of fact and supposition that they would not be proper papers to submit.

New York, Dec. 31.—Crawford, the American engineer, sails from the United States this mail authorized to make a complete purchase of stock and material for the American Railway in Yez, to extend from the coal fields in the interior through the city of Sappero, capital of Yezo, to Atarie, a port of the north western coast, distance 53 miles.

The Duke of Genoa, commanding the Italian frigate Vitto Pisana was received with the distinction usually accorded representatives of a Royal house visiting Japan.

Cincinnati, Dec., 31.—Eph. Holland and a fellow gambler, Arty Duffy, were attacked on the street yesterday, by a party of gamblers, no serious injury was done, but though the matter will not end so, as sporting men charge Holland and Duffy with being responsible for raids on gambling houses.

AFTERNOON DISPATCHES.

London, Dec. 31.—In consequence of a cable despatch to the London Times from its American correspondent who visited Edison, and in consequence of an editorial based on their interview, gas stocks have fallen £5, following a drop of £15 from their price a week ago.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 31.—Wm. Donahue and Thomas Magee were struck by a train on the Philadelphia and Reading Railway last night and both instantly killed.

Hudson, N. Y., Dec. 31.—James Cummings was arrested at Valotic yesterday charged with robbery at North Pownell, Vt. It is believed the arrest will lead to the discovery of a large gang of expert burglars.

Ashton Under Lyne, Dec. 31.—The masters have refused the application of cotton spinners for an increase of 5 per cent in their wages.

Cannes, Dec. 31.—The Empress of Russia is slightly better.

Paris, Dec. 31.—The Figaro contains an article by Count Bernard de Harcourt, formerly the French ambassador at Berne, but who was recalled by Waddington while the latter was minister of foreign affairs, virulently attacking Waddington. The article causes much indignation.

London, Dec. 31.—The Mayor of Limerick received a letter from the President of St. Patrick's Society, of Chicago, informing him he has forwarded $500 for the relief of the distressed poor in Ireland. At a meeting in Galway of the Committee of the Irish Land League a report was read from Michael Davitt, Relief Commissioner, on the distress in West Ireland.

Resolutions were adopted recommending the formation of branches of the league in every parish in Ireland, with sub branches on every large estate and land clubs in towns and cities in Ireland and in centres of Irish population in England, Scotland and America.

London, Dec. 31.—The mill owners of Lancashire, Yorkshire, Derbyshire and Cheshire, have resolved that the demands of the operatives for 10 per cent advance in wages is premature.

Mackelyn, of the mineral department of the British museum, writes to the Times that after a thorough test of the so called crystallized forms of carbon obtained by Jas. Maclear, of the St. Rollox chemical works, who supposed he had discovered a process of making diamonds, he (Mackelyn) has no hesitation in declaring they are not diamonds at all, but consist of the same compound.

Geneva, Dec. 31.—It is reported from St. Gall that one of the consequences of the industrial crisis has been a complete revolution in the embroidery trade of eastern Switzerland and American merchants, who are the principal purchasers of Swiss embroidered goods, instead of ordering them from manufacturers through native agents as formerly have established their own houses at St. Gall, and buying the material in the cheapest markets. They give orders direct to operatives who work at their own houses, thus dispensing with the help of manufacturers and agents.

Special Invitation.

Call and get a trial bottle free of charge, or a regular size for $1.00. James Clarke & Co., Belleville.

Sick Headache

Is by far the worst complaint that comes under the name of headache. Is it not, properly speaking, a headache? That is, the disease is not seated in the head, but is symptomatic of some other disease or derangement. Sick headache unquestionably originates in the stomach and liver, and is owing to a sort of periodical derangement of the functions of those organs. Some doctors suppose the disease to be entirely nervous, but one reason why it originates in the stomach or liver, is that proper treatment directed to, the disease, in cleansing the stomach and rousing the liver, invariably relieves the complaint, and can be relied on in a majority of cases. All who suffer from sick headaches know the symptoms which precede the attack, for a day or two before it becomes fully developed, and they generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important to be done is to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

SANFORD'S
RADICAL CURE
For
CATARRH

This may certify that I have been a subject of that terrible disease, Catarrh of the Head and Throat, for some 32 years, caused by taking cold in the month of June, 1825. The attack at that time was so severe that the doctor and my friends thought I must die. For years and years I have been so sick that life has been a burden to myself and friends. It is useless for me to say how many doctors I have tried, how much medicine I have taken, during all these years of endless suffering, but those who suffer as I have suffered will know that I never ceased to look for relief, and to try every remedy that promised it.

In September, 1876, I began the use of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. No sooner or did I begin to use it than my symptoms changed, and all my afflictions I have endured, too great for some people to credit. I can with a clear conscience and the strongest faith in its power, say that I am well, and I generally make up their minds to be "laid up" for two or three days at least. What is most important to be done is to cure it, or render the attack as light as possible. Treatment—Get at once a box of Dr. Herrick's Sugar Coated Pills and take them according to directions. After a prompt and thorough action of the bowels, one pill every evening should be taken for a few days. Sick headache can thus be best relieved and soonest cured.

West Hastings Election Case.

THE JUDGMENT.

The following is the judgment of the Court in the West Hastings Election case, which was tried before Chief Justice Moss and Justice Galt, the latter of whom delivered the judgment:

The petition in this case contains the usual charges of corrupt practices by the respondent himself and by his agents. The majority was 3 37. There was no proof of corrupt acts on the part of respondent himself, but there was convincing and admitted proof that he employed at least two persons, namely, Sarsfield and Johnston, who were his agents, Mr. Cameron, counsel for respondent, candidly admitting he could not deny the agency of the former, and the respondent, in his evidence, stating, "I asked Mr. Johnston to do what he could for me." I shall have occasion to refer more at length to the evidence hereafter, but for the present it is sufficient to say the result of this petition depends upon the construction to be placed upon the 159th sec. of chap. 10, Prov. Stat. Ont. That section is: "To prevent the expense and trouble of new elections when unnecessary and useless: in case of a corrupt act or acts being committed by an agent, without the knowledge and consent of the candidate, if the corrupt act or acts was or were of such trifling nature, or was or were committed in such manner that the election cannot have been affected, or be reasonably supposed to have been affected, by such act or acts, either alone or in connection with other illegal practices of the election, such corrupt act or acts shall not avoid the election." By Sarsfield's own admission he bribed at least seven voters; he meant one two, and stated that he might have bought five more. Johnston admitted that he had spent $150 in the purchase of votes—for some he paid $7, and for others $1, but he thought the average was $2.50. This would represent 60 votes; but I gather from his evidence the number was not so large, but would extend to between 50 and 60, so that we have direct proof that at least between 40 and 50 voters were bribed by these two agents alone. It appeared also from the evidence that in close proximity to one of the polling places in Goleman Ward there were two places at which spirituous liquor was given to voters; one of these was kept by a man named Walsh, and the other by a woman named McNulty. It was not satisfactorily shown that the respondent was aware that this was being carried on during polling hours, although shortly after the poll closed he visited McNulty's in company with a person named Mulhearn, who gave him some whiskey out of a flask which he had in his pocket. The evidence was now clear that Mulhearn was an agent of respondent, but it was proved that Sarsfield, an admitted agent, was in both these places. He says himself, "Was in both McNulty's and Walsh's on the day of election perhaps three or four times; parties went in with me each time." Morton, another active supporter of respondent, although not an agent, said: "Was at the poll in Coleman Ward during the day; Mr. Robertson was there and spoke to many people; did not hear him solicit any person's vote; Sarsfield, Mulhearn, and Morris worked actively for Mr. Robertson; saw people going in and out of Walsh's and McNulty's; was once at McNulty's with Sarsfield; saw probably twenty or thirty people go to the houses; do not know whether Mr. Robertson knew there was drinking going on; should think that any one there could see that drinking was going on." There were several other witnesses who admitted being in those two places during polling hours and while the poll was open in their close proximity. By the 151st sec.: "No candidate for the representation of any electoral district shall, nor shall any other person, either provide or furnish drink or other entertainment at the expense of such candidate, or other person to any meeting of the electors aforesaid for the purpose of promoting such election previous to or during such election, or pay or promise or engage to pay for any such drink or entertainment, except only that nothing herein contained shall extend to any entertainment furnished to any such meeting of electors by or at the expense of any person or persons at his, her, or their usual place of residence." By the 11th sub-sec. of sec. 2 of the Election Act of Ontario, any violation of this 151st sec. is declared to be a corrupt practice. It is plain from the evidence that the liquor dispensed at these two places was not provided at the expense of either Walsh or McNulty, but by some other persons, consequently was a corrupt practice under the 11th sub-sec. of sec. 2 above referred to, and as it has been shown that Sarsfield took part in furnishing this liquor to voters, the respondent must be held responsible, so far as the result of this petition is concerned, for such acts of his agent. It was also strongly urged by Mr. Kerr that there was a contravention of this provision on two other occasions, or perhaps three, namely, one or perhaps two at the hotel kept by Sarsfield, and another at the residence of Mr. R. S. Young. I think as respects the meeting at Mr. Young's there was nothing objectionable; it was clearly within the exception, being furnished at his own expense and at his usual place of residence. I confess I did not attach much importance during the trial to the meeting or meetings held at Sarsfield's, for the reason that until Mr. Kerr referred to the interpretation clause I considered any contravention of the 151st section in the light rather of a forbidden than a corrupt practice, but a consideration of his argument has satisfied me I was mistaken. Moreover, I looked upon what took place on those occasions as of such a trifling nature as not to have affected the result of the election; but I was much impressed with his contention that when we are called upon to decide on the effect which a number of illegal acts may have had on that result, we can exclude none from our consideration. It is plain the meeting in question was held "for the purpose of promoting the election previous to such election," and also that persons who were agents of the respondent were present and furnished drink and entertainment to those persons so taking part in the proceedings; it is therefore clear there was an infringement of the law. There were also two cases of "treating" proved, but it was not shown that this violation of the law was done by persons for whose actions the respondent is responsible; and they cannot be overlooked when we are called upon to decide whether "the corrupt act or acts was or were of such trifling nature, or to such trifling extent that the result cannot have been affected or be reasonably supposed to have been affected by such act or acts either alone or in connection with other illegal practices at the election." We find, then, that there were between 40 and 50 cases of bribery, a large amount of indiscriminate treating close to one of the polling places—one of a considerable meeting the evening before the polling day, which meeting was a corrupt practice under 11th Sub-Section of Section 2 of the Election Act—and two cases of personation. Thus there are instances of almost every corrupt practice forbidden by the Election Law. We feel it impossible to say that such numerous illegal practices cannot be said not to have affected the result of the election, nor be reasonably supposed not to have done so. If the present return can be supported, owing to the large majority of 337, that would be to determine that in any case in which the successful candidate has a large majority it is useless to complain of any infringement of the law unless corrupt practices can be brought home to the candidate personally.

We find that the election of Alexander Robertson was void for corrupt practices by his agents, and we declare the election void, and order the costs of this petition to be paid by him.

A young man's friends object to his being loose, but somehow they have an equal objection to his being tight.

"Let girls be girls." Yes, that's so. A change couldn't be for the better, and it might be for the worse.

Canada Royal Benefit Society.

THIS Society is for all insurable persons; for those of small means as well as for the rich; for the sober, the industrious and the provident. It is based upon sound commercial and economical principles, and is wholly free from secrets and expensive ceremonies, with which many of the benevolent societies of the present day are encumbered.

The benefit branch secures for its members medical attendance and $5 per week in case of sickness or accident, and $500 in case of death, with a provision for one half of the $500 being paid should a member become totally disabled through sickness or accident at an earlier period.

The tables of fees have been drawn up with the greatest care, making due allowance for the difference of age at the time of joining the Society.

From a careful inspection of the Society's By-Laws, it will be seen that the greatest possible advantages are offered for the premiums paid.

The following table of fees will be of interest to those desiring to join this Society:—

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

IS A FACT ATTESTED BY THE HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

A careful observance of the laws of health and the systematic and persistent use of SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME AND SODA will accomplish this result. This preparation has all the virtues of these two most valuable specifics in a form perfectly palatable, and accepted by the most delicate stomach; and one week's use, in qualified statement that SCOTT'S EMULSION is being used with better results, and endorsed Chronic Coughs, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Anæmia, General Debility and the Wasting Disorders of children, than any other remedy known to medical science. The rapidity with which patients improve on this food medicine daily, is truly marvellous.

SEE WHAT PHYSICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SAY ABOUT IT.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: 66 West Thirty-sixth Street, New York, September, 1876.
GENTS,—I have frequently prescribed SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES during the past year, and regard it as a valuable preparation in scrofulous and consumptive cases, palatable and efficacious. C. C. LOCKWOOD, M. D.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last year I have used in my own family, and in my private practice prescribed very extensively SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES and found it a most valuable preparation, especially in diseases of children. It is agreeable to the taste, strengthening in its effects, and I doubt not, would render it in every case a valuable agent as a nutritive remedy in consumptive and scrofulous cases. A. H. SAXTON, M. D. Baltimore.
Oct. 12, 1878.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—Within the last two months I have fairly tried SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL with HYPOPHOSPHITES, and I candidly declare that it is the finest preparation of the kind that has ever been brought to my notice; in affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we can consider it our most reliable agent, in a perfectly elegant and agreeable form. Yours truly,
December 19th, 1878. J. SIMONAUD, M. D., New Orleans, La.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE:—Gentlemen—In September, 1876, my health began to fail and my physician pronounced it spinal trouble; under his care I got some relief from pain, but my general health did not improve. I began to lose blood and rapidly grew worse. In May last I was taken with a violent bleeding which brought me to my bed and my life was despaired of for many weeks; violent symptoms appeared, night and morning coughs, night sweats, short breath, pain and a serious trouble. My physician stopped the bleeding and then ordered Cod Liver Oil and Lime; and I used various preparations, but they did me no good. I had all hope of life, and was an object of pity to all my friends. Last September I purchased a bottle of your EMULSION and before it was all taken I was better. I then bought a dozen bottles and have taken all with the following result: Cough subsiding, night sweats stopped, appetite returned, pain and spine disappeared, strength returning and my weight increased from 98 lbs to 140 pounds in sixteen weeks. I have taken no other medicine since commencing with your EMULSION and shall continue its use until I am perfectly well. I frequently meet some friend on the street who asks, what cured you and I answer, SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, &c. I have a friend who has not spoke aloud for 15 months and he is getting better. I gave him a bottle and he tells me he has more than got a deep cough and says it is food and medicine for him. He was given up to die a year ago; but he is improving now wonderfully. My recovery is exciting the surprise of many people, and I shall do all I can to make known your valuable medicine.
Jan. 20th, 1879. Very truly yours, ANTUM, Lowell, Mass.

MESSRS. SCOTT & BOWNE: LYNN, Randolph Co., Ind., July 2d, 1878.
About the 25th of last April I got a bottle of your EMULSION and at that time I was so reduced that no one who saw me thought I could live but a few days at most. I could retain nothing on my stomach and was literally starving. I commenced the use of the EMULSION in small doses; it was the first thing that would stay on my stomach; I continued its use, gradually increasing the dose; and from that hour I commenced mending, and now am able to ride and walk and am gaining flesh and strength rapidly. I have advised other parties to try it, and two or three have already tried it. I am sure I shall entirely recover. I am gratefully yours,

GENERAL DEBILITY

Dyspepsia. Bronchitis. Loss of Appetite. Nervous Prostration. Asthma and Consumption.

IN ITS FIRST AND SECOND STAGES, ARE CURED BY THE USE OF

Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites.

As this preparation is entirely different in its combination and effect from all other remedies called Hypophosphites, the public are cautioned that the genuine has the name of FELLOWS & Co. blown on the bottle. The signature of the inventor, JAMES F. FELLOWS, is written with red ink across each label, and the price is $1.50 per bottle. Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites is prescribed by first physicians in every city and town where introduced, and is a thoroughly reliable combination.

For Ague, Anæmia, Intermittent Fever, Consumption, General Debility, &c., &c.

RAVENNA, MEDINA CO., Dec. 20th, May, 1879.
THE FELLOWS MEDICAL MANUFACTURING, CO.
GENTS.—We have used your Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites with gratifying results in our practice, and cheerfully recommend it to physicians, and others, as a reliable, and agreeable preparation in ague,—Intermittent Fever, first and second stages of Pulmonary Consumption, Nervous Affections and General Debility. We should recommend it as the best thing we have used.

Epileptic Fits"

ST. PAUL, MIN., January 4th, 1878.
JAMES F. FELLOWS, Esq.
DEAR SIR.—I have deferred writing to you ere this, that I might be able to give an account of the effect of your medicine, but can now safely say that it is undoubtedly the best I ever tried, as there can be no doubt that my little girl is in a fair way of recovery, and you must bear in mind, that was a very bad case and I do honestly believe that had I not given it to her, she would have been dead ere this; now she eats heartily and is gaining in flesh the fits are only partial and the action of the heart is less forcible: I am, sir, yours very respectfully,
J. WALTER OAKES.
Northport, Wis., May 6, 1879.

JAMES I. FELLOWS, Esq.
SIR,—I have been using your medicine for over a year now and with the best effects. I have used 12 bottles of the Hypophosphites, and it has made a new man of me. I have been ailing over six years with a number of diseases but the difficulty was the most prominent. I have been under the care of a great many Doctors, and have taken quantities of medicine without any apparent benefit, but appeared to be still growing worse and weaker until I accidentally came across one of your circulars and was constrained to try your medicine and I found its effects were almost magical, upon me and I was a surprise to myself and friends, having gained so rapidly in flesh.

I remain respectfully,
LAWRENCE DORAN.

Do not be deceived by remedies bearing a similar name; no other preparation is a substitute for it. Order any druggist to procure.
